Congressman Dan Quayle, in contrast, had a National Taxpayers Union rating of 90 percent. That means he voted to cut federal spending of tax dollars on 90 percent of the money bills which received 1979 action in the House. Quayle is (the) Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate and (faces) Bayh in the November election.

The NTU is a non-partisan, non-profit organization with more than 180,000 dues-paying members from the various states. They prepare the analysis, the union tabulates all the votes of each senator and representative during the year on fiscal bills. It was interesting to note that Bayh was one of the few to vote on less than 75 percent of the bills recorded. Several Bayh partisans have attempted to accuse Quayle of missing roll calls in Congress, when just the opposite is the case according to the record. Quayle was present to vote on more than 75 percent of the money bills while Bayh was not.

Excessive spending by government of the national wealth, plus the funding of unwanted and burdensome federal regulatory agencies, are key issues in the current campaign. The deficits plus bureaucratic interference in domestic production are widely recognized as basic causes of inflation.

Regardless of election-year excuses back in the home state, the actual voting record in the national legislature speaks for itself. The National Taxpayers Union has performed a useful service for people in Indiana and other states with senators seeking election this year.

Ch'ch League Re-elects

The Saint Joe Church League met April 29 at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Officers for the coming year were re-elected. They are: Ted Haberkorn, president; Roger Cook, vice president; and Lavon Hart, secretary-treasurer.

The league voted to leave the week of July 19—26 open in its schedule to allow for tournaments sponsored by the area Youth League. Wednesdays were also left open for Youth League use. Donna Ramer and Larry Emenhiser attended the meeting to represent the Youth League.

Tentative commitments by area churches indicate a full nine-team league this summer. That is the maximum allowed due to scheduling limitations.

Mr. Haberkorn pointed out that criticism is heard from time to time that the church league "pushes out" Little League and other league activity at the lighted diamond. He said this was probably due to lack of knowledge in the minds of younger members of the community and newcomers as to the history of the present diamond.

Though the diamond is situated on school property, all of the playing facilities were installed by private efforts. The Saint Joe Valley Recreation Club was formed in 1951 and its goal was a lighted ball diamond. Mr. Haberkorn served as its first president with Frank Sechler serving as secretary. In 1952 the diamond and lights were put into use, including church league and Little League activities. However, at that time Little League games were played only during daylight hours; there were no scheduling conflicts for many, many years. The Pony League and even the high school made use of the diamond with no problems or conflicts.

It is only in recent years that conflicts have arisen and these are due for the most part to scheduling of night games by leagues other than the church league.

The recreation club gradually faded from the picture and the church league took over where it left off. All of the baseline fence, the outfield fence, remeshing of the backstop, bases for the most part, home plates, pitcher's rubbers and so on came through church league financing with help from time to time from other sources. This continuing area of church league responsibility represents many thousands of dollars through the years. The most recent was the installation of new more efficient light fixtures in 1978 at a cost of over $5,000. Nighttime competition at the local diamond has meant "church league" from the very beginning.

The president suggested that those at the meeting who may hear criticism of the church league for "hogging" the diamond pass the background information along.

With an obligation of $350 on the books yet for a loan for part of the cost of new light fixtures, Mr. Hart recommended retention of the $100 entry fee. He submitted a financial report as follows:

Regular pickup will be made Monday, June 2.

The California Newspaper Publishers Association offers an example of a typographical error in the classified section of a small town newspaper, and the subsequent disastrous attempts to correct it:

"(Monday)FOR SALE—R.D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Phone 948-0707 after 7 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him cheap."

"(Tuesday) NOTICE—We regret having erred in R. D. Jones' ad yesterday. It should have read: 'One sewing machine for sale. Cheap. Phone 948-0707 and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him after 7 p. m.' "

"(Wednesday) NOTICE—R. D. Jones has informed us that he has received several annoying telephone calls because of the error we made in his classified ad yesterday. SPRING CLEANUP

Although nearly three-fourths of all dwelling fires begin in living spaces such as living rooms, bedrooms and kitchens, many also start in areas usually not occupied such as basements, attics, garages and utility rooms. These fires often burn for a long time before discovery. Of normally unoccupied areas of the house, basements are the most frequent sites of fires. Paint, paint removers, cleaning fluids and other flammable liquids should be kept in tightly-sealed containers. Paint-soaked rags should be discarded or put in sealed metal drums.

This spring clean out all those piles of old newspapers, discarded clothing and trash, are serious fire hazards. They are an even greater fire danger if they are stored in the furnace area, which should be kept free of combustibles at all times. It's also important to be careful with clothes dryers, paying special attention to the regular cleaning of lint traps and filters.

Attics often contain a wide assortment of combustible materials—old newspapers, books, files, records, clothing, wood items and cardboard boxes. Once ignited, attic fires spread rapidly, with plenty of fuel to feed on. During warm weather the danger is increased by high temperature and low relative humidities. Adequate ventilation of the attic is important.

Garages also may be filled with junk that has accumulated over many months or years. With the presence of an abundance of combustible material, an ignition source such as a spark or a frayed electric cord can easily start a fire.

Inform your family not to use flammable liquid like gasoline to start or freshen a fire or for cleaning purposes. When disposing of smoking materials carefully (not in wastebaskets), keep large safe ashtrays wherever people smoke.

Keep matches out of the reach of children and out of direct sunlight (like on window seals). Keep all paint in tightly closed metal containers. This spring can be a lot of fun but only if it is fire safe. Your trash and discarded material can produce an unsafe environment and then it's only a matter of time.

Fire cares less if you are white or black, rich or poor, and has no time limit for when it will strike. But your good spring housecleaning habits can make the difference. Try it and see the results are fire safe as you will be.

The word from Oxford—

Fortunate and rare are those who know when to compare "with" and when to compare "to." The rest of us need rules. Use "compare with" when you mean a real examination of similarities and differences. "Compared with the present law, the proposed one is simplicity itself." "She compared our prices with our competitors'." Use "compare to" when you want to suggest a similarity between things that are quite different. "Compared to me, an elephant is graceful." "Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?" Do you see that one cannot compare people "with" animals, or your sweetheart "with" a day of the year?

Michelle Davis Leads OSU Hispanic Group

The April 10, 1980, issue of "OSU On Campus," publication of Ohio State University, contains an article about the presentation of a one-act comedy co-directed by Michelle Davis, a lecturer in the Department of Romance Languages. Michelle is the daughter of Bob and April Davis of R1 Spencerville.

The article reads:

"A one-act comedy by a Cuban-American playwright will be the first production of a new Hispanic theater group at Ohio State.

"Teatro Unidad (Theater United) will perform the play in Spanish April 12 at 2 p.m. in the Ohio Union Conference Theater as part of the University's annual Hispanic Awareness Week, April 7—13. The play will be free.

"The week's activities include special lectures, musical events and films designed to increase public understanding of Hispanic culture.

"Michelle Davis, co-director of the play, said Teatro Unidad was formed several months ago to involve Hispanic-Americans living in central Ohio with Hispanics and others at the University who are studying Latin America or the Spanish language.

"She estimated that there are 16,000 Hispanics living in the Columbus area, 'so there is definitely a population which should be interested in the University's academic programs and community services involving Hispanics.'

"'Teatro Unidad is 'open to anyone with an interest in Hispanic culture,' Davis said.

"The cast of the play, which includes two persons from Columbus with no previous ties to the University, has an international flavor with other cast members from Cuba, Puerto Rico and Colombia.

"'The play, 'Su Primer Cliente,' ('His First Client'), was written by Jose Cid Perez, a Cuban-American who is a professor emeritus at Purdue University. Davis describes the play as a humorous look at a man who just received his law degree and who works very hard to impress everyone. . .

"Davis, a lecturer in the Department of Romance Languages, came to Ohio State from Purdue where she earned her doctorate last year in Latin American studies with an emphasis in theater. . . ."

Mrs. Benny Thompson, who was one of the election day workers at Saint Joe, commented that the staff appreciated the good food provided by the auxiliary of the fire department.

The paper was no more than in the mail for the last issue when Steve Monroe came in and said, "You've got a misprint."

In reporting the business conducted at the May town board meeting, I said he and Steve Grogg said EMT training was a part of firemen training according to standards set by the local fire department. Steve says EMT training "helps" but is not a requirement. I noted that the way in which both Steves responded to my comments at the meeting gave the impression that EMT training is a requirement for a certain rank of firemen.

Norris Chapel United Methodist Church will observe its 100th anniversary September 7. Tornado Tips- - -

Fire Dept. News
Steve Monroe, Training Officer

Fire meetings—3rd Monday.

Rescue meetings—4th Monday.

This year as in the past the Saint Joe-Concord Township Fire Department will be involved in somewhat of a tornado preparedness program for the community.

When DeKalb County is under an official tornado warning, fire trucks are stationed at strategic locations in the town and township. This serves two purposes. It eliminates the possibility of all the fire fighting equipment being destroyed should a tornado hit the fire station and secondly this gives us several different viewpoints from which to watch for tornados so that we may give the community as much advance warning as possible.

In the event a tornado is sighted and confirmed in the Saint Joe area, the fire siren will be blown with a steady tone for a three-minute period. If the siren blows for this steady three minutes, people should take immediate action to find safe shelter because this means that there definitely is a tornado in Saint Joe's immediate area.

The Riverdale cafetorium is equipped with a fallout shelter which can be used as a tornado shelter. During a tornado warning, the cafetorium will be opened and the shelter be made available for the people of the community for their protection. This is especially a good place to go for trailer dwellers or people with houses without basements. But everyone who wishes to is encouraged to use this facility.

It is required that if you come to the cafetorium, you must proceed directly into the shelter and stay there until the firemen stationed there inform you that it is all clear and safe to leave. This is for your protection because the shelter is below ground level, thus making it much safer than the cafetorium itself.

Here are some additional tornado safety tips:

In cities or towns—seek inside shelter, preferably in a tornado cellar, underground excavation or a steel-framed or reinforced concrete building of substantial construction.

In factories, on receiving a tornado warning, post a lookout. Workers should move quickly to sections of the plant offering the greatest protection in accordance with advance plans.

In homes, the corner of the basement toward the tornado usually offers the greatest ... safety. In a house with no basement, take cover under heavy furniture in the center part of the house (if you don't have time to reach the shelter in the cafetorium). Keep some windows open but stay away from them.

In schools, go to a storm cellar or underground excavation if available. If there is no storm cellar but the building is of reinforced construction, stay inside away from windows. Whenever possible, go to an interior hallway on the lowest floor. Avoid auditoriums and gymnasiums with large poorly supported roofs. (This is why we require that everyone go into the shelter.) If a building is not of reinforced construction, go quickly to a nearby reinforced building or to a ravine or open ditch and lie flat.

In open country: move away from the tornado's path at a right angle. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

Review Given Of County Humane Society Program And Purposes

The DeKalb County Humane Society held a fund-raising solicitation by kids in various communities throughout the county Saturday and came up with $800 in donations. The money will go toward completion of the new humane shelter being built on US6 between Butler and Waterloo.

"Who We are.

"The DeKalb Humane Society was organized in 1975 as an anti-cruelty organization devoted to the elimination of cruel and inhumane treatment of animals. The Society is governed by an all-volunteer board of 15 officers and directors. DHS is a non-profit organization. The most important role of the Society is to see that the community programs are carried out humanely and to enlist the cooperation of the public for municipal laws and programs.

"What We Believe.

"We are against the uncontrolled reproduction of dogs, cats and other pets.

"We believe in educating adults and children on the long-term commitment for food, shelter, and love necessary for any pet.

"We believe in humane euthanasia as a means of putting an end to the suffering of unwanted and abandoned pets.

"We believe in kindness towards all living things.

"Enforcement of local and Indiana laws pertaining to animal cruelty, care, health, and welfare.

"What We Do.

"We care for the stray, unwanted, lost, and sick animals. (When Shelter opens)

"We work to prosecute those who perpetrate acts of cruelty.

"We provide assitance to municipalities in updating animal control ordinances.

"We educate the public through schools and educational programs.

"Promote a strong animal control program.

"Enforce strict adoption rules.

"Provide a Shelter to help solve animal control problems.

"Provide speakers for clubs and organizations.

"Where We Get Our Funds.

"Thus far, our largest source, toward the building of our new County Shelter, has been from the County Commissioners and Council. This being a county problem, we hope for their continued support when the Shelter becomes an operational reality.

"Memberships and donations which are all tax deductible. All funds donated are used entirely in DeKalb County.

"Fees for adoption and pick-up of pets.

"Projects through our fund-raising committee.

"How Funds Are Spent.

"All donations will be put in building fund until Shelter is built.

"Funds are spent on Shelter maintenance and personnel. Equally as important is education — films, printed materials, Kindness Kits for use in classrooms, and a continuing educational program for shlter employees.

"Future Goals.

"The opening of DeKalb County's gleaming new shelter.

"A strict adoption policy prohibiting the adoption of any unaltered animal. In 1979, DeKalb County had over 700 dogs and cats euthanized. This figure does not include those who died of starvation and neglect or were killed or injured on our streets and highways.

"A lower cost spay-neuter program for pet owners.

"Enforcement of licensing for cats as well as dogs."

The humane society needs 3,000 annual memberships throughout DeKalb County to support the organization and its shelter.

Membership fees include:

Supporting $10; assisting $15; sponsor $100; family $25; organizational (clubs, etc.) $25; business $50; or a contribution of whatever amount the donor can afford.

Sp'ville FD Has Big Training Group
—Shirley Mack, reporter

The Spencerville firemen have put over 600 training hours in the past year at their own expense and time. A couple of the recent county training sessions were held at Ashley and Avilla. The following firemen took part:

Mike Schuerman—ladders, salvage and overhaul, ventilation and forceable entry.

Bob Arnett—inspection and preplanning.

Joe Crowl—ventilation and forceable entry.

Chris Miller—rescue, salvage and overhaul, smokepak and fire stream.

Their first CPR and advanced first-aid training session was held May 6. It is taught by State Trooper Bob Oustead with the help of another trooper, Mike Trittipo. There was such a good turnout, 30 men and women, that the CPR was extended for two weeks.

First-aid class starts May 20. Anyone still interested in taking the first-aid class can start on that date. No preregistration is necessary. Just feel free to come and join us. It has been moved to the Spencerville Community Building because of the number of people involved. Class sessions run from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The department purchased two new air bottles, thanks to the contributions of the ParTee Company and the Ladies Auxiliary.

Bidders for said bonds will be required to name the rate or rates of interest which the bonds are to bear, not exceeding 9 3/4% per annum. Such interest rate or rates must be in multiples of 1/8 or 1/10 of 1%. Bids specifying two or more interest rates shall also specify the amount and maturities of the bonds bearing each rate, but all bonds maturing on the same date shall bear the same single interest rate. The rate named for any maturity shall be equal to or greater than the rate on the immediately preceding maturity. The interest due on any bond on any interest payment date shall be represented by a single interest coupon. A zero interest rate will not be permitted. The bonds will be awarded to the highest qualified bidder whose bid is submitted in accordance herewith. The highest bidder will be the one who offers the lowest net interest cost to the school corporation, to be determined by computing the total interest on all of the bonds to their maturities and deducting therefrom the premium bid, if any. Any premium bid must be paid at closing as a part of the cash purchase price. Although not a term of the sale, it is requested that each bid show the net dollar interest cost from the date of the bonds to final maturity and the net effective average interest rate. No bid for less than the par value of said bonds will be considered, and the right is reserved to reject any and all bids. If an acceptable bid is not received at the time fixed for sale, the sale will be continued for a period of not to exceed thirty days thereafter, but in the event of the continuation of such sale no bid will be accepted which is lower than the highest bid received at the time fixed for the sale of said bonds. No conditional bids will be considered.

Bids shall be in sealed envelopes marked "Bid for School Building Bonds of 1980," and each bid shall be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check in the amount of $7,200, payable to "DeKalb County Eastern Community School District." The check of the successful bidder will be retained until the bonds have been delivered and payment made therefor, and in the event such bidder shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of his bid and this notice, then such check and the proceeds thereof shall become the property of the school corporation and shall be taken and considered as its liquidated damages growing out of such failure. The checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned immediately after the award of the bonds. The successful bidder shall accept delivery of the bonds and make payment therefore within five days after being notified that the bonds are ready for delivery, at such bank in the State of Indiana as such bidder shall designate. The bonds will be ready for delivery within thirty days after the date of sale, and if not deliverable within that period, the successful bidder shall be entitled to rescind the sale and obtain the return of his good faith check.

Said bonds are being issued for the purpose of procuring funds to be applied on the cost of remodeling of and improvements to the Eastside Junior-Senior High school buildings in said school corporation, and will be the direct obligations of the school corporation, payable out of unlimited, ad valorem taxes to be collected on all of the taxable property within said school corporation. The DeKalb County Eastern Community School District is a school corporation organized pursuant to the provisions of I. C. 21—4.

These bonds are offered subject to the unqualified approving opinion of Ice Miller Donadio & Ryan, bond counsel of Indianapolis, Indiana. The school corporation will furnish at its expense the opinion, printed bond forms with the opinion printed thereon, transcript of proceedings, and closing papers in the usual form showing no litigation questioning the validity of the bonds at the time of delivery.

Dental health is poor

Over 15% of the adult population do not have a single tooth in their mouths except those on dental plates they wear. More than 60% do not visit their dentist during an entire year. When asked, they admit they need dental aid.

Even more important is the neglect of children's teeth. There are from 3 to 8 cavities in the mouths of the age group from four to eight years old. And, the average adult is walking around with about four neglected cavities in his mouth. This dental neglect is undermining the health of the nation.

The word from Oxford-

We Americans owe scores of colorful and useful phrases to our farming forefathers. Here are just a few. "Rule the roost," to be master, comes from the rooster lording it over the henyard. "Fly off the handle" refers to the head of an ax: a loose one may fly dangerously in any direction when the ax is swung. "A one-horse-town" disparagingly describes a town of limited resources. "Have an ax to grind," to use sweet talk to get a favor done, is thought to have come from getting one's ax ground free of charge. Living languages constantly enrich themselves by such real-life additions.

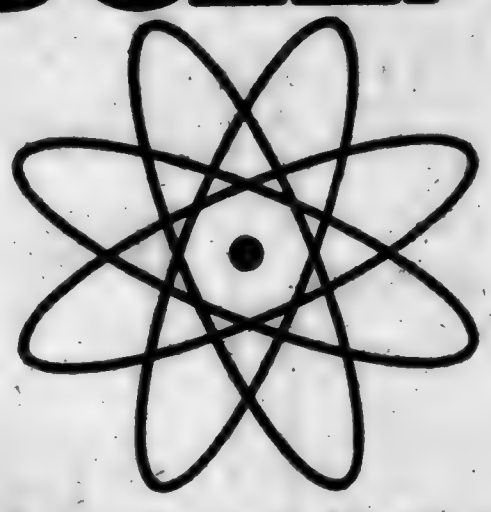
COAL

NUCLEAR



Two reasons your electric rates are below the national average.

It takes a lot of fuel to make the electricity our customers use. And because fuel is the major factor in the cost of producing electricity, your electric costs are directly affected by the kind of fuel we use.

The answer is coal and nuclear . . . plentiful, readily available and a lot cheaper to use than oil.

Last year the American Electric Power System which we're part of burned over 38 million tons of coal. And that saved our country over 150 million barrels of oil. In addition, Cook Nuclear Plant alone saved nearly 20 million barrels of oil.

Cleanup Pickup Day May 31

One of the "fringe benefits" of the town's contract with Hess & Sons Disposal for trash removal is a cleanup pickup at no charge to the town or its residents.

That extra pickup day will be Saturday, May 31, and the town board urges all residents to take advantage of the free service in removing unsightly and unusable items from their properties.

Jerry Hess, owner of the trash removal firm, says his crew will pick up all trash set at the edge of streets, as is done with regular trash pickup. For the one day cleanup even large appliances will be hauled away if set at streets' edge.

Regular pickup will be made Monday, June 2.

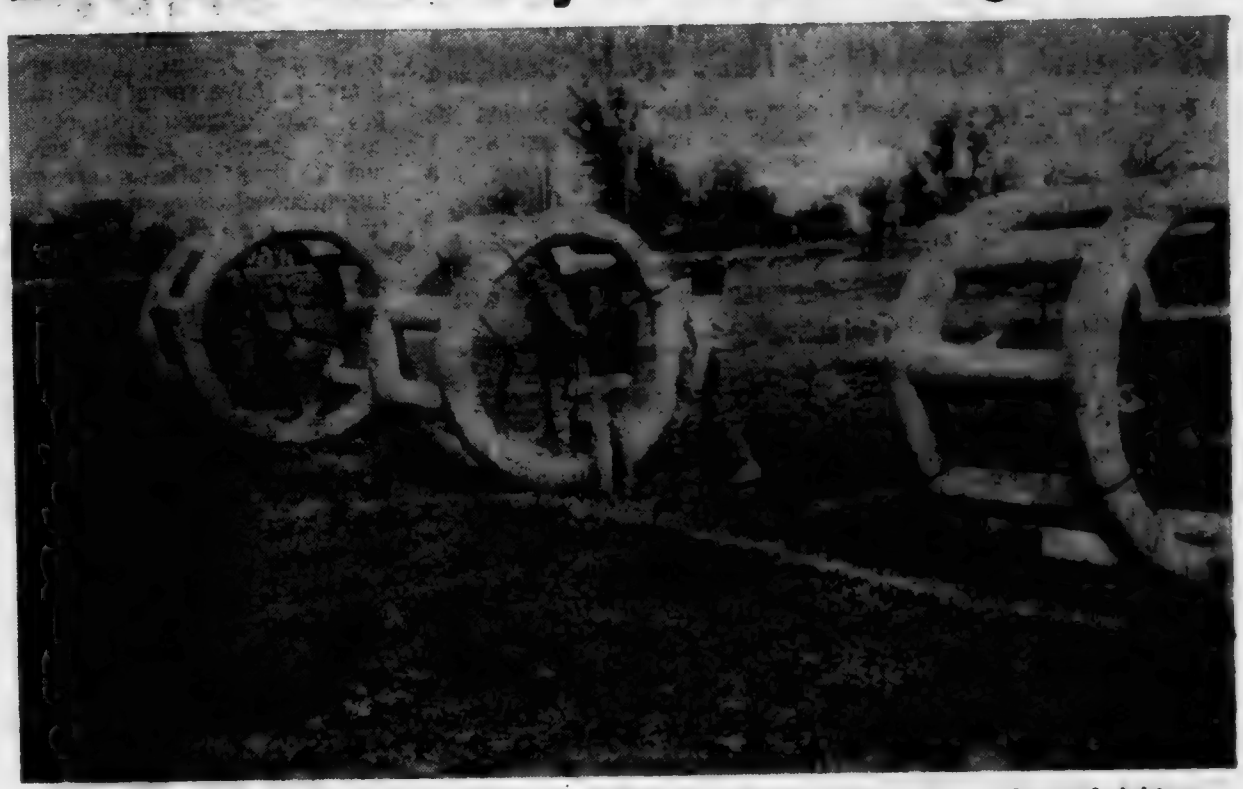
Riverdale Field Day A 'Kids' Delight'



Squeals of delight, and shouts of encouragement and accomplishment were heard through the day at the Riverdal Elementary School Field Day held Friday.

All grades participated in various tests of skill and dexterity. Faculty members were assisted in conducting the field day program by several parents.

The top photo shows the three inflated "rolling steps" used as part of an obstacle course. The course began with a sack race, a hurdle, followed by the rollers.

From the interest and enthusiasm shown by students, it was apparent that the field day was a lot of fun, in addition to providing the experience of winning and losing in competitive activities.

Of 'Fake' Holidays - And Retirement

A couple of current subjects irk the heck out of me.

One is the "Memorial Day" —the fake "Memorial Day"— set for Monday, May 26, by an act of Congress as an official national holiday, and discarding the traditional May 30 observance.

Here we are, wondering why inflation is growing, looking for the "big things" to place the blame on and forgetting the little things. One of the little things is the change of dates for certain holidays so that organized labor can get a full day's pay for a no-work Monday as part of a "long weekend."

It beats me how anyone, be it a labor leader or a politician, can ignore the fact that when you pay wages for no work done, you inflate prices.

It may not seem like much at first glance, a few dates changed to make long weekends for national holiday observances. But, you know, a penny here and there adds up to a dollar. And dollars add up to tens or hundreds of dollars— and so on. To avoid the "fake holiday" pattern set up by our Congress is just plain foolish when you're trying to figure out why things are getting out of hand moneywise.

You hear voices using the word "productivity" quite frequently in the recent past concerning the problem of inflation. Among those voices is that of President Carter. You read reports showing that productivity in the United States has increased only a fraction, if at all in the last year or so. Other nations are increasing their productivity while ours is going down.

But wait a minute. Don't get the word "productivity" mixed up with the word "production." They don't mean the same thing. And unless the meaning of the words is understood, all the talk in the world won't do a bit of good.

We can increase production— that is, increase the amount of goods produced—and still not be any better off financially. Why? Because the problem is not quantity, it is quality and efficiency.

"Productivity" means units of goods produced per unit of time. The more efficiently a worker does his or her job, the more "productivity" you have. And the more productivity you have, the more reward there will be (higher wages and salaries).

Under today's conditions, we have in the United States the opposite conditions existing. These conditions, leading to a spiraling inflation, include:

More wages and salaries being demanded and paid FOR LESS WORK PER TIME UNIT.

More fringe benefits being demanded and given for LESS PRODUCTION PER TIME UNIT.

More paid holidays and "fake holidays" on long weekends for NO PRODUCTION PER TIME UNIT. In effect,, a paid holiday means zero efficiency.

—And we wonder what's the trouble.

The other thing that bugs me is retirement benefits for public employees. It's going on all over, but this week our school board decided to include school bus drivers in the retirement benefits program. The school pays 6% or so and the bus drivers pay 3% or so.

"The school pays"??? Oh no —the TAXPAYER pays.

I don't understand why I should help pay for a school bus driver's retirement benefits through taxation when he or she DOESN'T PAY A DIME towards my "retirement benefits."

What is there so special about ANY public employee that the taxpayer should be expected to shoulder part of the financial responsibility for retirement of public employees?

Has it occurred to many people that this situation represents a complete reversal from what we have traditionally — and rightly — referred to as "the American way" of individual responsibility? The boundaries of the free world shrink bit by bit, year by year. And it's because nations and peoples increasingly think of "the government" rather than themselves as holders of responsibility for individual welfare.

This kind of talk doesn't win many friends. I even have REPUBLICANS not liking what I am saying because they're getting in on the gravy train, too!

You can "Yes, but — " all you want to. And it won't change the fact that the reason we are having big troubles is that we talk big about freedom and liberty and the right to this and the right to that and individual initiative and so on —but we turn around and DO exactly the opposite.

THAT'S what's wrong with our American society today.

That Poor Census Worker

"You didn't make my job any easier."

That's the closing remark made by the young woman who had the unfortunate task of calling on me for some information which had not been obtained in a telephone call by another woman who talked to the Mrs. about the census.

They had to call because I left the census envelope lying unopened on the kitchen cupboard ever since it came.

I was reminded by a couple of members of our family that there was a fine and maybe a jail sentence for not sending the return in.

For one thing, I object to a $1 BILLION tax expenditure for a census. For another I object to the expanding range of questions used in taking the census.

What is significant is the fact that the young woman tried to justify the range of questions by stating that it is the government's responsibility to have all this information available statistically when a government agency or a private business wants certain information. My reply was, "No—the basic responsibility of government in our republic is to protect the rights of its citizens."

I did answer a few general questions. But when it came to income, I said, "Nothing— I always have more bills to pay." An exaggeration, of course, because I don't see how income statistics are going to benefit anyone. So we find out when all the reports are in that so many families had this much income and so many families had that much income. By the time the statistics ARE compiled, it won't mean anything because inflation and automatic cost of living increases will have made those statistics obsolete.

And what good is it going to do anyone to know how much my electric bill is? The young woman said something about utilities being able to know what the demand is going to be. My observation was, "You want to know what the demand is going to be? Go ask I&M. They know what they must plan for—or TRY to plan for."

She asked the same questions several times, saying at the same time that she could not force me to answer.

To show how "programmed" she was into the government-oriented approach and to show how little thinking is being done about these things by the young adult generation—when a question came from ME, she scampered to her car and came back with a booklet, leafing through the pages to find what answer she was to give for questions related to certain census questions.

As she flipped through the pages, I said, "Look at all the time and expense involved in preparing that booklet—tax money." She had no significant reply.

I didn't relish making the young woman uncomfortable. Yet, SOMEBODY must at times give the younger government-oriented generation a little something to chew on.

On second thought, I guess I did "relish" the situation, not in a personal way concerning the young woman, but rather because I had an opportunity to tell a government-oriented worker just what I thought about certain things.

It may not be in my lifetime, but someday that young woman is going to start wondering about certain things in HER lifetime and she'll remember the evening she had a session with a man in Saint Joe who made her census job "rough." And she'll understand then what he was getting at.

I'd bet on it.

Bidders for said bonds will be required to name the rate or rates of interest which the bonds are to bear, not exceeding 9 3/4% per annum. Such interest rate or rates must be in multiples of 1/8 or 1/10 of 1%. Bids specifying two or more interest rates shall also specify the amount and maturities of the bonds bearing each rate, but all bonds maturing on the same date shall bear the same single interest rate. The rate named for any maturity shall be equal to or greater than the rate on the immediately preceding maturity. The interest due on any bond on any interest payment date shall be represented by a single interest coupon. A zero interest rate will not be permitted. The bonds will be awarded to the highest qualified bidder whose bid is submitted in accordance herewith. The highest bidder will be the one who offers the lowest net interest cost to the school corporation, to be determined by computing the total interest on all of the bonds to their maturities and deducting therefrom the premium bid, if any. Any premium bid must be paid at closing as a part of the cash purchase price. Although not a term of the sale, it is requested that each bid show the net dollar interest cost from the date of the bonds to final maturity and the net effective average interest rate. No bid for less than the par value of said bonds will be considered, and the right is reserved to reject any and all bids. If an acceptable bid is not received at the time fixed for sale, the sale will be continued for a period of not to exceed thirty days thereafter, but in the event of the continuation of such sale no bid will be accepted which is lower than the highest bid received at the time fixed for the sale of said bonds. No conditional bids will be considered.

Bids shall be in sealed envelopes marked "Bid for School Building Bonds of 1980," and each bid shall be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check in the amount of $7,200, payable to "DeKalb County Eastern Community School District." The check of the successful bidder will be retained until the bonds have been delivered and payment made therefor, and in the event such bidder shall fail or refuse to comply with the terms of his bid and this notice, then such check and the proceeds thereof shall become the property of the school corporation and shall be taken and considered as its liquidated damages growing out of such failure. The checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned immediately after the award of the bonds. The successful bidder shall accept delivery of the bonds and make payment therefore within five days after being notified that the bonds are ready for delivery, at such bank in the State of Indiana as such bidder shall designate. The bonds will be ready for delivery within thirty days after the date of sale, and if not deliverable within that period, the successful bidder shall be entitled to rescind the sale and obtain the return of his good faith check.

Said bonds are being issued for the purpose of procuring funds to be applied on the cost of remodeling of and improvements to the Eastside Junior-Senior High school buildings in said school corporation, and will be the direct obligations of the school corporation, payable out of unlimited, ad valorem taxes to be collected on all of the taxable property within said school corporation. The DeKalb County Eastern Community School District is a school corporation organized pursuant to the provisions of I. C. 21—4.

These bonds are offered subject to the unqualified approving opinion of Ice Miller Donadio & Ryan, bond counsel of Indianapolis, Indiana. The school corporation will furnish at its expense the opinion, printed bond forms with the opinion printed thereon, transcript of proceedings, and closing papers in the usual form showing no litigation questioning the validity of the bonds at the time of delivery.

Dental health is poor

Over 15% of the adult population do not have a single tooth in their mouths except those on dental plates they wear. More than 60% do not visit their dentist during an entire year. When asked, they admit they need dental aid.

Even more important is the neglect of children's teeth. There are from 3 to 8 cavities in the mouths of the age group from four to eight years old. And, the average adult is walking around with about four neglected cavities in his mouth. This dental neglect is undermining the health of the nation.

The word from Oxford-

"Gourmet" and "gourmand" have in common one syllable and an interest in one aspect of a full and rich life. In use, however, one of these words compliments and the other insults. A gourmet is a connoisseur of good food and drink, so we speak admiringly of gourmet dinners enjoyed at gourmet restaurants. A gourmand, is a lover of food, a glutton. So while both enjoy a succulent dish, the gourmet may sigh with pleasure but the gourmand will call for more. And that is why no restaurant we know of has ever claimed that it serves gourmand food!

Legislature Gives Tax Breaks On Solar Use

—by Richard Worman
State Senator

The Indiana General Assembly, which in 1975 pioneered solar energy tax incentives by enacting the first law in the nation providing a property tax credit for solar heat systems, made further advances this year by enacting three solar energy bills into law.

It is my hope that these new laws wil lead to greater exploration and use of alternate energy sources. With the cost of conventional energy such as gas and oil skyrocketing, the solar energy alternative has become a realistic and viable one.

Hoosiers installing qualified solar or wind energy systems are now eligible for a tax credit which may be one of the most generous such tax incentives in the country. The credit cuts installation costs by one-fourth, with homeowners eligible for a maximum benefit of $3,000. Buildings which are not single family dwellings may receive up to $10,000 in tax reductions. The law goes into effect this year, and can be applied to systems on which installation is begun before the end of 1982.

Hopefully, this new law will encourage residents to invest in solar systems, for it cuts down on what are usually higher initial costs for solar as opposed to conventional systems. Specific regulations governing the granting of benefits will be adopted in the next few months. Persons interested in applying for the tax credits should contact the Indiana Department of Revenue, State Office Building, Indianapolis, Indiana 46204.

Under another bill enacted into law, alternate energy research programs will be contracted under a newly appointed Energy Development Board. The board is empowered to take applications and make loans for projects aimed at developing new energy cources, including solar energy, coal and alternate alcohol fuels. Inquiries should be sent to Executive Director, Department of Commerce, 440 N. Meridian, Indianapolis, Indiana 46209.

Persons who have set up solar energy systems may now apply for solar easements for air space over real etate. Previously, there was nothing to prevent blocking of the sun's rays by buildings and other structures to such systems.

Solar energy systems, both active and passive, may be added to state-owned buildings if such systems are shown to provide the lowest lifetime operating costs for the building in question. This new law, which takes effect September 1, 1980, requires all designs for the construction or renovation of state buildings to include a study of the feasibility of such solar systems, as well as other energy conservation practices. The most energy efficient design is to be used and may include solar systems which would provide for heat, air conditioning and electricity.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

I got mother and daughter mixed up in last week's item about the winner of the 1885 issue of this paper. Eloise Morr is the daughter of the late Marie Draggoo Meese.

The second new Little League diamond at the Riverdale School (the first new diamond was put in a year or two ago) meant more work for the adult leaders of the Youth League. One of the big helps, according to Jerry Vinson, was the donation of six loads of sand by Irving Ready-Mix with the trucking donated by Gerald Krafft of Spencerville.

An example of extravagant waste in paper and postage can be found in the Army Corps of Engineers.

In recent months, my mail has included countless notices from the Engineering Corps about waterway projects. They are not just Indiana projects; they're all over the country.

The notices include detailed drawings of roadway construction, whatever construction may be involved—and its sometimes a matter of a half dozen sheets about just one project—maybe in Kentucky or someplace else.

Just think—if every weekly newspaper, every daily newspaper, every radio station and every TV station—plus whatever official offices may be involved—if they all get these mailings, what a stack of logs it must take to make the paper just for the Engineering Corps. Think of the trees needed to supply this bureaucratic storm of paper.

And on top of that, news media received a separate "Notice To Navigation Interests" about the "extension of lockage hours at Locks 5 through 10, Kentucky River on Memorial Day 1980."

Did you have any trouble getting through Locks 1 through 4 and 11 through 14 Memorial Day??? Their hours remained unchanged. —!

Dan Coats Speaks At Memorial Service

Dan Coats, Republican candidate for Congress, was the speaker Sunday at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ Memorial Day observance. He said that Americans have enjoyed more freedom than any other people in history, but he warned that those freedoms are being threatened.

"Our freedoms were purchased with a price," Mr. Coats said. "They were purchased by those who served in our country's defense, many of whom still bear the physical and mental scars of war. They were pudchased with the anguish of families and loved ones. And they were purchased with the ultimate price, the lives of millions of young American men and women from the Minutemen felled at Concord to the eight Americans who died during the rescue attempt in Iran."

The speaker said Americans can be proud of their accomplishments, noting, however, the serious threats to freedom in the 1980s. These threats include Soviet aggression, American dependence on forgein oil, uncontrolled inflation and government intrusion into American values and morals.

Americans must cope with these physical threats, Mr. Coats noted. "But even that is not enough. This nation was founded upon religious principles. We must continue to acknowledge the importance of those principles and remain 'one nation under God'," he concluded.

Lions Club Sponsors Swim, Rec'n Programs

The Riverdale Summer Recreation Program will begin June 2 and continue through July 25, according to Mary Bopp, director of the program.

The summer activity is sponsored by the Saint Joe Lions Club and is designed for children of all ages as well as young adults and parents.

A parent-signed permission slip is required before any participation is allowed.

Mary says, "I'm looking forward to a fun summer. Hope to see you there!"

3 Are All-ACAC

The DeKalb Eastside Blazer baseball team is well-represented on the All-ACAC baseball team selected by the coaches.

Rinard led the league in batting with an average of .477. Voirol had a .377 average and Hantz .366.

Though named as an infielder on the first team, Rinard was the mainstay of the Blazer pitching staff. An injury during the season kept him out of action a few weeks and the Blazers missed his presence on the mound.

The two pitchers named to the first team, Tim Maki and Kim Stahlhut of Carroll, each pitched two no-hitters during the regular season.

The Blazers drew a bye in the sectional draw and were scheduled to face Hamilton Saturday, May 31, at the DeKalb Central diamond. Going into the sectional, the Blazers have a 15-10 won-lost record.

Bayh Wealth Proves Deception

I have never been "sold" on the idea that making public officeholders disclose their finances improves the quality of candidates for office. Disclosure of finances is, to me, an invasion of privacy, but the idea had great support from those who, at other times, have been outspoken against invasion of privacy.

But in the last week, a "good" side of the financial disclosure requirement was evident.

In an Indiana News Service article coming from Washington, D.C., Linda Sarrio listed the holdings of Indiana's two senators, Richard Lugar and Birch Bayh, and our Fourth District Representative, Dan Quayle who will attempt in November to take the senate seat now held by Mr. Bayh.

Senator Bayh often refers to himself as "just a farm boy". The financial disclosure statements indicates that the Senator has been deceiving Hoosier voters.

Senator Bayh does have a 340-acre farm at Shirkieville, Indiana. BUT — he also owns eight townhouses and four vacant lots — in Washington, DC! AND — he maintains a private residence in Washington and has a Front Royal, Virginia, vacation cabin once owned by his late wife.

Now we can't fault the senator for the vacation cabin; it was in the family through his wife, it appears.

However, when value estimates on real estate are low in these public financial statements because they are given as the value at the time of acquisition, some eye-opening statistics come forth:

The 340-acre Bayh farm listed at $50,000 to $100,000 is worth what on today's market? I'm not familiar with the farmland at Shirkieville. But if a $1000-per-acre price tag is put on that farm (and that's a very conservative estimate at today's prices if the land is any good at all), we come up with $340,000 for the farm.

The eight townhouses are listed by Senator Bayh as worth between $120,000 and $400,000 (in 1978). They brought him between $15,000 and $50,000 in rental income last year. What are those townhouses really worth? At Washington, DC's price, a half-million dollars is not unreasonable as an estimate.

The four vacant lots are valued by the senator at between $20,000 and $80,000. Again, at Washington's prices, an estimate today of around $100,000 as a minimum appears reasonable.

Putting this all together, the popular appeal of "just a farm boy" is an appeal based on misrepresentation, almost falsehood. From the nature of the senator's income (other than his $58,200 salary as a senator) it appears that his interests lie not with the Hoosier state but rather with Washington, DC.

It is something to give serious thought to as the November general election approaches and Indiana voters must choose between Senator Bayh and his opponent, Dan Quayle, who, incidentally refused to accept the latest congressional pay raise.

Senator Bayh is attempting in his campaign for re-election (he's been a Senator for 18 years) to divert attention to the energy problem. He's appealing to Hoosiers with his condemnation of "the sheiks and shahs now bringing America down to its knees" by overpricing of crude oil. He makes himself out as the originator of the gasohol-from-grain idea which just naturally appeals to a farm state. (Actually, the American Farm Bureau was promoting gasohol over 20 years ago!)

Senator Bayh's deception is not in how much he makes or how much he owns. The deception is in making himself out to be "just a farm boy" from Indiana with Hoosier interests at heart, when his real interests lie in Washington, DC.

CROP Gets $6741

DeKalb County CROP contributors have given $6741 toward the relief of many overseas projects. This is $509 less than was collected in 1978, according to John Couey, extension agent.

County chairman Rev. Clarence Banks of the Auburn First Christian Church and the committee for CROP have expressed their thanks to those who participated. The gifts were appreciated and do much to relieve the extreme poverty of overseas neighbors, they said.

Final figures for the 1979 Indiana CROP fiscal year show income of $836,586 and Blanket Appeal income of $41,679. This is a decrease of $20,000 from the previous year for CROP and an increase of $17,000 in blanket income.

Clothing donations were up 8,500 pounds and contributions for processing costs up $2,500 above 1978. 124% of processing costs were paid as compared to 88% the year before.

The grand total in dollar value was $415,765, an increase of $8,500 over the 1978 total of $407,235.

Indiana ranked seventh nationwide in total CROP income and fifth in Blanket Appeal income. 1979 was the best Blanket Appeal year on record.

Illinois was top with blankets with almost $92,000. Ohio was second and Pennsylvania, with two regional CROP offices, third. Missouri placed fourth.

Pennsylvania was first in CROP income with over $695,000, closely followed by Kansas. Ohio was third with $488,000.

New Jersey was the only other state above $400,00, with an increase of more than $100,000 over 1978.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted,

I'd like to make a couple of comments on your editorials on holidays and retirement, also census workers.

First lets start with paid holidays. Have you ever stood on a production line for eight hours a day, five days a week? Well, it gets pretty boring. The management tells you when to eat lunch, when to take breaks, and when to go home. We have fought for our holidays and will continue to fight.

Several times in the past your paper has been late because of sickness, going to the lake and what ever. Well, your readers try to understand that but try to understand factory workers.

As for census workers, first you gave a woman a hard time for doing her job. I agree that the government is too nosey. There is a lot of laws I don't agree with, but must abide by.

On the one billion dollars it cost, yes thats a lot of money but think what it would have been, if everyone had been like you and made census takers come to each individual home. The gas and personnel would have been tremendous.

Yes Ted, I agree with you on a lot of things, but sometimes you really get carried away.

Sincerely,
Victor L. Duke

Dear Editor:

My name is Oscar Jackson, and I'm composing this short letter — hoping I take up very little of your time, in hopes to reach out to society, and somehow touch a friend — someone that's honest enough to share a few moments of understanding.

For a mistake I made (something we all have made at least one mistake in life), I'm incarcerated here at the London Correctional Institution in London, Ohio. I've been here now a little more than a year. I need desperately to talk with someone, especially through LETTERS. I'm lonely and it's a sicken feeling, as well as frustrating to me mentally — I'm trying to hold on! but it's hard. I do have a positive mental attitude about myself — I need to share my feeling and ideas with someone with a lending ear and a kind heart.

Financially, I can't afford your services, but praying to God! is all I can do, as well as hoping you would be kind enough to print the following below message — with your kindness and God's will, hopefully soon! my road will cross will someone that cares:

"I'm 25 years of age, lonely, and need someone to share friendship, and understanding. My name is Oscar Jackson, and I need a lending ear. I will answer any and all letters promptly . . . . God Bless you."

Oscar Jackson, Box 69,
No. 135—674
London, Ohio 43140

Thank you very much for your time and I pray for a soon reply. . . .

Respectfully yours,
Oscar Jackson

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Today's high rate of inflation is impacting all of us, whether in private business or in the public sector. It is adding to the cost of almost every item purchased and at the same time eroding everyone's income base.

I&M has made a concerted effort to control costs and cut expenses. However, a careful review of both present and anticipated financial conditions has indicated that we will need a general increase in base rates by early 1981. Present rates are based on 1977 costs and do not recognize the realities of today's inflation or the future financial needs of the company.

I am taking this opportunity to notify you in advance that I&M plans to file a petition with the Public Service Commission of Indiana in late July seeking a general rate increase of about 15%.

I can appreciate that this comes as unwelcome news, however, I'm sure you will agree that a 15% increase is in line when it is considered that by the time this increase becomes effective in 1981, it will have been almost two and one-half years since the last increase in September 1978. Inflation has risen at an annual rate of more than 13% and the Cost-of-Living Index has increased by 20%.

I&M has specific needs for additional revenues to: 1) help pay for a newly installed $49 million environmental control device at one of our generating plants; 2) meet operating and maintenance expenses which have increased by $18 million since September 1978; and 3) to afford high interest rates required for short-term and long-term borrowing.

Even with an increase, I&M rates will remain below the national average and among the lowest in Indiana. I assure you that a reasonable increase such as this will help meet our first commitment of providing the best possible electric service to customers.

Sincerely,
L. R. Brunke

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thanks for sending me the copies of the News in which my ads appeared. Thanks also for running my statement about the filing fees.

The latest — and maybe the last as far as this year is concerned — chapter in the filing fee story is told in the enclosed press release.

I've sent copies of a similar statement to the Evening Star and WIFF/WDKB. So far, nothing about it has appeared in the Star, though Dave Kurtz says he will use it in some way. As for WIFF/WDKB, I may have missed a newscast or two, but I don't think they've gotten around to using it either.

In any case, a decent failure in an effort like this may be as noteworthy as complete success, even if it isn't as satisfying.

Best wishes.

Sincerely,
Mike Walter

What is abnormal metabolism?

Metabolism is a big word that refers to all the ways by which a particular substance, food for instance, is handled in your body. Once in a while these processes do not work right, but in some cases the problem can be controlled by diet.

In this and other types of metabolism problems, special foods may be required or the patient may be required to stay away from certain foods. Of course, in addition to diet control a prescription may be necessary to help the condition.

The word from Oxford-

"I'll see thee hanged first," says one rough character to another in a play by Shakespeare. Correct English? Yes. The past tense of the verb "hang" is "hung" or "hanged" but only "hanged" is correct in the sense of causing death by hanging. "Pictures were hung," "meat was hung," "doors were hung" and "wallpaper was hung," but Kipling's Danny Deever—sadly and grammatically—was hanged in the morning. Know the old saying, "As good be hanged for a sheep as a lamb" and you will keep "hung" out of sentences in which it does not belong.

Filing Fee Effort Turned Down

A delegate who will represent Concord and Union townships at the upcoming Democratic State Convention has reported the failure of an effort to mount a court challenge to candidate filing fees for convention-nominated state offices.

In a written statement, Mike Walter of Auburn said that the Indiana Civil Liberties Union has turned down a request to represent him in an action to stop the Democratic State Central Committee from collecting the candidate fees, which average about $3400.

"The ICLU shares my view that fees of this size are unconstitutional," Walter said, "but it doubts that an individual delegate has adequate legal standing to bring action to eliminate them."

Quoting part of a letter from Fort Wayne attorney William Alfred Kern, ICLU regional director, Walter said that what the ICLU needs to pursue the matter is "a real, live candidate for nomination to office at a state convention."

Walter said he is satisfied with the ICLU's efforts on his behalf:

"Some of Indiana's best constitutional lawyers have together spent more than 20 hours working on this case. Everyone involved has given it his best shot."

Walter added that he will continue to look for ways to challenge the filing-fee system.

The Equal Payment Plan.

A convenient way to budget for your electric bill.

Some household expenses are fairly steady throughout the year. But your electric bill varies from month to month because your electric usage fluctuates with the changing seasons. The bill is usually higher in the winter. It dips a little in the spring months, then, for most people, rises during the air conditioning season, before dropping again in the fall.

We can't do anything about the weather, but we can help you smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill. And that's by offering you our Equal Payment Plan.

With the Equal Payment Plan, we bill you a fixed amount each month based on your average usage.

Every six months we'll review your account so you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, down or staying about the same. The bill at the end of the twelfth month is the "settle-up" bill.

Many of our customers are already taking advantage of the Equal Payment Plan. If it sounds like a good idea to you, simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

We give it our best.

Water Tank, 'Skeeters' Get Board Action

Saint Joe's water tower will get a new inside and outside paint job late this summer. And mosquitoes are in for trouble if recommended chemicals are as effective as indicated.

Those are parts of the story resulting from Monday night's regular meeting of the town board. Attending the meeting were board president Ted Haberkorn; board members Paula Tinstman and Larry McKown; Clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; and Norman Noe, Arthur Nieto, John Bopp, Jim Miller, Don Moore, Steve Monroe, Denny Baker and James McCanna.

Mr. McCanna was introduced to those present by the president. He is now serving as the town's legal counsel, appointed to that post in April.

The president reported that since Maurice Kline took over as waterworks superintendent, all water samples sent to Indianapolis for testing by the Indiana State Board of Health have shown no indication of pollution in the town's water supply. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Chicago had reported "bad" tests in December, January and February, and proper notice was given to the public even though the problem had been corrected. Erratic test results had occurred before Mr. Kline took over.

Just two or three weeks ago the EPA notified the town of "bad" tests for January, February and March. And this week still another notice said no samples had been received from the town in March.

Putting it all together, the story for Saint Joe Waterworks patrons is that the water supply is "O.K." and the samples for tests are being handled more carefully under the new superintendent to prevent accidental contamination of the samples sent for testing.

Mr. Noe addressed the board about work on the water tower. He represents the Leary Construction Company of Greenfield, Indiana. The board voted to accept the company's offer to clean and paint the interior and the exterior of the water tower. Inside treatment is necessary about every five years to protect the tank from excessive and damaging corrosion. The cost of this upkeep will be $4,995.00.

Mr. Moore asked for and was given permission to hook a residence water drain tile into a town surface water tile.

Mrs. Tinstman had made some contacts about the mosquito problem recently. Included in those contacts was Mr. Baker and she turned the discussion of the matter over to him.

Mr. Baker presented information about mosquito control and said he had arranged to have a meeting Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. with representatives from a chemical company. The board met Wednesday with the representatives and Mr. Baker at the local restaurant. After gaining information about the use and effectiveness of pesticides for control of mosquito larvae and already-hatched mosquitoes, a tentative order was placed for liquid and pellet chemicals.

The liquid is to be used in the fogger and the pellets to be dropped from a low-flying airplane. The pellets are very small and present no health threat to humans or animals. They are of the "controlled release" variety. That is, their effectiveness is not totally immediate but rather extends over a period of time.

The chemical representative said that the relative ineffectiveness of the town fogger in recent years may be due to the fact that some chemicals break down under high heat levels. The fogger operates under high heat, thus the chemical intended to control mosquitoes may be "burned up" and the fog may then just be from the oil base used with the chemical.

The board will use the recommended chemicals as soon as possible and review their effectiveness.

Mrs. Tinstman, Mr. McKown and Mrs. Frank agreed at the president's suggestion to meet Wednesday, June 11, at 7:00 p. m. to begin preliminary considerations regarding the budget for 1981. Mr. Canna suggested an "executive session" to avoid legal technicalities now affecting meetings of elected bodies. When Mr. Munroe objected to the executive or "closed" session, Mr. Haberkorn said, "You want to come? —come—and anyone else who wants to. The meeting will be for talking purposes and no action will be taken."

Budgets must be prepared in time for publication in August.

Mr. McKown is to contact the township trustee as to the use or non-use of the "grass buggy" which has been stored in the town garage for a considerable length of time. It was used by the township in the past to fight rural grass fires.

Mrs. Frank reported as at previous meetings that she had received no correspondence.

Mr. Haberkorn reported a request from a Youth League leader about the need for rest room facilities at the local ball diamonds. The president suggested that the board give some thought to the matter and that perhaps a cooperative effort could be undertaken to provide such facilities.

The drinking fountain at the town garage has been repaired for use by those at ball games and practices or other recreational activity.

Bills allowed included:

Town—Arthur Nieto, one-sixth of mowing contract 200.00; Auburn Veterinary Clinic, disposal of pups 10.00; Hess & Sons, trash removal 345.00; Hixson Sand & Gravel, Inc., cold-mix blacktop repair material, 135.91; John Bopp, general town maintenance, materials and labor 349.50.

Waterworks—Maurice Kline, salary and postage 87.28; Roc Brown, labor 12.00.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted,

I heartily agree with you about Congress changing Memorial Day from May 30.

John Y. Davis was a Civil War veteran and George Wade-John Davis was grandfather of Glen Wineland and Emma Strombeck. I used to go with them to put flowers on soldiers graves.

Without glasses it seems as if I am writing in dark.

Also, I want to congratulate Effiebell McCann on being Postmistress.

Sincerely,
Marjorie Ramsey

EHS Teacher Praises 'Perfect' Calculation Class

According to the instructor, Lorene Franklin, this year's Machine Calculations class is the "perfect" class in every way. All students were dedicated to the objectives of the class, were always on time and went immediately to work. They worked independently, reading, interpreting and following instructions very commendably. In addition, they completed all requirements for the course in record time.

The class, composed of 10 seniors and 7 juniors, produced an overall average of 94% for the second nine weeks.

During the first 9 weeks of this one-semester course, one to three weeks are devoted to business math review and adaptation to machine usage. The next two-week period is devoted to mastering the keyboard of 10-key machines and developing the "touch" system, speed and accuracy. The balance of the first 9 weeks is utilized to becoming expert operators of three different types of machines (adders, listing calculators and digital calculators) along with becoming familiar with different business records and accounting procedures.

Those students who complete the required number of machines before the end of the grading period may earn bonus points by working with any of several full-keyboard calculating machines, as well as ditto, mimeograph, transcribing and accounting machines.

The second 9 weeks requires the completion of a 50-lesson practice set which puts to work every record-keeping and machines procedure learned during the first half of the semester. There is here, also, a special emphasis on keeping payroll records.

Mrs. Franklin believes any student completing this phase of the class could easily qualify for an entry level job in payroll with very little further training.

To complete the second 9 weeks of this varied and intense course with an overall class average of 94 (94-plus after exams) is a testament to the initiative, scholarly ability, skill and maturity of each and every one of the young people pictured, Mrs. Franklin said.

Mrs. Franklin states that most of the juniors pictured are looking forward to participating in a work-study program with local industries and businesses, through the DeKalb eastern vocational program during the 1980—81 school year.

Mrs. Franklin, a resident of Kendallville, has completed six years as vocational business instructor at DeKalb Eastside.

Saying - And Doing

One of my pet gripes about today's efforts in bringing better health to our people is the contradictions which prevail.

Millions are jogging, or running, or riding bicycles, or what have you, to improve their health. Nutrition programs are in effect in schools and in the senior citizens program. In between we have millions of people reading books and articles about how to gain better health, what diets to use, and so on.

Physical activity is the main object for most people seeking to improve their health. Sports are running out our ears in school programs. And we have summer recreation programs, plus other organized physical activities.

What's my gripe?

Well, when you're done jogging, or playing a game, or whatever, you're thirsty. Even when you're not exerting yourself, you get thirsty.

What does the average American do when he or she does get thirsty? They get a drink. Water? Heavens no! It's got to be a can of pop!

There are some, of course, who do rely on just plain water to quench their thirst. But by far the majority grab a soft drink. Soft drinks are a year-around business now. In the "good old days," soft drinks were for summer; grocers carried very little stock of pop through the winter.

The growth of the consumption of "junk foods" (those with low nutritional value and usually high sugar content) has come with the increase in the amount of money given to young people for their taste pleasure. It has been a complaint for years that school lunch money often goes for candy bars, potato chips and pop, the complaint registered by those adults involved in the administration of the school lunch program. Part of the problem is solved by prohibiting student absence from the school grounds during lunch hour in some instances. However, at the same time the presence of candy, gum and pop vending machines is allowed. Depending on individual school policy, therefore, the school nutrition program is defeated by such allowances.

There is no "compromise" way of solving the situation. You either say "yes" or you say "no." If nutrition IS important to growing bodies, schools must prohibit the presence of "junk food" dispensers in halls and even a choice of "junk food" in the school lunch menu. (The serving of hot dogs and french fries the same day is significant; these are two of the highest fat-content foods eaten in quantity today. And $6,000 was spent recently at Eastside for a "shaker" machine, to satisfy the desires of students. Meanwhile, the Rural Boosters had a h— of a time getting financial support for purchase of band uniforms. Different funds in the budget may be involved, yes — but the principle is the same. The question must constantly be asked: what is most important to the total development of the student, what direction must be constantly followed in teaching the importance of making decisions on the best use of individual and collective talents and resources.)

The other night as I watched TV (I don't recall what program or what channel), two consecutive commercials were run, both for soft drinks. And just a few minutes later, still another brand of pop was advertised.

If you have seen these pop commercials, you are aware of the fact that they closely relate physical activity and "fun" with the downing of a big bottle or a can of pop. Some of the commercials are of the "flashback" type, a few seconds showing a young man or woman downing—or in some instances "guzzling" is a more appropriate word—a soft drink. Then the scene flashes to the physical activity (a volleyball game, a running race, surfing, etc.), then back to the guzzler, then back to the physical activity, then back to the guzzler—and so on.

With this tactic in advertising, the association of soft drinks as a virtual necessity to physical activity is subtly implanted in the young viewer's mind. It's no wonder kids think nothing of downing two or three pops a day; they've been "indoctrinated." And many young parents are guilty of getting their little ones started on the pop kick because the parents themselves walk out of the grocery with two and three six-packs as a regular habit — "habit" is the correct word.

One recent commercial on TV shows a young mother saying "no" to her offspring who have visually or presumably asked for some pop, or some gum, or some potato chips, or whatever. The climax of the commercial comes when the mother opens a package of "Twinkies" and gives one to each of the kids, saying to the TV viewer at the same time that she says "no" to the other requests so that the kids can have a "wholesome" or "nutritious" "Twinkie."

"Twinkies" wholesome??? "Twinkies" nutritious??? Good heavens — if that isn't false advertising, I don't know what is!

If "junk foods" were consumed in moderation, there would be no nutritional problem. But moderation is not the common practice. "Junk foods" are a regular part of many families' diets today. And little tots' health is being jeopardized in the growth of their bodies by the self-indulgent practice of consuming and allowing to be consumed those treats and sweets which make up a significant part of today's American diet.

Gerig Supported Stiff DD Penalties, Helps To Independent Business

—from the Indiana House of Representatives

The British have had one for 13 years.

Well, yes, a stiff upper lip, but since 1967 also a very stiff drunk driving penalty resulting initially in plummeting traffic fatalities. Surveys showed that people started to separate drinking and driving and many began walking to their pubs.

In Sweden, which has the strictest law in Europe, the drunk driver goes directly to jail for 90 days. Sweden also has one of the lower automobile death rates.

With an eye toward that same effect, the 1980 Indiana General Assembly passed a law carrying stiffer penalties for the intoxicated driver who kills or injures another. The law went into effect June 1.

State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn, who supported the legislation, explains that the offense will now be considered a Class C felony which carries a five-year sentence.

"The judge will have the discretion to lower the sentence to two years if there are mitigating circumstances, or raise it an additional three years if there are aggravating circumstances," Gerig said. "But he or she cannot suspend the sentence altogether as was possible with the two-year maximum sentence we had before."

Explaining the state's apparent reluctance in the past to impose a penalty more in line with the offense of killing someone in the process of operating a vehicle while intoxicated, Gerig said, "I think the feeling was that these drivers were nice people with a serious problem, not criminals. But what we're hoping is that with the stiffer penalty, those people will think twice before getting into their cars."

That's what happened at first in Great Britain when the massive publicity surrounding the new law gave drivers the impression that the chances of apprehension for drunk driving were much greater. The law diminished in effectiveness, however, when it became apparent that the police were reluctant to make arrests.

Richard Good of the Prosecuting Attorney's Council, which proposed this legislation, said an important aspect of the law is its definition of the word "intoxicated." That definition was inadvertently left out of the old law in spite of its being an important legal tool.

Under the new law, "intoxicated" means under the influence of alcohol, a controlled substance or any combination of alcohol and controlled substances "such that there is an impaired condition of thought and action and the loss of normal control of one's faculties to such an extent as to endanger any person."

Gerig agreed that a rewording of the definition was necessary, citing a California statistic that 25 percent of that state's traffic accidents involve a driver under the influence of marijuana.

Gerig also applauded the law's provision for certification of breathalizer test devices and their operators which will make the test results admissable evidence in court.

The local area's Representative in the state legislature recently received plaudits from the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) for "acting fairly in behalf of small business." He was given a rating of 100 percent based on his votes on six key bills in the 1979-80 session of the Indiana General Assembly.

Citing anti-regulation as a primary issue, the federation looked at how state representatives and senators voted on several bills aimed at curbing government regulation of small businesses.

Also considered were their votes on a bill providing a 20 percent tax credit to employers who hired and trained the hard-core unemployed, a bill that increased unemployment compensation benefits while tightening eligibility standards, and a bill slashing the volume of bureaucratic paperwork, among others.

Nationally, the NFIB has 600,000 members who either own or operate an independent business. They encompass retailers, wholesalers and professional and non-professional service deliverers. Of these, 13,000 are in Indiana.

What is abnormal metabolism?

Metabolism is a big word that refers to all the ways by which a particular substance, food for instance, is handled in your body. Once in a while those processes do not work right, but in some cases the problem can be controlled by diet.

In this and other types of metabolism problems, special foods may be required or the patient may be required to stay away from certain foods. Of course, in addition to diet control a prescription may be necessary to help the condition.

The word from Oxford-

Every year, it appears, fewer people have less understanding of the proper usage of "fewer" and "less." Use "fewer" with things that can be counted: "Fewer highway deaths were reported." Use "less" with things that cannot: "less enthusiasm, less energy."

Never use "less" with plurals: "fewer opportunities, less opportunity." Never use "less" with a singular that is preceded by "a" or "an." Use "less gasoline" but not "a less amount of gasoline." Above all keep in mind that "less' means "not so much" and "fewer" means "not so many" and you will have fewer problems with less worry.

BlazersEnd16-11

After downing Hamilton with a 2-run 7th inning rally Saturday morning, May 31, the DeKalb Eastside Blazers were smothered 15-1 by the DeKalb Central Barons in the championship game of the sectional baseball tourney.

Down 3-2 going into the last half of the final inning against Hamilton, Wes Hantz walked, Rick Keener and Gary Rinard singled. Roger Voirol then delivered a single with two outs to give the Blazers the win.

Jeff Fee pitched the first five innings with Gary Rinard coming on for two runless innings in relief.

In the championship game, the Central Barons broke the game wide open with a six-run fourth inning. They were helped by three Blazer errors. Walks also figured in the uprising. Rinard issued nine passes in his five-plus innings of work, not his usual form. Keener came on in relief.

Of the Barons' 15 runs, only seven were earned.

Rinard had two of the Blazers' six hits and drove in their only run.

Pageant 'OK'

With Fort Wayne having a problem concerning its Miss Fort Wayne Pageant, Christine Reed, director-president of the Miss Northeast ACD Scholarship Pageant, has issued a statement to reassure DeKalb and Whitley counties that there are no financial "runaways" in the local pageant.

Monies donated through sponsoring contestants, patron contributions and advertising goes into a Scholarship Trust, she said. Later it is paid directly to the school in which the young women contestants are furthering their education.

"We are a 'Not—for—Profit" organization," Miss Reed said. "No one is paid a saalry. All money is donated and all time given freely for the furthering of young women's educations."

This year's local pageant will be held July 26. It will be a one-night affair with approximately ten contestants. Limited production will be planned and a more "back to basics" goal sought.

Those who may wish to help in any way in the local pageant may contact Miss Reed at 925—6788 or 925—3719.

50 PLUS CLUB Changes Time

—Gaylon Markle, reporter

The Fifty Plus Club met in the Spencerville Community Building May 22 for their regular monthly meeting.

MM Robert Hollabaugh, MM Faye Wilmot, Lulu Gerig and Alma Ransom were the committee for the evening.

At the business meeting following the potluck supper, it was suggested that we meet at an earlier hour. After some discussion, a motion was carried that we meet at 5:30 p.m., have our business meeting first, have our potluck supper at 6:00 p.m. with the program to follow immediately after.

So don't forget! Our next meeting Thursday, June 26, will begin one hour earlier, at 5:30 p.m.

We will be looking for you.

Nucor Productivity To Be On TV June 24

Nucor Corporation will be included in an upcoming NBC "White Paper" on productivity in the United States. The Vulcraft steel girder and decking plant at Saint Joe is a division of Nucor.

The TV program entitled, "If Japan Can Do It . . . Why Can't We?", will be broadcast Tuesday, June 24, from 9:30 to 11:00 p.m. (8:30 to 10:00 p.m. central and mountain time).

The program examines the slow growth of American productivity and why it must be increased. The broadcast will compare production methods in Japan and in this country. It points out that while the United States is still the most productive economy in all history, the Japanese are rapidly closing the gap and will outstrip the United States in the future unless the productivity growth rate improves in the states.

Nucor Corporation is an American company which has achieved high rates of productivity growth through innovative methods. "While we have not seen the program, we believe it will show us in a positive way," stated F. Kenneth Iverson, president and chief executive officer.

Through its five Vulcraft divisions located at Saint Joe; Florence, South Carolina; Norfolk, Nebraska; Fort Payne, Alabama; and Grapeland, Texas; Nucor Corporation is the nation's largest producer of steel joists.

In addition, Nucor produces carbon and alloy steel at its three scrap-based steel mills located in Darlington, South Carolina; Norfolk, Nebraska; and Jewett, Texas.

Nucor also produces steel deck, cold finished steel bars and rare earth metals and oxides.

Cancer Programs

—Jean Wells, Public Info. Chm.

The DeKalb County Unit of the American Cancer Society held its second meeting May 14 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. President Richard Mawe presided.

Service programs tentatively planned for this coming fall were explained. These include:

"I Can Cope"—a filmstrip was shown on this new program. This is an 8-week program taught by doctors and nurses for the cancer patient and family. It will meet once a week and it is designed to increase the patient's knowledge of the disease, proper diet and exercise, and decrease his or her anxieties. The patient must be referred by their doctor to attend this program.

"Reach To Recovery"—professionally trained volunteers who are former mastectomy patients will visit mastectomy patients to provide them with helpful information and moral support. This visit must be requested by the patient and permitted by the patient's doctor.

"Please Call Us"—professionally trained volunteers who have faced cancer themselves either personally or within their families are available upon request to visit with patients and their families.

Mr. Mawe also reported that a facility approximately the size of a two-car garage is needed to store "loan closet" equipment: hospital beds, wheelchairs, etc. Anyone with this available storage space should contact Mr. Mawe.

School Bonds Go For Lower Interest Rate

The drop in interest rates on the money market of the past few weeks was evident this week when the American Fletcher National Bank of Indianapolis bought DeKalb eastern school district construction bonds at 5.98%. When the school board set the maximum rate it would pay several weeks ago, that maximum was 9.75%. The lower rate is good news for taxpayers.

Monies obtained from the sale of the bonds will go for construction costs, that construction to connect the now-separate buildings of the junior-senior high school into one building.

Bond interest costs over a five-year term will be $140,305.

The $1.1 million total cost of the construction includes $871,890 in construction contracts; $72,000 for architectural and engineering services by Schenkel & Shultz; $50,000 for construction management; $76,000 for general supervision of needs during construction; $10,000 for caulking and landscaping; $20,000 for bonds including $14,000 in school attorney fees.

Work is expected to be completed by December 31.

The project will connect five separate buildings, expand the library and add six new classrooms.

The Numbers Game

One of the pet peeves of people and a pet ploy of politicians is our society's use of numbers to identify people.

We don't want to be numbers; we want to be human beings.

One of the latest "numbers games" relates to rural homes. Numbering systems are being instituted in many areas evidently for the primary purpose of quick identification in case of emergencies. You can't argue with that; the quicker help comes, the better we like it.

Unfortunately, the numbering systems can become confusing, as did DeKalb County's—or so I presume since there was a recent announcement of an adjustment in the system to reduce the number of digits.

Of somewhat of a surprise is the apparent adoption by the U.S. Postal Ssytem of these new numbering systems. Somewhere I read a justification on the basis that the numbering systems would be helpful to new postmasters and new letter carriers.

Huh? We need a confusing set of numbers to "help" postal employees in jobs which have a change in personnel only once in 10, 15 or 20 years on the average???

What brought this bit of writing on was an item in the Garrett Clipper containing an explanation of the new rural numbering system. But it doesn't sound like the system I thought the county adopted.

On top of that, if the U.S. Postal System IS adopting numbering setups developed outside the postal department, it is adding to the confusion. There has been no national announcement about adopting new numbering systems, at least not to my knowledge.

If, after decades of delivering mail on the basis of rural route identity, today's carriers can't remember where John Jones and Mary Smith and Meriwell Ledbetter live, they shouldn't have the job.

There is good reason to wonder if rising postal costs are in part due to trying to force new "more efficient" numbering systems on the American people.

The old "postal service" has deteriorated into a maze of regulations which give the appearance of obstacles to prevent delivery of mail. These rules and regulations make it a matter of, "If you don't do exactly what is required, we won't accept your letter or try to deliver it."

Certain foreign countries are having the same trouble we are in mail matters—a cutback in service including the elimination of Saturday delivery which looms on the horizon.

Certain OTHER foreign countries, however, have two and three mail deliveries PER DAY six and seven days a week.

When we get down to the nitty-gritty, we all know what the cause of the problem is — — — don't we???

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

It's becoming clear to Americans that we don't live in a country that is isolated from the rest of the world and what affects people on one side of the globe ultimately affects us in some way as well. We can't afford the luxury of sticking our heads in the sand and hoping that the things that cause world problems like poverty, hunger and disease will go away. It's up to us to keep informed and, if possible, to become positively involved with the affairs of the world. One way to get involved and make the world a better place is by joining the Peace Corps.

The Peace Corps, started in 1961 in a spirit of optimism, still offers people a chance to do something in the American tradition of neighbor helping neighbor. Unlike band-aid solutions which throw money at a problem when it gets big enough, Peace Corps volunteers work for long-term changes at a grassroots, people-to-people level. Instead of imposing American solutions on problems of other nations, Peace Corps volunteers use technology appropriate to another culture and work within the norms of that culture. To date, the Peace Corps has been America's most effective foreign aid program.

This time of year, the Peace Corps traditionally has the greatest number of requests for people to volunteer. Right now, the Peace Corps urgently needs 2,000 new volunteers to work in over 60 third-world countries of the South Pacific, Latin America, Asia and Africa. To join, age, race or sex is not a factor, but people must be flexible and willing to endure frustration, hardship, and retain a sense of humor like the pioneers once did in this country.

Those wanting information about the Peace Corps and how to apply can write: Peace Corps Recruiting Office, 1 North Wacker Drive, Room 202, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

Since its inception, over 90,000 Americans have served in the Peace Corps and every one of them has changed. Volunteers have gained a great deal — knowledge about the world outside the U.S.; understanding of different cultural values; self-reliance and maturity; a chance of one of the last adventures left; and an understanding of poverty. Over the years the Peace Corps of volunteers has been a shining light of what is best in America and the principles that America stands for.

Convention Election Proposal Accepted

Mike Walter, a delegate representing Saint Joe and Auburn at the Democratic State Convention, reports that one of his proposals will be included in the elections plank of the 1980 Indiana Democratic platform. But two other items Walter sponsored were rejected at a May 31 drafting session in Indianapolis.

At Walter's request, the elections plank committee unanimously endorsed giving individual voters the option of voting by paper ballot in precints that use voting machines. According to Walter, the objective is to benefit two groups of voters: those senior citizens who do not like to vote by machine, and persons in wheelchairs who cannot reach all the levers on existing machines.

"I want to emphasize," Walter said, "that this proposal isn't something I thought of on my own. It was brought to me by people here in DeKalb County, and I'm pleased to have been able to serve them."

Rejected by the elections group was Walter's proposal for a platform declaration that no Democrat should be barred from seeking a convention-nominated state office because of inability to pay a filing fee.

Walter said he did not propose an immediate end to the filing fees, but only that the present fee system be modified to conform with U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Also rejected was Walter's proposal to let individual voters in primary elections make their party selection secretly, without having to announce their party affiliation to the precinct election board.

The word from Orford-

If you wonder when to use "oral" and when to use "verbal," blame your problem on "verbal." "Oral" has held fast to its meanings: of the mouth, spoken as opposed to written. Unfortunately, "verbal" has slipped its moorings. While it still means of a verb, its most common meaning was of or in words: "verbal accuracy, verbal aptitude." In that sense, "verbal" did not tell us whether the words were written or spoken. Now "verbal" has also come to mean spoken, not written, as in "the partners had a verbal agreement." Careful writers and speakers still prefer "oral agreement" when words are spoken.

Where does your health dollar go?

On a national scale, in 1977, the most recent year for which there are statistics, it shows that a day in the hospital costs an average of $174, a physician visit costs an average of $25.73 and a prescription costs an average of $5.25. Following your physician's advice and taking the prescriptions that are prescribed can help cut down on additional visits to your doctor and possibly avoid costly hospitalization.

Your pharmacy dollar is still a good value. Our pharmacy concentrates its efforts on medicines, health aids and sickroom needs.

It's one reason your electric rates are below the national average.

When you turn on a light switch, or an appliance, or a television, chances are you don't care where the electricity comes from. But we do.

You see, at different times of the day, the cost of making electricity can vary from plant to plant. And, because we're part of the AEP System, we're able to use the best combination of generation and transmission efficiency to instantly get the most economical power to you from anywhere in the system.

Blazers Win 3

Summer baseball began with a bang for the DeKalb Eastside Blazers last week. They scored wins over Angola 4—2, Fremont 12—2 and Garrett 1—0.

Jeff Fee allowed Angola but one earned run on three hits in the Blazers' 4—2 victory. Rich Timmerman drove in two runs on a pair of hits to lead the offense.

In the 12—2 romp over Fremont, southpaw Lonnie Emenhiser helped his own cause with a home run. He struck out 10, giving up two runs on five hits and two walks.

Emenhiser and Ed Yoder had two hits each and each drove in two runs.

Fee went the distance in the 1—0 win over Garrett. He gave up only three hits, struck out five and walked only one.

The lone run of the game came in the second inning when Rick Kaiser got a walk. Yoder got an infield hit. Then Mike Casebere came through with a single to score Kaiser.

Nucor Productivity To Be On TV June 24

Nucor Corporation will be included in an upcoming NBC "White Paper" on productivity in the United States. The Vulcraft steel girder and decking plant at Saint Joe is a division of Nucor.

The TV program entitled, "If Japan Can Do It . . . Why Can't We?", will be broadcast Tuesday, June 24, from 9:30 to 11:00 p.m. (8:30 to 10:00 p.m. central and mountain time).

The program examines the slow growth of American productivity and why it must be increased. The broadcast will compare production methods in Japan and in this country. It points out that while the United States is still the most productive economy in all history, the Japanese are rapidly closing the gap and will outstrip the United States in the future unless the productivity growth rate improves in the states.

Nucor Corporation is an American company which has achieved high rates of productivity growth through innovative methods. "While we have not seen the program, we believe it will show us in a positive way," stated F. Kenneth Iverson, president and chief executive officer.

Through its five Vulcraft divisions located at Saint Joe; Florence, South Carolina; Norfolk, Nebraska; Fort Payne, Alabama; and Grapeland, Texas; Nucor Corporation is the nation's largest producer of steel joists.

In addition, Nucor produces carbon and alloy steel at its three scrap-based steel mills located in Darlington, South Carolina; Norfolk, Nebraska; and Jewett, Texas.

Nucor also produces steel deck, cold finished steel bars and rare earth metals and oxides.

The Six-Week Letter

Several years ago, legislation was passed allowing the formation of economic development commissions through which industry—the word "industry" is emphasized—could sell nontaxable bonds and thus gain an economic advantage. There was a significant limitation in the legislation; the bonding advantage was for use only in economically underdeveloped areas and it was for industry only.

When the city of Auburn had a situation come up in the last year concerning the opening of a fourth supermarket there, considerable controversy developed and certain city councilmen were criticized for not supporting the issuance of economic development bonds for the proposed supermarket. At least one letter to the editor of the county daily newspaper accused the opposing councilmen of voting against free enterprise.

Late in April of this year, I sent a letter to the editor of the county daily. I quoted the original wording of the legislation covering economic development commissions. The letter repeatedly used "intent" or "intention" in referring to the reason for the passage of such legislation.

In a conversation with a former Saint Joe town attorney who handled the Vulcrat bonding applications under the Saint Joe Economic Development Commission, I was informed that the wording of the legislation had been changed so that instead of limiting the bonding advantage to "industry," it was extended to "commercial" interests. "Commercial" in effect means the door was opened wide.

Though my letter may have been misinterpreted as saying a law was being violated, there still was the consistent use of the word "intent" to qualify my opposition to issuing economic development bonds for ANY business in ANY community. I feel that the legislation should be limited to industrial development IN AREAS WHERE THERE IS LITTLE OR NO INDUSTRY.

I waited for the Auburn Evening Star to print my letter — and I waited — and I waited.

After about six weeks, I received a phone call from the managing editor to explain that my letter was not published because it was in error concerning the present law. He had known about the "error" a week after I sent the letter. But he did not contact me until a third party who had gained knowledge of the existence of the letter went into the Star office to see if it was going to be published or not.

I went to the Star office and had a conversation with the editor-general manager. He objected to publishing the original quoted statute—quoted statute, mind you, which means that I was not stating an opinion in that portion; I was quoting the original statute to make my point concerning the ORIGINAL INTENT of economic development legislation.

Though I did not know that the wording of the law had been changed at the time I wrote the letter in April, I DID know that the tax-free bonding advantage was being extended to business in general and not just to industry. And I also had the personal opinion that Auburn needs another supermarket as much as I need a hole in the head.

Both Star editors didn't want to publish my letter because it was misleading, in their opinion. But they printed other letters to the editor in the past in which it was obvious that those letter writers were mistaken in their belief that some Auburn city councilmen were preventing another supermarket from coming to Auburn. THEY were misleading the public with their erroneous opinion — but their letters were published with no comments from either editor.

I point this situation out to readers of this paper to emphasize how little protection of free speech there is when independently owned and locally owned newspapers either go out of business or are taken in by a chain of newspapers. I recognize the concern in the minds of the Star editors for presenting accurate information to the public. But I totally disagree with their methods in this instance, wherein a member of an economic development commission quotes original statutes and points out that the original intent has been destroyed.

The problem at Auburn isn't that another supermarket wants to come in; the problem at Auburn isn't that present supermarket operators are concerned about their own business welfare; the problem isn't that a law was misquoted in a letter to the editor. The problem IS that the original intent of a law has been forgotten and broad wording has "opened the door" for a monetary advantage not enjoyed by already-established business in the area. And the problem has been compounded by the manner in which the Auburn Evening Star mishandled the publication of a letter to the editor. Then when it did publish that letter (Saturday, June 14, 1980) it also published another letter right next to it with an opposite viewpoint. (I doubt whether THAT letter was held back six weeks.) Thus, it is obvious that publishing the two letters side by side on the same date was intentional and indicates a bias or prejudice which reflects little sympathy or understanding related to the fears of those already in business.

'Fat' Congress' Pay Raise Coming

Fat pay raises for senators and representatives are in the works, and will go into effect automatically in four months unless legislation proposed by Rep. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa) is enacted.

Grassley's bill, H.R. 7346, will block the latest round of congressional salary hikes, which is scheduled to take place this October. The bill is before the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

"American taxpayers are getting tired of so much moralizing from this Congress about budget balancing and inflation fighting, when big-spending congressmen make sure they escape any pain caused by fiscal restraint," Grassley said on May 14.

Members of Congress are already in the top one percent of salaried Americans, and this does not take into account all the "perks" and "freebies" members receive courtesy of you, the taxpayer, which are estimated to amount to at least $700,000 a year—per congressman! Among other things, you are paying for free medical care for "your" elected representatives in Congress; vacations abroad, lavish retirement benefits, all the household plants your congressman could desire (from the National Botanical Gardens), office allowances (which can be pocketed by the member) and even, in some instances, household servants and gardeners.

In 1977 congressional pay raises of $12,900 provoked such a public outcry that Congress's liberal Democratic leadership—which always came off looking bad whenever it sought to block recorded votes on salary hikes—adopted a new strategy.

Liberal Democrats, rather than face voter retribution at the polls, created a federal commission to recommend huge salary increases every four years for members of Congress and other federal big shots. The commission, which could easily be abolished by congressional Democrats if it ever fails to recommend a sufficiently large pay raise, thus serves as a smokescreen behind which congressional liberals chuckle softly.

"It is lunacy to give ourselves a 'cost of living' increase" when Congress itself fuels the inflationary spiral, Grassley told his fellow representatives in a speech from the House floor.

"Soaring inflation, creeping recession and rising unemployment are partially rooted in federal deficit spending long embraced by this Congress," Grassley said. "Why should such abysmal performance now be rewarded with another jump in pay?"

Grassley warned the pay increase "is bound to be huge if based on previous pay hikes.

"When it comes to their own salaries, congressmen are amazingly inventive in controlling the federal purse strings," he said.

"It's time Congress exerts some moral leadership in providing an example of self-restraint which can be respected by citizens throughout the country, rather than expecting sacrifice exclusively from the grass roots," Grassley said.

The falling incomes of most Americans, and the declining value (due to inflation) of even remaining earnings, will offer a sharp contrast to the huge congressional pay raise scheduled for October.

Coincidentally, and fortunately, if liberal Democrats are able to suppress Grassley's bill, the salary hike will occur shortly before Election Day, a proximity which may result in many liberals enjoying their lavish, tax-paid retirement benefits much sooner than they anticipated.

Census Trouble

That problem-plagued 1980 census, which President Carter has heavily politicized, dips into even deeper trouble.

Weeks before the official start of the headcount, the Carter Administration sacked Earle J. Gerson, chief of the $1 billion operation.

Last year, the Carter administration dropped Gerson's boss after discovering that the Census Bureau had been included in the "Civil Service reform act" and taken out of the political patronage system.

The White House acted quietly to EXEMPT the census bureau from the law, restoring jobs of political cronies of the Carter administration.

Now Gerson has been transferred to "other duties" after Democrats got off to a late start staffing the census with party faithful.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

It has recently come to my attention that you published a series of articles, beginning Oct. 25, 1979, detailing the history of Coburn Corners Church of Christ. This is of special interest to me inasmuch as my great, great grandfather was one of the charter members of the church and later elected a bishop. In addition my grandfather was born at Coburn Corners.

I therefore am wondering if there is any way I can get a copy of this series of articles for the light it would shed on family history. I shall be happy to reimburse you for any cost.

'Incredible'

Quantity of federal publications now exceeds annual production of books and periodicals from entire U.S. publishing industry, according to Congressional Information Service, Inc., of Washington, D.C., which provides indexing and retrieval service for federal data. Congress alone publishes one million pages of information a year, says service. That's twice what lawmakers were churning out 10 years ago.

Probably the most complex rules the government has ever produced. That's how one Environmental Protection Agency official characterizes his agency's new regulations for handling hazardous industrial waste. Rules impose licensing and reporting requirements on production, storage, transportation and disposal of hundreds of chemicals considered toxic, flammable, corrosive or reactive. There are some exemptions for small producers. Compliance is to take place in series of steps starting immediately and continuing for months. EPA puts cost of compliance at $510 million a year. Industry representatives call that figure much too low. Years of controversy seem assured.

The word from Oxford-

The late H. W. Fowler, world-famous authority on English usage, barely concealed his contempt for what he called "vogue words." These are words that emerge from relative obscurity into sudden and undeserved popularity.

One of today's vogue words is "simplistic." Many speakers and writers are so infatuated with "simplistic" that they use it psuedo-elegantly and wrongly in place of the sturdy, useful "simple." "Simplistic" means oversimplified, unrealistically simple. Use it only in this narrow sense—and sparingly. "The candidate's economic proposals were obviously simplistic." Elsewhere say: "Keep it simple." "He's a simple soul." "Their solution was simple."

Where does your health dollar go?

On a national scale, in 1977, the most recent year for which there are statistics, it shows that a day in the hospital costs an average of $174, a physician visit costs an average of $25.73 and a prescription costs an average of $5.25. Following your physician's advice and taking the prescriptions that are prescribed can help cut down on additional visits to your doctor and possibly avoid costly hospitalization.

Your pharmacy dollar is still a good value. Our pharmacy concentrates its efforts on medicines, health aids and sickroom needs.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

WITH THE EDITOR

Mrs. Hilda Heil stopped in to pay her subscription last week. She resides in South Bend and is a 1930 graduate of the local high school. Her maiden name is Morr.

She said things have changed quite a bit since she lived here.

The crew doing the re-railing for the Chessie System through this section has quite a job. It takes a combination of men and machines. And with the warm humid weather we've had the past week, you can imagine the sweat they can work up in no time at all.

It's facinating to see those long lengths of steel rail lifted into place. For some reason, I thought that if you lifted the rail progressively instead of all at once, it would break. But it doesn't.

Gary Rinard 'Tops' On Court, Diamond

Gary Rinard, son of MM Jim Rinard of Spencerville, has been in the sports limelight in the past week or so. And the public acclaim has come in both baseball and basketball.

Named to the DeKalb-Steuben All-Star basketball team for two games against the Noble-LaGrange All-Stars, Gary led all scoring Saturday night at the DeKalb Central gym in the first of the two-game series with 21 points. He had nine field goals and three field goals.

Chris Winans of Garrett was right behind with 20 points. But it was Gary's three-point play in the final quarter which led to a 107-88 victory. Noble-LaGrange had rallied to trail by only 83-77 when Gary's drivein layup turned the tide.

Gary was named the game's most valuable player, a unanimous choice of the coaches and press attending the game.

The second game will be played Friday of this week in the Lakeland gym at LaGrange.

Wes Hantz, another DeKalb Eastside representative on the team, scored a field goal and two free throws.

Gary was recently named to the Auburn Evening Star- Kendallville News Sun all area baseball team as combination pitcher and shortsop, despite his absence from the Eastside lineup for several games due to an injury..

Wes was named to the area second team as an outfielder.

Rick Keener of Eastside received honorlbe mention.

Barons Win State Baseball Title!

The DeKalb Central Barons won the Indiana State Baseball Championship Saturday at Indianapolis. Freshman Bob Squires came through with a single in the top of the eighth of the extra-inning game. The hit drove in Chris Forrest who singled and stole second. The Central Barons then held Muncie North scoreless in the bottom of the inning and the "Big Red" hoopla began.

In an afternoon semi-final game, the Barons defeated Jeffersonville 5-1. Muncie North then downed Ben Davis 4-1 to lead up to the thrilling climax in the championship game.

Mike Hasselman, pitcher-shortstop for the Barons, was named recipient of the L. V. Phillips Award for mental attitude, scholarship, leadership and athletic ability in baseball.

Hasselman pitched six innings of the championship game giving up only four hits and one walk and striking out eight batters.

Todd Cobbs pitched the final two innings of hitless ball and gave up two walks while fanning two.

Cobbs, who was the winning pitcher in both of Saturday's games, pitched six innings in the afternoon contest giving up a run, four hits and one walk while striking out seven. Charlie Dobson pitched the seventh and gave up a hit.

Arson Squad Formed

Squad 707.

That is the name of a group of firemen and police whose purpose it is to investigate fires for possible arson.

Curt Howard is president of Squad 707. It is hoped that cooperation and participation will come from all fire fighting units in the county, plus the police, sheriff's deputies, prosecutors and outside interests. Two teams of six experts each will respond anytime a local fire chief calls on suspected arson.

Firemen who participate in the program will receive basic training in arson detection. Members of Squad 707 must have enough schooling to be "first class firefighters," plus 16 hours of training in fire and arson investigation. The squad will also utilize electricians, insurance adjusters and police officers.

Auburn Police Sergeant Ed McDonald is in charge of records-keeping. Waterloo Fire Chief Barry Carroll is education chairman and Clarence Boger is secretary-treasurer for the squad.

The Bank Vandalism Story

It's a shame.

On the eve of the fifth anniversary of the Knisely Branch Bank's presence in our community, vandals have once again destroyed signs on the property.

In the past it was the big sign out in front which had to be replaced at a cost of well over $1,000 as I recall.

Two nights ago it was a smaller sign at the driveup exit which was the target of senseless destruction.

Boys AND girls have been involved in other property-damaging activities at the bank site, sometimes in broad daylight.

Here we have a local business which supports every community activity when asked, including boys' and girls' athletic activities, and the kids go out and wreck the place. Isn't that a nice "thank you"!

Why haven't their names been reported to the sheriff's department? Well, for one reason Mary Beatty and the other bank employees are just too kind-hearted to turn the kids in. For another reason, they are hoping that the kids will stop and not get into trouble.

A petition circulated recently and sent to law enforcement officials has brought patrolling of our streets. Obviously, the patroling is not achieving the desired results. And if we are realistic about it, patrolling the streets by law enforcement officers is only treating the symptoms of the disease, not the disease itself. A sheriff's deputy or a state police patrolman CANNOT solve the problem. If such patrolling could solve the problem, then Butler and Auburn and Waterloo and Fort Wayne and every other city or town with its own law enforcement department would not have any vandalism. But they DO have vandalism.

Where, then, does the answer lie?

The answer lies in re-establishing the family as the basic unit of American society. But we have had social and legislative forces at work for several years which have taken away family authority AND family responsibility.

Think of it for a moment. Today our educational system is failing because some influential "thinkers" decided that students have a right to be more self-asserting and that they have the intelligence to make decisions on their own.

"Do your own thing" is the motto of the recent past. Teenagers and younger have been indoctrinated into pleasure-seeking, something they have a "right" to do on their own, according to the "thinkers." If they don't like difficult subjects in school, don't take them. If you don't like your job, don't work, just put in your time; you have a "right" to a paycheck just for your time.

Family responsibilities? "No-fault" divorce is the answer—according to the influential social planners. You have a "right" to your own personal happiness, they say—which has been translated into, "If you run into marital troubles, walk away from them, get a divorce." Question: why has the divorce rate skyrocketed in recent years, when couples have been given the "right" by many pastors of making up their own marriage vows? If so many young married couples have DONE their own thing, can literally say "I did it my way," why are they so unhappy??? (And the actions of the younger generation have a way of working into the living pattern of their parental generation.)

Too many parents of youngsters today say their love their kids. And they frequently say they discipline their kids. But the actual experience of our American society today, including situations in our own community, indicate that the "love" and the "discipline" are not quite believable.

What does this have to do with a destroyed sign at the local branch bank? Well, until individual residents become willing to put the kids on the spot for their behavior when something wrong is seen, until local residents become willing to sign a complaint and serve as a sworn witness when a wrong is seen, there will be little if any change in what is happening in this community. (Incidentally, it's happening all over, but that is little comfort.)

But most important of all, until parents themselves exhibit more discipline in their lives, we can't expect too much from the kids. The disrespect for other people and other people's property indicated by vandalism on up to thievery got here a lot faster than it is going to diminish. It isn't enough just to have the kids in sight; it is necessary to know what they are doing.

The roughest part is in going to a parent, a friend, with information which indicates their son or daughter in destructive or abusive activities. What makes it rougher is that often the reply is, "My kid wouldn't do anything like that!"

Well, maybe so, maybe not. But the abusive language used to torment a couple of women in Saint Joe hasn't come from somebody's kids from Chicago. And the tearing around on noisy two-wheelers running up and down the Chessie right-of way and the streets of Saint Joe aren't from out of state. And the blaring radios and tape decks aren't owned by total strangers. Some of the antics are absolutely stupid—such as the young man who did a "wheely" through the yield intersection at the fire hall last week when all traffic on State Road 1 was detoured down Railroad Street during rail replacement. —And then there was the motorcycle with four—yes I said FOUR—kids on it, going down the railroad right of way this week, and the driver of the motorcycle didn't appear to be over 15 or 16.

Just after the above was written, Mary called and said that one young man whose named had been mentioned frequently in connection with sparklers and matches came in to the branch bank and told Mary that he had not set the sign on fire. And shortly after that, a father and mother came into the bank with one of their offspring in tow and the youngster confessed to setting the sign on fire. The parents said they would pay for the damage.

So, one part of a bad situation has been resolved and we can be grateful for that. However, there are still many other circumstances which remain unresolved, and they still go back to the need for showing respect for other people and their property — plus the willingness of adults to take action and "sign on the dotted line" if necessary.

These actions must be done within reason, however. Throwing "frisbies" or just talking doesn't hurt anyone, when it is within reason. But loud talk and blaring car stereos do disturb the peace. It takes consideration on both sides.

There is good reason to believe that the burned-sign confession (who broke the other side of the sign is still unknown) would not have been forthcoming had it not been for a discussion of the matter by a few adults at the site and the passing about of a few names. Obviously, the "grapevine" was put to work and brought some good and almost immediate results.

Pre-School News

The DeKalb County Preschool For the Handicapped has just completed its ninth successful year. It provides services to preschoolers in DeKalb and Noble counties.

Enrollment grew to 36 children. They were helped to develop physically and mentally. Several children took their first steps or spoke their first words this year. Many mastered the stairway and learned to run and hop. Some learned to crawl, others to sit without support.

Eight of the "little ones" are "graduating" this year. Seven are going on to public school and one to a nursery school.

More physical and speech therapy was provided than ever before. The parent group has expanded to include behavior management and parent advocacy training. In the near future, there will be family counseling.

The staff increased to include a full time social worker and an additional aide.

The summer program began June 17, on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. Because of so many interested families, there are three classrooms in session instead of two.

The school has been helped financially by Burger's IGA. The grocery has for several months been giving a percentage of receipts to the school on the basis of special coupons. These coupons are available by contacting the school at Box 166, Auburn, Indiana 46706.

1530 - The Augsburg Confession 1980

450 years ago this week, the south German city of Augsburg was bulging with visitors. Having called an imperial diet, Emperor Charles V, Europe's most powerful monarch, had brought his court to meet with the rulers of German states and free cities. Charles needed their help in fighting the Turks and in settling the religious issues raised by Martin Luther.

Luther wasn't among the crowds in Augsburg, however. He was pacing the halls of Castle Coburg, 130 miles away. Still considered an outlaw by the Emperor, Luther had to leave the fate of the negotiations at Augsburg to his younger colleague, Philipp Melanchthon.

Of course, Melanchthon was well prepared. He had taken along two documents (the Schwabach Articles and the Torgau Articles) summarizing Luther's teachings and reforms. But in busy Augsburg, new questions arose: Could additional German princes be won to the cause? Could Charles himself be convinced that the reformers did not want to start a new church?

Melanchthon furiously edited, rewrote and consulted, while Luther waited impatiently for news of the rapidly-changing situation. Hastily-drawn final drafts in German and Latin were presented to Emperor Charles on June 25, 1530. In its final form, the Confession consisted of twenty-one doctrinal articles on such topics as Justification, the Church and Sacraments, plus seven articles urging that practices like mandatory priestly celibacy should be discontinued on Biblical grounds.

Although drafted under political pressure, the Augsburg Confession became the basic document of the Lutheran Reformation. It echoes Paul's words to Galatia: "We have believed in Christ Jesus, in order to be justified by faith in Christ, and not by works of the law."

On June 25, 1580, the 50th anniversary of the presentation of the Augsburg Confession, the nine Lutheran confessional documents were gathered together and published in one volume, "The Book of Concord." Wednesday of this week, therefore, marks both the 450th anniversary of the Augsburg Confession and the 400th anniversary of "The Book of Concord."

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Friend,

Since 1968, the staff of the U. S. Senate has increased from 3,400 to 6,800, or 100%. The cost of running Congress has increased from $128.8 million in 1960 to $1.1 billion in Fiscal Year 1979. The average Senate staff has grown from 34 employees to 68 in the past ten years, necessitating the building of a third Senate Office Building, a move that I opposed on several occasions.

Since taking office in 1977, each year I have returned 20% of the money allocated for office operations through efficient management and careful consideration of each expenditure of taxpayer funds. The three-year total has reached $547,000. Operations can run smoothly and efficiently with less money, a princple that could be applied not only to Congress but to every federal agency. If the federal budget was cut by just 5%, the United States could have a REAL balanced budget and greatly reduced taxes for all Americans.

On Monday, June 2, Senator Harry F. Byrd (I-Va.) introduced an amendment that would have cut operating expenses for the United States Senate by 15% each year, saving taxpayers approximately $30 million, by making across-the-board cuts in the funds allocated to each Senator's office, each Senate committee, and all related departments coming under the jurisdiction of the Senate. Despite great public support for getting the growth of Congress under control, opponents of this budget cutting measure succeeded in diluting this amendment severely.

When opponents of budget cutting realized that the 15% reduction had a good chance to pass, they devised a substitute amendment, circumventing the "15%" amendment by allowing the Senate Appropriations Committee to make random cuts totaling 10% of Senate operating expenses. Under this arrangement, less money will be saved and, conceivably, the excessive amounts available to committees and individual Senators will not be affected at all.

Supporters of the "15%" cut (including myself) moved to table (kill) the substitute "10%" amendment and allow a vote on the original "15%" budget cut. Unfortunately, we were defeated.

The "10%" substitute cut went on to pass the Senate and was included in the Council on Wage and Price Control legislation. While I regret the defeat of the more far-reaching 15% Byrd amendment, I am pleased that we at least forced the Senate to begin cleaning up its own house.

I will continue efforts at monitoring excessive federal spending, and hope you will do the same.

Sincerely,
Dick Lugar

The word from Oxford-

"Charisma" is a word we hear and read constantly in an election year. Either you have charisma or you do not:

The "Oxford English Dictionary" in 1928 listed this word as "charism," with the meaning of "a free gift or favor specially vouchsafed by God; a grace or talent." Few of us qualified.

Today things are different. Our folk heroes—politicians, movie stars, rock singers, professional athletes—all have "charisma." Their public relations experts have told us so. As a result, "charisma" today is the powed to inspire devotion and enthusiasm. What better way to note how English words change meanings than to observe the tumble of this Divine word.

Before we know it, the lazy days of summer will be here (they already are!) and jackets will be traded in for bathing suits and shorts. Many of us are taking a more critical look in the mirror and finding those extra pounds we picked up last Christmas are still there. There's still enough time for a sensible diet, the type that gets rid of inches as well as pounds and helps you keep them off.

Be sure to get your doctor's advice before dieting. He can give you the best plan to follow so you won't sacrifice your health for your looks. And if we can supply you with anything you might need we'll be more than pleased.

WITH THE EDITOR

Maxine Frey expressed concern for the youngsters in the community after seeing a few of them in swim suits headed for the gravel pit for a swim. She saw no older youth or adult accompanying the kids, so it appears they were "on their own."

Remember? It wasn't too many years ago that a teenager had problems in the water and called for help. And the man who tried to rescue her drowned. The young woman made it to shore.

Someone saw fit to swipe the street sign for Fourth and Washington streets. What good that sign can do for anyone is a puzzle.

Ruth Coburn stopped in at the News Office this week. With her were MM Walter Coburn who visited here over the weekend for the Wilmots' wedding anniversary observance.

Walter is the author of the Coburn Corners Church history published in these columns in late 1979 and early 1980.

After having a good time at the state firemen's convention at Fort Wayne recently with husband Joe, Ralphine Robinson was hositalized last week. She was due for possible return home this week.

What was feared to be a heart problem apparently wasn't. Tension was diagnosed as the probable culprit.

The president, Mrs. Bevington, called the meeting to order and led the reading of the collect and pledge to the flag.

Program schedule for 1980-81 was read and necessary changes made.

A discussion was held on name priorities. A motion by Mrs. Carr, seconded by Mrs. Perkins, to continue club book names as is. Motion carried. A letter from the blind was read and an order of blind material was made out.

A card was signed by all present and sent to Mrs. Robinson.

Meeting adjourned until September 10, 1980, with a 6:00 p.m. dinner at Hickory Hills Country Club.

The hostess served refreshments.

Happy '5th,' To Knisely Branch!

On July 14, 1975, the Knisely National Bank's Saint Joe Branch marked its official opening with a ribbon-cutting ceremony. The above photo was taken that day. The event occurred during Saint Joe's Centenial observance of the original platting of the town on land owned by John and Jacob Leighty.

In 1974 a voluntary survey was conducted in the Saint Joe community concerning the need for banking and supermarket facilities here. The positive response to the survey impressed the board of directors of Knisely National Bank at Butler and two weeks after reviewing survey results, the board declared its intent to place a branch in Saint Joe. The survey had been published and distributed by The News.

Two lots owned by the town on the main street were made available to the bank. And today area residents are enjoying services provided at the branch through a building and facilities estimated to cost around $150,000 at the time of construction early in 1975.

The branch experienced a phenomenal growth in its first year of operation and has continued to serve the Riverdale area ever since.

Knisely Bank has been a booster for many local activities, supporting local organizations and community projects through the years.

The Demise Of 'The Fourth'

The Fourth of July has lost its exuberance in the past several years. While there may be local observances with appropriate programs in various communities, there is not the general public awareness of the day—primarily because the use of fireworks has been all but curtailed.

True, there were those who got injured years ago—much of the problem related to carelessness or stupidity in setting off firecrackers.

The voices of curtailment have prevailed; their wishes to prevent injury from fireworks have been followed. (Strangely, some of those same voices are the ones who have also said, in other matters, "Let the kids do what they want; they have a 'right' to. Let them drive cars at an early age, let them have motorbikes and motorcycles at an even earlier age; let them off easy if they start smoking at an early age—even if they are smoking marijuana. They have a 'right.' Let them decide what they're going to do, when they're going to do it, where they're going to do it. They have a 'right'.")

Years ago, yes there was a lot of noise on the Fourth of July. Why not? It was a CELEBRATION. Who could go through that day without realizing something was up? But how many really wanted to stop the celebration, who really wanted to shut off everybody's fun? I wonder.

But then we got on this prevention kick, and the fun ended.

Some of my fondest recollections of the Fourth of July relate to grownups—my Dad and a friend of our family. We had a little cannon—and I mean little—just big enough to fit a small rubber ball into the barrel. You stuck an inch and a half firecracker in a hole at the bottom of the cannon, lit the fuse, and waited for the BOOM that meant the little ball was on its way up. The game was to catch the ball before it hit the street. When the rubber ball eventually was blown to pieces, we substituted a golf ball.

Now, if that little cannon had been aimed other than vertically, there would have been damage to property and possible physical harm to human beings. But we didn't do it that way. We (my sis and I) were TAUGHT to aim the cannon only straight up—because that's the only way Dad and George used the cannon. We we TAUGHT not to hold the firecrackers in our fingers. Some kids would hold those little teeny "ladyfingers" between their thumb and first finger to "show off." Not me. I was scared to death of getting hurt because I was TAUGHT that doing such things as holding a lighted firecracker was dangerous.

I must admit that there was a period of time when I probably went along the with ban of general use of fireworks. But now, we have lost so much of the enthusiasm in celebrating our independence, we have lost so much of people themselves doing the celebrating replaced by planned programs where a few employees light the fuses and do everything for us—in these days. I long for a return to a noisy Fourth of July—a NOISY Fourth of July right here in Saint Joe, to signal observance of an anniversary of our independence—a Fourth of July wherein kids—and adults—could buy all the fireworks they wanted and they could LEGALLY celebrate the Fourth of July with their own ideas on celebrating.

It's too bad. If there are any firecrackers set off in Saint Joe on July 4, the first thought in most people's minds will be, "Hey—that's against the law!" instead of "Hey, it's the Fourth of July!"

The quiet "safe" atmosphere of the Fourth of July in recent years seems in a way symbolic of the quiet "safe" servitude the American people have accepted as represented by governmental controls and regulations—including the ban on public use of firecrackers.

Summer Water Safety Needed

Summer means swimming and scuba diving. Too often it also involves accidental drownings.

According to the American Lung Association, drowning is the second most common cause of accidental deaths among children under 15. Only motor vehicle accidents take a higher toll. Drowning victims include infants unattended in bathtubs as well as children who fall into ponds, plunge through thin ice, swim beyond their depth or endurance, or misuse scuba or snorkel equipment

Most drowning victims, says the lung association, are boys in the 10-to-19 year range.

While submerged in water, a natural protective response of the body takes over to keep the person alive longer. During submersion there is no breathing and therefore no oxygen entering the lungs or the blood. However, a major redistribution of blood may occur, flowing to the brain and heart, organs that are very sensitive to a lack of oxygen. Blood may flow away from the skin, muscles, and stomach, where it is not so critical for instant survival.

For complicated chemical reasons, oxygen concentrations are more sharply reduced as a result of submersion in sea water than in fresh water.

Removing fluid and debris and getting oxygen into the lungs of the victim is essential; usually 100 percent oxygen is administered as soon as possible. If the victim survives the first 24 hours after the accident, chances are good that he or she will recover.

The best course is always prevention, says the lung association. And they caution everyone—at all ages—to be aware of water safety, especially this summer.

To find out how to protect your lungs for all seasons, contact your local American Lung Association, 802 West Wayne, Fort Wayne 46804—the Christmas Seal people.

The word from Oxford—

Fifty years ago "consensus of opinion" was accepted as good useage. Today the careful writer considers that "consensus" says it all, since "consensus" means general agreement in opinion. "The consensus of the meeting is that the high school needs a new gym." "They were unable to reach consensus."

Do not use "general consensus." By definition, a consensus is always general. "A consensus developed in the community that there was a genuine need for new apartment houses."

Now that you know how to use "consensus," you you remember how it is spelled: c—o—n—s—e—n—s—u—s. "Consensus" has nothing to do with "census."

Before we know it, the lazy days of summer will be here (they already are!), and jackets will be traded in for bathing suits and shorts. Many of us are taking a more critical look in the mirror and finding those extra pounds we picked up last Christmas are still there. There's still enough time for a sensible diet, the type that gets rid of inches as well as pounds and helps you keep them off.

Be sure to get your doctor's advice before dieting. He can give you the best plan to follow so you won't sacrifice your health for your looks. And if we can supply you with anything you might need we'll be more than pleased.

Happy Birthday To 'Big Brothers-Big Sisters' July 15

In the August Newsletter of Northeastern Indiana's Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization, newly-appointed executive director Diane Woehnker notes that the organizations observes its 6th birthday July 15.

In six years the group has expanded from a three-county to a four-county program. And the separate Big Brothers and Big Sisters efforts were united into one effort. At the same time the group separated from the Fort Wayne organization.

In its brief history, the group has matched 260 children from single-parent homes, thus enriching their lives with the friendship of a Big Brother or a Big Sister.

Diane notes that thanks go to radio stations WIFF, WAWK and WLKI; newspapers Advance Leader, Avilla News, Butler Bulletin, Evening Star, Hamilton News, News-Sun, Saint Joe News, Standard News and Steuben Republican; United Way of DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble and Steuben counties; United Methodist churches of Angola, Auburn and Kendallville; Northeastern Center; and industries Auburn Foundry, Beyer, Cole, Rieke, Thompson and Willenar. The board and staff came in for some plaudits also.

New volunteers include Darrell Wagner and Jay Jacobs of DeKalb County; Reginald Neal and Cecile VanNuys of Noble County; and Steve Beights of LaGrange Conuty.

For the third straight year, WIFF radio of DeKalb County will sponsor a radio auction with proceeds going to Big Brothers/Big Sisters. The auction will be held Saturday, August 9, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Merchandise is donted by local businesses.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent [illegible] rights are enjoyed; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom. Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

WITH THE EDITOR

I had a pleasant chat with Stanley Sollid of Kentfield, California, who is a "hobby printer." His wife is from Hicksville (maiden name Tomlinson) and during the Sollids' visit in this area he is making the rounds looking for old hand-set type.

Stan stopped in just as David Quinn of the Butler Bulletin was concluding an interview with the only barefoot printer in these parts.

To show how we get indoctrinated to accept change before change comes, recall that when gas was something like 60 cents a gallon, public statements were made by certain people that the price would go to $1 and even $1.25 a gallon. In recent months we have had statements made that the price will go to $2 by this winter.

But right now there is a gas "glut" and some stations are cutting their prices (but they don't necessarily get a lower price from the company).

Even public agencies are in on the indoctrination. The Indiana State Police put out a series of brief paragraphs about driving safety and related topics. One of the most recent ones began:

"With gasoline approaching $2 per gallon, . . ."

To me, such predictions by anyone serve to guarantee that the price WILL rise. After all, if you produce a product and the public has heard its price will increase, why not go ahead and raise the price???

Item from 'Nation's Business":

"Working wives have become the rule rather than the exception. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that three of every five husband-wife families have two wage earners.

"The number of such families has increased by more than three million since 1970 to a record 28.4 million, the bureau says.

"Bureau data also show that rising divorce rates have put women at the head of one of every seven families; 30.1 million children had mothers in the labor force, almost 20 percent more than in 1970; and 70.9 percent of single men and 62.7 percent of single women were working last year."

I suspect that there is a direct relationship between the increase in the number of women working and the number of divorces. The unemployment rate would drop if there was a decrease in the number of working mothers. But to suggest such a thing is to inflinct "role-playing" upon women and that's a no-no in today's "do your own thing" pleasure seeking atmosphere.

—And then we wonder why kids run away from home, why parents abuse their children, why parents abuse one another and why there must be a government program to "help" people of all ages.

Debbie Redinger stopped in to say that the family has lost track of their black and white female pup in the vicinity of county roads 51 and 60. Anyone knowing about the pup should call 337-5121.

'Town Meeting' Tuesday - Auburn

On Tuesday, July 15, Fourth District Representative Dan Quayle will conduct a "Congressional Town Meeting" in the assembly room of the courthouse in Auburn. The time is 6 to 7 p.m.

Mr. Quayle will be present to hear what is on the minds of constituents from this area. He will comment briefly on recent events in Washington, D.C.

A staff member will also be present to assist with any problems involving a federal department or agency.

The public is urged and invited to attend.

4-Hr. Session On 'Vigilantes', Bugs, Budget, Water Tests . . . .

Concern in the minds of local citizens about nightime activities in the community, much of it related to unnecessarily loud radios and tape decks in parked vehicles, was evident at the Monday, July 7, meeting of the town board. Suggestions even included the possibility of volunteer "vigilantes" to cope with the noice problem.

Attending the meeting were board members Paula Tinstman, Larry McKown and Ted Haberkorn; clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; town legal counsel James McCanna; and Don Moore, Steve Monroe, John Bopp and John Sechler.

After discussion about the use of unlicensed vehicles and the use of those vehicles by unlicensed drivers, the board asked Mr. McCanna to contact the county prosecuting attorney to ask him to attend the August meeting. The purpose will be to inquire about legal action which can be taken by citizens.

The president reported that after suggesting that efforts to get the town fogger working be stopped due to the reported unavailability of parts, he was informed of a possible source of fogger repair and reconditioning in Michigan and would contact the firm. He also said he had gone to Pioneer, Ohio, last week. That town of 1,000 now has some 18 electronic bug "zappers" installed on utility poles. The town's mayor, Bruce Kidston, said plans for next year include installing a ring of the electronic devices around the town, in addition to use of the town fogger.

Mr. Haberkorn brought one of the larger electronic units back to Saint Joe for trial purposes, noting however that only one unit could hardly be expected to indicate how useful such units might be due to the extremely large mosquito population this year. Mayor Kidston noted last week that this had been a "bad" year for mosquitoes. Pioneer has three small rivers or streams flowing through it.

The price of the unit brought back is $270. Smaller units are available, but the price does not lower significantly in the smaller units. The larger unit operates 24 hours a day and uses the equivalent of a 75-watt lightbulb.

The president reported that MM Joe McPherson recently purchased property at the east end of Washington Street, including acreage in the lowlands where mosquitoes breed. Mr. McPherson has already cleared a portion of the property of brush and small trees. And with the clearing of all the property in time, the result should be an appreciable reduction in the number of mosquitoes.

Mrs. Tinstman reported that she had made a trip to Michigan to pick up liquid and pellet chemicals for mosquito control.

Mr. McKown reported that he had spread a portion of the pellet chemicals on the lowland but stopped due to concern about the toxic hazards of the material as indicated on package labels. No such hazards had been mentioned to the three board members by either of two sales representatives at two different meetings recently.

It was reported that the power takeoff on the town tractor is being repaired.

Mr. Bopp has the town's riding mower back in operation and has done quite a bit of cleaning up at the town garage. He keeps regular maintenance on all town equipment.

The president reported that all water samples sent to the State Board of Health have been reported by the state board as "perfect"—that is, no indication of possible contamination. The perfect test results have come since Maurice Kline took over as waterworks superintendent in April.

The board held a preliminary budget review recently. At Monday's meeting, the clerk-treasurer was instructed to prepare the budget for 1981 with only two changes. The appropriation for mosquito control was increased from $700 to $1200 and the appropriation for fuel oil from $1200 to $1500. However, final approval of the budget comes from the state after publication of the proposed budget in the local paper twice in August.

Monday's session lasted four hours, until 11:00 p.m.

Bills allowed included:

Town—Indiana & Michigan Electric Company, street lights 262.88; Butler Lumber Co., supplies 9.81; Auburn Concrete Products, 27.18; John Bopp, labor and materials 477.50; A. E. Coburn Corners Leads 1st Half

Will this be "their" year?

That's a good question as the first half of the current season of the Saint Joe Church Softball League ended last week.

Leading the pack is the Coburntown I team with 8 wins and no defeats in the first half. Their closest competitor is the Newville United Methodist team at 6-2.

But it hasn't been all that easy for the league leaders. On occasion, it has taken late inning rallies to bring a victory. With several players at the "slugger" age, Coburntown I has found itself behind due to efforts by some of the players to "put it over the fence." It has taken veteran coach Lavon Hart's persistent urging to "swing level" to bring a turnabout in scores of some games.

The Coburn Corners Church of Christ has had two teams in the league for many seasons. In the past few years it has been necessary, however, to field one of the teams in combination with another church having a shortage of players. This year the second team is combined with Saint Joe Church of Christ.

Following the spirit of the league's basic goal of competitive fellowship, Lavon uses every player present in every game. League rules allow a player to re-enter the game after being out for two innings. Through adept substituting, the league-leader's coach has been able to keep the team's winning potential in tune with the desire of every player to participate.

One of the two Coburn Corners teams has always been strong but never a champion. This may be the year.

Lesson In 'Outside' Decisions - Or, That's Where The Money Goes

A good example of the way in which governmental agencies "infiltrate" local communities was evident Tuesday at the courthouse in Auburn.

Through a letter and two phone calls, it was established that I, as president of the town board and as a member of the Saint Joe Economic Development Commission, was invited to participate as a member of a county economic development planning committee. All areas of the county were represented as well as the county as a whole.

The several of us present in the county plan commission's office sat in silence for several minutes as a young woman and a young man explained, or tried to explain, what was up. They distributed a 53-page report to each individual present giving county background and current conditions—everything from "soup to nuts," so to speak. (One 8½x11 page of the report contained only a map of the state of Indiana with DeKalb County shaded to show its location in the state. What a waste of paper!)

I was confused—and it turned out that most of the others present were confused, even the two government planners who couldn't answer questions clearly. It appeared they were not quite certain themselves of what answers would be appropriate or how to answer.

I asked if it was safe to assume that the county commissioners had determined that the unemployment rate was bad enough that a government agency was called in. I don't think there was a direct answer—at that moment. But the answer did come later — the young man probably was not aware that he had given an answer.

The two planners were from the regional coordinating council or regional planning council (there are so many planners nowadays it's difficult to keep track). The young man unwittingly answered my question several minutes after I asked. the question, when he said, "With DeKalb County's unemployment rate higher than the state average, we decided there is a need for our services here."

When he said that, I smiled inwardly—maybe outwardly, too—because that's exactly what I thought was the case.

DeKalb County didn't decide we need help. Government planners decided. It is classic case of today's "we know better than you" attitude which prevails in today's bureaucracy. And the frightening thing about it is that young people, such as the two planners at the meeting, have become indoctrinated into bureaucracy's attitude of self-importance. They actually believe they are necessary, that they are a "productive" element in our society.

The group listened quietly and politely, questions and comments came forth as time passed. Finally, one young man (I think he was from Garrett) said in so many words, "What we're trying to say is we recognize the unemployment problem but we don't agree with the way the government is approaching it."

The meeting broke up almost immediately. It could have broken up sooner and no one would have been hurt, or it could not have been held at all and no one would have been hurt—except maybe the two planners whose full-time government jobs are jeopardized when they don't produce results—not results which indicate real progress and solutions but results which mean only that they managed to hoodwink a group of people into "asking" the planners to come in and "help."

During the meeting, the young man, pointing out that many communities do not realize they qualify for this or that federal assistance program, said, "I doubt if Saint Joe realizes it qualifies for a such-and-such grant." I don't remember what type of grant he meant, there are so many abbreviations tossed around by these government experts. And I didn't ask what the grant was for. If I had said anything, it would have been: "— —And Saint Joe doesn't care if it DOES qualify for the grant!" —But I didn't have the guts.

Sometimes the question is heard, "What advantage is there in living in Saint Joe?" Well, there might not appear to be too many—like a water system, a fire department virtually at everyone's front door —and one big one which gets bigger all the time and Tuesday's meeting at the county courthouse serves to emphasize this one. The big one is—Saint Joe doesn't have someone telling you how you can use your property, what you can build on it (assuming that such use does not interfere with your neighbors' well-being and comfort).

We have a lot of problems in our little town, just like everyone else in every other community. And we must keep working at them to try to make things better. But overshadowing those problems is the fact that (within reason) you can do on your property what you want without the need for asking permission and without the need for paying for such permission. (However, there are some matters which require contact with the board.)

When the comfort and well-being of others is threatened, that's when restrictive laws come into being. And it is up to every citizen of Saint Joe to be aware of others in the exercising of freedom of property ownership. Freedom in the use of one's property carries with it the responsibility to be considerate of one's neighbor.

Tuesday's meeting set me even more firmly in my conviction that the Number One problem facing every community is the intrusion of higher government into local affairs under the guise of "federal aid."

NE Center Resignations Indicate Deep Problems

The DeKalb County Council voted this week to withhold the regular monthly contribution to the Northeastern Center for Mental Health. For several months the center's organization has been under fire for unsatisfactory services.

The county medical society has overwhelmingly voted "no confidence" in the center and judges of both the DeKalb Circuit Court and DeKalb Supreme Court have not been referring cases to the center for several months. The courts have said that professional services at the center have not been satisfactory.

The situation came to a "head" recently when the three members of the four-county board from DeKalb County resigned from the board. The refusal to pay the monthly fee by the county council is the latest significant circumstance.

The center has been planning a $3 million new construction project in which to provide total mental health services. A suggestion that the now-vacant Garrett hospital facility, a comparatively new structure itself, has not been looked upon with favor by certain center officials due to alleged inadequate design and size.

In a public letter of June 24, Ronald Bowman, Ronald Zimmerman and Dennis Dukes, D. O., the three board members from DeKalb County who resigned from the board, set out their reasons for their action and stated that the solution to the problem lies in securing the services of a new center administrattve director.

The letter reads:

"Dear Citizens of DeKalb, Noble, Steuben, & LaGrange counties,

"Whereas the below signed members of DeKalb Co. board of directors of Northeastern Center, Inc.) (N.E.C.), are in favor and sympathy with the need for mental health facilities in our county and the other three counties, but are in serious and genuine disagreement with the present methods of administration and over-all procedures of Northeastern Center, Inc., we submit the following concerns:

"(1) The board of directors has given complete autonomy and control to the executive director, and forfeited its right to be a board with responsible relationships to its staff and community patients, by voting to have complete control of N.E.C. vested in its executive director.

"(2) There is a continued morale problem evidenced . . . i.e. recent staff resignations, four from both DeKalb and Noble counties.

"(3) The DeKalb County Medical Association as recently as two months ago has voted 'no confidence' in N.E.C. and refusing to make any but mandated referrals (19 of 20 physicians present voted 'no confidence').

"(4) The DeKalb County Welfare Department, Circuit & Superior Court judges, county clerk, probation office, and DeKalb Central school and Ober elementary schools systems are not in sympathy with the services and non-cooperation of N.E.C., Inc.

"(5) The Noble Co. Board of Commissioners recently turned down or rejected financing the new proposed clinic, and our DeKalb Co. Board of Commissioners & County Council in the past has held up funding to N.E.C., and is in all probability going to likewise, reject funding for a new clinic, based on continued problematic situations. We do not agree that $3,000,000 needs to be spent at this time for a new clinic for N.E.C., when the purchase of Garrett Community Hospital could be secured for about 1/3 or $600,000 of that cost.

"For these above listed and several other related aspects of a deteriorating morale and efficiency of N.E.C., we are in agreement that our DeKalb County Mental Health Association be recommended, because of our above experiences and opinions, to cease any further ties and/or cooperation with Northeastern Center, Inc., and that funding be diverted to avenues of mental health work within our DeKalb Co. Whereas this change in relationships of referrals, treatments, and follow-up therapy be done as quickly as possible, we further recommend that our Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County NOT name any replacements for N.E.C. from our DeKalb Co. We regret the above action, but feel no other solution is possible unless it be the replacing of the executive director of N.E.C., and a corresponding less authoritarian spirit on behalf of the board of directors and executive director, towards our agencies of DeKalb County."

Rain, Wind - Whew!

Wind and rain came to this area Saturday morning, but it wasn't in equal parts in every location.

Around Saint Joe 2 inches of rain fell but there were no extreme winds. At Fort Wayne, only a quarter of an inch of rain fell but they were clobbered by high winds and thousands in the area were without electric power, some for up to a couple of days, maybe more. Unfortunately, all problems couldn't be taken care of at once, and an 11 year old boy suffered serious burns Wednesday at Fort Wayne when he grabbed a dangling utility wire.

At Saint Joe some homes were without power when a transformer blew. And a wire clothesline is reported to have disintegrated at the Glen Wineland residence when lightning struck.

The word from Oxford—

You will have no trouble using "prescribe" and "proscribe" if you remember that doctors write prescriptions. When a doctor prescribes medicine and gives a prescription, he sets down or lays down a rule, direction or order, so "Mother Superior prescribes the rules of this house."

To "proscribe," on the other hand, is to condemn strongly or banish a person, to take away his rights. "The dictator proscribes many innocent citizens without trial." A "proscription" may also be a prohibition. "The principal proscribed smoking in school." "Her mother's proscription is severe—no TV until homework is done."

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 300, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Glaucoma

HIGH PRESSURE IN THE EYEBALL

Glaucoma is a disease where there is high pressure inside the eyeball. Sight may be damaged if the pupil of the eye is dilated. It is, therefore, necessary to keep the pupils contracted at all times. Medications such as pilocarpine are effective in achieving this. Atropine and other medications that dilate the pupils are often given prior to surgery and to patients with an abnormal heartbeat.

Unless the presence of glaucoma is known to the doctor, such treatment could make the condition worse. Going without the drug even for a day may lead to blindness or other eye damage.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

WITH THE EDITOR

Larry Mason had a float in the Three Rivers Festival Parade Saturday. And he says he wouldn't have been able to do it without the help of neighbors, including Ida Gick, the Longardners and kids. He says "thanks" to all of them for their neighborliness.

Carolyn McNamara stopped in to say that she has a stray poodle at the McNamara residence at the mobile home court. It's blonde and about a year old. She says it appears to have been hit by a car and has apparently been loose for some time. The owner can get more information by calling 337-5368.

Paul Fetters has been having health problems for some time. He says:

"I wish to thank everyone who sent cards, flowers and prayers and came to visit. Also thanks to the doctors, life support boys and nurses who gave such good care during my stay at DeKalb Memorial Hospital."

Among other things, he had some plumbing trouble.

Church League Debt Retired

The Saint Joe Church League made its final payment on indebtedness this week, a loan taken two years ago for $1,000 to cover a portion of the cost of some $5,000 to install new lights at the local lighted diamond.

Each participating church team contributed $100 toward the lights in 1978, this in addition to regular league dues. A payment on the loan was made last year and the balance paid off this year from league funds.

Sizeable donations from Vulcraft, the Saint Joe Lions Club and the Saint Joe Booster Club made the project possible. And after a loan was taken by the league, Knisely Bank granted a donation "credit" to reduce the total amount due.

The league has been in continuous operation at the lighted diamond since 1952. It now provides "family" softball recreational activity for some 150 people from a dozen churches in the local area.

"Come! Meet your old friends and make some new ones!"

Spencerville FD

—Shirley Mack, reporter

June 8th the Spencerville Fire Department participated in the county-wide practice alert. They also received their new bunker coats that day. They really look great and give a lot more protection.

June 19, 20, 21—Three delegates representing the department went to the state fire meeting at the State Fire Convention in Fort Wayne. They also took their 1945 Ford for the "old fire truck" display and parade.

The first aid classes are over and we haven't received the cards yet. As soon as we receive them, everyone will be notified. We had a great turnout!

The following were participants at the meet: Ned Lichtsinn, Mike Schuerman, Tom Mack, Ron Beard and Joe Crowl. They placed third in the waterball meet, first in hose replacement and third in bucket brigade.

The girls' waterball team, composed of Kathy Mack, Dee Miller, Chris Miller, Doreen Schuerman, Kelly Hoover and Shirley Mack, had to compete with the men's teams as no other girls' teams showed up. They gave it a good try, but drew the Butler champs to start the day off. — Well — better luck next time, girls!

July 26—the Spencerville Volunteer Fire Department is holding waterball meets. There will be several different fire departments coming to participate. Trophies will be given to winners in all events.

Everyone is invited to watch the fun and eat! The more, the merrier! It is a lot of fun to participate in these water games, but more important, it is good training for the firemen. So, it serves three purposes: teamwork, training and lots of fun!

The fire department wants to thank the American Legion of Saint Joe for the $800 donation. It will be used for new equipment for the department. Also thanks to the Spencerville Garage for repairing the carburetor on the Ford, Krafts for gravel, MidWest Tile and Concrete for discount on mortar for our new addition, Jake Schwartz for the general know-how and free labor and interest in the new addition, Ted Haberkorn for helping with and printing the articles for the paper for us and donating the poster paper when we need it, the Spencerville Community Club for letting us use the building for our first aid classes.

Thanks to all. We really appreciate everything and everyone.

Of 'Popular' Votes - And Gas - And -

One of the "not-usual" (but not unusual) situations existing this year as the two major political parties planned their national nominating conventions is that the two opposing presidential candidates have already been decided by primary elections in various states. Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter appear to have the nomination for President "sewed up."

But another "not usual" (but not "unusual") circumstance is the potential third-party candidacy of John Anderson. This potential has struck fear into the hearts of many who fear a "minority" President.

One of those expressing concern over the possibility that a majority of electoral votes may not be obtained in the presidential election because of a third-party candidacy is Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh who seeks an unprecedented fourth term in the Senate. Senator Bayh has been critical of the Electoral College system for several years; he wants to change the election of the President to a "popular vote" contest.

The Senator recently sent out one of his regular "Bayh-lines" news releases saying that "We're playing 'electoral roulette' again." He fears the possibility that the lack of a majority of Electoral College votes for Reagan or Carter or Anderson would throw the presidential election into the House of Representatives.

In his comments the Senator says, "The Electoral College is not harmless. It carries with it always the risk that a candidate who is not the choice of a majority of the people will be elected President. . . ."

A few things stand out in the Senator's statements. One is that, with three presidential candidates, it is virtually impossible for any one of them to be "the choice of a majority of the people." If we are going to think in terms of a "simple majority"—that is, the one who gets the most votes—then the elected President from a field of three (or more) would be elected by a "majority of the people."

But the Senator does not use the term "simple majority" in his efforts to establish the election of the President by popular vote. He uses the phrase "a majority of the people"—meaning 50% or more.

Under Senator Bayh's suggested popular vote system (he has introduced a bill to change the election to popular vote), a President would be elected by a minority of the people. When you split votes three or more ways, it takes a super-strong candidate to receive 50% or more of the popular vote. Thus, the Senator's solution appears to contradict his "fears."

This "simple majority" popular vote suggestion has more to be feared than the Electoral College system, if you want my opinion. It appeals to the fear of a "minority" President when at the same time it virtually guarantees a minority President.

Senator Bayh has been in the Senate 18 years. In that time he has sponsored or "pushed" for some four constitutional amendments, if my memory serves me correctly. These four include: voting rights for 18-year-olds, and revamping the process of presidential succession (both now law). The other two are: current efforts to remove the Electoral College in favor of direct popular vote for President, and the so-called "Equal Rights Amendment" (both not passed).

As a comparatively young long-time member of Congress, Senator Bayh seems at times to overlook the fact that certain of our Constitution's provisions came as the result of people seeking to be removed from the yoke of governmental oppression. While the customs of the times may have affected our forefathers in certain respects (women as "second class citizens," the presence of black slavery as examples), it is also true that not ALL men treated women as "inferiors" and not ALL caucasians supported the slavery of negroes.

I may be wrong, but when I read in a historic document that "all men are created equal," I don't believe it was intended that "men" be translated literally. Thinking back to my grade school days in the 30's, I don't remember ever having the idea that "men" in that historic document meant anything but "all human beings." So when people today, such as Senator Bayh, criticize the declarations made by our forefathers and say something must be changed, I am inclined to think that those people have either forgotten something or they never learned it.

With whatever faults there may be with the Electoral College in our election of a President, it still appears that those who set it up had more practical knowledge of setting up the mechanics of an elective process than do those who now say that the setup is wrong.

If there is fear of a deadlock in the November election, and if there is dissatisfaction with the seemingly pre-convention "sure-thing" for Presidential nominees of both major political parties, I think there is something else which should be examined other than the Electoral College and the primary election system.

The word from Oxford-

Among today's most frequently misused words is "hopefully." This adverb appears over and over again in writing and speech, often hanging by itself with nothing to modify. Example: "Hopefully, our team will win." What is meant is: "I hope our team will win."

How is "hopefully" used correctly? "We look forward hopefully to the future." "She suggested it hopefully." In these sentences, "hopefully" modifies verbs ("look" and "suggested"). If you can use "hopelessly" correctly, you should have no trouble with "hopefully." "The worst is yet to come. he said hopelessly." "No, the best, she replied hopefully."

—from the editors of the forthcoming Oxford American Dictionary.

Glaucoma

HIGH PRESSURE IN THE EYEBALL

Glaucoma is a disease where there is high pressure inside the eyeball. Sight may be damaged if the pupil of the eye is dilated. It is, therefore, necessary to keep the pupils contracted at all times. Medications such as pilocarpine are effective in achieving this. Atropine and other medications that dilate the pupils are often given prior to surgery and to patients with an abnormal heartbeat.

Unless the presence of glaucoma is known to the doctor, such treatment could make the condition worse. Going without the drug even for a day may lead to blindness or other eye damage.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

The joint meeting of the local fire department and the town board Monday night presents a problem for me as a reporter. So, what I say here may be prejudiced or unfair or incomplete.

But I will try to be objective in stating conclusions. Those who attended the meeting will be the final judge as to how accurate and fair my "report" may be.

Those conclusions are:

The primary objective of the fire department is to be able to function on its own and not be subject to control by the town board and the township trustee. The suggestion that a "committee" be formed to make decisions in fire department matters would in effect take responsibility away from elected officials (the town board and the township trustee who are answerable to the public) and give that responsibility to individuals not elected by the public and not answerable directly to the public.

Firemen have been led to believe that the town board has been diverting money (tax money collected for fire department purposes) into other channels.

Firemen have little understanding or knowledge of how the department is funded.

Attempts to explain certain matters and answer certain questions are accepted or challenged on the basis of who is talking, not on the basis of what is said.

Three attempts were made by the town board president to explain where a portion of fire department funds come from, and he was intimidated into silence when the fire chief said, "You're way out in left field." (After the meeting the chief said he understood now what was being explained—but this acknowledgement of understanding was made privately, not during the meeting. Thus, other firemen still have the impression the board president is still "out in left field.")

Though the fire department has a treasury of $1,800 (including $800 from the local disbanding American Legion Post for "walkie-talkies"), firemen have not provided for certain necessities. At the same time, the department feels that the town (the township was seldom if ever the object of criticism Monday night), has allowed equipment to deteriorate for many years. (When that thought was expressed, no fireman raised an objection to the criticism.)

The township is "broke" for this year as far as fire protection funds are concerned and the reason is: repairs to the township pumper were authorized by the fire department on what you might call a "blank check" basis (this was the same as admitted by an involved fireman).

Firemen believe the department should be "taken out of politics" which apparently means that the department should be answerable to no higher authority but should receive funding from that higher authority (the town board and the township trustee and his advisory board).

Firemen believe they are the last to be considered when the town board prepares its annual budget.

Fire Brings Smoke

Firemen were called to the Martin Bartell residence in Saint Joe Sunday evening, July 20. Heavy smoke throughout the house necessitated a call for assistance to the Spencerville department. Needed were additional gear for entering the smoke-filled residence and a high-volume exhaust fan to pull the smoke out.

The fire apparently started in the house wiring and most of the damage was due to the smoke from smouldering insulation.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted:

Enclosed is check for $5.75 to pay for St. Joe News subscription for a year.

The County Rural Number system is a big improvement over the former system. (We had NO system except rural route numbers. The telephone directory was a little better — they listed the road number.)

I have been using the new numbers in Census work and I like it very much. It is a tremendous help in knowing where a family lives.

Even you will have to admit that when there are two people with the same name living on the same rural route, having the house number as part of the address certainly gets their mail delivered correctly. For instance, two men named Jack Cook — both live on Rt. 1, Auburn, both on road 35. Another, a father and son, both are Delmar Greuter, Rt. 1, Butler. Both live on CR44. The house numbers really help.

Our annual Drerup family reunion was held at the St. Joe Park a week ago. We really appreciated having the pump working — fresh, cold water is so good. The Park is a big asset — I hope it can be maintained as a pleasant outdoor spot for picnics and reunions.

Sincerely your friend,
Margaret Drerup

Solution Sought For Public Use Of Lights At Ball Diamond

Three instances of late-hour unauthorized use of the lights at the church league diamond in a period of one week have brought the need to place a lock on the light switchbox.

On one of the three occasions, a softball game was being played at 1:30 in the morning.

When the lights were originally installed in 1951, the switch box was locked. As time passed, the lock was forgotten and the lights used in an orderly manner.

However, the recent incidents have revealed that there are those in the community, youth and adult, who think the lights are "public property" and that the light bill is paid by taxes.

While the ball diamond is located on school property and is used by the school during the school year and by the public during daytime hours, the lighting system is private and is under the jurisdiction of the local church softball league. Responsibility for paying the light bill falls on the church league, with assistance from the local Lions Club which donates to the league for part of the cost of lighting.

With the exception of backstop steel posts, light poles and underground wire, all other facilities have been provided and maintained for years by the church league. The new light fixtures installed in 1978 were made possible with the cooperation of sizeable donations from local businesses and organizations; but the league paid over half of the entire cost of over $5,000.

All new backstop fencing, the new poles and fence on the first base line, the new poles and fence on the third base line, the new poles and fence around the outfield were paid for entirely by the church league. As each project was undertaken, each league team paid an equal assessment for the project, in addition to the regular annual entry fee. Other items, such as bases, home plates and pitching rubbers for softball use, have been paid for by the church league.

Inasmuch as diamond facilities have been used for "scrub" games, weekend games, school and summer recreation activities, the church league has in effect provided for a "community" facility open to use by anyone if an organized activity has not been scheduled.

However, with the lights involving not only a cost of operation but also a possible disturbance to those residing in homes near the diamond, the recent late-hour activities were halted with the installation of a lock by church league president Ted Haberkorn. In a discussion with the youth present on one of the three occasions, an invitation was extended to the youth to attend the next town board meeting to air their views. The invitation was extended by Mr. Haberkorn acting also as president of the town board.

In a discussion with one set of parents and their boys who were playing at the diamond late at night, the town board president suggested that perhaps something could be worked out between the town board and the church league to allow for use of the lights for informal "community" ball games. He stated, however, that possible use of the lights at night would require the approval of residents near the diamond and that there would be a curfew required.

Money for the adjacent tennis court lights was obtained a year or so ago on the condition that a curfew be established. This is now carried out through an automatic timer. When the lights were installed at the tennis courts, the town board assumed financial responsibility for the light bills.

Anyone having views on the matter should attend the Monday, August 4, meeting of the town board at 7 p.m.

The president expressed hope that some sort of agreement can be reached by the affected parties to provide for use of the lights at reasonable hours.

The word from Oxford-

Learning the difference between "imply" and "infer" is easy if you can give a hint and take a hint. When you give a hint, you suggest without stating directly; you imply something. "Frank's confident manner implies wealth and power."

When you take a hint, you reach an opinion from facts or reasoning: you infer its meaning. "From what David said, I inferred that he was considering marriage." Careful writers use "imply" in the sense of suggesting without stating directly. They use "infer" in the sense of reaching an opinion from facts or reasoning. Writers and speakers and conditions "imply"; readers and listeners and observers "infer."

Glaucoma

HIGH PRESSURE IN THE EYEBALL

Glaucoma is a disease where there is high pressure inside the eyeball. Sight may be damaged if the pupil of the eye is dilated. It is, therefore, necessary to keep the pupils contracted at all times. Medications such as pilocarpine are effective in achieving this. Atropine and other medications that dilate the pupils are often given prior to surgery and to patients with an abnormal heartbeat.

Unless the presence of glaucoma is known to the doctor, such treatment could make the condition worse. Going without the drug even for a day may lead to blindness or other eye damage.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

For a few days Saint Joe was almost isolated from the world as far as transportation was concerned the past week.

Apparently by coincidence, the Chessie system and the Norfolk & Western railroads were renovating railroad crossings. At the same time the state highway department, through a contract, was replacing two large culverts under State Road 1 just north of Saint Joe.

As a result there were times when anyone wishing to get to Saint Joe from the north, east and west had to use a circuitous route to get to town.

In recent weeks the Chessie system has done a complete replacement of track and ties in this area. A portion of the old ties was removed several weeks ago and replaced by new ties. Then new rail was laid. Thereafter additional ties were removed and replaced with new.

The project is in a final phase of applying and grading railbed stone. Work at crossings is still in progress.

I'm no admirer of Billy Carter. But I am getting tired of the embarrassing situation referred to by some as "Billygate," a title inspired by the Watergate matter under President Richard Nixon.

If anything, Billy Carter is the least offensive character in the present turmoil over possible influence-peddling with regard to Libya. He is the least offensive now because he was the most offensive in the past! "Everybody" knew what kind of individual Billy was—and is (he is still saying right out what he thinks). Of course, he is also misleading the public (lying, some would call it). But isn't that what Billy Carter has always been, a "colorful" character??

What is more bothersome is that his brother, the President of the United States, has also made misleading statements. And a top Administration official just outright lied about the Billy Carter matter.

Let's not forget that Jimmy Carter has worn his religion on his sleeve. His somber, sober countenance "sells" the public on the idea that he is trying to be honest, trying to be sincere, trying to — whatever. His brother has made no claim to being "born again."

Let's also not forget that he has also said to the American people that he would never lie to them. But he has come so close to doing what he said he wouldn't (if not actually lying) that Brother Billy becomes a more "believable" character because his past antics have made him "unbelievable."

Anyhow — I'm tired of Billygate. I think the President mishandled the situation. I think if he had any concern at all about what might happen with regard to Billy, he had the power to say, "Billy, knock it off!" After all, we're not talking about a family affair. We're talking about the total American public.

Federal 'Aid' Is Expensive

On a couple of occasions in recent weeks, the matter of federal funds or federal grants has come up in discussions about Saint Joe financial needs. The comment has been often made, "If we don't get it, somebody else will," concerning federal funds.

The danger in looking for outside assistance in money matters is no plainer at the present time than in the situation faced by states, counties, cities, towns and townships in the use of federal revenue sharing funds. That is the program started several years ago in which taxing units (I forgot to list schools above) receive money from the federal government for certain purposes.

The trouble is that a large number of taxing units have become dependent upon revenue sharing for regular operating expenses, not for certain "special purposes" as originally intended. (However, the certain purposes did cover a wide area of selection.)

While it sounds like a "spoil sport" to speak against a program through which a community can show "growth" or "progress," the fact of the matter is that the supposed benefits are costly, very costly. And there is the old standard to go by (violated by the temptation of revenue sharing and federal grants): if you can't pay for it within the limits of those who receive benefits, you shouldn't have it. It's the same old story of being honest with ourselves by asking, "Can we afford it?"—with the emphasis on "we".

Our dollar of 1980 is worth around 37 cents compared to 15 years ago. That is, what you paid 37 cents for then costs a dollar now. And a major factor in the depreciation of the dollar is the growth of federal (and state) programs which supposedly "assist" various social or geographic units. The number of people required to handle public tax money in these "assistance" programs is large. And for every government worker added to the payroll in all the "assistance" programs, a corresponding decrease occurs in the value of the dollar. The reason is basic: those workers produce nothing—their "work" centers on control and regulation of the general public. Those workers "produce" only red tape and millions of pounds of paper work.

Before someone in a government job thinks, "He's against ALL government workers," let me acknowledge that a certain number of government employees are necessary for the basic responsibility it has for its people—protecting individual liberty and acting in those limited areas where a collective or group effort is necessary. The problem of increasing governmental involvement means that government has gone far beyond its basic responsibility. The result—inflation, cheaper dollars, higher taxes.

The projected federal budget deficit for 1981 is some $61 billion— $61 BILLION. Isn't it a strange situation? Here we have more money being spent than is taken in by the federal government, yet we continue programs of federal grants, matching-fund grants and so on. Revenue sharing has been a part of the reason for that persistent budget deficit. And maybe—just maybe—Congress will allow the revenue sharing program to expire when the original legislation runs out.

BUT — so many taxing units have incorporated revenue sharing into their "permanent" anticipated revenue that there is pressure to continue the program. That's like drinking poisoned water because you're thirsty.

Those who think we should seek federal funds for local "need" should give serious thought to what such programs bring in the long run. Far too many elected officials are failures when it comes to determining how strong they have been in resisting the lure of easy money as represented by federal revenue sharing and other handouts. That failure has resulted in far too many people receiving a sizeable income as government workers, income for which there is no productive value in our communities and in our society as a whole.

Isn't it rather ridiculous to pay $3 in federal taxes and get back $1 in "assistance?—that is, get $1 back IF a federal employee decides you qualify —and that federal employee is taking $2 of the $3 in taxes as salary or wages, paid vacations, retirement benefits and all the other "fringe" benefits.

Probation Cases Show Increase

The DeKalb County Probation Department recently released statistics for the first six months of 1980 compared with the first six months of 1979. The statistics show a large increase in the number of both adults and juveniles placed on probation in DeKalb County.

The report states:

"The Adult caseload has increased almost five fold in the last twelve months from the 33 in June 1979 to 188 in June 1980. With this increase in the probation caseload there has been much more use of county work release and community service work. The juvenile caseload has increased over three fold in the last 12 months from 28 in June 1979 to 93 in June 1980. All juvenile cases that allege delinquency and which would be a crime if commited by an adult start with the Juvenile Probation Officer who acts also as Intake Officer in DeKalb County. The Intake Officer is required to make an investigation of the offense and the juvenile and his background before making a recommendation to the Prosecutor and Juvenile Court. Already for the first six months of 1980 110 juvenile cases have been filed compared with 145 being filed for the total year of 1979.

"Restitution collected for the first six months of 1980 by those under the supervision of the DeKalb County Probation Department has also increased. With the use of probation being much cheaper than imprisonment and the probationer being at liberty has a better opportunity to make payments toward the support of his family toward restitution. Restitution is collected to pay back victims of crimes for damages suffered, to pay back buy money used by undercover drug police officers, and for those who are in work release at the County Jail to reimburse the County for their expense in housing them. Already in the first six months of 1980 a total of $5,991.73 has been collected compared to $2,277.78 for the total year of 1979. A breakdown of the amount collected for the first six months of 1980 show that from adults $4,514.31 was collected and $1,477.42 from juveniles.

"For the last two and one-half years the Probation caseload has steadily increased. In May 1978 a total of 45 were under the supervision of the Probation Department compared with a total of 285 who were under the supervision of the Probation Department on July 1, 1980."

David Sutton, Chief Probation Officer for DeKalb County, reports that if there are any questions about the functions of the department, information can be obtained by calling him at 925-2400.

Just what is cystic fibrosis?

Cystic fibrosis is an inherited disease mainly of infants and young children affecting breathing, sweat glands and the pancreas which gives off juices that aid food digestion. People with this disease are most subject to serious infection in the breathing system, the pancreas working incorrectly and increased sweating which can cause sudden collapse.

Because of the possibility of these events taking place, persons with cystic fibrosis should wear emergency medical identification so their need for special treatment will be known.

The word from Oxford—

A careful writer chooses the correct word rather than one that's merely fashionable. Fashionable words often are used by the unwary when short, plain-speaking words will do. Consider "explicate," which is freely substituted nowadays for "explain." Save "explicate" for its specialized meaning of to open up, unfold, and interpret a difficult subject. Say and write: "I will explain my statement." "My plans explain how this machine works." But: "The tax consultant explicated the new tax laws." All "Words from Oxford" explicate good usage. This one explains "explicate."

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I probably should apologize to the Coburntown I softball team for jinxing them. A few issues ago when they were riding high on an undefeated record, I said maybe this is "their year" for the championship.

After that, they lost three games.

—Sorry, fellas.

The Rainbow Farm Center has been busy also, with a major job of filling and grading their drive and parking area and work on the giant scales.

With Pat and Andy Crow constantly expanding their facilities at the Farm Center, and Bob Beerbower doing the same at the local elevator, the Saint Joe area has two of the most up-to-date farm production service facilities anyone could want.

DC Band Auction

The DeKalb Central Music Association will hold a benefit auction Saturday, August 16, to raise money for the school's marching band.

The group is seeking donations of items to sell in the auction which will be held in the 4H auction barn at the fairgrounds in Auburn.

Items will also be accepted on consignment, with the association receiving the auctioneer's fee. Auctioneer services will be donated by Kruse Auctioneers.

The auction begins at 10 a.m.

The goal is to raise $:0,500 to help buy new instruments for the high school band. Director Gary Kantz says the band needs four convertible tubas ($7,300) and eight mellophoniums ($3,200) to replace outdated instruments owned by the band department.

Those wishing to donate auction items should contact Louanne Nugen, music association president, or Linda Gehl. Donated items are tax-deductible.

Thelma Hart

Funeral services were held August 7 for Thelma Alegra Hart, 68, of R1 Saint Joe. She died August 4 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital, suffering from cancer for the past year and a half.

Mrs. Hart was the daughter of the late Marvin A. and Winnie A. (Bailey) Poper and was born in Indiana on September 6, 1911. She was married to Elwood Hart.

After memorial calling at the Baldinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville, the funeral was held at the Saint Joe Church of Christ with Dennis King officiating. Burial was set for Alton Cemetery on State Road 101 east of Saint Joe.

Survivors include the husband; a son, Jack, of Black River Falls, Wisconsin; a sister, Mrs. Harold (Virginia) Baker of Auburn; three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Landfill Request Rejected

An anonymous handbill circulated in Saint Joe and apparently elsewhere in this area over the August 2-3 weekend was effective in getting some 40 or 50 property owners to attend a meeting of the DeKalb County Plan Commission Monday, August 4, at the courthouse in Auburn.

The meeting was the third one held relative to an application by Hess & Sons Disposal of Auburn to gain a variance in zoning laws to allow operation of a landfill on 40 acres owned by the firm.

The plan commission voted to reject the Hess petition citing as the reason for the rejection the fact that a gravel road runs aolng one side of the property. The commission said the road would not bear heavy traffic.

The group attending the meeting was apparently aroused by the yellow handbill which warned residents that "your" property is endangered if the landfill were to go in. Other point-blank statements were included on the handbill but there were no names of individuals or organizations on the handbill to indicate its source.

One of those attending the hearing reported to the News that some of the protesters were "rude" in the way in which they addressed the members of the plan commission.

Jerry Hess, owner of the disposal firm which now services Saint Joe in trash pickup, said this week he told the commission he would have a 75-foot "tree barrier" on all sides of the proposed landfill to satisfy any of those who might object to the landfill's "unsightliness."

No soil samples have been taken thus far because of the progressive steps taken to gain approval for a landfill, Mr. Hess said. Such sampling is a costly procedure.

Plan Commission Officer Bill Mann indicated to the News that the present county landfill is projected to be useful for only one to five more years.

It was stated at the hearing by the attorney for the objectors that Merritt, Inc., who operate the present county landfill on county-owned property have obtained or will obtain additional acreage adjacent to the present landfill for further expansion of landfill service. However, no petition has as yet been presented to the Plan Commission for approval of the additional acreage.

Even when approval is given by a county plan commisison for a landfill, final approval is necessary from state pollution authorities. One of the conditions the state can specify in its approval is the drilling of test wells on the landfill site to determine with the passage of time whether or not the landfill is polluting area water supplies.

It was reported to the News that the apparent primary objector to the Hess application for a variance does not reside in this area but resides in Detroit, owning land adjacent to the Hess family property.

Though the matter does not appear closed at the present time, there is no further hearing procedure established at the present time.

CL Race Tightens

The race has tightened in the past few weeks in Saint Joe Church League softball competition.

Coburntown I, sailing along undefeated through the first part of the season, has been defeated three times in recent weeks. Newville UM ended its season at 13-3 and Hicksville CC also has a record with but three losses.

With the end of the season at hand, a potential two or three-way tie for first place is possible. In that event playoffs will be necessary.

NOTE: After the above was written, Hicksville suffered its fourth loss. The race now narrows to Newville UM and Coburntown I, with the latter having its final game Thursday, August 14, against the Methodist-Lutherans.

If Coburntown I wins Thursday, they will tie Newville UM and a playoff game will decide the championship Monday, August 18. If Coburntown I loses Thursday, Newville UM will be league champion.

The All-Star game will be played Thursday, August 21.

Stolen Auto Found In Pit

The car, a 1978 Pontiac Sunbird, was reported stolen Tuesday night. Sheriff Larry Myers enlisted the aid of conservation officers and their scuba diving gear when tracks were found at the pit leading into the water. The car was found about 30 feet from shore. It appeared the accelerator had been "propped" and the car put in gear to run driverless into the murky water.

Bernice Harter

Mrs. Bernice V. Harter, 79, who resided at R1 Saint Joe, died at her home August 2. She lived at her present home only two weeks. She formerly resided on R1 Hicksville.

Mrs. Harter was born February 24, 1901, at El Paso, Illinois, the daughter of Elmer and Jennie Pinkham Mohr. On January 10, 1923, she was united in marriage with Alva J. Miller. They started housekeeping at Hicksville. Mr. Miller died in September 1973.

Mrs. Harter was a 1919 graduate of Wolcott High School. On March 14, 1976 she married G. W. Harter.

She was a member of the United Methodist Church at Newville, United Methodist Women's Blen Circle, Fifty-Plus Club at Spencerville, Ladies' Organization at Scipio United Methodist Church, Newville Homemakers Extension Club and the Harian Senior Citizens Club.

Survivors include the husband; two sons, Howard of Mooresville and Don of Saint Joe; three daughters, Mrs. Marjorie I. Hart of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Frances A. Friedt of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Earl Klepper of Hicksville; 14 grandchildren; 9 great grandchildren; a brother, Harold Mohr of Hicksville; and a sister, Mrs. Mary Abbott of Chicago.

Funeral services were held August 5 at the Brown Funeral Home in Hicksville with Rev. Cletus Hirschy and Rev. Philip Lutz officiating. Burial was in Newville Cemetery.

Youth To Help Supervise Use Of Lights; Fire Equipment To Be Purchased

In a well-attended meeting Monday, the Town Board of Saint Joe made efforts to resolve two pressing situations.

In a four-hour and fifteen-minute session attended by some 20 people, teenagers and adults, plus the full board, clerk-treasurer and town attorney, the board indicated it would investigate the cost of paying for electricity needed to operate the lights at the local lighted diamond for "scrub" games on nights when league games are not scheduled. The board president said he had contacted several team managers in the local church league to see if there were any objections to using the lights installed by the church league if the cost of operation was borne by the town. There were no objections and a couple of comments from church league managers were along the line that "it would be a good thing for the community."

The president later this week obtained information of the approximate cost per night to operate the lights. Then after consulting the other two board members with the suggestion that two of the teenagers involved in extra-curricular use of the lights be given responsibilities in controlling use of the lights, Mike Duke was asked if he and Willie Thacker would help in diamond supervision, with a 10:30 p.m. curfew when the lights are to be turned off. Mike accepted the responsibility and a key to the lights was given to him.

In another lengthy discussion, the board asked the fire chief to have definite prices on new fire hose and auxiliary oxygen tanks to present at the August 18 meeting when a public meeting will be held on the town budget. The chief had presented a list of priority items, as requested by the board president at a joint meeting recently. A "walkie-talkie" costing over $700 was at the top of the list. But the board felt other items were of greater importance in providing basic fire fighting equipment for the town.

A top coat of asphalt is to be applied to Curie Street at a cost of $2,000. The board has also authorized a "hump" at the stop sign on Railroad Street at the News Office. The frequency of running the stop sign by vehicles and the excessive speed through the yield sign at the opposite side of the intersection with Third Street prompted the decision to put a hump in the pavement. Frequent "close calls" have been noted at the intersection when motorists ignore either sign, sometimes at relatively high speeds.

Steam Train Run

Steam railroad fans will have a Labor Day Special to enjoy this year.

Due to the great success of the "Firecracker Special," the Little River Railroad will have another special run to Fremont.

The railroad ride prices are:
$5 for adults age 12 and up.
$2.50 for children 5 to 11.
Under age 5 free.

To make reservations call (219) 665-9182 or write: The Little River Railroad, P.O. Box 178, Angola, Indiana 46703.

To assure a seat, make your reservations early, the railroad advises.

Bass-ackwards Approach

Recently the Senate voted 78-12 to create the "U.S. Synthetic Fuel Corporation" and authorized development of a domestic synthetic fuels industry.

What's the matter with them? Here we're already struggling under federal controls and programs which have been more a hindrance than a help, and the Senate votes to spend $20 BILLION to develop synthetic fuels.

The motivation is fine. But the method is terrible. What the Senate did with that 78-12 vote is guarantee that synthetic fuel development will be costly and a long time in coming.

The President, members of Congress and other elected officials repeatedly speak of the need to get American industry back on its feet, to raise productivity (not "production" but "productivity" and that means more efficiency). But instead of giving American industry the ball and issuing a challenge to competitive development of synthetic fuels, the government through our elected representatives from BOTH major political parties keeps hold of the reins.

We're in debt up to our you-know-what at the federal level —and the Senate votes to spend $20 BILLION MORE.

What should be done is to allow tax incentives to ANYONE who can develop a practical synthetic fuel or fuels. We have the brainpower, but we're fencing it in with today's system of federally-funded programs.

Sometimes I wonder — — .

Just what is cystic fibrosis?

Cystic fibrosis is an inherited disease mainly of infants and young children affecting breathing, sweat glands and the pancreas which gives off juices that aid food digestion. People with this disease are most subject to serious infection in the breathing system, the pancreas working incorrectly and increased sweating which can cause sudden collapse.

Because of the possibility of these events taking place, persons with cystic fibrosis should wear emergency medical identification so their need for special treatment will be known.

The word from Oxford-

"Comprise" means to include, to consist of, to form. Easy! So why do broadcasters manage to use it incorrectly almost every time? If only they would use a common word whenever they feel a "comprise" coming on. Correct: "The apartment comprises a living room, bedroom and kitchen." Why? Because the whole (the apartment) comprises (includes, consists of, is formed of) the parts (rooms). Incorrect: "Three rooms comprise the apartment." Why? Because parts cannot comprise (include, etc.) the whole. Test yourself. Only one of these sentences is correct: "The encyclopedia is comprised of ten volumes" "The encyclopedia comprises ten volumes." Did you get it right? The second is correct.

Tax Reduction Tied To 18% GNP

U.S. Congressman Robert Dornan, who seeks re-election in 1980, has co-authored a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to provide for tax reductions and reforms.

One of the provisions of the bill would set a limit on federal spending of 18% of the gross national product, starting with the 1983 fiscal year. This part of the bill differs from other spending limit proposals which would set a limit of 20%. Many observers believe the 20% figure is too high in view of the constantly rising gross national product. They believe there would be little reduction in federal spending under those circumstances and that a lower percentage is advisable.

H.R. 1000 reads in part:

"(a) Short Title.—This Act may be cited as the 'American Tax Reduction Act of 1979"

"Sec. 2. Purposes

The purposes of this Act are:

"(1) To provide for a reduction in the public debt by creating, not later than 1983, a surplus of Federal revenues over Federal outlays.

"(2) To place a permanent limit on Federal spending of 18 percent of the gross national product effective in fiscal 1983.

"(3) To provide an incentive for Members of Congress to eliminate wasteful spending and unneeded Federal programs by reducing the overall growth of Federal spending.

"(4) To provide for reductions in Federal individual income taxes during the next 4 years.

"(5) To provide tax relief for homeowners by revising Federal taxation of capital gains.

"(6) To provide for indexation of income tax rates, capital gains, and certain estate and gift and corporation taxes, to prevent inflation from moving taxpayers into higher levels of taxation."

In commenting on the tax situation, Congressman Dornan said:

". . . . On an average, then, more than four months out of every citizen's year of labor is being confiscated by the government. In 1930, spending by government (at all levels) accounted for only 12 percent of the GNP. By 1976 it was 36 percent. If this trend continues, it will hit 60 percent in the year 2000. . . . From 1965 to 1975 the national debt soared from $313 billion to $553 billion. The interest on the federal debt alone in 1975 was $28 billion. The President's Council of Economic Advisers estimated in 1975 that regulation on the part of burgeoning federal regulatory agencies costs the taxpayer $130 billion a year and that one out of every five workers is employed by either federal, state or local governments. . ."

The Congressman also noted that while living costs rose about 40 percent from 1969 to 1973, taxes rose an "incredible" 65 percent.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. Can you enlighten me about an iron cooker marked "Yankee Baker, Yankee Cook"? —Mrs. V. K., Norfolk, Virginia.

A. Cast-iron cooking accessories paraded into prominence during the 19th century as the coal or wood stove replaced the fireplace as a source of heat for cooking. Busy homemakers applauded the fact that this cooker had a recessed bottom designed to fit into the lid openings of the stove. Some advertisements billed it as the "Double Yankee Cook." Orbeton & Lang patented this kitchen helper in 1869. According to reports it could accomplish cooking chores at one eighth the cost of an ordinary stove! Value guide: cast-iron cooker, $125.00

Q. What information can you furnish on a Pickard hand-painted porcelain sugar and creamer dating from 1910? —Helen, Hagerstown, Maryland.

A. Wilder Pickard founded a decorating studio in Chicago, Illinois, in the late 1890s, where a team of talented artists executed quality handpainted motifs on European blanks. The all over gold wares proved especially suitable for Golden Anniversaries. In 1938 the company relocated to Antioch, Illinois, to manufacture the china decorated by the firm's artists. Some early pieces bear the backstamp of the maker, the Pickard mark, and the name of the individual artist. Early Pickard pieces please the collecting populace! Value guide: sugar and creamer, florals, 1910, $90.

Q. In the bureau drawer we discovered a horn and ivory comb marked L. Gaillard. where did this piece originate? —Gail, Colorado Springs, Colurado.

A. Chalk up this fortunate find as being the work of French silversmith and jeweler Lucine Gaillard. By 1889 Gaillard had already established a reputation as a silversmith, but was persuaded to turn his talents to jewelry designing by none other than Rene Lalique. Following this advice Gaillard proceeded to craft combs and other accessories from unusual materials such as ivory or horn, which he typically ornamented with rarely used semi-precious stones. The result? Art Nouveau trinkets to be treasured! Value guide: comb, ivory and horn, brilliants, signed, florals, 6 inches long $235.

Q. Would you kindly assist me in evaluating a collection of turn of the century advertising pocket mirrors? — Charles, Clearwater, Florida.

A. Advertising pocket mirrors once freely distributed as promotional items currently capture the attention of flea market shoppers. The following prices reflect the renewed interest: Beeman's Pepsin Gum, $25; Beauty-skin, $23; Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, $27; Horlick's Malted Milk, $20; Lydia Pinkham Patent Medicine, $25; Remington Standard Typewriter, $25; Scranton, Pa., stove works, $18; White House coffee, $20.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

Somebody lost a key ring—actually it's three rings intertwined with one key and a miniature "clog" sandal attached.

It's at the News Office.

The extremely wet weather cut the season on tomatoes and sweet corn for some gardeners in the area. Mary Rectenwall said this week that one ear of sweet corn had one kernel on it. Most of one section of sweet corn planting is nubs or half-filled ears. And the rain made tomatoes split.

Mary and husband Rex have had a truck patch for years on their place just outside Spencerville.

Stacey Coburn

Funeral services were held Saturday, August 9, and a memorial service August 17 for Stacey Anne Coburn, three-month-old daughter of Roger and Rhonda (Lothamer) Coburn of Saint Joe. The infant had congenital defects at birth and died August 8 at the Riley Children's Hospital in Indianapolis. She was born May 8, 1980, in Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne and was a patient at Indianapolis for a month.

Survivors include the parents; the paternal grandparents, MM Merle Coburn of Saint Joe; the maternal grandparents, MM James Lothamer of Fort Wayne; the paternal great-grandparents, Floyd Coburn of Butler and Grace Keller of Auburn; and the maternal great-grandparents, MM Burlin DePoy of Logansport and Mrs. Rose Lothamer of Fort Wayne.

The funeral was held at the Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Butler and burial was in Alton Cemetery.

The memorial service was held at Coburn Corners Church of Christ.

Dessie Osmun

Funeral services were held August 12 at Brown Funeral Home in Hicksville for Dessie M. Osmun, 85, who died August 9 at Meadowhaven Nursing Home in Butler. She had been a resident at the home since January of 1979 and formerly resided at Newville.

Mrs. Osmun was born March 2, 1895, in Defiance County, Ohio, the daughter of Samuel and Blanche Ridenour Sleesman. She married Alva Osmun December 12, 1914. He died in October of 1979.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Mervin (Glenis) Conine and Mrs. Ray (Jeanette) Moore of Newville; two sons, Russell of Butler and Wilmer of Antwerp, Ohio; 13 grandchildren; 21 great grandchildren; and three great great grandchildren.

A son and a grandchild preceded her in death.

Mrs. Osmun was a member of Newville Church of Christ and the Newville Home Economics Club.

Rev. Harry Farrer officiated at the funeral and burial was in Six Corner Cemetery at Hicksville.

Stated meetings 2nd Tuesday of each month—8:00 p.m.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met Tuesday of this week with all town officials present and several visitors.

The board president reported under old business that Mike Duke and Willie Thacker had accepted appointments as supervisors of non-league ball games at the lighted diamond. The matter had been discussed last month and the president said the two young men accepted the responsibility appreciatively. He said they were given a key to the lights with the understanding that the use of the lights was for ball games and not for "tearing around" by motorbikes and three-wheelers. Also, the lights were to be turned off at 10:30 p.m.

The matter of tall grass and weeds at the former Enco station was again brought up. Freeman Oil Company, owner of the property, was asked to cut the weeds some time ago, according to a board member, but the work has not been done.

The matter of tall bushes and spreading shrubs at the Steve Monroe residence, making a hazardous exit from an adjacent alley, was reported as "taken care of." At the August 18 meeting of the board, the president had directed the clerk to send a letter to Mr. Monroe about the matter, according to provisions in the local weed control ordinance.

It was reported by a board member that a waterball court at Kees pit was not considered satisfactory by the local fire department due to the presence of small children with the pit nearby. A waterball court has been set up on the old school site in Saint Joe. The board president raised a question about the quantity of water used in such activities, stating that use of large quantities of water might contribute to water supply problems in the future, in view of extreme dry conditions prevalent in parts of the entire country.

Complaints of odor and rust in the local water supply at certain residences brought the observations that when hydrants are flushed, the water is allowed to run until it is clear. Therefore, it would appear that rust problems are in the private residence lines. The odor may be for the same reason, inasmuch as chlorine is added in doubled amounts during the summer months to improve control of bacteria. Water sample tests continue to be satisfactory according to the state board of health.

A question about the audit of the town finances by the state brought forth the information that the report was received some time ago by the clerk. The board president received no copy sent by the state board of accounts.

The board voted unanimously to petition the Public Service Commission for an increase in water rates after consultation with the town attorney. Present rates have been in effect for some 18 years. With increasing inflation, the board feels that waterworks funds are running too close to "even" to be safe. An unexpected major expenditure would be a problem.

Other items of town concern were discussed.

Bills allowed included:

Town—Safety Equipment and Supply Co., fireman's boots 65.07; John Bopp, labor and materials 330.00; Betty Baker, supplies 15.15; Auburn Veterinary Clinic, disposal of dogs 40.00; Krafft Gravel Pit, 26.14; Strawn Medical Rental, oxygen 30.00; Jiggs' Motor Service, gas 46.62; Hixson Gravel, 321.56; Arthur Nieto, mowing of cemetery 209.00; Masolite Concrete Products, 21.95; Brown Furniture & Hardware, supplies 193.34.

Waterworks—Maurice Kline, salary, postage and repair 86.64; Brown Furniture & Hardware, 2.00; Leary Construction Company, cleaning and painting of water tank 4995.00; Butler Company, clamps 119.85.

At the August 18 meeting, no significant questions were raised about the proposed budget for 1981.

Other business included discussion of continuing drainage problems with this year noted as "the year of the roots" what with all the rainfall.

In business carried over from an earlier date, the board voted to purchase three 50-foot sections of 1½" fire hose and four extra oxygen tanks for town fire fighting. Total cost of the equipment is $856.00.

A discussion of waterworks matters brought an emphasis on the fact that water shutoffs and turnons should be done only by the waterworks superintendent or other authorized agent, except in emergency situations and the superintendent may not be readily available.

A petition from residents along the west side of Spencer Street (State Road 1) to have all-time no parking changed to no parking on Wednesdays and Saturdays was given to the board president prior to the meeting. After a discussion with the Angola state highway office superintendent who suggested the town board forward the petition to Fort Wayne, the board followed the suggestion and the clerk was directed to forward the petition with an accompanying letter.

The no parking went into effect a year or so ago due to the large number of people patronizing a discount food outlet in the former Holsom Dairy building.

An estimate of under $900 was reviewed by the board related to enclosing a portion of the structure called a "fire hall addition" a couple of years ago. However, the original plans and the office and meeting area needs conflict in some respects and the matter has been carried over.

Bills allowed at the August 4 meeting included:

Town—Roy Eck, grave openings 150.00; Arthur Nieto, cemetery mowing 209.00; Hess & Sons Disposal 345.00; Farm Bureau Insurance, 1394.40; Masolite Concrete Products 36.08; Dennis Taylor, dog warden $75.00; Shorty's Motor Service, riding mower parts 2.32; John Bopp, labor 272.32; Daniels Backhoe Service 524.25; Auburn Farm & Garden Center, tile 15.40; Buz's Truck and Tractor Service, tractor power takeoff repair 442.04; Hixson Sand & Gravel, 421.67; Yeiser's Standard Service, 49.61; Jiggs' Motor Service, fire van repair 29.72; Nowak & Williams Inc., oxygen tank valve 73.00; Jiggs' Motor Service, gas and repairs 48.19.

The board held a brief meeting August 25 for approval of the 1981 proposed budget.

Water Tank Work Finished

Work has been completed on the water tank serving Saint Joe Waterworks customers.

Last week workmen cleaned and treated the inside of the tank. Then a fresh coat of paint was applied to the exterior of the structure.

The work was authorized recently by the town board for a total cost of $4,995.00.

Dog Warden Offers Salary For Kennel Repair

Next week the small structure used as a humane shelter in Saint Joe will get a "facelift."

Jacob Schwartz has been contracted to lay a footer and foundation for the building, move the building onto the new foundation, paint the exterior walls and paint the roof. The job is estimated at around $450.00.

Thereafter additional work will be done on the interior, including new wire barriers separating the kennels. Betty Baker, local dog warden, reported this week that a large dog housed in the building this week had chewed and pulled apart a large portion of the enclosure wire.

In her concern over providing adequate kennel facilities for strays, Mrs. Baker has not billed the town for her basic services this summer, asking instead that the mony be used toward renovating the shelter. The only costs she charged to the town are for food and small incidentals.

The town board authorized the work after several discussions about the matter.

Saint Joe has had relatively few stray dog problems in recent years, due to the efforts of those who have served as dog warden (or humane officer) and the cooperation of a big majority of pet owners in the town.

Cancer Info For RNs, LPNs

Those who have not been contacted up to this time may get in touch with Mrs. Stanley Greenberg, 601 East Keyser Street in Garrett, to obtain the pertinent information.

'Champs At Last!'

They finally made it.

"They" is the Coburntown I softball team and "it" is the championship of the Saint Joe Church League.

Tied with Newville UM for the league lead at the end of the regular season, the Coburn Corners team won the playoff game and the league title in August. It is the first time for the new champions and was a long time coming—if you ask manager Lavon Hart.

The champs had sailed through the first half of the season undefeated. But then they faltered for a time and lost three games, though by close scores. Then the team got back on track again and clinched the title finally with a one-run margin of victory in the playoff. They ended with a 14-3 won-lost record while the Newville UM team ended at 13-4.

The sportsmanship trophy was won again by Newville Church of Christ by vote of all the teams.

Aubrey Griggs

Funeral services were held Thursday of this week for Aubrey C. Griggs, 65, of Saint Joe who died Sunday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. He had been in ill health in the recent past.

Mr. Griggs, a resident of Saint Joe 35 years, was born September 22, 1914, in Olympia, Kentucky, the son of Joseph and Myrtle (Harry) Griggs. He was employed at Cooper Industrial Products in Auburn before retiring.

On December 21, 1935, he married Marguerite Townsend in Clearfield, Kentucky.

Survivors include his wife; six sons, Robert of Ashley, William of R1 Auburn, Wedezel of Leo, S. Sgt. Warren of California, and Kevin and David at home; five daughters, Mrs. Gene (Fletta) Zerns of Auburn, Mrs. Charles (Katie) Laux of Saint Joe, Mrs. Martin (Judy) Anspach of Saint Joe, Mrs. Robert (Sue) Hammond of Leo and Mrs. Reuben (Vicki) Miller of Grabill; three brothers, Harmon of Muncie, Joseph of Mt. Summit and Jack of Payne, Ohio; three sisters, Mrs. Lurlean Roberts of Mt. Sterling, Kentucky, Mrs. Jesse Adkins of New Castle and Mrs. LaVern (Evaneal) Ward of Payne, Ohio; 29 grandchildren; two step grandchildren; and two great grandchildren. Two children preceded Mr. Griggs in death.

The deceased was a member of the Saint Joe Church of Christ. The funeral was held at the church with Dennis King and D. V. Dillinger officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

'Gas Guzzlers' v. 'Economy'

All of the urging toward reduction in the use of gasoline has actually resulted in less demand for gasoline the past two years, according to statistics. In fact, the reduction in demand is so significant, the question has popped up in my mind, "Why hasn't the price gone down more than just a couple of cents?"

Part of the reduced demand is due to more fuel-efficient cars now in use. And the sales pitch usually has been related to "economizing" when it comes to new car ads.

But just how "economical" are the new cars? You can't buy a compact for less than $7,000 or thereabouts (that is, a compact which fulfills the tastes of the average American in looks and "conveniences"). And the cry for higher import taxes on Japanese cars in particular makes me wonder who is trying to fool whom. The Japanese imports are already priced as high as and most of the time higher than "American" compacts.

With our family driving "gas guzzlers" the past few years (after having driven VWs since 1961 and thus making less demands on the supply of gas long before it became popular to "economize"), I have had a guilty conscience. But with the price of new "economy" cars having gone up sky-high the past few years, I made a comparison and got quite a surprise. Check the following and see if I have forgotten anything:

TO DRIVE OUR "NEWEST" CAR (which is 7 years old) over a four year period—
Car paid for	$ 0
10,000 miles per year at 12 mpg, gas for 4 years (figured at 1.27 per gallon)	4233
Insurance for 4 years (no collision coverage)	320
License and excise tax for 4 years	96
Total cost to operate (excluding tires, oil, filters and other repairs)	$4648

TO BUY AND DRIVE THE LOWEST-PRICED COMPACT
Car payments 4 years	5500
Sales tax	$170
10,000 miles per year for 4 years at 26 mpg at 1.27 per gallon	2032
Insurance 4 years	1200
License and excise tax 4 years	450
Total cost 4 years	$9352

Get the picture? If I haven't left out some significant item, it costs TWICE AS MUCH to own a new "economy" compact over a four-year period as compared to owning a "gas guzzler" already paid for.

The only advantage is that less gas is used. However, in the face of feared fuel shortages, we have persistent reports in recent weeks that oil tankers are sitting off our coastline waiting to unload but can't because there is a "gas glut."

Another thing—that economizing is not due to improved carburetion. It comes from making the cars smaller and using lighter weight materials in certain parts.

The bottom line is—the use of the word "economy" in relation to today's new automobiles is fraudulent. It costs twice as much to drive an "economy" car of today as compared to driving the old bucket of bolts. Inflation isn't fed so much by the high cost of gas alone—it is fed more by the high cost of the new cars being sold today.

Elevator Operators' Poll Indicates Dilemma

Grain has become more than food around the world. Today it is also looked upon by some individuals and nations as a political and social weapon.

Involved in the legitimate use of grain is the matter of getting it from grower to consumer and this involves transportation.

A recent poll of 127 grain elevators in Indiana by Pioneer Hi-Bred International shows that 49.6 percent say things are going fairly well in their area while 49.9 percent say things are going "pretty badly."

Grain transportation is considered somewhat of a problem by 69.6 percent with 28.3 percent saying it is a very serious problem.

53.5 percent disagree with the idea that the primary goal of the grain transportation system should be to increase its efficiency even though such changes might work hardships on local elevators and small communities. 34.6 agreed with the idea.

41.7 percent said the loss of an elevator in a small town will cause the town to go downhill while 37.8 percent disagreed.

62.2 percent said a local elevator need not have rail service to stay in business. 29.1 percent rail service is essential.

58.3 percent disagreed with the idea that a local elevator must have its own unit train loading setup or tieup with a nearby elevator that has one in order to survive. Only 31.5 percent agreed that such setup or tieup was necessary to survive.

In the matter of transportation facilities, 57.5 percent said shippers, receivers and carriers should work together to get more efficient use of present car fleets. Only 26 percent said shippers and receivers should continue supplementing the supply of railroad-owned cars by owning or leasing cars.

Indicating elevator operators' recognition of maintaining a spirit and condition of independence for all concerned, only 19.7 percent said railroads should be required to provide all the cars needed so elevators can ship grain whenever they wish.

An even greater reluctance to get into mandatory conditions is reflected in that only 7.1 percent said federal or state governments should purchase or lease cars to meet peak demands and growing needs.

A 42.5 percent majority said the Interstate Commerce Commission's reallocation of rail cars has failed to improve the grain transportation's ability to move more grain. Only 24.4 percent thought there had been improvement.

33.9 percent thought the ICC's authority to issue car service orders should be continued and 23.9 percent thought it should be ended.

In railroad investment matters, 40.2 percent of the elevator operators said the lack of reinvestment by railroad companies in roadbeds and equipment greatly affects rail service. 52.3 percent thought that railroads were diverting too much of their earnings into their non-railroad business.

66.1 percent said railroads should be prohibited from investing any of their railroad earnings in their non-railroad businesses. And 77.2 percent said railroads should reinvest in roadbeds and equipment if they were allowed more freedom to set rates and drop unprofitable portions of their systems.

On the other hand 48 percent of the elevator operators did not think railroad companies should be forced to keep up their tracks and equipment even if their railroad operations were unprofitable.

48 percent thought shippers and railroads should be allowed to negotiate contracts. 32.3 percent said "no."

56.7 percent felt they have little if any political "clout" in getting transporation problems solved.

The survey results show an interesting inclination to blame railroad companies for many of the elevator operators' transportation problems but a reluctance to add to regulating requirements through governmental intervention.

Proper sleep is always important

With few exceptions, it is not true that the older one gets the less sleep is needed. Older people usually need more sleep to help limit tension, fatigue, dizziness and headaches which senior citizens often get because they may sleep less than seven hours each night.

Once in a while a mild home remedy for sleeping can be helpful. But, if getting to sleep is a constantly recurring problem, you should consult your physician. We have many prescription medicines he may prescribe to better solve your problem.

The summer proved to be a lot of fun for those who participated. A variety of activities was held during the summer, including tennis lessons for adults.

Mary says, "If more children would have participated, the program would have been even better. However, for those who did take part in the activities, it was a worthwhile summer.

"Thanks to all the children and adults who helped make the summer a success."

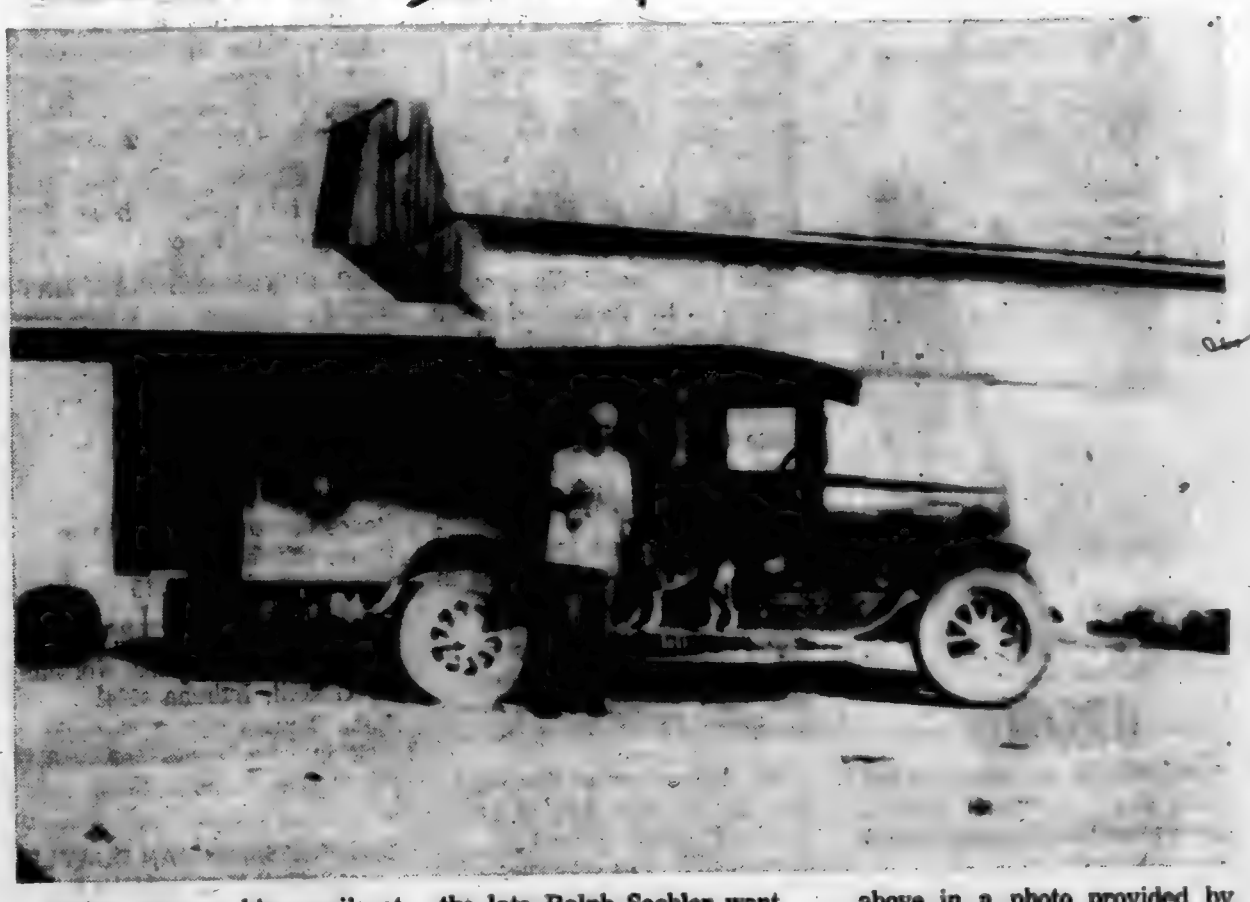
'Pickles' First Truck



Today you see big semi's at the local pickle processing plant. But back in the good old days (50 or so years ago) when the late Ralph Sechler went into business for himself, the first truck was a "nub" in comparison. Mr. Sechler is shown above in a photo provided by Frank Sechler from his collection of memorabilia related to the "pickle factory."

The word from Oxford-

What is "fortunate" may be "fortuitous" and what is "fortuitous" may be "fortunate," but the two words have very different meanings. "Fortuitous" means happening by chance. "A fortuitous remark was overheard and reported." "His fortuitous encounter with his old enemy left him feeling bad." Remember that "fortuitous" always refers to something unplanned, while "fortunate" means having or bringing or brought by good fortune. "My fortunate choice of law as a career has brought me great satisfaction." "I was fortunate in having enough money to pay the bill."

Let's sum it up: "Since I was hopelessly lost, my fortunate choice of the right trail was fortuitous."

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. When were the so-called "fancy chairs" popular in America? —Henry, Medford, Ore.

A. Between the 1790s and 1850s practically every American hamlet had its very own maker of "fancy chairs." Originally these chairs, which were generally based on Classical Revival patterns, were hand-painted, but later stenciled motifs proliferated. Fruits, flowers, shells, leaves, and landscapes were among the decorative devices found on fancy chairs. Many early specimens had a brown, pale yellow or buff background, or were grained in a manner to resemble unpainted wood. Darker colors prevailed in the second quarter of the century. Fancy chairs possessing their original ornamentation fetch fancy returns! Value guide: Sheraton style, painted florals, rush seats, circa 1830, $225.

Q. Can you date my "Improved Magazine Cyclone Camera" No. 42? I also have the original box. Cynthia, Hot Springs, Ark.

A. The Western Camera Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, was proclaiming the virtues of this box camera in advertisements of 1899. The No. 4 model capable of taking "12 pictures in 12 seconds" sold for an affordable $8! The camera boasted such features as a "pneumatic bulb release, automatic shutter, automator regulator, shutter lock and the quickest and best lens ever made." Which explains why present day shutter bugs pay $75 to obtain one without ever blinking an eye!

Q. Would you please furnish me with an updated price list on Rose Medallion china? — Gladys, Mobile, Ala.

A. Rose Medallion china was extensively exported to America from the port of Canton, China, throughout the 19th century. The design was comprised of medallions of figures alternating with panels of flowers, birds and butterflies. When all the medallions feature flowers, the ware is classified as Rose Canton. Value guide: bowl, 9 inch diameter, $250; creamer, 4 inches tall, $90; cup and saucer, demitasse, $50; plate, 10 inch diameter, $60; teapot, satin ribbon handle, $150; vase, 8 inches tall, $140.

Q. Have you any information on the Philip Boileau postcard "The Coming Storm"? —Mr. F. D., Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. The famed Canadian born artist Philip Boileau garnered an excellent reputation within art circles for his traditional portraits of women around the turn of the century. Especially sought are the Boileau postcards from the Reinthal and Newman firm which foreshadowed the advent of World War I. The cards were printed and widely distributed in England. The Coming Storm rates as one of the most poignant of the group for it pictures a concerned mother holding her two young sons. Finding this title priced under $4 indicates that you've uncovered a fortunate find!

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

Mary Wirsing says "thanks" to the unidentified lady who returned Mary's lost wallet. Mary thought that something nice about the community to let others know about.

Something not so nice was the beer bottle thrown through the plate glass window at the Lyon Upholstery shop last week.

With vacation now a thing of the past, I'm trying to get back on track again. In the confusion of having mail accumulate, I apparently have lost a writeup sent by Donna Ramer, president of the Youth League, about this year's successful tourneys at the local ball diamond. I've hunted and hunted, and do you think I can find it anywhere?

Other items of local interest have probably been overlooked or missed. And I'm sorry if that has happened.

During vacation, I had to come back a couple of times for extra town board meetings about the town budget. On one occasion Darla McCammon of west of town brought a friend from California in to see the News Office. The friend didn't know there were any letterpress smalltown print shops in existence today.

We had a pleasant visit. But in one respect she didn't see the shop as it really looks during the summer—because I wasn't barefoot!

Rain during vacation at Lake James spoiled the fishing. The bass were hitting, and the kids (grandchildren Tera and Erik) were even getting some "finally keepers" off the pier. But when rain came, that ended the good fishing. It began to pick up again—until the weekend toward Labor Day when more rain came.

Erik proved to be the best fisherman—he caught a 14-inch bass one day.

The cottage we rent is on Feick Point in the first basin of Lake James. Most of the point is literally "lake level." I doubt if most of the big grassy area we enjoy is over a foot and a half above lake level. So the grass is always green—and heavy rains bring flushing problems—with rain-saturated soil, the runoff from septic tanks has nowhere to go.

To cope with the situation, a little poem hangs next to the stool in the bathroom:

"In this land of fun and sun,
Please don't flush for number one."

—And you better believe it!

The family of Aubrey C. Griggs

(Nineteen years ago at the passing of our baby brother, my mother wrote the following poem in his memory. At the recent passing of our father, I write an extension of that poem.)

THE LITTLE STAR
God gave to me a dozen pearls,
Six little boys and six little girls.
After nine months of love and one day of pure joy,
God took away the last little boy.
My pearls were all strung on a thread so weak
Now I have a golden chain that won't break.
To hold my treasures in the sky a tiny
Golden star is on that chain to guide me through either sunshine or rain.
Some of my pearls are perfect, some have a small stain.
May my little star help guide my pearls to that chain.

—In loving memory of Kerry Layne
Mrs. Aubrey Griggs

THE GOLDEN CHAIN
The little star looked down from above.
He didn't get the chance for all of their love.
He started a chain not so long ago.
A few years later God took another,
Our big sis went up with little brother.
Now they've got father but we still have mother.
The chain is getting stronger and it won't be much longer till all our mother's pearls are strung in the sky.
for someday we must all die.
But dear God we do pray
You'll watch over us each day and keep us from going astray.
We have to be good and love one another so someday we'll see Dad, Big Sis and Little Brother.

—In loving memory of our father, Aubrey C. Griggs, September 22, 1914—August 31, 1980; our sister, Lois Stauffer, April 27, 1936—November 10, 1968; our brother, Kerry Lane, born and died October 28, 1961.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Marie Myers, reporter

DeKalb County Farm Bureau board of directors met August 25 at the Farm Bureau Building.

Francis Nelson gave devotions by first reading a poem entitled, "An Extra Prayer." Then he read from Luke 12 verse 16 and expounded on gathering material blessings.

The pledge to the flag was repeated by all.

Irene Nelson reported that this year no artifical flowers may be used in the flower arrangements for the flower show at the September 19 workshop. There will also be a pet and hobby poster contest. This will be held in the PCA building in Albion.

The board voted to change its September meeting to the 15th due to the county fair.

The committees selected for this are: song leader and devotions, Smithfield. Grant; decorations and tables, Jackson; refreshments, 4 Corners; and Fairfield will have the entertainment.

Census Indicates Saint Joe's Population Dropped 3%

Preliminary counts in the 1980 census show that Saint Joe's population dropped from 567 in 1970 to 549 in 1980. The results may not be final, however.

Cities and towns were asked to make their own check of census information if there appeared to be any questionable statistics. Town board president Ted Haberkorn reported at the September meeting that he had sent a suggested correction in the number of households. The census bureau's computer printout indicated 170 households. From a map count and the number of utility bills sent out by clerk Emma Frank, the correct number appears to be around 150. It was suggested to the census bureau also that the 1970 household count was high at 165.

With the number of "in and out" situations due to increasing population mobility, the census bureau's count of 10 vacant households was not disputed.

In 1970 Saint Joe had a 14% gain over 1960, going from 499 in 1960 to 567 in 1970. The drop to 549 in 1980 represents only a 3% decrease.

Bike-A-Thon To Be Held Oct. 5

The Auburn-Butler area will be among 59 Indiana areas articipating in the 7th Annual Bike-A-Thon to Beat Diabetes.

Sponsored by the American Diabetes Association, Indiana Affiliate, and Burger Chef Family Restaurants, the event will be held Sunday, October 5, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The local chairman is Jeanne Drerup who says the local route promises to be an enjoyable ride for bikers of all ages. Riders are encouraged to secure sponsors who agree to pay so much per mile ridden to the American Diabetes Association.

Entry forms are available at Burger Chef, local schools and participating local businesses.

Anyone interested in riding and needs a bike should contact Jeanne at 868-5583.

Diabetes is one of the nation's major health problems. 600,000 people in the U.S. will develop diabetes this year. Money raised will help support ongoing programs of research, education and detection of diabetes and provide campership to Camp John Warvel.

Anyone with a bicycle can enter the event and ride as long or as short a distance as he or she wishes. As stated above those without bikes can also participate simply by contacting Jeanne.

Let's Stick To Real Issues

A week ago, a great deal of time and space were devoted in the major news media to the error made by presidential candidate Ronald Reagan. He publicly attached the beginning of the Ku Klux Klan to a certain city and did so by mistake. The city happens to be in the "south."

The radio and TV reports in effect conducted a "trial" in the manner in which the situation was reported. The TV news reports I witnessed presented a video tape recording of Mr. Reagan during the moments when he made his booboo. This was followed by another video tape segment of President Jimmy Carter when reporters asked him what his thoughts were about the matter. Mr. Carter said he thought Mr. Reagan's remarks were inappropriate and out of place in that they tended to divide the country (the north v the south, in a sense). He ended his answer with something like:

"I resent them (Mr. Reagan's remarks) as an American and as a southerner."

Mr. Carter spoke with a very solemn look on his face. This tended to make Mr. Reagan's error appear even more dastardly.

It seems to me that Mr. Carter said something in criticism of his election opponent and did the very thing which he criticized.

The President said Mr. Reagan's remarks tended to divide the country.

Well then, what do you call it when the President resents a remark as an American AND as a "southerner"? Doesn't that answer indicate that he "separates" himself from the north, east and west???

Far too much publicity was given to the incident—and it was all at Mr. Reagan's expense.

I'm more concerned about Mr. Carter's record while in office. (Incidentally, he has surrounded himself with a staff loaded with "southerners"—many from his home state of Georgia.) I'm concerned about the people he has given support to—he and Mrs. Carter. He has an attorney general who lied in recent week's about the Billy Carter-Lybia lobbyist matter. He had a medical advisor who was implicated in drug use at social gatherings. He has given support to homosexuals who are striving to establish "gay rights" as a legitimate part of American society. —Oh, I almost forgot—there is the Burt Lance matter, too.

Probably the most important matter—at the present moment—is that President Carter had promised a balanced budget (which most Americans automatically associate with reduced spending) without actually SAYING that spending would be reduced. He now seeks voter support by saying that the battle against inflation is being won—but inflation has soared to an annual rate of 20% at the moment.

The truth is, the "balanced" budget was going to be accomplished through higher tax revenues. Mr. Carter, and others like him, don't really want inflation to stop. Think of it—if inflation continues, and you have a built-in automatic cost-of-living pay increase for millions of Americans including those in government jobs, you automatically have more tax money revenue. Why? Because increased income means a higher tax bracket for the taxpayer.

("Automatic" reaches down to local government—our county government officials have been given a hefty pay increase by recent county council action.)

"Dirty tricks" have been associated with a recent President. Well, I think the dirtiest trick of all is the one being played in the American public by Mr. Carter when he campaigns with the promise of continuing the fight against inflation. There is little to show in the last four years (and the last 25 years of Congress being dominated by one party) to indicate there will be any significant move made to restore some value to the money in our pockets.

Others say. . . .

What's The Dollar Really Worth?

—by John W. Walls, President, Indiana State Chamber of Commerce

The effects of inflation are painfully visible when we try to make our wages stretch from payday to payday. We wince when we go to the supermarket for food, to the department store for clothes or ((all too seldom) to the auto agency for a new car.

But the effects of inflation reach into into many corners that are not so obvious to the eye. The price of everything goes up, including money. In fact, the dollar bill that is worth less every day actually costs more every day to print. And some day the two trends are going to meet.

Yes, sad but true. One day you and I could find that the dollar is no longer worth the paper it's printed on, as indicated by some figures put together by William Strying, Indiana State Chamber vice president for public finance.

As we all know, the U.S. Treasury prints our money on a very special kind of paper, both to be durable and to make the task of counterfeiting it as difficult as possible. The 1979 price of that paper (undoubtedly higher by now) was $1.244 per pound, which works out to 8.7 cents per sheet.

32 bills per sheet

Out of each sheet the government printers get 32 dollar bills. Thus each dollar costs .272 of a cent for its paper alone.

An inflation rate of 13.4 percent, to take the average for 1979 (a figure well below the top rate that we were experiencing during the early part of 1980), causes prices to double every 5.4 years. (Rule of 72: 72/13.4 equals 5.4).

Now let's try doubling the price of the paper used in our dollar bill every 5.4 years and see what happens.

Anniversary dates for doubling prices	Price of paper in a dollar bill
February of 1985	.544 cent
May of 1990	1.088 cents
August of 1996	2.176 cents
November of 2000	4.352 cents
February of 2006	8.704 cents
May of 2011	17.408 cents
August of 2016	35.816 cents
November of 2021	69.632 cents
June of 2025	one dollar

On July 1, 2025, the cost of the paper in a dollar will be rising above $1.00. And a great many persons now alive may live to see that happen unless we can begin lowering the inflation balloon.

The average life expectancy of an Indiana resident 30 years old is 45.3 additional years, meaning that such a person should have a statistical chance of surviving until just about mid-2025. And it so happens that 51 percent of the Indiana populace is under 30 years of age.

Therefore, at present inflation rates, more than half of all living Hoosiers will still be around when the day arrives that the dollar bill isn't worth the paper it is printed on.

How Secure Is Social Security?

—by John W. Fisher, chairman, National Association of Manufacturers

If you're an American worker paying into the Social Security system AND if you plan to collect from the system someday as part of your retirement income, it is essential that you understand how the system works. Many Americans believe that the money they pay into the system will be used to fund their retirement benefits. That isn't true. Social Security is a "transfer tax," which means that the money YOU pay into the system is transferred to the people now receiving benefits. You must depend on future workers for the benefits you will receive.

A thoughtful look at the dollars-and-cents facts of the system raises a genuine concern about the actual "security" of the Social Security system.

 Fact: According to the Social Security Administration it will take $3.75 trillion to provide retirement funds to those Americans already in the work force.

 Fact: That $3.75 trillion is a sum greater than the combined total of the public debt, all corporate stocks and bonds and state and local government bonds as well.

 Fact: With declining birth rates, better health care and longer lives, more and more Americans will be collecting Social Security at a time in which fewer and fewer Americans will be paying into the system.

We see a system that may require more money—$3.75 trillion—than a smaller working population may be able to afford, whether the money comes from increased Social Security taxes or other increased tax resources, such as income tax. Social Security was established in 1935 on the principle of being self-supporting. At that time, it was a much smaller burden on the working population.

Beginning in January 1937, both employees and employers were taxed at the rate of 1 per cent of income up to $3,000 for a maximum of about $60 per year for BOTH contributors ($30 from each). Today, maximum Social Security taxes are about $3,500, and are scheduled to rise to about $4,200 in 1982. The total tax rate of Social Security deductions is now over 12 per cent. And that 6 per cent your employer pays might have gone directly to you in the form of increased wages or worker benefits if the government didn't take it first. In 1940, there were over 159 workers contributing to the Social Security support of each beneficiary. Today only three contributing workers support each beneficiary.

When it was begun, Social Security was intended to provide an income floor of protection to retired workers, not a substitute for individual savings. Yet today, many people have come to rely so heavily on Social Security that they do not save and invest as they once did. Additionally, even though Americans overwhelmingly support some form of assistance to the elderly, 40 per cent of American workers, according to a 1978 Harris poll, had little confidence that the system would be able to support future benefits.

Reduced savings and investment mean that the money that business and industry need to modernize equipment and build new facilities is more difficult to acquire. An aging industrial base weakens America's ability to compete in foreign and domestic markets, decreases her productivity and reduces jobs and real earnings for American workers.

The long-term objective of public policy should be to remove obstacles in the way of individual opportunities. In that light, a strengthened Social Security system must be viewed as a supplement to, not a replacement for, increased personal savings and benefits provided through private pension systems. Our tax laws should be restructured accordingly.

Proper sleep is always important

With few exceptions, it is not true that the older one gets the less sleep is needed. Older people usually need more sleep to help limit tension, fatigue, dizziness and headaches which senior citizens often get because they may sleep less than seven hours each night.

Once in a while a mild home remedy for sleeping can be helpful. But, if getting to sleep is a constantly recurring problem, you should consult your physician. We have many prescription medicines he may prescribe to better solve your problem.

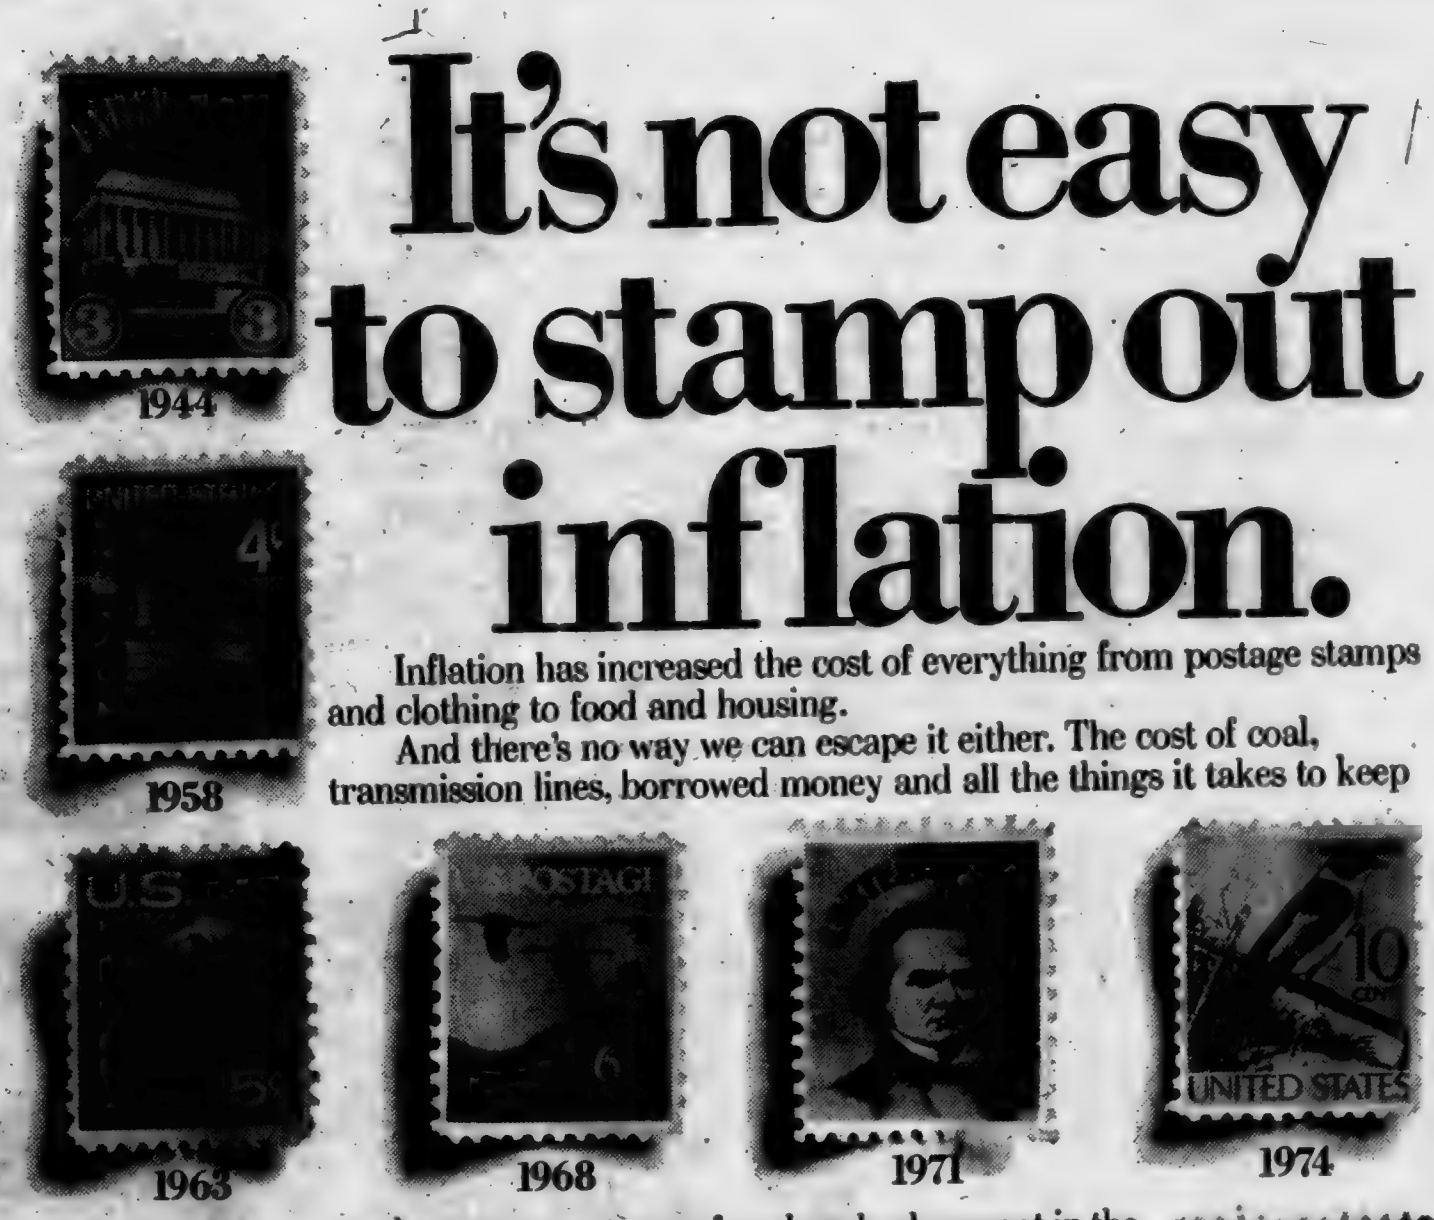
It's not easy to stamp out inflation.



Inflation has increased the cost of everything from postage stamps and clothing to food and housing.

And there's no way we can escape it either. The cost of coal, transmission lines, borrowed money and all the things it takes to keep the electricity coming, have gone up two to four hundred percent in the last decade.

Yet, even with those increased costs, your electric service is still a good value.

For instance, for about a dollar a day you can still do all this: keep all your food fresh in a refrigerator/freezer, dry your laundry, and watch color television, plus have enough hot water for all your cleaning, bathing and washing as well as cook breakfast, lunch and dinner for the entire family.*

That's a bargain. And we're working to keep it a good value. Matter of fact, we have some free S.A.V.E. booklets that can help you get even more for your electricity dollar. And also show you how you can become part of our Save America's Valuable Energy Program.

Stop in for them at any of our offices.

At I&M, we want you to get the most out of your electric service.

The word from Oxford—

"Illusion" and "delusion" are easy to confuse. How to tell them apart? An illusion, defined as something that a person wrongly supposes to exist, can be pleasant—until it is shattered. After all, we pay magicians to create illusions for us. A delusion, defined as a false belief or opinion, can cause us to act in a less-than-intelligent way: "My belief in him proved to be a delusion." Delusion is also defined as a persistent false belief that is a symptom or form of madness: "Their delusion led to mass suicide." So if you must have one or the other, better an illusion than a delusion.

Q. What can you tell us about a small glass vase having a tree decor marked "Muller Freres, Luneville"?—Mrs. G. P., Harrisburg, Pa.

A. Art glass aficionados scour the marketplace endeavoring to locate objects attributed to French Art Nouveau glass artists Henri and Desire Muller. Initially, the brothers worked for such industry giants as Emil Galle and Val St. Lambert. Later, they established their own glass factories at Luneville and Croismare, France. In the early 1900s, they won plaudits for their cameo glass, molded glass and various colored glass techniques. Pieces produced by them were typically marked "Muller Freres" accompanied by the place of manufacture. Value guide: vase, tree decor, cameo, 5½ inches tall, $400.

Q. Has my tin Moxie-Mobile toy entered the collectible realm? It is in excellent condition. —Bill, Pascagoula, Miss.

A. During the period when flappers were kicking up their heels in the United States, Moxie was regarded as a popular thirst quencher. According to advertisement, this soft drink practically guaranteed energy and power! In fact the phrase, "He's got a lot of moxie," was intended as a compliment. This coveted advertising toy features a gentleman in a one-horse power vehicle. Locating one in fine condition priced under $250 indicates that you've got more than a little "moxie"!

Q. Where did my pottery vase marked "Rozane Ware, Egypto" originate? —Claudia, Oceanside, Calif.

A. When the Roseville Pottery Company entered the art pottery arena about 1900, the ware was named Rozane. The name was formed from the company's name and location at Zanesville, Ohio. Rozane Ware met with startling success and by 1905 company catalogs were featuring new lines. One was appropriately titled Egypto for it had embossed designs on a matte green glaze which were billed as "reproductions of Egyptian art and antiques." Elusive is the word for Egypto objects! Value guide: vase, 7 inches tall, $200.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

I imagine there are times when we all are stunned at the death of a particular individual. It takes a few seconds for the knowledge to soak in.

That happened to me Monday evening as I sat at the kitchen table reading the Auburn Evening Star while Esther prepared supper. I turned to page two and read the heading of an obituary—"John Paul Hill."

I read the name again, sort of a reflex action I suppose—"John Paul Hill"— and then the realization came to me, "John Paul Hill is dead." I think my spoken reaction was, "Oh my gosh!"

I thought a lot about his death that evening—and still do. I can't imagine a greater loss to any group of people than the death of John Paul Hill, minister for the Coburn Corners congregation—minister really to anyone and everyone.

John Paul, the motivator.

John Paul, the challenger.

John Paul, the morale booster.

John Paul, the counselor.

John Paul, the softball enthusiast.

John Paul, devoted husband and father.

I have fond memories of our occasional sharing of concerns about people, the community, our society as a whole. And I remember them also with some sadness because there will be no more of those fulfilling visits. I can just hear him counsel: "We must remember the good things and set aside the others."

John Paul was minister at Coburn Corners a while, went to Hicksville for a while, and then came back to Coburn Corners. But he never really was "gone." He still had ties with our community.

The new church which now stands where an old building served the congregation for many, many years is a monument to the hopes and dreams of John Paul in his efforts to provide proper Christian education and appropriate worship facilities for his flock. It was John Paul, the motivator, that brought forth the best efforts of his congregation.

Perhaps my personally most memorable recollections of John Paul are related to the church league softball program. He was an active partipant until health matters ended his "career." He pitched for several years. And I remember that in one of the all-star games in which he and I participated, I had pitched the first few innings. I offered the ball to him and said, "Let's switch, you pitch, I'll catch." His reply was, "No, go ahead and finish."

It has been a couple of years or so when John Paul was obviously "dragging," not feeling well. Then he submitted to thorough tests and examinations and the result was that a pacemaker was inserted in his body. I recall that when he stopped in at the News Office thereafter, he was his old self, bubbling with enthusiasm. He had to be careful about what he did to a certain extent, but generally speaking he was "back in the saddle again" and rarin' to go.

Later he exerted himself too much on one occasion and the pacemaker had to be replaced. He was again feeling good.

But with the passage of month by month, John Paul slowed down. The last time I conversed with him on the telephone (when the history of the Coburn Corners congregation was being published in these columns), I could tell he was not feeling well. The old zip was gone, even in his voice. —But he still came to softball games to root for his teams.

John Paul was perceptive. A few years ago when the Lutherans were playing his team, I got miffed because the plate umpire wasn't calling strikes on what I thought were good pitches. I knew I shouldn't let it upset me, but I was weak. I had someone else go in the game for me in our next time at bat.

When our team went on the field and I wasn't pitching, John Paul came over to me, put an arm around my shoulder and asked, "How come you're not in there?"

My reply was, "Because I've got a lousy attitude."

He understood.

We had a personal rivalry in those games. When I batted, he tried harder to get me out. And I did the same when he batted and I was pitching. And John Paul was somewhat awesome when he swung—all six-foot-six of him was going for the fence. When he swung and missed, it blew the mosquitoes away.

It may seem to some that I am attaching too much value to activities at the ball diamond and the church league. The reason for such recollections is that I have seen miracles—and disasters—in the ball field. I have seen lessons in life illustrated there. And I think John Paul felt the same way. The disciplined positive coaching and counseling of John Paul and Lavon Hart reflect an understanding of the importance of good Christian attitude in everything we do—even in playing a softball game and willingly coming in and out of a game so that everyone can participate.

Coburn Corners won the church league championship this year, the first time since the league began in 1952. How appropriate that God in His infinite wisdom gave John Paul enough time on this earth to see his boys—and girls—win.

If there is any such thing as angels with troubles, I can just see John Paul putting an arm around some shoulders and asking, "What's the problem?"

Blazers Record Now 2-And-2; Homecoming Friday v W-Noble

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers won their first Northeastern Corner Conference victory Friday night, defeating Lakeland 20-6. This is the Blazers' first year in the NECC. Their record is now 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the conference.

Chuck Barkley intercepted a pass in the third quarter to set the Blazers' final touchdown. Sanders passed to Kurt Berry from the 5 for the score.

Barkley kicked for two extra points after touchdowns.

The Blazers gained 231 yards in 48 running plays while getting another 23 yards passing.

The Blazers' homecoming game is this Friday against West Noble.

In the season opener August 22, Fairfield downed the Blazers 35-14. Dave Work scored a 60-yard run and Dennis Shultz scored from the 3.

Barkley made good on the two extra-point kicks.

Fairfield is also a new member of the NECC.

On August 29 Eastside defeated Heritage 14-0, gaining a total of 182 yards rushing and 102 passing.

Dave Work scored on runs of 4 and 3 yards in the first two quarters.

Bike-A-Thon To Be Held Oct. 5

The Auburn-Butler area will be among 59 Indiana areas articipating in the 7th Annual Bike-A-Thon to Beat Diabetes.

Sponsored by the American Diabetes Association, Indiana Affiliate, and Burger Chef Family Restaurants, the event will be held Sunday, October 5, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The local chairman is Jeanne Drerup who says the local route promises to be an enjoyable ride for bikers of all ages. Riders are encouraged to secure sponsors who agree to pay so much per mile ridden to the American Diabetes Association.

Entry forms are available at Burger Chef, local schools and participating local businesses.

The event raised $125,000 last year to support programs of research, education and detection of diabetes, as well as for Camp John Warvel for Indiana children with diabetes.

Anyone interested in riding and needs a bike should contact Jeanne at 868-5583.

Diabetes is one of the nation's major health problems. 600,000 people in the U.S. will develop diabetes this year. Money raised will help support ongoing programs of research, education and detection of diabetes and provide campership to Camp John Warvel.

Anyone with a bicycle can enter the event and ride as long or as short a distance as he or she wishes. As stated above those without bikes can also participate simply by contacting Jeanne.

John Paul Hill

Funeral services were held Wednesday of this week for John Paul Hill, 50, minister of Coburn Corners Church of Christ. He died Sunday of a heart attack. He had suffered from a heart condition the past two years but had continued to be as active in church work as his condition would allow. In recent months members of the congregation had taken on additional responsibilities to assist the pastor.

Pastor Hill served at Coburn Corners from 1957 to 1965 when he accepted a call to serve the Hicksville Church of Christ parish. He served at Hicksville for 12 years, returning to the Coburn Corners congregation in 1977 with his first sermon delivered May 1 of that year upon his return.

Pastor Hill graduated from Johnson Bible College in 1953 with an A.B. degree. He served congregations in Corbin, Kentucky, and Heltonville, Indiana, before coming to this community.

Born July 13, 1930, in Harriman, Tennessee, Pastor Hill was the son of the late John Paul and Josephine (Johnson) Hill. He married Ramona Mabe in Chatanooga, Tennessee, in July of 1952.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Paula attending Milligan College, Tennessee, and Audine, attending Bowling Green State University in Ohio; and a sister, Edna Jean Reams of Rockwood, Tennessee.

Funeral services were held at 1 p.m. Wednesday at Coburn Corners Church of Christ with Pastor Lloyd Turnbull of West Milford Church of Christ officiating. Burial was in Alton Park Cemetery on State Road 101 east of Saint Joe.

Pastor Hill was a member of the Saint Joe Lions Club and the DeKalb County Ministerial Association.

Preferred memorials were to the church building fund.

Mr. Quayle Scores A Big Point

The general consensus (of whom??) seems to be that the "debate" between Senator Birch Bayh and Congressman Don Quayle resulted in no winner and no loser.

I always thought "debate" mean presentation of opposing ideas on a specific question or statement. The televised broadcast of the confrontation of the opposing candidates for a seat in the U.S. Senate, a project of the League of Women Voters, was more like a press conference. Four members of the news media were selected as a panel to present questions to each candidate. But, as Mr. Bayh noted at the start, what can you do in a minute and a half of answer time and a 30-second opportunity for rebuttal?

What was evident overall in the hour-long program was that 18 years in the Senate results in a distinct advantage. Mr. Bayh showed that he is a "pro" at taking advantage of a situation. In the process he got away with murder.

Mr. Bayh boasted that he had "taken on" the bureaucrats, had fought for the people of the state of Indiana. He chided Mr. Quayle for not having changed one bureaucrat nor changed one regulation in the latter's time in Congress.

Now how can you compare 18 years "seniority" as a Senator (dealing with matters of statewide relevance) to four years "seniority" as a Congressman (dealing with matters relevant to but one district in the entire state)?

Mr. Bayh boasted that he had intervened in behalf of Harvester workers when EPA anti-pollution requirements threatened to end assembly of "Scouts."

Looking at the situation in total, however, one finds that the bureaucracy has grown in the 18 years that Mr. Bayh has been Senator—grown tremendously. So when he "takes on" a bureaucrat or the bureaucracy, he is fighting something he helped to create.

In addition, one of the strongest proponents of environmental protection has been Mr. Bayh. Now, everyone wants to protect the environment. The problem is in the degree to which regulations are allowed to be placed upon the public in environmental matters. Mr. Bayh has not been one of those to object to the regulations imposed upon the public by the various governmental agencies—until it comes to winning votes and an election is coming up.

Further, the regulations imposed by the EPA on auto emission standards are to protect the quality of the air we inhale. Mr. Bayh's intervention in behalf of Harvester workers in effect took away the established standards for auto emissions, standards which he had not particularly questioned before.

So, when it came to a question of air purity or votes, Mr. Bayh picked votes.

Mr. Bayh took one of the things often mentioned about him through the years (a young, good-looking individual cashing in on those attributes to get votes) and at the very start of the program attributed them to Mr. Quayle (who IS young and good-looking), with the inferred question to the voter, "Are you going to vote for a candidate on the basis of good looks?"

Mr. Bayh also immediately used a criticism directed at him at the past and and attached it to Mr. Quayle. He said Mr. Quayle says one thing to the voters back home but acts and votes quite differently when he is in Washington.

Along with this, Mr. Bayh said he felt he had voted for legislation as the majority of the voters in Indiana wanted him to vote.

That is an outright misrepresentation of fact. The voters of Indiana did not want to let go of the Panama Canal; they do not support forced busing of school students; they do want a limitation on spending in the federal budget.

Mr. Bayh has voted quite the opposite of Hoosier thinking.

Perhaps the most significant difference between Mr. Bayh's voting and Hoosier thinking is in connection with the Equal Rights Amendment. The majority of Hoosiers do not think the amendment is necessary. Mr. Bayh is one of the amendment's staunchest advocates.

Mr. Quayle's most convincing statement came in his final summation: we have had 25 years of a Congress under one party's control (Mr. Bayh's party). That control has followed a path of constant deficit spending resulting in a national debt of near $1 trillion.

It's time for a change.

—To which I say "amen."

Contract Privilege Abused

A strange thing has happened in the Fort Wayne public school system.

When the school corporation signed an agreement with the teachers' union, it agreed to the union's request that non-union teachers be assessed a fee almost as high as union dues as payment for "representation" in negotiations.

Some of the non-union teachers are protesting the assessment.

The union's argument is that since all teachers benefit from the pay increases and so on gained by the union, all should help pay for the union's efforts. And the payment should be deducted from teachers' pay whether the teachers consent to such deduction or not.

I suppose the constitutionality of the forced deduction will require a court case. That means attorney fees, court costs, time lost and so on. It seems a shame that so many injustices in our society, injustices which are obviously contrary to the spirit of the law of the land, must be taken to court and somebody must shell out their hard-earned money for legal expenses—that is, IF they decide to go to court.

I don't understand how the Fort Wayne school administration could in good conscience take it upon themselves to agree to a contract provision which deprives an individual of a voice in the matter. The situation seems to illustrate the degree to which schools and their administration are run by teacher union leadership. And it serves to prove that union involvement is not for teacher welfare primarily but rather for union control at the hands of a few.

If a union—any union—is able to gain reasonable improvements for its members, and others also benefit from those efforts, the unions ought to be happy that they were able to do something good for all workers, not just their dues-paying members.

Asking for voluntary monetary support would be OK. But compulsory assessments by the employer?? No way.

Here's how to recognize quackery

Quacks are still in business thriving on the hopes and fears of people looking for smaller waistlines, larger bustlines, bulging biceps and a full head of hair. The Federal Drug Administration suggests a quick check of these favorite ploys of medical con artists.

* Is the product touted as "a new scientific breakthrough?
* Does the promoter call his product a "secret cure"?
* Do the ads give testimonials from "satisfied users"?
* Does the product claim to cure everything under the sun?
* Do ads refer to ill-defined pains and feelings?

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

Textbook Content Is Parental Concern

The following letter was recently received by The News:

"Dear Sir:

"We will appreciate very much your use of the enclosed news release and any of the related material enclosed.

"In bringing Norma Gabler to Indiana, Pro America hopes to contribute to a better understanding of the need to set criteria for state adopted textbooks. This was at issue in the last two sessions of the Indiana Legislature, and we believe it should be a matter for candidates to discuss before the November 4 election.

"Thank you for giving this publicity.

Sincerely yours,
Jean Harvey
(Mrs. D. W.)
RR5 Box 419
Monticello, Indiana 47960"

The news release is as follows:

Norma Gabler will be the featured speaker at the annual luncheon of the Indiana Chapter of Pro America, Wednesday, September 24, 12:30 p.m. in the Great Hall of the Atkinson Hotel in Indianapolis.

They have taken their criticisms before the Texas Textbook Committee since the early 1960's in their attempt to "find the very best book we can possibly get." Together they formed Educational Analysts, a non-profit corporation that now employs five full-time researchers.

Their crusade has taken them afrom Longview, Texas, to appearances all across America, New Zealand, Australia, to guest spots on the "Phil Donahue Show," "Good Morning America" and "60 Minutes." Their story is also in book form, "Textbooks On Trial," by James Hefley.

For reservations for the luncheon, contact Mrs. Dan Guinnup, 6416 North Tuxedo, Indianapolis 46220. Tickets are eight dollars.

In the March 1980 issue of the newsletter, "Pro America Communication Line," it is stated that the "1980 'short session' of the Indiana General Assembly ended with much of the proposed legislation still in committee. Bills to fund government operations were the 'emergencies' that got through both the Senate and the House to become law. It is going to take another session of the Legislature with some changes in the House in order for legislative proposals by conservatives to get the consideration they deserve from the Legislature.

"The textbook content bill authored by Senator Joan M. Gubbins was 'killed' again this year in the House Education Committee after passing the Senate. Opposition to the bill in the House committee was led by Rep. James Hunt, R., Fort Wayne. The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette credits Rep. Hunt with 'derailing' this bill. As we see it, however, the 7-5 committee vote to table the bill reflects the influence of the two teachers' unions and members of the educational establishment who oppose any such directive from the Legislature to limit or define textbook content."

In a feature article by Gordon Englehart, chief of the Courier-Journal's Indianapolis bureau, entitled, "Indiana Schoolteachers' organization flexes its political muscle," the writer states:

"Joseph G. Bruggenschmidt, John F. Shawley and Joan M. Gubbins could attest to the expanding political muscle of Indiana schoolteachers.

"In the past four years, the three veteran state senators lost races to first-rate opponents.

"Evidence suggests, however, that I-PACE may have tipped the balance in all three contests — and in a number of others that were less publicized.

"I-PACE is the Indiana Political Action Committee for Education.

"It is the political apparatus for the Indiana State Teachers Association, which claims 37,000 Hoosier teachers as members.

"I-PACE and its 30 local Political Action Committees around the state endorse candidates for school boards, the General Assembly, state superintendent of public instruction, governor and Congress.

"They are considering endorsements in this year's races.

"Endorsements are based on candidates' records and positions on educational issues. They fill out questionnaires and are interviewed by a local political action committee or the I-PACE council.

"Large volunteer forces of teachers — dedicated, trained, articulate and hard-working — are then mustered into highly sophisticated campaigns for the favored ones.

"I-PACE, under a 12-person council picked by the ISTA board of directors, has been operating at the state level since 1974.

" 'Compared to the two major parties, the ISTA is an infant in the area of political action,' said Robert N. Margraf, its chief lobbyist. 'But we have grown tremendously, and we will do better in the future.'

"The Shawley, Bruggenschmidt and Gubbins cases illustrate the growth.

" 'They claim we had two teachers at every polling place on Election Day,' Margraf recalled last week with a grin. 'I believe we had at least one.'

"Mrs. Gubbins and the ISTA are long-time foes. She is a Republican from Indianapolis who has focused on textbook and other education legislation.

" 'Joan charged we brought in teachers from all over the state,' Margraf said. 'She was right.'

"Once endorsements are approved, I-PACE swings into action — armed with computerized information on indivdual voters and past elections in every precinct in Indiana.

"Political action committee members collect the information at courthouses, and it is forwarded to Ron Weber at the Louisiana State University Institute of Government Research at Baton Rouge, La. Weber, a former political science professor at Indiana University, packages it in computer printouts.

"At each of the Democratic and Republican state conventions, about 100 ISTA members were delegates. Two were delegates to the GOP national convention and 10 to the Democratic convention.

"Most Indiana teachers are Republicans, Margraf said. But, he said, a survey has shown that 80 percent of ISTA members adhere to I-PACE endorsements.

"That was not true in 1976, when I-PACE endorsed Democratic Sen. Vance Hartke for re-election, he said. Hartke lost to Republican Richard Lugar.

"An endorsement of incumbent Democratic Sen. Birch Bayh is expected.

"ISTA officials are still kidded about I-PACE's intrepid 1976 endorsement of both gubernatorial candidates — Republican Otis R. Bowen and Democrat Larry Conrad."

The word from Oxford-

There is continuing confusion concerning "continual" and "continuous." How to overcome it? First of all, by "continuing confusion" we mean confusion that goes on and on. With this clear, we can define "continual" as continuing for a time without stopping or with only short breaks: "The bleeding was continual during the week." "Continual interruptions plagued the speaker." "Continuous" is defined as continuing, without a break: "Sentries maintain continuous vigil at the tomb." "The brook provides a continuous flow of clear water and, now and then, a few trout." The difference between "continual" and "continuous" carries over into "continually" and "continuously," so learning two words well gives you four.

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. We just acquired a corner whatnot shelf. When were these pieces in vogue? MM V.P., Buffalo, NY.

A. A whatnot shelf was regarded as an essential piece of parlor furniture during the late Victorian period (1876-1901). Generally, they were factory produced, except for the finer specimens which were crafted by skilled cabinetmakers. Buyers could choose between flat-wall and corner styles with .. both types usually having five graduated shelves. Spool turned posts in various patterns or machine-cut brackets joined and supported the shelves, which often had low gallery pieces in the rear or fancy open-work. As might be expected, souvenir loving Victorians quickly converted them into mini-museums! Value guide: corner whatnot shelf, walnut,, 1880s, $375.

Q. Where did my cut glass bowl marked "Corona" originate? —Karen, Scottsbluff, Neb.

A. The Corona trademark was utilized by the Corona Cut Glass Co., of Toledo, Ohio. This firm was founded in 1906, and although the trademark was not issued until 1912, a member of the company stated that it had been in continuous use since the inception of the factory. The unusual trademark consisted of a total eclipse of the sun, with the name "Corona" within the center of the darkened sun. Pieces bearing the "Corona" trademark are warmly received by collectors! Value guide: bowl, signed, 8½ inches diameter, $200.

Q. Can you date our silverplated heart-shaped flask from the Homan Manufacturing Co.? —Harold, Richmond, Ind.

A. During the first decades of the 20th century those who were prone to alcohol indulgence found a wide variety of flasks at their disposal. Silver and silverplated types having a wide diversity of exterior decorations were preferred over the more fragile glass versions. Sentimentally minded imbibers fell for the heart-shaped models which were offered in various capacities by several manufacturers. Many were lettered with appropriate phrases such as "Drink Heartily!" Value guide: Homan, heart-shaped flask, silverplated $30.

Q. I buy every old hatpin holder I can locate. How about a price guide in this category? —Mrs. G. J., Lakeland, Fla.

A. Once hatpins popped into prominence in the closing decades of the 19th century, hatpin holders began vying for crowded dresser top space. The holders, as well as the hatpins, currently rate as tempting flea market treasures! Value guide: Bavarian, handpainted roses, $30; Nippon, woodland scene, $60; Royal Bayreuth, cavalier musicians, $175; R. S. Germany, calla lilies, $45; Victorian Carlsbad, violets, $25.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

I goofed the ad for Family Cuts and Curls in the previous issue. In proofreading the ad, I missed one little erroneous number—"September 20" in the coupon specials should have been "September 30." You had to scurry to make it by the 20th.

When Roy Eck was down in the trench as we installed new drain tile on Jefferson Street, I was a bit leery of how safe it was, reading from time to time about trenches caving in on workers. Fortunately nothing happened.

But later I was down in the same spot looking for what appeared to be water coming from another source. Then I moved up and over to the catch basin John Bopp was cleaning out. As we pondered that trickle of water, a section of the trence fell in—not much, but enough to make you think. Then a few minutes later, a larger chunk caved in—and that REALLY made you think.

Dear Ted,

Yesterday's mail (September 22) brought The News and what a blessing your article brought to me. I know the girls will feel the same. (If you have extra copies, would you save 2 for them and one for JP's sister?)

Your closing remark went along with my statement to so many folk last week—no doubt JP went UP THERE causing problems so he could sit down and help them solve them!

I must tell you that one of the things in John Paul's pocket New Testament was a clipping from your paper— the "Champs at Last" item.

God's timing has been perfect as far as John Paul was concerned. He really couldn't be happy in his limited position.So many phases of his life had fallen in place for his leaving us.

Would you please put the enclosed thank you in this week's paper?

Again, thank you, thank you for your sweet article—we'll treasure it always.

Sincerely,
Ramona Hill

Street Paved

Paving of Curie Street at the west end of Saint Joe was completed last week. Before the asphalt pavement could be applied, considerable grading was necessary for better drainage of surface water.

The work was done by Asphalt Paving Company at a cost of $2,000.

Courts Repaired

The paved area has been extended from the courts to the backstop fence and the court area widened.

New blacktopping was also applied to the walk from the school's driveway to the tennis courts.

Thank you.

Mrs. Carlyle Holman

"In Memory:

"A great man has left us. The world can't understand his greatness; he didn't have much money, he didn't control anything, he wasn't even clever, but John Paul Hill was full of the Spirit of God and how he did shine!

"He cried with the heartbroken, he laughed with the joyful, he comforted the sick and lonely, shared the burdens of the fearful and preached to all of the love and beauty of Christ. He so lived that no one could discredit what he preached. Sinners heard his rebuke without protest, for he spoke with such love and innocence that none could take offense.

"Now he has laid the burdens he bore at Jesus' feet, and all the things he used to preach from the heart he now sees with his own eyes. Now face to face he rejoices and gives praise to his Lord.

"Let us vow to follow his example, to be great in the way he was great, in love. Let us live in such a way, devoted to the Lord, that some day soon we can see him again and tell him how much we missed him. A great man has left us, and hundreds weep. Not for the loss of a preacher, but for the absence of a friend."

Possible Street Cave-in Avoided

At some time in the future somebody could have had a sinking feeling when driving on Jefferson Street between Third and Fourth streets.

A culvert was recently installed at an alley entrance due to broken tile midway across the alley. But then water, which had been standing on the east side of the alley in the past, then failed to drain away on the west side.

Unsuccessful efforts to open the tile running under the street led to the town getting Roy Eck for some backhoe work. He and John Bopp discovered a large cavity under a section of the pavement, reported to have been only a foot and a half below the pavement surface. Broken tile had again caused a problem.

New tile was installed, the heavy duty plastic type in 10-foot lengths to reduce the number of tile joints usually sought by root growths. And the installation appears to be functioning properly.

At these hearings officials and taxpayers may present evidence or information on items in the budget that should in their opinion be changed or reduced, or any other information to assist in finally determining the budget, levies and tax rates.

Who Helps Small Business?

The National Federation of Independent Business periodically informs its members of the voting records of members of the Congress of the United States with regard to legislation affecting small business.

Those who score above 69% in voting favorably for small business legislation are designated "Guardian of Small Business."

With the general recognition that small business has been and is the backbone of the American economic system, some interesting—and pertinent—results can be noted in the NFIB scorecard. Dan Quayle, now serving in the House of Representatives and seeking to win the Senate seat now held by Birch Bayh, was one of four scoring 100% in voting for legislation helpful to small business, as determined by the NFIB.

Senator Bayh on the other hand scored only 28% in voting on small buisness legislation.

Indiana's other Senator, Dick Lugar, who was given consideration as a Vice-Presidential candidate at the recent Republican National Convention, had a rating of 89%, the highest in the Senate, as did five other members of the Senate.

While the NFIB membership might be considered one-sided in expressing views on national legislation perhaps to the disadvantage of the public in general, a recent poll of NFIB members brought forth some additional statistics of general interest.

In answer to the question, "Do you favor or oppose ending Saturday mail delivery," a surprising 59% said they favor such legislation. 38% were opposed and 3% were undecided.

Then there was the question, "Do you favor or oppose creating a new small-business lending program called the Loan Loss Reserve Program?" Such seemingly favorable legislation would tend to bring a majority "yes" vote. But instead, 72% oppose such legislation. Only 23% were in favor and 5% were undecided.

In another category which would seemingly appeal to the small business sector, 62% oppost establishing "free enterprise zones" in which special tax incentives would encourage expansion of business into areas where the influx of new business would be beneficial to the areas. Only 27% favored the idea and 11% were undecided.

The results of the survey are significant as voters prepare to go to the polls in November. If small business is not selfish in its opinions concerning legislation, showing instead a concern for the overall good of the total economy, then the voting records of members of Congress become a major factor to consider in making a choice of candidates.

It would be well to remember that Dan Quayle scored 100% in votes on bills related to small business while Birch Bayh scored only 28%. They face each other in the Senatorial race in November.

Richard Lugar's seat in the Senate is not up for grabs this time around. But Hoosiers can do no harm in remembering that he and five others in the Senate had the highest rating given by the NFIB in Senate legislation related to the backbone of America's economic system—small business.

Here's how to recognize quackery

Quacks are still in business thriving on the hopes and fears of people looking for smaller waistlines, larger bustlines, bulging biceps and a full head of hair. The Federal Drug Administration suggests a quick check of these favorite ploys of medical con artists.

- Is the product touted as "a new scientific breakthrough?
- Does the promoter call his product a "secret cure"?
- Do the ads give testimonials from "satisfied users"?
- Does the product claim to cure everything under the sun?
- Do ads refer to ill-defined pains and feelings?

DAR Hears Report On U.S. Loss Of Strength Through 'One World Government'

The John Houlton Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution met at the home of Mrs. Marlin Yoder September 13. Mrs. Ernest Harter, Chapter Regent, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Harter gave the National Defense Report on "America Needs a New National Strategy" by General Lewis W. Walt, U.S. Marine Corps (Ret.). His speech was delivered at the National Defense Luncheon, 89th Continental Congress, April 17, 1980. He was assistant commandant of the Marine Corps from 1968 to 1971. He served in combat during World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War.

Portions of the general's speech included:

". . . . I wrote the book 'The Eleventh Hour' as a result of an inspiration given me by high school seniors and college freshmen. They started asking me questions I could not answer and which I was ashamed I could not answer. 'Why weren't you allowed to win the war in Vietnam?' 'Why weren't you allowed to win the war in Korea?' I was asked questions by parents and sisters and brothers, too: 'What did my son die for in Korea or Vietnam?' 'What did our country gain by him sacrificing his life?' These are very difficult questions, and they go to the heart of the threats (facing our nation today).

". . . . Whether you are talking about strategic or conventional ground forces, or air forces or other measure of military power, the Soviet Union is ahead of us. The Soviets caught up with us about three years ago. Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara said we must hold down our defenses and let the Soviets catch up with us so that they wouldn't be afraid of our attacking them. We did hold down our defenses. But when the Soviets caught up, they didn't stop building weapons as they were supposed to. Instead, they started building airplanes faster. They started building tanks faster and building up all their defenses faster.

"Today the Soviets have what is called a first-strike capability against our country. That means they have the capability of landing their missiles on targets in our country without our being able to stop them.

". . . . On the other hand the Soviets have a good strong defense against U.S. missiles. It is doubtful today if any of our missiles would get through to targets in the Soviet Union because they are guarded by an anti-missile defense system.

". . . . So, we were playing with two sets of rules (in the Korean conflict); they had one, and we had the other. I couldn't understand why General Douglas MacArthur was not allowed to go ahead and finish the Korean War when he had the opportunity. Had he finished the war in Korea, we wouldn't have had Vietnam at all. I can assure you of that.

". . . . During the three years when I was on the Joint Chiefs of Staff as Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps, I used to ask the question, 'What is our national strategy?' . . . I was never able to get an answer to my question.

". . . . I repeatedly asked Secretary Melvin Laird, who was Secretary of Defense at that time, 'Mr. Laird, when are we going to find out what our national strategy is?' He said, 'Lew, if you can find out, you let me know.' He, too, was in the dark then.

". . . I started to research our foreign policy. . . . I went back to 1945 and I found that George Kennan, who at that time was in charge of affairs at our Embassy in Moscow under Ambassador Averell Harriman, put together a paper, a memorandum, which he designed as the basis of our post-World War II foreign policy. In 1946 Mr. George Kenhan was transferred to Washington to become an adviser, a consultant, to our National Security Council. He worked on this document for four years.

"In 1950 this document became known as National Security Council Memorandum No. 68, The Fundamentals of Our Foreign Policy.' It is a very remarkable document. First, it admits that the Soviet Union is an aggressive nation. It admits that the Soviets would like to take over the capitalist world, but it argues that, if we treated them right, maybe we could train them along other directions. This document committed us to the strategy of avoiding nuclear war at all cost. It established the national policy under which we were forbidden to consider any plan to use nuclear weapons.

"This national strategy and this NSC No. 68 were kept secret for 25 years, super secret I should say. Even those of us on the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't know about it. It required us to limit our military action only to limited counter action. It forbade us to take any territory away from the Communists, or even to challenge the Soviets.

". . . All this explains our tragic no-win wars. Our foreign policy is based on the 'new world order' concept, a one-world government concept.

". . . Right after World War II, the one-world government group started pushing for their objective. The first step was to form the United Nations. The second was to pass the Arms Control and Disarmament Act of 1961, signed by President John F. Kennedy. That Act started the unilateral disarmament which has brought us down to our present military inferiority to the Soviet Union.

"The third step came as a real surprise to me. I would never have dreamed such a thing could be possible in America. I was reading a Military Order of World War magazine one day and I saw a little account of a speech Representative Marjorie Holt of Maryland had given on the House floor. She told about a document which she said was the most traitorous thing that had ever happened in the history of our nation. She said she had been invited, along with the rest of Congress, up to Philadelphia on January 3, 1976, to endorse a document entitled "A Declaration of Interdependence.' She and the other members of Congress were asked to endorse this document which was a declaration for one world government.

"The first paragraph in that Declaration said you must forget about nationalism, do away with the American flag, and become part of the world community This incredible document said that we must get our economy to merge with the Soviet Union because we are the two major powers. This document said that our armed forces should come under the control of the United Nations, which will become the headquarters of the new one-world government with power to regulate our economy.

"When I got through reading this fearful document, I found that 131 members of our Congress had endorsed it. Many of those men and women are still in our government today, some of them in high positions.

". . .(The New States Constitution) does away with our 50 state governments completely and organizes all Americans into ten regions. The plan devised by this group is similar to the Soviet Constitution (under which the government controls the people as opposed to the United States Constitution under which the people control the government).

". . . This is a vitally important year for all Americans . . . we must elect the right people to national and state office in this critical year. . ."

(Editor's note: is the movement toward world government, as set up by the NSC Memorandum 68 referred to above, the reason why the U.S. citizens held hostage in Iran have not been released nor has our government made any meaningful moves towards gaining their release??? Has the "one world government" concept already taken away protection for American citizens in foreign lands???)

After the reading of the report, Mrs. Orris Wise volunteered to write to representatives in Congress to verify the allegations in the report.

Mrs. Roy Baker presented the program on "Know the DAR." She traced the Society from its organization by 18 women in 1890 to the present enrollment of 210,000 active members. Each has traced her lineal descent from a Revolutionary War patriot.

Mrs. Baker stressed the DAR's three objectives: history, education and patriotism. The DAR's three connecting headquarters buildings fill a city block near the White House in Washington, D.C. Together they form the largest group of buildings in the world owned and maintained exclusively by women. The DAR does not affiliate with any other organizations but does cooperate in worthy causes.

DAR was founded as a result of an upsurge in patriotism and a desire to honor those men and women whose sacrifices made this country free and independent, and to perpetuate the freedoms for which the nation's ancestors fought.

Mrs. Baker concluded with the following poem:

Our emblem is a golden wheel banded with deepest blue,
Each shining spoke tipped
with a star.
The distaff showing through;
The only jewel in the world that money cannot buy
Without such proof of ancestry as no one can deny.

The word from Oxford-

Everyone knows the difference between "precede" and "proceed." It all begins with the prefixes "pre-" and "pro-." "Pre-"means before in time, in place or in rank. "John Adams preceded John Quincy Adams as President."

"Pro-" means forward. The principal meaning of "proceed" is go forward, advance. "The parade proceeded to the town square." "Proceed" also means continue or carry on and start a law suit. "Proceed with your duty, officer." "The prosecutor proceeded against the gamblers."

But even though you know these definitions, will you remember that "precede" is spelled "-cede," "proceed" is "-ceed" and "procedure" "-ced-"? —Oh well — —.

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. At a local market we acquired an old-fashioned swift. Aren't they perplexing finds? —Doris, Sonoma, Calif.

A. To the uninitiated a swift definitely qualifies for a spot on the "what is it" list. This latticework object was utilized by homemakers throughout the 19th century for winding thread and yarn. It could be expanded and contracted so that the circumference of the skein could be controlled. Most were crafted of wood. However, some intricately carved scrimshaw versions were fabricated by sailors on lengthy sea voyages. Swifts move swiftly from flea market tabletops, generally at prices hovering in the vicinity of $100.

Q. When were the Sunbonnet Babies introduced? I buy every item pertaining to them. — Jean, Louisville, Ky.

A. "The Sunbonnet Babies Primer," authored by Eulalie Osgood Grover and illustrated in color by Bertha Corbett, jumped onto juvenile best seller lists upon its publication in 1902. Black and white drawings of the babies Mollie and May had appeared earlier. Their faces remained forever covered by protective sunbonnets. Sequels followed, along with a parade of novelties ranging from doorstops to dresser trays. Especially elusive are the china pieces bearing the Royal Bayreuth trademark. Within collecting circles, Mollie and May mementoes mean money! Value guide: Book, "Sunbonnet Babies in Holland, 1915, $40.

Q. Would you please furnish me with a price guide on iron match holders? —Kenneth, Mobile, Ala.

A. During the 19th century when the so-called "barnburner" matches were in general use, match holders appeared in designs ranging from amazing to amusing. Despite these steadily climbing prices, most are guaranteed to strike a collector's fancy: Bird, mechanical, picks up matches, $50; Boy on tree stump, $35; Dog decor, wall type, $35; Hunting scene, twin pockets, $40; Lady's high button shoe, $37; Rabbit, bird decor, double style, $50; Scroll design, ornate, $35.

Q. Have you any information on my aqua "Gilbreds Improved Jar"? —Maxine, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. Fruit jar fanciers scour the marketplace searching for this unusual fruit jar having a wire running entirely around it. The handmade "Gilbreds Improved Jar" possessing a ground lip was marketed in 1885, in aqua and green. The embossed motif features a five-pointed star with the word "Improved" lettered across it. The "Gilbreds" name is above the star, and the word "Jar" appears beneath the central star motif. One is tempted to call it an all-star collectible, for seldom does one sell for under $160.

Repaving, Drain 'Hassle' Part Of Long Board Meeting

The October 6 meeting of the Saint Joe town board was attended by all town officials, nine residents of Saint Joe, and representatives from the DeKalb County Humane Society.

The first item of business was covered by the representatives of the county humane society, Helen Sanders, Dorothy Dunn and attorney Doug Atz. Mr. Atz said that state legislation requires holding a dog for 20 days due to the failure of the dog owner to pay the required dog tax. Under that law, such a dog is declared a "public nuisance." Upon questioning by board president Ted Haberkorn concerning the application of the law to general stray dogs, Mr. Atz suggested that the board consult with its attorney, noting in his remarks, however, that the statute referred only to delinquent dog taxes. The town ordinance provides for holding a stray for three days. Local dog wardens have as general practice attempted to find owners of strays or homes for them before disposing of the dogs.

A letter was authorized to be sent to Freeman Oil Company under provisions of the local weed control ordinance.

Board member Larry McKown expressed concern that the renovation of the local dog shelter was not going to be suitable. The president turned the matter over to Mr. McKown, John Bopp and Betty Baker, local dog warden, for completion. Prices are to be obtained for additional plywood, insulation and exterior siding. The building recently was placed on a newly-poured foundation, then the steel siding and roof painted at a cost of $450.

Street matters included approval of a contract to have Fourth Street re-paved from Washington Street one block south to Jefferson Street at a cost of $3,560. The street was paved several years ago and is in poor condition overall. Also approved was a $120 project to have two alley entrances at the east end of the main street re-paved in order to keep surface water drainage in the street right of way. After the main street was re-paved four years ago, the height of the street was higher than the alley entrances, causing rainwater to "gully-out" the sidewalk and private property.

During the discussion of street matters, a citizen's protest was voiced by Steve Monroe against the "hump" proposed for placement at the stop sign at Railroad and Third streets. He is a member of the local fire department as is Jake Fetters who voiced with Mr. Monroe the fear of damage to fire trucks. Board member Paula Tinstman had called the president prior to the meeting about complaints from certain citizens about the hump, a deterrent to excessive speeds on Railroad Street; and to running the stop sign. Consideration will be given to a suggestion of a three-way stop intersection.

Mr. McKown is to investigate the strength needed for guard rails at the bottom of the hill on Fourth Street and the availability of a salt-sand mixture for slippery streets in winter weather.

Then a lengthy discussion of a drain problem on the main street involving the Studebaker and McKean families. They alleged that the president was changing the rules by denying town liability for drain problems. Several years ago a previous board had assumed such responsibility at their properties.

The president stated that after investigating the matter of the tile's installation many years ago, it appeared that the tile was a private line even though it runs along the curb. He noted there is no surface water entering the tile; there are no catch basins in the area emptying into the tile.

After a long discussion and several accusations directed at the board president, Mr. McKown and Mrs. Tinstman carried on further discussion. With no proposals or offers forthcoming, the president reentered the stalemate with a suggestion that the town pay half the repair costs and rooting out plus a cleanout access tile for future root problems, with the Studebakers paying the other half. Mr. McKean insisted that the town should take over the tile in the future. Thus the offer was rejected and the president then completely removed himself from the matter, noting that nothing he said was "acceptable" to the two parties involved. The other two board members then agreed to pay for the work with no obligation on the two families involved. Mr. McKean said his share of the cost was in future removal of a tree which is reportedly about half dead.

During the discussion Mrs. Studebaker inferred that the president had shown no "interest" in resolving the problem and Mr. McKean echoed that thought. The president pointed out that he had gone to the Studebaker residence to discuss the matter with Mrs. Studebaker and had offered to return in the evening when Mr. Studebaker was home from work for further discussion of the matter. But he received no call and, instead, the Studebakers called the county health officer. The president also noted that Mr. McKean had made no contact with the board president, yet appeared to think the board president should have contacted Mr. McKean. The Studebakers had the problem of water in their basement; the McKeans had no such problem.

Mr. Fetters offered to replace broken window panes at the fire hall plus some repair to the large doors. The board will provide the materials.

The meeting lasted over three hours, due mainly to the "hassle" over the drain tile.

Are School Parents 'Egged On'?

There is a "flap" at the present time in our school district about a supposed lack of adequate teachers for the Butler kindergaten. A group of aroused parents has attended recent school board meetings and has demanded that two teachers be provided for kindergarten. At the present time there is one teacher and one teacher's aide for some 40 pupils.

In reading accounts of the remarks made by parents, I have been struck by one thing—these parents are talking as if kindergarten is comparable to the fifth grade and the eighth grade or high school. Good heavens! We're talking about five year old children; they're just little kids yet! And the teacher's aide is not just someone pulled in off the street with, "Hey, how about helping with the kindergarten—it's a snap, no more than babysitting." There was a bit more consideration to the matter by the school board and a bit more in the character of the individual serving as an aide than is indicated by the actions of the upset parents. If, as they say, they are not questioning the capabilities and integrity of the teacher and the teacher's aide, then what ARE they questioning???

One of the arguments voiced by certain parents is that the pupil-to-teacher ratio should be smaller than 40-1 (this obviously ignores the presence of the teacher's aide). Along with it goes the argument that pupils can't learn as efficiently in a large class as in a small class.

I know there is a dispute as to the value of achievement tests. But the fact remains that test scores have been dropping for some 13 years now. It may be true that the tests are not the ultimate indicator of student capabilities; but they do indicate something about student capabilities.

The significant thing is that the drop in test scores has come AFTER "new ideas" were introduced in education. Among those new ideas was reducing the number of pupils per classroom. This would bring more out of the student—theoretically.

The idea had particular appeal for many teachers: the more classes you have due to fewer students per class, the more teachers would be needed.

And the idea DID have the sound of good logic. After all, personalized attention is impressive on the student.

But it didn't work out the way it was supposed to. We have fewer students per teacher, but the kids aren't learning more, they're learning less. Colleges and universities have lowered their standards in order to accommodate the lesser-developed capabilities of high school graduates. Recently, the recruiting department of our military services said their standards had to be lowered—the lack of basic knowledge in high school graduates was described as appalling.

Since the eastern school district eliminated one teaching position at the kindergarten level a couple of years ago due to reduced enrollments and increasing costs, I have a suspicion that the current "flap" is being supported by certain teacher union stalwarts, egged on by Uniserve, the organization within the Indiana State Teachers Association which is concerned only with teachers pay, teachers rights, and so on. It has no interest in the education of our kids.

Remember—it was only a few years ago that certain teachers "egged on" parents to raise a ruckus with the school board over teachers' pay. And the teachers pulled a boycott in extra-curricular activities. A couple or three teachers didn't go along with the idea, but they were subjected to tremendous pressure. It got so bad (the pressure) that one of them resigned.

Certain teachers (and teacher union officials) will use anything—including parents— to embarras school administration and gain more "clout."

And if any of the parents of kindergarten kids say I'm out of order in expressing my views because I don't have any kids in kindergarten, may they remember that parents of kids now out of school have something to go on with respect to the quality of education. That something is the firsthand exposure to school through their kids and the opportunity to review generally the results of the educational process through several years involving their offspring of various ages.

As far as I am concerned, some parents are playing right into the hands of the teachers' union by demanding a second teacher. And they are giving the impression that our school board and superintendent have exercised poor judgment in the matter.

As a parent, I understand the concern of the parents of the kindergarten students for the quality of education in our school. But I think they are wrong in accepting the theory that fewer pupils per teacher is the road to better education. This approach completely overlooks the most important factor — the quality of the teacher. It completely removes the teacher as a person and substitutes numbers.

The word from Oxford—

—from the editors of the forthcoming Oxford American Dictionary.

One little letter makes all the difference between "ingenious" and "ingenuous." Clever, inventive and resourceful people are "ingenious"; they show integrity. "My neighbor is ingenious in making a small apartment look big." "The boy's ingenuity was responsible for making that old car run so well."

Ingenuous people are artlessly frank, open, innocent and trusting. "Ingenuous children are sometimes amusing." "His ingenuous manners charmed everyone." By the same token, disingenuous people are not smart nor are they frank. "I never for a moment suspected that he was being disingenuous." "The attorney tried to show the jury that the witness was disingenuous."

Does your baby have normal hearing?

Watch out for early warnings about possible hearing problems. A newborn baby usually becomes startled at a sharp nearby handclap. At three months he should blink his eyes or move at unexpected loud noises. At 12 months, babies can hear and turn toward a soft voice three feet away.

If you suspect trouble, consult your physician. We carry many medicines doctors specify for ear problems. Babies' ears are sensitive and should always get speedy medical attention.

81 Attend Local School Reunion

On a beautiful Sunday, September 21, 81 friends and former students of the old Concord Township High School held a reunion at the Conservation Club grounds at Saint Joe.

After grace was said by Howard Grimm and all had enjoyed a bountiful potluck dinner, Frank Shull presided at the business meeting. The same officers were retained: Frank Shull, president; Harriett Oberlin, vice president; Evalyn Hamman, secretary; and Paul Fetters, treasurer.

In attendance from the 1920 graduating class were: Faye Hughes Severn, Lois Murphy Grimm, Pauline Barney Baumgartner, Carson Culler and Donald Davis. From the 1930 class were Dorothy Knight Hamman, Hilda Morr Heil, Naomi Baker Dragoo and Clifford Dragoo.

The group will meet again in 1981 at the same place on the second Sunday after Labor Day. Cards cannot be sent to everyone, so the group relies on its members to pass the word along.

Anyone in the community, whether local graduate or not, is invited to the annual reunions.

Q. Is my gentleman acrobatic figure from the Schoenhut circus a rarity? It has a wooden head. —Mrs. G. L., Houston, Texas.

A. When the Schoenhut company introduced its Humpty Dumpty Circus in 1903, playroom occupants had reason for rejoicing. The jointed clowns were named Humpty, Dumpty and Cracker Jack. Customers clamored for additional characters and animals. Before long a Ringmaster, Lion Tamer, Gent Acrobat, Lady Acrobat and Lady Circus Rider were performing daily on parlor floors! They were made with wooden or bisque heads. The latter are somewhat scarcer. To add to the flavor there was a collapsible tent, with a sawdust ring. Advertisement proclaimed that this indoor spectacular boasted 10,001 outstanding tricks! Value guide: Gent Acrobat, wooden head, $165.

Q. When was the Indian Tree dinnerware pattern introduced? —Linda, Greenville, Mass.

A. Since the early 1800s, English and American tabletops have been enlivened with Tree pattern dinnerware services. The famed Coalport firm marketed the design in 1811! Oriental in flavor, the design featured a gnarled tree, thought to be a peony tree, in brown with pink peonies, green foliage and other motifs. The border consisted of a Chinese fret-work motif. Throughout the 19th century as potters including Doulton, Johnson Bros. and Maddox produced the design, slight variations occurred. The Indian Tree design has branched out into a choice collectible! Value guide: butter dish, Burgess & Leigh, $75.

Q. I buy every jack in the pulpit vase I can find. Would a price list be available in this category? —Joan, Kingston, Ky.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted—

The memorial you had printed in your last weeks paper for Pastor J. Paul Hill was so well done and told your readers how many of us felt about the man.

He was one of the pastors in the community that was a friend as well as a pastor.

Frank and J. Paul had many long visits and not always church but many other life subjects.

Just wanted to thank you for the special write up for a great pastor.

Best wishes,
Mrs. S. Amstutz

We should acknowledge that, in addition to the responses by letter published here following the comments about Pastor Hill, others said "thanks" in person, including Lois Strong and special steps at the News Office by Pete Timmerman and Karl Hart. If we have overlooked any others, please forgive us. The responses were appreciated.
It is significant that about half the responses came from people who are NOT members of the Coburn Corners congregation—which is testimony to the "total ministry" of John Paul Hill. —Ed.

Prayer Breakfast

The 9th annual DeKalb County Fellowship Prayer Breakfast reservations are being taken at the present time with a deadline of October 21. The breakfast will be held October 23 in the First United Methodist Church at Auburn. Serving of the continental breakfast will begin at 9:00 a.m.

Women in various communities in the county are selling tickets. At Saint Joe tickets are available from Ruth Coburn. A donation of $3 is requested.

The main speaker at the breakfast will be Peg Ranklin. She is a homemaker, mother of three teenage boys and resides in Birmingham, Michigan. Her husband, Lee, works in the field of medical electronics.

A former high school English teacher, Mrs. Rankin now invests her training in the teaching of God's Word. She conducts Bible studies in several churches and team-teaches two classes with her husband. She also shares her faith at prayer breakfasts, women's luncheons, church ghoups and interdenominational conventions and retreats. Her first book, a provocatice guide to victory in crises, is entitled, "Yet Will I Trust Him."

The Rankins often share speaking engagements. As an extension of this ministry, they have formed the appropriately named Rankin File which presents Jesus Christ through a pamphlet and cassette ministry. Their presentations include humor, drama, testimony and instruction — all to the glory of God.

Bernice Fraction of Indianapolis will be the soloist. The DeKalb County Home Demonstration Women's Chorus will give a thirty-minute sacred musical at 9:30 a.m.

'Public Hearing' Trickery

There is subtle trickery in the procedures followed in some of our governmental activities. While the public is led to believe it has a voice in the rules and regulations prepared by those agencies, there is actually little effect on the programs — unless something is SO out of whack that an adjustment is made. And even then, more often than not it takes an act of Congress to get the adjustment.

A good example of the situation relates to the public review of certain textbooks now going on in Fort Wayne. You and I have the opportunity to take a look at textbooks for science and health for grades one through twelve, and handwriting grades one through eight.

Then you and I have the opportunity to submit written comments or appear and testify at a public hearing.

Sounds good, doesn't it?

What's the catch? Well, how many of you and me can or will take a day off from our regular activities (in this case Friday, November 21) to drive to Indianapolis for the hearing? Probably none.

This isn't the only example of hearings for "public input" held by governmental agencies supposedly to give you and me a voice in what goes on.

The agriculture department frequently has hearings, but how many farmers can take off and go to such gatherings?

The health department has hearings, too, theoretically giving the public an opportunity for input about such things as school lunches and whether or not sweets should be dispensed from coin machines in school buildings.

The Army Corps of Engineers has frequent hearings on matters pertaining to dams and dredging and so on.

Announcing the scheduling of a public hearing, and holding the hearing, gives those working and planning in governmental agencies a self-protecting excuse when someone expresses opposition to new rules and regulations: "We held a public hearing. Why didn't you say something then?"

Yes, we need those public hearings. The problem is that we have more and more people on the governmental payroll who are overly ambitious in nothing but plan, plan, plan. The whole thing just goes too far.

The "Federal Register" is a listing of all the rules and regulations put into effect by the various agencies of government. Those rules and regulations are NOT passed by Congress; they are established by the governmental agencies on their own.

So, when you hear about or read about an effort by an individual or a group of individuals to correct what they consider a bad situation brought on by certain federal regulations established by a governmental agency, keep in mind that an opportunity may have been given for public input, but the public is not always aware of the implications behind such a hearing, may not have the time to attend the hearing, or may not have the money to spare to make a trip to a distant location in order to "participate" in self government.

Governmental employees are inclined to lose touch with reality in this matter of public hearings and public meetings. After all, participation is part of their job, they're getting paid to attend. However, the average citizen must attend on spare time or time off, and has money to pay out for expenses, not money coming in as income in connection with "public" hearings.

The word from Oxford-

—from the editors of the forthcoming Oxford American Dictionary.

Sound-alike words, such as "except" and "accept," are often confused. "Except" as a preposition is easy. It means not including: "Everybody won a prize except me." "Except" as a verb is more difficult. It means to exclude from a statement or calculation, etc.: "The new fire prevention law excepts churches." "Accept" is a verb. It means to take willingly, to say yes to an invitation, to take as true, and much more: "I accept the nomination." "She accepts liability." "We do not accept your conclusions." "Are you accepted by your neighbors?" We hope everyone accepts this explanation without exception.

Does your baby have normal hearing?

Watch out for early warnings about possible hearing problems. A newborn baby usually becomes startled at a sharp nearby handclap. At three months he should blink his eyes or move at unexpected loud noises. At 12 months, babies can hear and turn toward a soft voice three feet away.

If you suspect trouble, consult your physician. We carry many medicines doctors specify for ear problems. Babies' ears are sensitive and should always get speedy medical attention.

Coats Comments:

Dan Coats, candidate for Congress, scored the federal government and its overspending policies this week as the primary reason that older Americans find it difficult to retain their self-reliance and dignity.

"Inflation is the greatest single blow to the elderly, and government is the greatest single contributor to inflation," the candidate said. "Everyone is hurt by inflation, but for retired persons on fixed incomes it is a catastrophe. It is tragic and wholly unnecessary that thousands of older persons who saved diligently for a secure and independent life after retirement find themselves struggling to make ends meet or dependent on families or institutions."

Coats said most of the blame for inflation must rest with the Congressional majority of the past 25 years who have spent far more than the government has taken in. He said a balanced federal budget is an important step in bringing inflation under control. He noted that the Congressional majority has given that goal lip service while at the same time spending the nation into an ever-increasing federal debt.

This week Coats also noted that agriculture can be called the nation's number-one industry and employer. The industry's assets, some $960 billion, are equal to 80 percent of the capital assets of all manufacturing corporations in the nation. And those working in agriculture account for one of every five jobs in private enterprise.

He said the agriculture industry is one of this country's best inflation fighters. The rate of productivity in agriculture is double that of nonfarm industry. One farm worker today supplies enough food and fiber for 65 people.

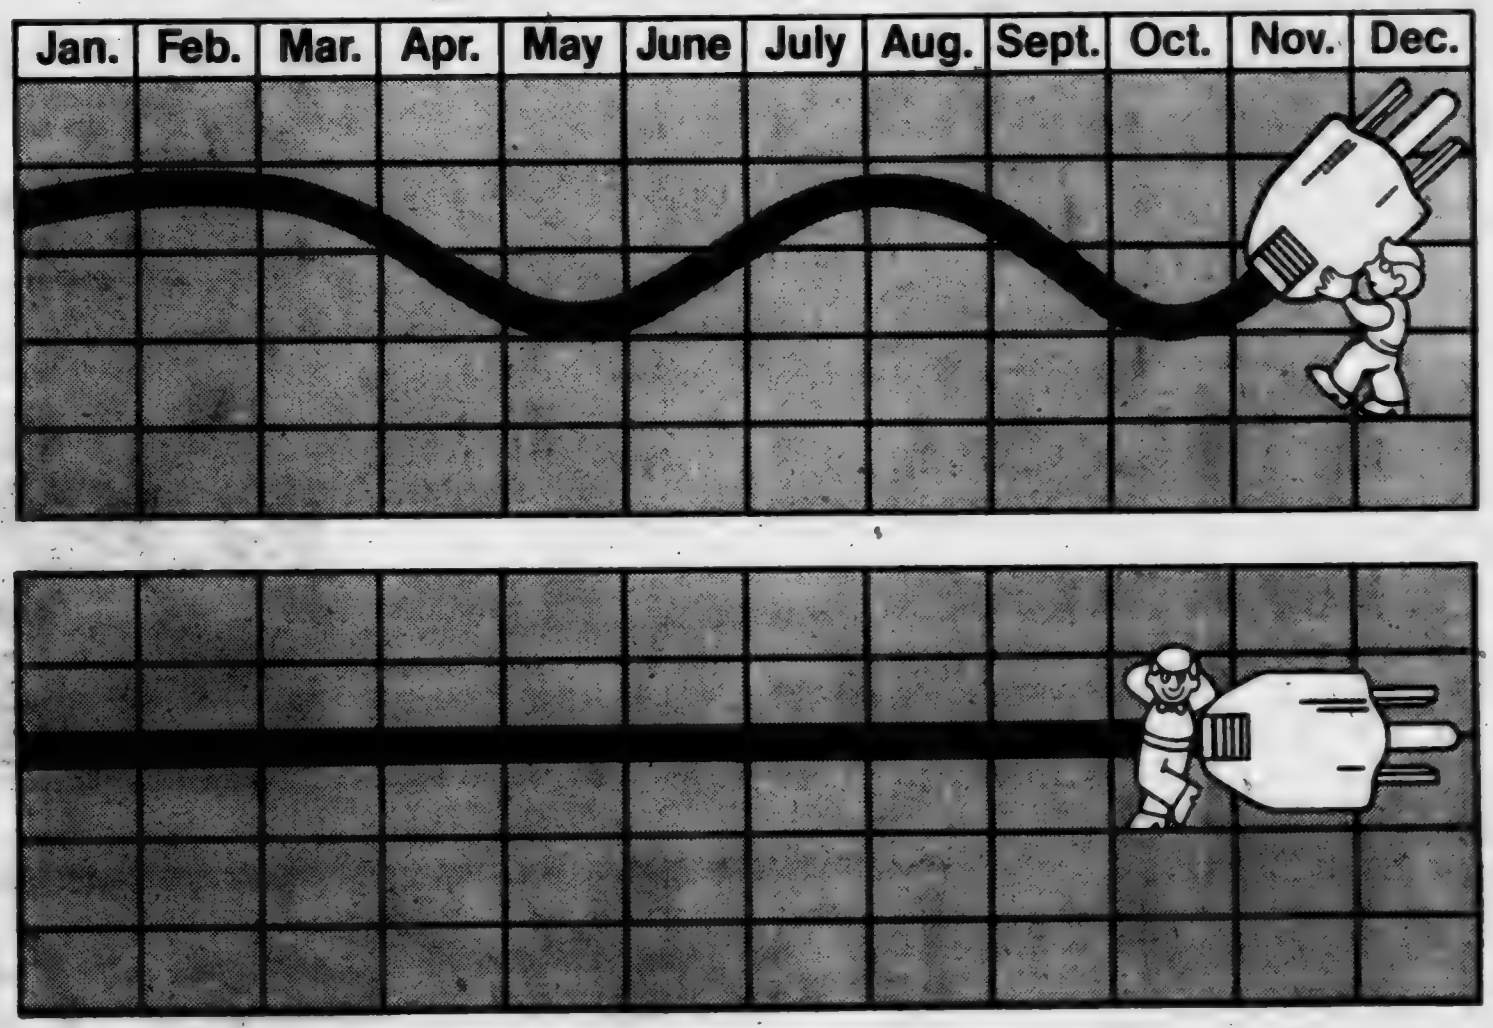
The Equal Payment Plan.



A convenient way to budget for your electric bill.

Some household expenses are fairly steady throughout the year. But your electric bill varies from month to month because your electric usage fluctuates with the changing seasons. The bill is usually higher in the winter. It dips a little in the spring months, then, for most people, rises during the air conditioning season, before dropping again in the fall.

We can't do anything about the weather, but we can help you smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill. And that's by offering you our Equal Payment Plan.

With the Equal Payment Plan, we bill you a fixed amount each month based on your average usage.

Every six months we'll review your account so you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, down or staying about the same. The bill at the end of the twelfth month is the "settle-up" bill.

Many of our customers are already taking advantage of the Equal Payment Plan. If it sounds like a good idea to you, simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

We give it our best.

Q. What information can you furnish on a No. 1A Pocket Kodak Camera I purchased at a local market?. —Bill, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. Depression plagued consumers had reason for rejoicing when this "Gift Kodak Camera" reached local emporiums in 1930-31. The No. 1A Pocket Kodak Camera clicked with customers due primarily to its modest price of $12. The camera which used No. 116 film was covered in genuine leather and boasted an impressive enameled metal inlay on the front door. And that cedar box case, the top plate of which repeated itself, provided a thoroughly attractive Art Deco gift package. Photographic collectors are likely to "shutter" at present day prices which generally hover in the $100 vicinity!

Q. Can you enlighten me about a blue and white plate featuring views of St. Louis marked "Rowland & Marsellus, Staffordshire, England"?—Mrs. F. L., York, Pa.

A. The New York based importing firm of Rowland & Marsellus flourished between the 1890s and 1920s. The company's ceramic pictorial souvenirs, transfer printed generally in blue and white, covered a myriad of subject matter. Pieces were customarily marked with the firm's name or initials accompanied by the words "Staffordshire, England". That famous fruit and floral borders found on many of their plates were based on an earlier design attributed to Ralph Hall of England, a potter active in the early 1800s! Value guide: St. Louis views, 10 inches diameter, $40.

Q. I scour the marketplace searching for old fashioned sewing accessories. Would a price list in this category be possible? —Alice, Dunkirk, New York.

A. Because ladies of the 19th century were inexhaustible sewers numerous finds, ranging from baskets to boxes, await discovery. But a word of caution, sewing adjuncts fetch more than "sew-sew" returns! Value guide: Basket, wicker, lined in satin, 1880s, $22; box, Clark's spool Cotton, $30; darner, ebony and silver, $40; needle case, carved ivory, 1890s, $35; pincushion, strawberry shaped, 1870s, $35; sewing bird, brass, clamp on style, 1882, $65; thimble, sterling silver, bird decor, $30.

Q. What company produced my pressed glass butter dish in the Log Cabin pattern? — Stella, Hot Springs, Ark.

A. The romantic rustic nature inborn in Americans was awakened by the realistic Log Cabin motif of this Central Glass Co., design dating from the 1870s. Who could resist the design which recreated a log cabin outline? The covered pieces were especially appealing sporting wooden logs, cabin doors and detachable log roofs. The compote in the pattern features a tree trunk stem. A collector could log up considerable mileage tracking down a covered butter dish in this design for under $175.

Olds' Descendant, Photos Show Origin Of 'The News' In Spencerville

A few weeks ago, a man inquired of Doris and Mose Yeiser about Saint Joe, in particular about The Saint Joe News. I happened to be in Yeiser's service station at the time and we got into a discussion about local history.

The man's name is Richard Olds and his grand-uncle, Mort Olds, edited the paper in the late 1800s. Dick thereafter sent the following letter:

"Dear Ted,

"I enjoyed meeting you last Friday at Yeiser's Standard Service and showing, and later on loaning you, the past-century picture of the Concord Twp. Olds clan. I'm sorry now that I didn't get to know more first-hand aout you and your newspaper, but must admit that the complimentary issues that you gave me on my departure yielded some meaningul insights about both. In fact, I was so impressed with much of the newspaper's content that I have decided to subscribe for a year and enclose a $5.85 check herewith.

"After agreeing to send you additional info on my grand-uncle Mort Olds (whom I think we both believe founded the Saint Joe News), I felt inspired to write about the entire Olds family of that era and area, and am enclosing a copy of what I wrote. I would be much pleased if this could all be printed in addition to the picture, but respect your right to edit or disregard as you see fit.

"With additional regard to Mort Olds, both he and wife died over 10 years before I was born in 1938 and thus knowledge of him comes to me second-hand from published sources and from an aunt, Esther (Mrs. Fred) Forst of near Stroh, Ind., who remembers him well. Esther, who is now 80, lived with her Uncle Mort for 3 months following his wife's death in Aug. 1925 . . . and helping with the operation of his dry goods store in Clinton, Mich. Esther left Clinton to begin a 12½-year stint at teaching in Auburn, before marrying and returning to LaGrange County. Mort died on June 23, 1927, probably in Clinton; he was born April 17, 1857 in Fort Wayne.

"In addition to the writeup previously mentioned, I am enclosing copies of the pages relating to Mort and other Oldses

that appeared in Dr. Carey's Spencerville history. Also a page of census revelations that I've compiled relating to Olds families which reveal their whereabouts in DeKalb County in 1870, 1880 and 1900.

"Again I appreciate the opportunity to share my knowledge of the Saint Joe/Spencerville Oldses with you and look forward to whatever coverage you may give them in a future issue of your newspaper. Should you print all or part of my writeup, I would appreciate also an editor's note to the effect that I would welcome correspondence from any local historians or others who have info or pictures that they can share with me relating to the Olds families or their former places of business.

"Sincerely,
"Dick Olds

"P.S. I'd like a dozen or so extra copies of the issue that you print the picture, etc. in and will gladly pay the 'going rate'. Thanks!"

In reviewing the material provided by Mr. Olds, it is apparent that a newspaper called "The News" was published at Spencerville in 1877, not at Saint Joe as has been stated in this paper in recent years. In the history of Spencerville by Dr. Carey, referred to above, the following information appears concerning a store owned by Ruben J. Dawson in 1838:

"The settlement (Spencerville) grew, and Mr. Dawson feeling he should be more on the job, built a new store on the south end of Main Street, now known as the Olds store.

"Around this time an ad appeared in the Fort Wayne News in 1840. A grocery ad enumerates the following: 'We carry a full supply of groceries, such as the best coffee, sugar, rice, salaratus, molasses, along with cotten goods and a full line of nails, axes, shovels and log chains'—typical of the Dawson stock.

"Later Mr. Dawson built a dwelling house attached to the store, and probably lived with his agent up to the time of his marriage in 1845.

"By 1843, Mr. Dawson had sold the store to Bushrood Catlin, who operated it with his son, Romeo. When Mr. Catlin was elected state representative in 1856, Romeo became sole proprietor. Mr. Bushrood Catlin died in 1860 and Romeo Catlin in 1862.

"They especially stressed patent medicine and drugs as a part of their stock.

"Around 1862, the stock was sold to Ainsworth Aldridge and John Furlo, who again sold it to S. N. Olds in 1866. Mr. Olds came in from Fort Wayne. He was assisted in the store by his sons as they became of age. Mort, being the eldest, was much interested in advertisement and printed a small local paper called 'The News.' We have Vol. 1, No. 2, presented by the Zona Horn estate and more directly by Mrs. Venice Foltz, dated March 18, 1877. Mort Olds left Spencerville in 1878, married Ada Coder and moved to Newville where he clerked in the Coborn store. By 1880 he had moved to St. Joe and went into business with Emilius Case and started the St. Joe News in 1884 (apparently an error in the date; should be "1880"—Ed.). Will, coming on next, assisted in the store until his father retired in 1903. Mr. Olds bought the Cahill store in 1894 and established Will in the grocery and tin business. Henry Carmes joined him as a partner and after a year or so Will sold his share to Dan Bair. Will continued to handle the tin shop for a year and operated in the back room adjoining the store. He moved to St. Joe in 1896 and went in partners with Mort, buying out Mr. Case and running a dry goods and novelty store.

"Arthur Olds, the youngest son, clerked in the grist mill and for the Chaney Bros. and went to Auburn in 1889."

The Arthur Olds referred to is the grandfather of Richard Olds.

The Olds family tree contains a name familiar to some of today's older local residents. The name is "Dills". Mary Olds was a daughter of Samuel and Caroline Olds. She married John Dills. The family had a farm south of Saint Joe along the river. The covered bridge which crossed the river was known as "Dills Bridge" until it was torn down several years ago and a new modern bridge put in its place.

Some of the lumber from the Dills Bridge when it was torn down was used by Willard Hurni in building a small shelter building now located at Wild Cherry Park at Saint Joe.

In summary, it appears that The Saint Joe News came into existence in 1880, but was preceded by "The News" published at Spencerville starting in 1877. Part of the confusion in the past has been due to the fact that the Spencerville publication did not contain its location and began as "Volume I"; the Saint Joe News did indicate its location but for one reason or another had three different occasions on which "Volume I" was indicated.

Complete volumes are not available for the early years. Thus it may be that a paper was published for a time, stopped for a time, then begun again, leading to more than one "Volume I" designation.

A "thank you" goes to Richard Olds for providing photos and information to clear the past confusion.

For those who may wish to correspond with him, his address is: 2610 Hillsbrook, Kalamazoo, Michigan 49008.

The word from Oxford—

—from the editors of the forthcoming Oxford American Dictionary.

One of the meanings of "anxious" is "eager," but careful writers avoid using "anxious" in this sense. The primary meanings of "anxious" are troubled and uneasy in mind, causing worry, filled with worry. "Eager" has an entirely different meaning, expressing enthusiasm and strong desire. So do not say "I am anxious to get started" when you really mean "I am eager to get started." Be "eager" about good news, "anxious" about bad. "She is eager to see her son again" means she looks forward to the visit. "She is anxious about her son's visit" means she is worried or troubled about the meeting. And then, of course, all of us know at least one eager beaver, but whoever met an anxious one?

Does your baby have normal hearing?

Watch out for early warnings about possible hearing problems. A newborn baby usually becomes startled at a sharp nearby handclap. At three months he should blink his eyes or move at unexpected loud noises. At 12 months, babies can hear and turn toward a soft voice three feet away.

If you suspect trouble, consult your physician. We carry many medicines doctors specify for ear problems. Babies' ears are sensitive and should always get speedy medical attention.

'Debates' Aren't

"Debate—1. A discussion of any question; argument; dispute. 2. Deliberation. 3. A formal contest in argumentation conducted between persons taking opposite sides of a question. . . ."
(from The Reader's Digest Great Encyclopedic Dictionary)

The TV programs set up by the League of Women Voters involving election candidates have been universally referred to as "debates." The classic use of the word "debate" involving opposing views means a question is asked and two opposing answers given. Or a statement is made as "resolved," and debaters give opposing views on the statement.

However, the TV presentations viewed by the public have not been based on pre-determined questions known to be considered from opposite viewpoints by the participants. Instead a panel of four or five members of the news media, journalists and news analists presents questions to the "debaters" and only a brief time is allowed for an answer and a rebuttal.

The coming "debate" between President Jimmy Carter and challenger Ronald Reagan brings doubts as to the usefulness of their confrontation, simply because of the number of questions to be squeezed into a designated time and the resulting comparatively brief opportunity for either candidate to fully explain their views. There is the undercurrent thought not of who will "win" the debate through presentation of facts and conclusions, but rather who will "win" the debate because the other participant pulled a boner. That is not the way to bring an "informed" public to the polls November 4.

The presidential campaign is not being conducted in an informative way. Instead of a constructive campaign based on facts, the American public is witnessing a diversion of attention toward incidentals—is there going to be a debate?—is one candidate a "racist"?—is one candidate a "war-monger? —is one candidate too old? —is one candidate. . . And the public will make its choice quite possibly on the basis of which candidate looks best, looks most at ease on TV, not on the basis of which candidate has presented his views most convincingly as related to today's conditions.

Much of the blame for the questionable value of the TV "debates" falls on the news media in general. The media give the impression they seek the truth. In actual practice, however, the media have indicated greater interest in catching a candidate off-guard and building a sensational story on what is really of little consequence. In addition, the "establishment" media (national wire services, national news commentators—in other words, the "big guys" in the news-gathering world) have shown an inclination to hound one politician almost literally to death, but to pass over questionable involvement of another politician. Those who say the news is "controlled" have a strong basis in fact for their rational-sounding criticism.

An unfortunate result of the entire matter is that the public is not allowed to make up its own mind through factual information about true political issues. Instead, a distorted picture is painted of universal skullduggery in politics in general. It's little wonder that so many Americans have the opinion that "it doesn't matter who you vote for—they're all the same." If that thought does have some truth to it, the public has itself to blame in part. It is willing to accept what it reads in the "news" columns and hears on "news" broadcasts as indicative of the whole story. It does not take time to read the syndicated columnists who quite frequently have more insight—and information—on a given matter or personage than do the "news" media.

The coming presidential "debate is not the means to determine the needs of the nation and the qualifications of the candidates. What is needed is a continual awareness of the basic question behind this year's national election:

Has 25 years of continuous control of federal legislation by one party provided adequate time to prove the theory that the solution to our problems lies in more governmental control of our private and business lives?

If the answer is, "Yes, that's plenty of time and we're worse off now than 25 years ago," then Mr. Reagan will get the public's majority vote, as will those running for Congress on his party's ticket.

Q. Does my modern looking three piece silverplate tea set and tray from the Wilcox firm rate as a fortunate find? I believe it dates from the 1920s. —Doris, Paducah, Ky.

A. Unlike their European counter parts, only a few American silversmiths produced any quantity of Art Deco silver. Therefore, existing examples excite collectors. The Wilcox Silver Plate Co., of Meriden, Conn., squared, angled and modernized some of their pieces during the 1920s and 1930s to blend with Art Deco accessories. Most pieces had plain surfaces, devoid of applied ornamentation. Some dinette sets had pieces that fitted each each other on oblong trays. Many tea sets boasted triangular facets. With antiqers, Art Deco silver is simply sensational! Value guide: Wilcox, silverplated three piece set, with tray, $350.

Q. Can you date my "Huntley & Palmers Biscuits Inkstand"? Within the tin stand is a small china inkwell. —Tom, Reading, Pa.

A. Mention the term biscuit tin to an advertising devotee and, presto, the name Huntley & Palmers pops to mind. They pioneered the use of printed tins during the 19th century. For the 1928 Christmas season they issued the cylindrical tin inkstand. The lid features an oval scene of a fox hunt, flanked by foxtails and hunting horns. Inside the container was a delicious selection of their "Full Cry Biscuits", along with a free gift, a small white china inkwell! Flea market shoppers consider this biscuit tin to be a tasty acquisition, despite its $85 price tag!

A. Here is an updated price list for collectors who enjoy scouting around for Boy Scout memorabilia: binoculars, brass, Paris, $27; book, "Boy Scouts to the Rescue", Maitland, $22; diary, pocket type, 1922, $15; calendar, Rockwell, 1944, $16; hat, campaign type felt, $30; knife, Imperial, $20; pin, fifth roundup, $7; pin, war service, 1919, $17; scrapbook, 40 pages, 1930s, $28

Q. Can you enlighten me about a Flow Blue cream pitcher in the Cashmere pattern? It was made by Morley. —Evelyn, Columbus, Ind.

A. Flow Blue fanciers admire and acquire the heavily blurred pieces of the mid-19th century. Francis Morley of Shelton, England, potted the coveted Cashmere design during the 1850s. The oriental design printed in cobalt blue on a white ironstone base must be held to a light before the flowing design of trees, flowers, shrubery and animal subjects becomes discernable. The firm's trademark is printed in a dark cobalt on the underside of the pieces. A collector would be tickled pink to find your Flow Blue pitcher priced under $125.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Karl Hart dropped off a couple of twigs of Chinese chestnuts from Kado Lato Farm east of Spencerville recently. I ate a few of them after they shedded their prickly outer shell. They had a soft texture and had a definite and pleasant sweet flavor.

The town was without water for several hours Tuesday. A faulty fire hydrant brought the need to either hunt for two shutoff valves covered by the pavement on State Road 1 or shut down the entire town. The latter way was taken and—naturally—what appeared to be a comparatively quick repair job turned into a time-consuming affair. It was necessary to remove the entire hydrant and place a temporary cap on the water main. When the hydrant is repaired or replaced, it will take another shut-off of water to finish the job. However, if the pavement-covered shutoff valves can be located quickly, it could be that only a section of the entire water system be shut off.

Why did some of the shutoffs get covered by pavement? Probably mostly due to oversight.

Tuesday's episode required prompt action because Jake Fetters' basement was getting the benefit of the broken hydrant.

In those moments of need, it is gratifying to have the cooperation of people in coping with the situation—such as Rex Tullis, Riverdale elementary principal in getting school needs taken care of before the shutoff was made, and Andy Crow who brought a cutting torch from the Farm Center, and Dick and Jim Witte who were ready to provide the cap plate when needed that night—and the residents of Saint Joe who tolerated the inconvenience.

On another occasion, during the past summer, Joe Robinson and Harold Yeiser gave quite a bit of their time to help with a drain repair problem.

The story of the Olds family of Saint Joe and Spencerville will appear in the next issue, not in this issue as previously indicated.

GS Troop 29 Visits News Office

Some of the younger folks and a few of their adult leaders have gotten a brief glimpse of the mechanics of publishing a newspaper the "old fashioned way" this week as Girl Scout Troop 29 visited the News Office Thursday.

The editor showed them how the linotype works, how the press works, and copies of old issues of the paper.

The kids had some good questions, including "how do you print a picture in the paper?"

It was a very brief exposure to the publication process, but it gave the kids a glimpse of the way it was in most small community printing shops before automatic presses and offset printing took over the publication industry.

Patron Takes Exception To 'Ed's' Comments On Kindergarten

Dear Editor,

As a resident of Butler and a parent concerned about our children's education, I would like to address some remarks made in your Oct. 9th editorial on the "flap" in our school district about the Butler kindergarten.

It is evident to anyone who has attended the recent school board meetings or talked with the parents involved, that we are not questioning the adequacy, capabilities or integrity of either the kindergarten teacher or the teacher's aide. It is simply our contention that TWO classrooms, each with twenty students and a certified teacher, and, if possible, an aide to work back and forth between the classrooms, would provide a better education for our children than the situation that exists at present, that being forty students in one room with one teacher and an aide. And, despite your personal theory on class size and how it affects learning, recent reliable studies by the National Education Association have shown that class size DOES directly affect individual achievement; that regardless of grade level, subject taught, or ability of pupils, students achieve more as class size is reduced.

And, yes, we do feel that kindergarten is comparable in importance to the fifth grade or the eighth grade or high school. If these so-called "little kids" do not learn the basics in the early grades, they are likely to have trouble in later grades. Due to many factors, kindergarten is becoming more and more academic. Children are expected to learn a lot more than they did in kindergartens past. We may not agree that this is the way it should be, but we need to face the fact that this is the way it is. This change in the nature of kindergarten is what makes individualized instruction so vital.

Although the decision to eliminate a teaching position in the Butler kindergarten may have followed a trend of reduction in TOTAL school enrollment, the kindergarten enrollment has shown no significant reduction, and may have even increased slightly. Since the elimination of the second teacher, there have been undercurrents of dissatisfaction amongst kindergarten parents. Contrary to your suspicions, THIS is the reason our group has come together. We have not been "egged on" by any unions nor are we being "used" by anyone to try to embarrass the school board or the administration.

We are simply a group of parents who would like to see the best education possible for our children. We want to be involved in our school system and should be able to speak out if something about it concerns us, without our intentions automatically under suspicion or the expression of our opinions belittled by such labels as "flap."

Elaine Barcus

The Reader's Digest Encyclopedic Dictionary gives the slang definition of "flap" as "an occasion of excited activity; emergency; crisis." The word does not necessarily have a demeaning connotation.

The above letter came as a result of an hour-long telephone conversation with a Mrs. Cutler who described herself as the leader of the objecting parents. We said "yes" when she inquired "would you print it?"

The use of information from the National Education Association could hardly be expected to bring anything but a conclusion that class size does directly affect individual achievement. The NEA is a teachers' union and as such has consistently promoted the approach that, among other things, the more you pay a teacher, the better the quality of education—and the fewer the pupils, the better the quality of education—and little kids need to be taught in their formative years (pre-grade school) by professionals, or by parents "taught" how to teach their pre-grade school children. Mrs. Cutler did acknowledge that kindergarten is not required by state law and that a suggestion to the objecting parents to visit the kindergarten had been followed by only three of the parents. Yet the group is described as "active."

We hesitate making these comments because doing so may discourage free expression of opinion. However, the appearance of two articles in two other county newspapers about this matter has given the impression that facts are being presented rather than opinions.

An article in the Butler Bulletin with the headline, "Kindergarten size condemned by experts" was a biased presentation and inferred a definite condemnation of local school administration in this matter.

A second article, in the Auburn Evening Star, found Dave Kurtz making the definite statement that the DeKalb eastern superintendent was "wrong" in his statements relating the hiring of a second kindergarten teacher at this time to the outcome of a current suit over the dismissal of a kindergarten teacher two or three years ago due to overall stabilizing or decreasing enrollment. It was not an opinion stating disagreement; it was a definite statement that the superintendent is "wrong."

We referred to the articles in our telephone conversation with Mrs. Cutler and asked if the two articles were considered "all right." The answer was "yes."

We were amazed that a statement was made, concerning the protesting parents: "We are not concerned about the quality of education; we're concerned about having another teacher for the kindergarten." Our reply-question was, "Do I get this right—you are only concerned about getting a second LICENSED teacher in place of the teacher's aide?" The answer was "yes, and keep the aide, too, if possible." (A licensed teacher is automatically better than a teacher's aide???)

We noted at the beginning of the telephone conversation that a second licensed teacher would mean some $15,000 more needed in the budget for teacher salary and related benefits and expenses. And since another columnist in the county knew so definitely that the local school superintendent is "wrong" in his statements relating hiring another teacher to a pending lawsuit, we stated that he apparently has more knowledge than the school attorney; and budgetwise, perhaps the protesting parents should ask the columnist where to find the money to cover the additional teacher expense. Mrs. Cutler said that sounded like a good idea. —Ed.

Fire Destroys Rhinehart Firm

Firemen from several area fire departments were called early Tuesday morning after trainmen on the Norfolk & Western line west of Spencerville sighted a blaze at the Rhinehart Company. The fire actually started in a railroad car on a siding at the manufacturing plant, but it spread to nearby buildings.

The fire was totally destructive and firemen were at the scene all night.

The ruins continued to smoulder through Wednesday and into Thursday this week when apparent toxic fumes were detected requiring emergency measures. Residents in the area near the fire were evacuated and a sample of plastic was delivered for tests to determine its toxicity when burning.

2nd Grade Hears Board 'Pres' On Town Government

The second grade classes of Mark Beck and Linda Madden at Riverdale Elementary School were addressed for some 45 minutes by town board president Ted Haberkorn recently. The second grade teachers included the occasion in their efforts to help young people get a beginning understanding of local government.

Mr. Haberkorn began by pointing out that government began when man came into existence. The need for rules for everyone to live by was recognized. Rules control and protect, he said. "Teachers 'rule' your classroom. Respect them," the president admonished.

It was pointed out that history tells of "good" and "bad" governments, depending on the manner in which a nation's ruler treated the people, and depending too on what each individual considers "good" or "bad."

History was referred to as basically the story of government—how people lived, what rules they made or allowed to be made. The speaker said, "When people stop taking interest in government, it becomes 'bad' because it does not then represent the people. Interest means knowing, getting information from different sources, then making a decision. The election in November is a good example of the need to be interested in government and getting knowledge of candidates in order to vote intelligently."

A brief history of Saint Joe's town government, which came into existence as a tax unit in 1899, was given. The speaker noted that some towns are not taxing units, they have no separate government but are part of the township. Spencerville was noted as an example. He noted that town trustees and the clerk-treasurer are "part-time" in pay but "full-time" in responsibilities. He mentioned several things which the town board is involved in—streets, alleys, the cemetery, the park, recreation, dog control, public drains, weeds, junk cars, nuisances, fire department and so on.

Mr. Haberkorn showed the students maps of the town and of the waterworks system.

In closing, Mr. Haberkorn said, "Public officials should be like a student—a good listener. And in town matters little things are more troublesome than big things. Remember, no one always has the right answer to problems. You can't please everyone, so do the best you can to be fair to all involved."

Voters' Diverted Attention

A lot of flack is being raised by John Walda over alleged expenditures of tax money for mileage driven by his opponent, Dan Coats, while the latter was still serving as an aide to Fourth District Congressman Dan Quayle. The Walda strategy included pulling in a Congressman from North or South Carolina.

And a lot of flack has been thrown out by Senator Birch Bayh over alleged "big oil interests" and their support of Mr. Quayle. This diverts attention from Mr. Bayh's longtime overwhelming support from "big union interests."

If Dan Coats was "campaigning illegally" before he resigned from Mr. Quayle's staff, then what do you call it when President Carter flies to three or four cities in a day last week to campaign for the Presidency??? He may be paying for his own gas (or his party may be). But who paid for the airplane???

As far as Mr. Coats is concerned, his resignation was a thoughtful and fair-minded gesture, in plenty of time to eliminate the need for the accusations now being made by Mr. Walda about illegality.

The two Dans have the background and experience to indicate that both are above nit-picking tactics to gain votes and are instead strong advocates of anything that will get the government "off our backs." They direct their efforts toward issues, not innuendos. If the two campaigns have become "low level," it has not been because of the two Dans' tactics but rather because of their opponents' tactics.

Tuesday's "debate" between President Jimmy Carter and Governor Ronald Reagan had an aftermath of silence in the major news media. There were no immediate "big stories" about the candidates' comparative showing. I have come to the following conclusion:

Mr. Reagan came off with a plus for his campaign, bringing the audible silence in the major media. Had President Carter been stronger in his showing, there would have been banner headlines.

It's something like the media waiting for the next time President Ford stumbled or tripped —anything to embarrass him— but nothing to embarrass those in the opposite party.

There could have been big headlines. A radio news report Wednesday told of an "explanation" by a State Department spokesman concerning President Carter's reference to the Palestine Liberation group as "violent." The State Department's official outlook is that "some" members of the group are violence-prone. And that's what the President meant to say but he didn't have time.

—That's what the spokesman said.

There are efforts being made at the last minute to strike fear into the hearts of voters over what might happen if they vote a certain way.

President Carter dotes on the "war monger" label he has put on Mr. Reagan. This diverts attention from the loss of our "big stick" that should go with speaking softly. (Remember how effectively the "war monger" label was put on Senator Barry Goldwater in the Presidential election of 1964? And he was crucified at the polls. Instead, we got Lyndon Johnson and Vietnam.)

Another "scare" tactic has to do with the efforts of certain religious leaders to urge voters to vote on moral issues. The "new right" is supposedly made up of these "radicals" who object to recognizing so-called "homosexual rights."

Those referred to as the "new right" object to the condoning of drug use, and they are being made to feel guilty for fearing such use. They are being made to feel guilty if they talk about "Christian principles," as if striving to reach such principles is "dictatorial" and bigoted.

What is disturbing is that the scare tactic has led more than one major denominational leader to (in effect) warn against basing one's election vote on November 4 on concern over moral decay.

Those using scare tactics say ours is not a Christian nation; we cannot inflict religion on our people whether they like it or not. We cannot destroy the separation of church and state.

In that, they are correct. The United States is not a Christian nation because that shuts out those whose religious beliefs are the foundation of Christianity but go their separate way in the matter of "who was Jesus Christ?" I am speaking of those of Jewish faith. They believe in the same one God as do Christians.

But ours IS a God-recognizing, God-fearing, God-respecting nation in its Declaration of Independence and its Constitution. Freedom of man is at the root of our national purpose and that freedom came from God.

Next Tuesday, voters should not be ashamed to make their choice on the basis of fearing what has happened to our national morality. If they don't like coddling of homosexuals by the White House, they should vote accordingly. If they don't like the condoning of drug use by the White House by members of the Administration's staff, they should vote accordingly. If they don't like the "kidnapping" of their children from a wholesome relationship based on the family to a "do your own thing" approach in education called "secular humanism" in which the children can defy their parents if they so desire because they have a "right to," then the voter should vote that way.

It is undoubtedly true that there are some overly-zealous religious leaders today; there always have been.

However, the average American, who knows there is a God, who knows that there are some things going on today that are just plain wrong because they are destroying family and other human relationships, because they are destroying, literally, minds and bodies—if the average American voter has these misgivings about our nation's direction in the past several years, they should not fear the "new right" label being attached to them and should vote their conscience.

EHS Faculty v. 'Globetravelers'

The "Globetravelers" will play the DeKalb Eastside faculty and area all-stars in a basketball game Tuesday, November 4, starting at 7:30 p. m. The game will be played at the Eastside gym.

The barnstorming team features Rex "Showboat" Jones, described as the "clown magician of basketball." Another member of the team, "Goose Jr.," is billed as the world's greatest ball handler.

Admission price is $2.50 in advance sales. The price at the door will be $3.00.

The game is sponsored by the Eastside Athletic Department.

The word from Oxford-

One of the most common confusions is "its-it's." "It's" is a possessive pronoun and adjective meaning "belonging to it."

Possessive pronouns and adjectives never take an apostrophe: its, hers, ours, yours, theirs. "The dog wagged its tail." "Its carburetor was dirty."

"It's" is a contraction of "it is." That's why "it's" needs an apostrophe. "It's a rainy day." "It's too bad that politics occupies so much of her time." So the key is this: possessive, no apostrophe. "Its tail, its coat, its shiny wet nose." Contraction, an apostrophe. "It's cold, it's damp, it's nasty."

—from the editors of the forthcoming Oxford American Dictionary.

Q. Can you enlighten me about a pouch-shaped mesh bag marked "Whiting and Davis?" —Ellen, Cleveland, O.

A. In an advertisement dated June 6, 1929, the Whiting and Davis firm of New York and Chicago announced "New Paul Poiret Pouch-Shaped Costume Bags, now available for delivery." The company further exclaimed "they are ready for the trade well in advance of the mode." Paul Poiret created the bags which were available in "Armor, Petite Armor and Dresden Enameled Mesh." The modest $18.00 price tag had flappers kicking up their heels over this latest Whiting and Davis sensation! Value guide: Poiret costume bag, silver mesh, 5 inches wide, $50.

Q. What is the value of my 4½ inch tall Hummell figurine "Feeding Time" dating from the early 1950s. It depicts a blonde haired girl feeding chickens. —Mrs. G.P., Hattiesburg, Miss.

A. Hummel figurines dating from the 1950s typically possess the William Goebel trademark known as the "Full Bee" or "Full Blown Bee." The bee flying in the V has been used by the company to the present time. Feeding Time (Hum 199/0) in the 4½ inch tall version can be found with blonde hair and dark hair. The blonde figurine is regarded as the earliest. Hummel figurines from the early 1950s fetch anything but "ho-hum" prices! Value guide: Feeding Time, 4½ inches tall, 1952, $220.

Q. As a child my hero was Tom Mix. Consequently, whenever I visit a flea market, I usually walk away with another find in this category. Would a Tom Mix price list be a possibility? —Harry, Highland, Ill.

A. Here's mixed bag of current prices on Tom Mix mementos: Belt buckle, secret compartment, $30; Compass, 1930s, $25; Identification bracelet, $27; Paint book, 96 pages, 1930s, $45; Pocket knife, $25; Ralston Now Premium Catalog, 1938, $35; Signal Arrowhead, with whistle and magnifying glass, $70; Spurs, glow in dark type, $45.

A. When indestructible cloth and linen books were initially marketed by English publishers in the first of the 19th century, parents greeted them with plaudits. By the middle of the century, Dean's of London, Darton's of London and Wheeler & Co. of London were creating cloth historical, alphabet, steamship, study and pleasure books. A decade later M-c Loughlin Bros. of New York listed cloth and linen books in oil colors for a mere thirty cents each. Untearable books of cloth proved popular for the remainder of the century, although their present scarcity would belie this fact! Value guide: McLoughlin Bros., "Little Slovenly Peter," $30.

What is a prosthesis?

Prosthesis is an artificial device used to replace a missing part of the body, such as a heart valve, hip and/or knee joint, or even an eye. Today, subsitute body parts can look so natural that in an emergency, it may be overlooked. For example, if a substitute eye is not removed on a regular basis, serious infection can occur in the eye socket.

When we know that a customer of our pharmacy has such a device, we keep the information in that patient's file.

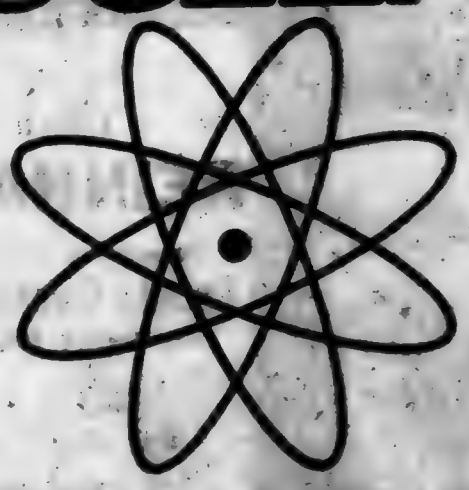
COAL

NUCLEAR



Two reasons your electric rates are below the national average.

It takes a lot of fuel to make the electricity our customers use. And because fuel is the major factor in the cost of producing electricity, your electric costs are directly affected by the kind of fuel we use.

The answer is coal and nuclear . . . plentiful, readily available and a lot cheaper to use than oil.

Last year the American Electric Power System which we're part of burned over 38 million tons of coal. And that saved our country over 150 million barrels of oil. In addition, Cook Nuclear Plant alone saved nearly 20 million barrels of oil.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met in regular session Monday with all town officers present. Others attending included John Bopp, Steve Monroe, Jake Fetters, Rich Musser, Fred Rayle, Steve Grogg and Maurice Kline.

A major item of contention was the proposed "hump" at the stop sign at Railroad and Fourth sterets. Members of the fire department continued their objection to the hump out of concern for possible damage to fire trucks or the possibility of a fireman being thrown off the truck. The hump would be located some 75 feet east of the fire hall which stands at the same intersection. Fire Chief Fred Rayle said he didn't think it was "legal" to have a hump on a public street.

When board president Ted Haberkorn began quoting from state statutes concerning the operation of emergency vehicles and what constitutes an emergency vehicle, Mr. Monroe commented to others present. The president stopped and asked Mr. Monroe what he had said. The reply was that those present shouldn't pay any attention to what was being said by the president, that the latter was "just rambling on because he doesn't like the fire department." The president noted that those attending meetings were allowed to express themselves freely during the past several months under the new board so that town residents could feel that they would be heard when they attended town board sessions. But Mr. Monroe's comments were totally wrong, the president had never criticized the fire department in its fire fighting efforts; the questions which had arisen in the past, not just in the mind of the president but others, had to do with administration of the department.

The president quoted regulations concerning the blue lights used by volunteer firemen on their vehicles. Because there had been a statement in the past that the blue light entitled the vehicle to ignore stop lights, stop signs and speed limits, the president obtained the regulations to point out that the blue light does not make a vehicle an "emergency" vehicle. Also, the stautes require that even emergency vehicles exercise caution at stop lights or signs, proceeding through them only after it is known to be safe to proceed. Speed limits can be exceeded by emergency vehicles only if there is no danger to public safety.

The hump was proposed not to inhibit the fire department or its members but to stop the frequent running of a stop sign at the intersection and excessive speeds of vehicles through a yield sign from the opposite direction. Vehicles also often cut the corner "short" when turning onto Third Street.

The result of the discussion was that board members Larry McKown and Paula Tinsman passed a motion to make the intersection a three-way stop. The "hump" was rejected.

Work on the dog kennel had been halted a month ago and a discussion was held on materials to be used and prices of the materials.

Mr. Musser voiced strong objections to the manner in which a hydrant repair project was being handled. Twice last week the entire town was shut off due to the repairs. Problems encountered during repairs resulted in the unreasonably long periods of waterless faucets in town.

Mr. Musser said the board shouldn't wait until spring to locate hidden shut-off valves; it should be done immediately. He and a friend offered their services at $10 an hour each, plus a metal detector, to locate the shut-offs. It was tentatively set up to do the job Saturday. However, Tuesday of this week Roy Eck, who has been doing the hydrant repair and related backhoe work, brought a metal detector. And he, Mr. Haberkorn, Mr. McKown, Mr. Kline, Mr. Bopp and Mr. Musser located hidden valves and confirmed the location of other valves.

Mr. Haberkorn jokingly commented to Mr. Musser, "Now don't ever say the town board doesn't jump when you holler!"

Firemen present offered to paint the hydrants when the board obtains the paint. It was suggested that a couple of flag units be obtained for attachment to hydrants which are often covered by snow during the winter.

An offer from Jerry Kirkpatrick to provide snow removal service on town streets this winter at $22.50 per hour was accepted by the board. He has a blade attachment for his four-wheel drive vehicle.

The president asked for a closed "executive session" for the board and clerk to discuss "internal affairs." The meeting was set for Wednesday, November 12, at 7:00 p.m. at the fire hall.

Bills allowed included:

Town—John Bopp, labor 167.50; Jiggs' Motor Service, gas 7.34; McNabb Heating, furnace repair at fire hall 55.60; Betty Baker, gas 15.00; Auburn Veterinary Clinic, disposal of dogs $15.00; Steve Bevington, mowing of park 800.00; Daniel Backhoe Service, 174.00; Masolite Concrete Products, tile 66.50; Leo Builders Supply, plywood for kennels 100.80; Arthur Nieto, cemetery mowing 209.00, cemetery mowng 209.00.

Waterworks—Post Office, stamped envelopes 167.00; Maurice Kline, salary and postage 82.14.

When the town bills were presented, Mr. Haberkorn said he would not sign the vouchers related to tile repair on the main street because he was not convinced the obligation for the repair fell on the town. The matter had been discussed at the October meeting in a "hot" session. The repair cost the town a total of $240.50. However, approval for payment requires only two signatures.

Legion Presents Radio Unit To Fire Department

—by Steve Bevington

When the American Legion in St. Joe dispersed, they had some money they wanted to see used to benefit the community. The St. Joe Fire Department is indebted to the Legion because they agreed to buy the department a hand-held fire radio or more commonly called a walkie-talkie, a six watt, six channel unit capable of reaching DeKalb County Fire Dispatch from St. Joe. It will be used for communication when entering a house whether it be a fire emergency or a rescue or medical emergency.

The community and the St. Joe Fire Dept. owe a big "thanks" to the Legion for its generous donation.

The Saint Joe Fire Dept. held its annual chicken barbecue Sunday, October 12, at the Riverdale cafetorium. We don't have an exact total yet but we estimate a profit between three and four hundred dollars. We would like to thank the people that came out and supported us. We have some chicken left for anyone interested at two dollars a half. If interested please see or call Don Moore. Don's phone number is 337-5036.

We are presently changing the method in which we are notified about a fire or emergency. In the past we have used a conference phone system where all the firemen's phones ring. This system's disadvantages are that we receive numerous wrong numbers and prank calls. Another disadvantage is when a fireman is out of his house he will not hear the phone. The system we are changing to is a central dispatch or paging system. Each fireman will have a monitor or pager that is tone activated by the DeKalb County Sheriff's Department.

This system will eliminate any pranks or wrong numbers because the sheriff's dispatch will screen all calls and we will be paged only when there is an actual emergency. Also, with this system firemen can be reached out of their house by the use of a pocket scanner or pocket pager.

The new fire number will be 925-3365 and will be put into service as soon as we can make everyone aware of the new number.

Above, left to right, Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post 288 members Clayton A. Baker, Grant Baltz, Forrest Bevington and Dale Collins as they recently presented a "walkie-talkie" to local fire department officers Fred Rayle, Chuck Laux and Steve Monroe. (Legion members not in the photo include Max Markle, Walt Ervin and Orville (Babe) Coburn.)

The Olds Family Of Saint Joe And Spencerville

(from Richard A. Olds of Kalamazoo, Michigan)

Approximately 125 living Americans can today claim decent from the once-prominent Olds family of the Saint Joe/Spencerville area. Their progenitors, Samuel N. and Mary Caroline Olds, chose this area in 1866 as their final settling place and a number of their children remained until after the turn of the century.

Samuel was 48 and Caroline 40 when Samuel bought the old Dawson general store on Spencerville's South Main Street in 1866 and moved his family from Ft. Wayne to a home south of the store and near the curve. Their five living children (of eight born up to that time) were George, 20, Mary, 18, Mort, 9, Lena, 6, and Will, 2. Nellie and Arthur were yet to be born (in Spencerville) in 1868 and 1871 respectively.

The move to Spencerville was one of many that Samuel and Caroline had made. Both having been born and raised in Franklin County, Vermont, Samuel first came to Indiana as a 20 year old bachelor in 1838 where he learned the hatmaking trade from a brother-in-law, Henry Sharp, in Ft. Wayne. He returned to Vermont by 1844 to marry Caroline Robinson and remain 11 years to make hats and caps and start his family. In 1855 he returned to Ft. Wayne, this time with family, and for the next 11 years was engaged in hatmaking in that city, except for a 3½ year farming stint (1859-1861) in Eel River Township about 9 miles nothwest of Ft. Wayne.

Samuel prospered in his new occupation in Spencerville and three of his four sons later followed his lead by having their own retail operations for varying periods of time. Samuel sold his store and retired in 1883. In 1890, with all children out of the house, Samuel and Caroline moved to Saint Joe where they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary five years later and where Samuel died in 1899. Caroline spent her remaining 9 years staying in the homes of her six remaining children and their families who, by the end of that period, had all dispersed to locations outside of DeKalb County. A biographical sketch of each of Samuel and Caroline's children follows:

GEORGE HENRY (1848-1882)

Excited about the farm life he had experienced in his teens, George Henry departed Spencerville by 1870 for Minnesota to pursue his agricultural ambitions. Settling near Ash Creek in that state's southwestern corner, he prospered, married and fathered two children, Charles and Alice, before his untimely death of appendicitis complications at age 36. Nearly 75 descendants, including 9 grandchildren, are living today throughout the U.S.

MARY ELIZABETH (1848-1926)

Twenty-four year old Mary married 41 year old bachelor farmer John Dills in 1873 and moved to his farm home located between Spencerville and Saint Joe, which Mary was to call Dillside. Of three children born to them, only daughter Harriet (later Mrs. Ora Hart of Hicksville, Ohio) lived beyond childhood. Shortly after the turn of the century, Mary and John retired to Hicksville, where their only remaining projeny, granddaughters Edith Smith and Kathleen Daugherty, are still living today.

MORTON ELIAS (1857-1927)

At an early age, Mort developed a liking for both his father's business and the printing trade. Page 20 of Dr. Carey's "History of Spencerville" mentions that Mort published a small local paper called "News" there about 1877. Following his marriage to local farm girl Ada Coder in 1878, Mort moved first to Newville to clerk in the Coburn store and in 1880 to Saint Joe for a business venture with Enullus Case and later to found the Saint Joe News. His residency in Saint Joe lasted until shortly after 1900 when he first moved to Bluffton, Indiana, and finally to Clinton, Michigan, to pursue retailing ambitions. A child, Arch (1892-1959), was adopted about 1898 by Mort and Ada. Arch remained in Crawfordsville, Indiana, following schooling at DePauw and marriage to wealthy Esther Detchon, whose family fortune he then managed for a living. Arch and Esther had no children.

ALENE MARIETTA (1860-1927)

Lena was censused as a teacher and still living at home in 1880. She subsequently married a railroad man, Wm. McClaren, and is know to have lived in towns of Argos and Frankfort, Indiana, and Fostoria and Lima, Ohio. The McClarens' only child to reach adulthood was William, Jr., who settled in Grand Rapids, Michigan, where he and his wife raised a son and daughter born in the 1930's. Their parents both now deceased, a search for these children and any progeny they may have has not yet been successful.

WILLIAM J. (1863-1947)

Will was to become the most transient of the Olds children. Dr. Carey's book reveals his early grocery and tin shop ventures in Spencerville as well as his affiliation with brother Mort after moving to Saint Joe in 1886. In 1886 he married Hicksville's Bertha Coughenour and is believed to have soon moved to Michigan to run a store there. By the early 1890's he joined younger brother Arthur in running the Olds Bros. variety store in Auburn which specialized in china and glassware. This association was to end by about 1901 when Will was offered the chance to work a farm a mile east of LaGrange, Indiana, that his childless maternal uncle, LaGrange's George P. Robinson, had recently bought. Will later inherited this farm and he and Bertha, who had no children, remained there until 1926 when they moved to Hicksville to spend their remaining years. The LaGrange farm was sold to brother Arthur's son, Frank, and remains in Frank's family today.

NELLIE (1868-1953)

Nellie married John R. Bishop, son of one-time Spencerville merchant Peter Bishop, in 1887. John pursued retailing interests in Plainwell, Michiman, in the 1890's, but returned with family to Concord Township by 1900 when he was censused as a merchant in Saint Joe. By 1906 the family was in Bluffton where Nellie and John were to remain. Their daughter, Grace, married but had no children and daughter Florence and son Fred never married. Florence, 86 year old former teacher, textbook author and long-time resident of Flint, Michigan, is the only one of the children still living.

ARTHUR BRAINERD (1871-1955)

Arthur clerked in Spencerville's grist mill and Chaney Bros. meat market before finishing his formal 10 year education in 1887. After teaching a term of school in Newville, he moved to Auburn to work at the Zimmerman Buggy Factory before joining brother Will in a 7th Street variety store venture by 1894. In April 1895 he married Rose Wildred Kline of Auburn and they were to spend the next 10 years in this town, during which time Arthur became sole proprietor of the store and proud father of Ruth, George, Esther, Frank and Herbert. In 1905 Arthur became seriously ill and was moved with Wildred and surviving children (Ruth had died in 1901) to brother Will's farm home near LaGrange. Here he regained his health, purchased adjoining acreage, prospered as a farmer and enjoyed good health for most of his remaining 50 years. Farm-born Charlie and Mary increased the family to four boys (all of whom became successful farmers near LaGrange) and two daughters (who eventually became LaGrange County teachers Esther Forst and Mary Anderson). Arthur and Wildred's eleven grandchildren, which include this writer, were all raised on LaGrange County farms and had the opportunity to know and treasure their Olds grandparents before Arthur passed on in 1955 and Wildred in 1967. Living progeny of this beloved couple now total 46 and include 4 children (Frank and Herbert died in the 1950's), 10 grandchildren, 25 "great grands" and 5 "great great grands."

(The News is indebted to Mr. Olds for sharing with readers the fruits of his efforts to trace his family history.)

The word from Oxford-

Wrong: "I laid down for a nap." Right: "I lay down for a nap." Why? "Laid" is the past tense of "lay" meaning to place: "I laid the book down." "I laid the table."

"Lay" is the past tense of "lie," meaning to rest or to take a position of rest: "I lie down for a few minutes each day." "He lay down on his bed that day." It helps to remember that "lay" always requires an object: something must be laid down. We never lie anything down. At least we shouldn't.

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. Can you date our Domino clock from the Ingraham firms? —Mr. G.T., Hayward, Calif.

A. Treasured indeed are the various timepieces ascribed to the E Ingraham and Co. of Bristol, Conn. Mantels of the late Victorian period held a host of their coveted clocks. The rather dramatic Domino shelf clock, having a black painted wood case, was introduced in 1886. Black clocks were the rage of the 1880s! This model had a brass eight-day spring driven movement with strike. According to company catalogs, it was discontinued by 1892. What was its original selling price? A modest $11! Value guide: Domino shelf clock, $265.

Q. At a yard sale I purchased a marigold water pitcher in Carnival glass having a windmill decor. Who made this pattern? May, Lebanon, Pa.

A. Chalk up this fortunate find to the Imperial Glass Co. of Ohio. In the early 1900s they joined such fellow makers as Northwood, Fenton and Millersburg in producing quantities of iridescent glass. Finding pieces of the firm's Windmill design can keep collectors spinning regardless of color. Beginning collectors please note: this pattern has been extensively reproduced, so buyer beware! Value guide: Windmill water pitcher, marigold, $50.

Q. I buy every McCoy cookie jar I can find. Would a price list in this category be available? —Sandra, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. To please the ever growing number of McCoy cookie jar collectors, here's a baker's dozen plus prices: Apple, $16; Banana Bunch, $23; Bear, cookies in vest, $19; Chipmunk, $25; Clown in barrel, $25; Cookie Cabin, $28; Covered Wagon, $25; Indian head, $60; Kangaroo, baby in pouch, $24; Oaken Bucket, $24; Pot Belly Stove, $28; Teapot, $50; Turkey, $45; World Globe, $48.

Q. Would my piece of sheet music "The Road is Open Again," picturing Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dick Powell be worth preserving? —Mabel, Macom, Mo.

A. Numerous presidents have been honored by American songwriters, often for inaugural or campaign events. Due to his length of time in office and wartime patriotism Franklin D. Roosevelt proved to be a popular subject with publishers. "The Road is Open Again" was performed by Dick Powell, who is pictured on the cover along with the president, in a propaganda short subject for the National Reconstruction Administration. Locating this song sheet in the attic trunk along with your old hair nets and war ration books means you're $15 wealthier!

What is a prosthesis?

Prosthesis is an artificial device used to replace a missing part of the body, such as a heart valve, hip and/or knee joint, or even an eye. Today, substitute body parts can look so natural that in an emergency, it may be overlooked. For example, if a substitute eye is not removed on a regular basis, serious infection can occur in the eye socket.

When we know that a customer of our pharmacy has such a device, we keep the information in that patient's file.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

Who was

"BEAN-BELLY" BETZ?

'Bean-belly' Betz - Restauranteur Of The 1920's

Florence (Stewart) Baker, a former resident of Saint Joe who now resides in Fort Wayne, has provided The News with some photos from "way back when."

Included are the three presented here, showing John "Bean-belly" Betz, his restaurant and his home.

From the photo it is obvious where he got his nickname. And in addition to operating what obviously was a popular restaurant, Mr. Betz is involved in some colorful tales occasionally heard from long-time residents of Saint Joe.

One of the stories is that, in the good old days before inside plumbing, an outhouse was "standard equipment" at any residence or business. And naturally, there were some pranks played involving those small edifices. Kids occasionally tipped them over, especially at Halloween time.

On one occasion the outhouse at the restaurant was tipped over, which was not unusual in itself. However, the act was perpetrated when Mr. Betz was in it.

The photo showing the restaurant includes the popular "bench" (a plank) between the restaurant and a building to the east. The sign at the left says "Maple Restaurant" and the sign on the other building has only one word faintly readable: "Laundry."

The building which housed the restaurant is now the residence of Steve Monroe and is located across the street from the local hardware.

The building with the "laundry" sign is now the home of "Family Cuts & Curls."

The photo of Mr. Betz and his wife, Mary at their home on Washington Street is recognizable as the present residence of MM Mike Studebaker.

GS Troop 29

—Lois Hook, reporter

Junior Girl Scout Troop 29 has been busy lately. Besides working hard on various badge requirements, we made Halloween treats for the Multiple Handicapped School at East Auburn, which we have "adopted."

On October 27 we went trick or treating for UNICEF, then had a Halloween party.

On October 30 we visited the post office, Knisely Bank and the St. Joe News, then hiked to Wild Cherry Park where we ate sack lunches, then hiked on to the Allen Holman farm where we played games and cooked our supper over a camp fire.

On November 1, eleven girls and two adults spent the day in Fort Wayne, taking part in Fine Arts Day. We saw ballet at the Embassy Theater; took part in a song fest; made a "carton container" at the Children's Wing of the Fort Wayne Art Museum; and toured the Lincoln Museum.

We had our regular meeting on November 3. We made vagabond stoves and hand puppets.

The Court of Honor (Nora Baker, Amy Hook, Althea Moore and Vita Myslinski) chose our troop crest—the bluebird.

We are glad to have Linda Landrum join Lois Hook and Pat Holman as one of our leaders.

When A Feller - And Family - Needs A Friend

The photo (right) showing a field being plowed Saturday, November 8, is explained by the following letter:

"Dear Ted,

"Here is a thank you note I wish you would print for me.

"I would like to thank the following friends for donating their time and equipment in helping me finish my fall plowing:

"Chuck Arnett, Pete and Jerry Storer, Buzz "Danny" Brown, Phil Washler, Stan Washler; Dick Crow, Roger Cook, Pat Crow.

"P.S. A special thanks goes to Allen and Carlyle Holman for organizing and their help in plowing.

"A sincere thanks and appreciation goes out to the men from myself and my family.

Randy Reinhart"

Only two of the several plowing units could be caught in the photo; the others were spread out across the field.

Randy suffered a broken leg and burns when a barrel exploded as he cut out one end. Despite the handicap of a cast on one leg, he is reported to have done his combining and other work assisted by Mrs. Reinhart. But the fields with corn stubble were too much to handle and that's where the volunteer helpers came in, to do the fall plowing on some 160 acres.

Randy has had skin grafts on his leg to add to the burdens of his recovery.

On one field Randy commented: "They're doing in two and a half hours what it takes me two days to do."

He also noted that the equipment in the field represented about a quarter of a million dollars of investments for those owning and operating the equipment.

The word from Oxford-

"Incredible" and "incredulous"—how to tell them apart? "Incredible" means unbelievable: "He told an incredible story of overpowering three armed muggers." "Incredulous" means unbelieving: "His story was so far-fetched that I was incredulous." So "incredible"—except when used loosely by imagination-starved sprts broadcasters—describes events, reports, etc., that one cannot believe. "Incredulous," on the other hand, describes people who show disbelief. One might say that as long as every other forward pass and most baseball plays are described as incredible, sports fans should remain incredulous.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. What information can you furnish on a small fairing from Conta & Boehme marked "Cancan"? —Frances, Bay City, Michigan.

A. Between the 1860s and the 1890s small porcelain groups depicting everyday situations were produced in abundance by Conta & Boehme of Pressnock, Saxony. They were exported to Britain in enormous quantities. Most surfaced as prizes and souvenirs at local fairgrounds. Many so-called "fairings" illustrated humorous or naughty scenes of courtship or marriage. The earlier examples were larger and more finely modeled than the later versions. Fairings have fared well with flea market shoppers! Value guide: Fairing, Cancan, 3½ inches tall, $45.

Q. Would a price list on old almanacs be possible? —Mr. G. P., Concord, N. C.

A. Did you realize that almanacs antedate newspapers in America? The first ones were printed in the late 1600s. Age, condition and contents determine value, with those published prior to 1860 receiving the most pricewise. Value guide: An Astronomical Diary, 1682, $15; Bickerstaff's New England Almanac, 1768, $45; Boston Almanac & Business Directory, 1847, $25; Hagerstown Town & Country Almanack, first edition, 1797, $90; Medical Almanac, 1844, $10; Rhode Island Almanac, 1817, $12.

Q. While making the rounds of garage sales I purchased a silverplated cake basket marked "Monarch Silver Co." Where did this piece originate? —Marie, Haddonfield, N. J.

A. Wares marked accordingly can be accurately ascribed to the Standard Silver Co of Toronto, Ontario. The company was organized in 1895. Obviously, the owners endeavored to mass market their wares concentrating on the production of silverplated flatware, hollow ware and hotel silver. In 1898 the firm was one of the original companies to form the International Silver Co. Cake baskets bearing this company's trademark fetch a delicious $90.

Q. We own a Tiffany-type chandelier marked "Coca-Cola." Someone told us it rates as a rarity. —Mr. and Mrs. F. L, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

A. The CocaCola Co. issued this coveted chandelier between 1905 and 1920. It measured 15½x11½ inches. The trademark "Coca-Cola" and the dome panels are of white opaque glass, while the trademark panel is ruby red stained glass. The chandeliers had an ornate metal band near the top which read "Property of Coca-Cola Co. To be returned on demand." Because these chandeliers sell in the neighborhood of $2,500, the chances of one being returned remains highly unlikely!

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

There's nothing like goofing a column on proper language use, as I did in setting type for the "Word from Oxford" column about "its" and "it's."

Andy Crow pointed out the apostrophe which shouldn't have been there in the explanation that "its" is a possessive pronoun. When I set the type, the word came out "it's."

—Its pretty bad when an editor can't catch an error in the explanation of a word and it's proper use.

I had a brief but pleasant visit with James H. "Jim" Jones a couple of weeks ago. He knew my father years ago when both were active in Shrine activities—Jim in the Shrine Band and Dad in the Chanters.

After a close call by a motorist a few weeks ago at the railroad crossing at Concord, Bruce Johnson stopped in to offer a word to the wise.

The crossing has automatic flashing signals. But for one reason or another they were not working when a northbound motorist went through the crossing at a pretty good clip—and just barely missed being hit by a train. Bruce witnessed the incident.

There isn't a mechanical or electronic device that's perfect. So it's foolish to totally depend on them. The safe bet at ANY railroad crossing is to look both ways for an approaching train.

I know that on a couple of Sundays this past summer, the gates were down and the flashing lights were on for hours at the crossing a half-mile east of town.

Thanks to Bruce for offering some wise advice for motorists in this area.

What is a prosthesis?

Prosthesis is an artificial device used to replace a missing part of the body, such as a heart valve, hip and/or knee joint, or even an eye. Today, substitute body parts can look so natural that in an emergency, it may be overlooked. For example, if a substitute eye is not removed on a regular basis, serious infection can occur in the eye socket.

When we know that a customer of our pharmacy has such a device, we keep the information in that patient's file.

Dear Ted, 1 Nov 90

During my recent stay in Florida at Bootcamp I really appreciated getting the St. Joe News. In fact my whole company enjoyed it.

Now that I'm in California at school, I would like to take this time to give you my new address and to say thank you for the paper.

The old saying about you never know what you have 'till it's gone is true. As you know I lived my whole life in St. Joe. I couldn't help but think there had to be something more to the states. Through the Navy I'm going to have my chance to see it.

Right now I'm studying to become a Radioman. A Radioman is the person who transmits all the messages at a station, by the use of a Morse Code machine, teletypewriter, phones, lights and on occasion flags.

At the present time I'm studying on the teletypewriter. The school is 12 weeks long, after which I'm going to begin Morse Code school, which will include learning the lights and flags.

Thanks again for the News.

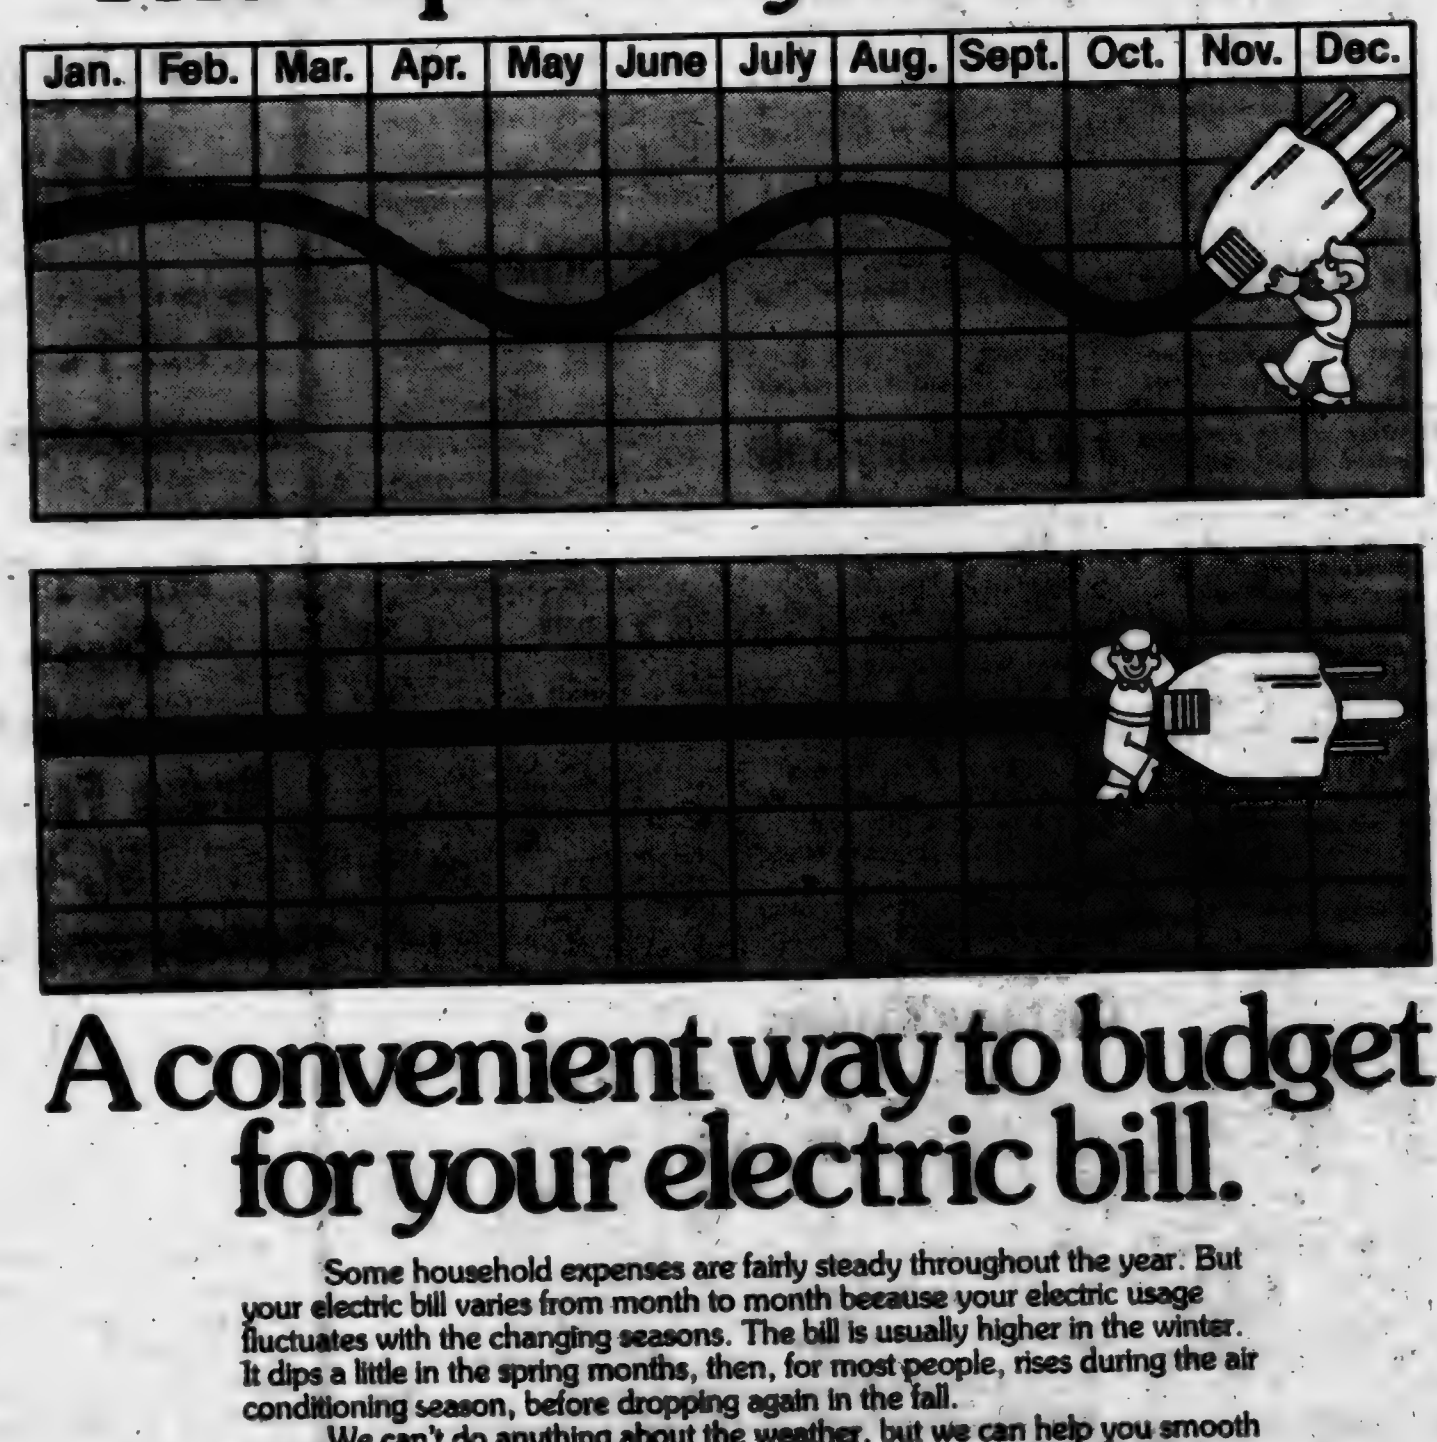
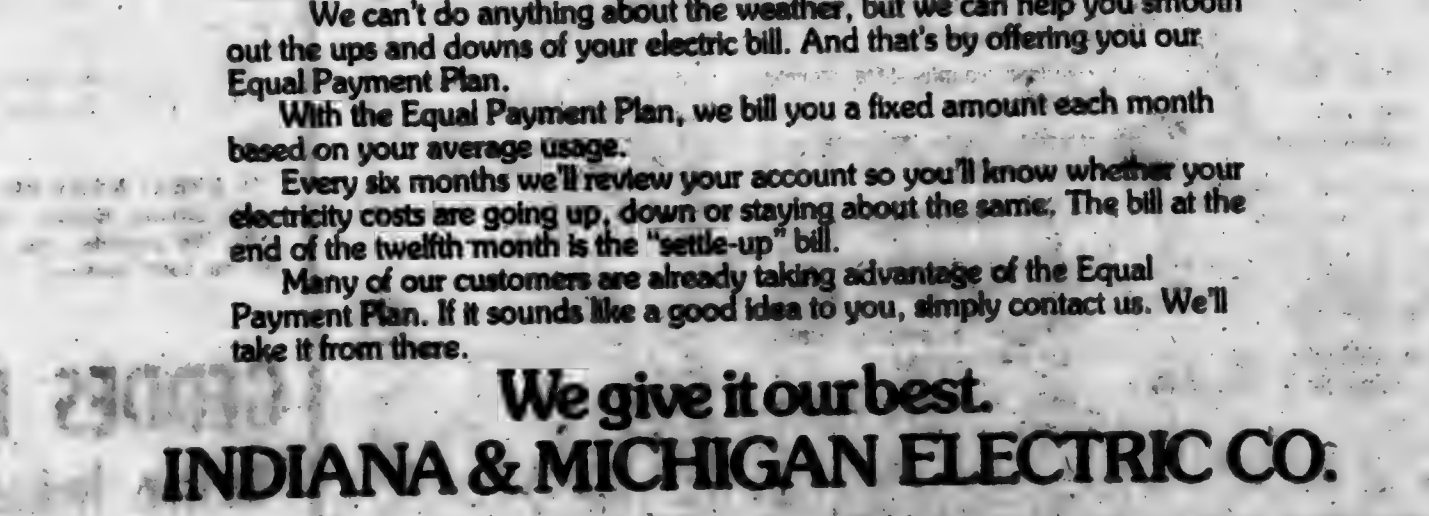
The Equal Payment Plan.





A convenient way to budget for your electric bill.

Some household expenses are fairly steady throughout the year. But your electric bill varies from month to month because your electric usage fluctuates with the changing seasons. The bill is usually higher in the winter. It dips a little in the spring months, then, for most people, rises during the air conditioning season, before dropping again in the fall.

We can't do anything about the weather, but we can help you smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill. And that's by offering you our Equal Payment Plan.

With the Equal Payment Plan, we bill you a fixed amount each month based on your average usage.

Every six months we'll review your account so you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, down or staying about the same. The bill at the end of the twelfth month is the "settle-up" bill.

Many of our customers are already taking advantage of the Equal Payment Plan. If it sounds like a good idea to you, simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

We give it our best.

Advent -The Days Before Christmas

—Paul M. Lindberg (Fortress Press, Philadelphia)

THE STORY OF ADVENT

Advent is known, and yet not known. To some it is merely a name; to others it is a beautiful custom, a lovely practice. Most of us have taken little, if indeed any, time to learn the history of the season or ponder its significance.

Advent does have a history, however, and an interesting one. To begin with, the Advent season as we now know it does not go back to the beginning of the Christian Era. It may come as a surprise, or even a shock, to learn that the date for the celebration of Christmas has not always been December twenty-fifth. There was a time, for instance, when Christmas was celebrated on the sixth of January. The Church year took form only gradually, and even today is not uniform everywhere.

Advent, as we think of it today, is a season of preparation for Christmas. It includes four Sundays and a variable number of additional days, depending on the day of the week on which December twenty-fifth falls. There is no evidence of an estabilshed celebration of Christmas on December twenty-fifth until the fourth century, and the season of preparation for that celebration is necessarily even more recent.

The season of Advent as such is not mentioned until about the seventh century. Its observance is said to have originated in Gaul. However, a synod at Saragossa, Spain, in 380 prescribed a penitential preparation for Christmas. Canon IV (a church rule) states that from the seventeenth of December to the Feast of Epiphany (January 6), everyone must attend church daily, and that worshippers may not go to church with bare feet. This canon is thought to be the first rule ever passed regarding the observanvce of the season before Christmas.

There is some vague evidence that a small church council held at Tours about A.D. 567 prescribed a fast to be kept by monks every day in December. This is regarded by some as the first unquestionable reference to an Advent season. A few years later, in the south of Gaul, there is found what seems to be a less exacting rule that applied to everyone regarding the number of days on which the fast was to be observed. It appears evident that it involved a period of fasting, broken only on the third Sunday, which bore the designation, Gaudete, "Rejoice ye."

The Council of Macon, A.D. 581, also had something to say about the season we know as Advent. Beginning with the Festival of St. Martin (November 11), the second, fourth and sixth days of the week were to be observed as days of fasting. The length of the season, however, seems to have varied a great deal, ranging from six weeks to three, and even two. At the close of the sixth century, Rome established the four Sundays before Christmas as Advent Sundays; in the next century this practice became prevalent, though not universal, in the West.

In Roman Catholic churches today practices vary greatly as to fasting. In Great Britain and Ireland Wednesdays and Fridays are often observed as fast days; but in many parts of Europe the weeks in Advent are not set apart in any special way.

In England forty days of fasting before the celebration of the birth of the Lord were observed in the seventh and eighth centuries, as ordered for the Western church by Charlemagne's "Homilarium." In 1662 the English Book of Common Prayer stated that "Advent Sunday is always the Sunday nearest to the Feast of St. Andrew (November 30), whether before or after."

In the Greek church the general observance of forty days of penitential preparation for Christmas does not appear to have been established before the thirteenth century. The Greek church of today begins the forty days of preparation on November eleventh. The fast is somewhat rigorous on Wednesdays and Fridays and somewhat relaxed on the other days.

Different customs have obtained and still obtain during Advent. The Armenians, for instance, observe a fast during the week preceding the Nativity, and during one week beginning fifty days before the Nativity. For this reason, it has been thought that these two weeks are a survival of a fast that had originally lasted fifty days. In Normandy farmers still employ children to run with lighted torches through the fields and orchards setting fire to bundles of straw in order to drive out vermin so that the Christ child might have a clean bed. In Italy the last days of Advent are marked by the entry into Rome of the Calabrian pifferari (itinerant musicians from Calabria) who play bagpipes before the shrines of the Holy Mother, as the shepherds are believed to have done before the infant Savior.

It was natural, perhaps inevitable, that in those branches of the early Protestant church which reacted violently against even the celebration of Christmas there should be no interest in the Advent season as such. In the liturgical branches of the Protestant church, of course, the season has always had considerable meaning. But it is to be noted that in nearly all churches there is today a tendency to a growing observance of the special days and seasons of the Church year. The renewed emphasis presently being given to Advent is in part a reaction against the growing secularization of Christmas. Advent is seen to afford the Christian an opportunity to think clearly and soberly about the mystery of the Incarnation.

Next: The celebration of Advent.

Retiree Protect'n Bill A Problem

In its final meeting of the interim between sessions of the full Indiana General Assembly, the committee on retirement home projects rejected a draft of a bill aimed at protecting a retiree's investment in a life-care contract.

State Representatie Norman Gerig of Auburn, chairman of the committee, reports that the bill would not work for several reasons. The idea had been to place life-care contracts under the scrutiny of the Securities and Exchange Commission. This would require a financlai prospectus from new retirement homes.

However, it was found that the cost of preparing a prospectus is "incredibly high," according to Mr. Gerig. Requiring the homes to prepare a new one each year would be prohibitive, particularly to smaller retirement homes, he noted.

"The SEC informed us that it did not have the expertise necessary to examine this type of prospectus, nor did it have the manpower to review it," Mr. Gerig said. "Then there is also the problem that anyone offering a life-care contract must be a registered broker. This requires extensive training which has nothing to do with health care."

Mr. Gerig is still hopefull, however. that some of the other bills coming out of the committee will be introduced in the 1981 sessionof the General Assembly. He anticipates few objections to bills such as one giving the retiree a 10-day "cooling off" period during which he or she can cancel the contract, or one requiring current financial records of retirement homes which can be inspected by residents.

Q. Is my childhood Baby Dainty doll now considered a collectible? —Nan, Corning, N.Y.

A. Baby Dainty scored an instant hit with playroom occupants upon her introduction in 1912. The EFFanBEE Doll Co. of New York City kept this choice collectible in production for the next 10 years. She had a composition shoulder head, painted molded hair, and painted features. Originally, the doll were one of the firm's metal heart-shaped bracelets. Some specimens were marked simply "EFFanBEE", others "EFFanBEE, Baby Dainty." Presently, the 15-inch tall Baby Dainty doll sells for a delightful $75.

Q. Would it be possible to assist me in appraising a small collection of ink bottles? —Ralph, Waco, Texas.

A. A review of present day prices indicates that ink bottles have left a permanent mark on collectors: Bixby, C-590, $37; Carter's New Carmine Writing Fluid, 1986, $10; Harrison's Columbian, etched, aqua, 1¼-inch tall, $60; S. P. Dunbar, OP, C-520, $140; Stafford's Master, 4-inch tall, $27; Underwood's Master, cobalt, 9¼-inch tall, $35.

Q. What company produced the Horseshoe Depression glass pattern? —Millie, Souderton, Pa.

A. The Indiana Glass Co. of Dunkirk, Indiana, added this mold etched pattern to production schedules between 1930 and 1933. Depression period consumers could purchase modestly priced dinner services in crystal, green and yellow. The pattern consisted of circular panels of double lines and beading enclosing elaborate scrollwork designs. Originally the Horseshoe pattern was referred to as the No. 612 design. Trying to acquire a complete tableware service? Take along your lucky horseshoe for this pattern is far from plentiful. Value guide: oval vegetable bowl, green $10.

Q. When was upholstered wicker furniture fashionable? —Mr. J. P., St. Louis, Mo.

A. By the second decade of the 1900s, upholstered wicker pieces were being advertised by the nations' formost retail outlets. Sears, Roebuck and Co. offered a three-piece set consisting of a settee, rocking chair and armchair for just $26.50. And to think it was upholstered in a "floral figured art pattern cretone in bright colors." A decade later upholstered wicker furniture was still flabbergasting flappers! Value guide: rocker, floral upholstery, circa 1925, $165.

The word from Oxford

Question: What's the difference between an "allusion" and a "reference"? A good answer goes like this: Even though an allusion is a reference, it only suggests. Indeed, it does not come right out and name the person or object to which it refers. The listener or reader is left to make the connection. If someone speaks of "an 18½-minute gap," he is making an allusion. Do you know the recent incident to which this phrase alludes? A reference, on the other hand, is direct: "The coach made reference to our previous 86-48 loss." "The speaker's reference to Section 2 paragraph 3 was effective."

Important news about drug interactions

Drug interactions occur when two or more drugs given to an individual cause an undesirable reaction totally different to the desired effects of each individual drug. As could be imagined, there are many types of drug interactions.

For example, a combination of alcohol and barbiturates may result in death when the same amount of either taken separately would be less harmful. Amphetamines produce numerous interactions with other drugs. Marijuana prolongs the action of barbiturates, while withdrawal from barbiturates may produce convulsions and death if not properly treated.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

NEW
IT'S HERE! ETS... A HOME AND WATER HEATING SYSTEM WITH A NEW, LOWER ELECTRIC RATE.

Suppose you had a special furnace and water heater that could store heat, saving it for use throughout the entire day.

Suppose this furnace and water heater used electricity only at night.

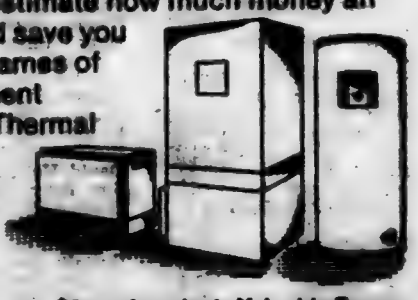
Suppose you could buy that nighttime electricity at a new lower rate. And this lower rate would apply to all the electricity your home uses, every night Monday through Friday from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. plus all weekend around the clock from Friday night until Monday morning.

Suppose all these things came true, wouldn't that be great?

Well wait no longer because they've just come true. Thanks to a new heating system called Electric Thermal Storage. ETS, for short.

How ETS stores heat and hot water for your home is an interesting story. How ETS qualifies you for a lower electric rate makes the story even better.

Contact us to learn more about ETS. There's much more we can tell and we'll give you our special SAVE* booklet on ETS. If you're interested, we'll estimate how much money an ETS system could save you and provide the names of local ETS equipment dealers. Electric Thermal Storage . . . we think it's the best thing to happen in a long, long time.



*Save America's Valuable Energy.

We give it our best.

Advent - The Days Before Christmas

—Paul M. Lindberg (Fortress Press, Philadelphia)

THE CELEBRATION OF ADVENT

Every Christian experience and attitude has its focus in the life of the family. Any sacred observance in the public sanctuary has a direct relationship to life in the family circle at home. For this reason many Christian families set aside a period each day for Advent worship in the home.

Some find the moments after breakfast most convenient. Others prefer a period after dinner or at bedtime. They gather around the table after the meal, or in the living room, or in some other part of the home which may be suitable as a focal center for worship. Here the Advent candles are placed and the Bible opened.

While the head of the family reads a suitable Advent prophecy, another member of the family lights the proper Advent candle or candles. The following prophecies are frequently used in this connection: Zechariah 9:9-10; Isaiah 40: 3-5; Malachi 3: 1-2; and Jeremiah 33:14-16. Following meditation or discussion, a selected prayer for the day or brief informal prayers may be offered by members of the family. The traditional collects for the four Sundays in Advent are often used in the sequence established by tradition. Following the Lord's Prayer and the singing of an Advent hymn members of the family wait silently and reverently while the Advent candles are extinguished.

The word Advent means "coming," and has reference to the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ in his varied manifestations: his coming in the flesh and in weakness at the Incarnation, his coming in spirit and in power to the believer in this day, and his final coming in glory and majesty for judgment.

To the believer Advent is the season of rejoicing always, in any and every phase — the birth of Jesus for us, his birth in us, and his final coming to judge us. The believer has something of the feeling of the Israelites who rejoiced that the Lord was coming to judge the earth because he would "judge the world with righteousness, and the people with equity."

It has been rightly said that as long as we live on earth we are living in Advent. While there is the note of seriousness associated with Christ's final coming, hidden and yet crucial, our hearts are nonetheless filled with eager anticipation.

Some Advent hymns sound the note of solemn judgment. Others, however, speak of glad anticipation.

Elements of both seriousness and joy are appropriate in the observance of Advent, but joy is the characteristic mood. The Christian's joy remains unaffected by satellites, computers or any man-made invention because his faith is in God. With the exiled seer of old he exclaims, "Amen. Come, Lord Jesus."

March Of Dimes Officers Named

The fall 1980 meeting of the DeKalb County Chapter of the March of Dimes was held at the home of Mrs. Melody Mason.

New officers are: Melody Mason, chairman; Marilyn Bassett, vice-chairman; Dianne Snyder, secretary; Jenny Bowers, treasurer.

New city chairman for Auburn is Jeanne Krontz, for Corunna, Sally Dukes. Publicity chairman is Jackie Rowan.

Dr. Dennis Dukes will continue to be the chapter's medical advisor, along with his wife, Sally, as one of the new board members.

The annual Mother's March for the March of Dimes was discussed along with the convention was held in October in Chicago. Local chapter members did attend.

The March of Dimes reminds everyone that local support helps those in this community. Every child born at DeKalb Memorial Hospital is aided by equipment purchased by the county March of Dimes.

Anyone interested in joining the March of Dimes effort should contact Mrs. Mason.

Meeting Nights Changed

The town board of Saint Joe will change its meeting night for the months of December, January and February.

Normally scheduled for the first Monday of the month, the meetings for the three months will be held the last Tuesday of the month.

Meeting time is 7:00 p.m.

NEW FIRE NUMBER 925-3365

Those having telephones in the 337-(Saint Joe) exchange area should make emergency fire calls by [illegible] 925-3365. This change means such calls through the sheriff's department central dispatch. DeKalb firemen are then summoned by a tone code heard on their monitors. The firemen recently purchased monitors in order to set up the new system.

Just For The Record - - -

Just for the record, the vote totals for precincts in the local area are listed below. DeKalb County followed the pattern set across the state and nation in the "surprise" victories won by Republicans.

Only one Democrat won office in DeKalb County. In a very close race, Ron Feller won an at-large seat on the County Council, edging Howard McDaniel.

Energy Info Offered, Additional History Sought In 'Letters'

Warsaw, Indiana
November 21, 1980

Gentlemen:

I am [illegible] years old, financially independent, by college and university training and field experience competent to work in the field of Thermodynamics. For my own satisfaction have made a study in the energy field in some depth. To lessen the waste that situations such as now exist in the energy field when the "quick buck" clan moves in, I will share my notes with anyone, such as yourself, who can warn the public.

I seek nor will I accept any compensation.

I suffer from 2nd degree heart block and congestive heart failure hence can not travel. Rarely leave the Mason Health Care Facility but do have a dental appointment 11-25-80 at 2:00 p.m.

If you feel you might benefit from publishing my findings, I should be pleased to acquaint you with them in detail any time you might stop in.

Very truly,
Wayne Smith
Room 101
Ph. (219) 269-4465

Dear Ted,

Thanks for the Olds family coverage given in the October 23rd and November 6th editions of your newspaper. I'm pleased that you have kept alive through its first century this News which my grand uncle Mort Olds founded.

Altho my "Olds Family of Saint Joe and Spencerville" history that you published reveals a great deal about my ancestors and their kinfolk, there are still unanswered questions, several of which I'm hopeful might be answered by one or more of your readers.

One question is: Exactly where was the Spencerville south Main St. store which my great grandfather, Samuel N. Olds, owned from 1886 until his retirement in 1893? Dr. Carey's book gives clues which some old-timer in your area can surely relate to. Page 36 discussion of saloons states that "Jeff Walter bought the Olds store in 1898 and conducted a saloon there until his death in 1902. Later Mrs. Huffman bought the place and her father (William Rhode) ran the saloon until closed by remonstrance. Since which time there has been no saloon." The subsequent paragraph in the book discusses the "remonstrance" and Mr. Rhode's conversion by the W.C.T.U.

Another clue as to the Olds store location appears on Page 28 of Dr. Carey's book in a discussion of restaurants as follows: "Nearly forgot that John Shutt and Goldie opened a restaurant in the Olds store building, later took over by Mrs. Charles Chapman who later moved to the corner building." Now, please, who knows where either the saloon or restaurant was located?

I am also interested in determining if Samuel Olds' Spencerville residence of 100 years ago is still standing, as this would likely be the birthplace of my late grandfather, Arthur Olds, born in 1891. The 1880 DeKalb County atlas map of Spencerville reveals an S. N. Olds property of about an acre on the east side of Main St. just north of the curve. There appear to be two houses on that acreage today, the recently remodeled brown and yellow house and the house next door to it to the north. Which of these houses, if either, is 100 years old?

Regarding the Saint Joe residency of Samuel and Caroline Olds (from 1890 until his death in 1899), their property there was on the southeast corner of Third and Jefferson (per deeds), but I don't know if the house there today is of that vintage. Does anyone down there know?

Thanks again, Ted, for publishing my Saint Joe/Spencerville "roots" in your paper and I do hope there will be some answers to my questions from one or more of your readers. Also if anyone recognizes any of the "neighbors" in the 1894 Olds anniversary picture you published in your Oct. 23rd edition, I'd be more than pleased to hear about it. And finally, may the Saint Joe News carry on for another 100 years.

Sincerely,

Dick Olds

Fleamarket Finds

Q Can you enlighten me about my Royal Doulton figurine Gladys, HN1749? —Joanne, Hayward, Calif.

A. Members of the collecting fraternity diligently search for discontinued Royal Doulton figures. Gladys, introduced in 1935 and withdrawn by 1949, rates as an Art Deco darling. The designer Leslie Harradine captured the contemporary woman in this finely modeled figurine. It is not a standing figure, but rather depicts the head, shoulders and folded arms of a woman, the arms resting on a plinth. She has reddish hair and a green dress, which blend beautifully with the decidedly Deco theme. Value guide: Gladys, 5 inches, $365.

Q. Several years ago I acquired a mint condition Queen Elizabeth launch brochure. Is this a sought-after item? —Mr. L. J., Gainesville, Fla.

A. The elegant brochure issued to commemorate the launching of the Queen Elizabeth on September 27, 1938, is definitely a collector's delight. The naming ceremony was performed by the Queen Mother. Because King George VI was unable to attend the affair, a letter of apology appears within the brochure. Photographs of the construction process also adorn the pages of this memento. At present fine condition copies of this launch brochure sail into private collections at prices hovering around the $100 mark!

Q. We found several old cherry stoners in the barn. Are they of interest to collectors? MM H. L., Bloomington, Ill.

A. The United States Patent Office was besieged with new inventions for labor-saving kitchen gadgets during the 1800s. Many pertained to improvements in the field of cherry stoners. As might be expected, each new patent promised to remove the seed from the cherry with a minimum of disfiguring or cutting. There were crank handled and spring driven models equipped with regulation devices. Any cherry stoner bearing a firm name or patent date is especially cherished. Value guide: cherry seeder, clamp type, cast iron, $35.

Q. Would it be possible to assist me in evaluating a collection of Parker pens? —Ben, Newberry, Mich.

The word from Oxford-

Semanticists, who are linguists, concerned with what words really mean, go well beyond the "denotative" meanings of words. They are interested primarily in "connotative" meanings. So there are different types of meanings? You bet there are! The denotation of a word is its literal meaning. The connotation of a word is its implication in addition to its literal meaning, and connotations affect those who hear or read words. Examine the different effects on the reader of the connotations of four sentences that have the same literal meaning: "He retired." "He ceased work." "He walked out on the job." "He quit cold."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Important news about drug interactions

Drug interactions occur when two or more drugs given to an individual cause an undesirable reaction totally different to the desired effects of each individual drug. As could be imagined, there are many types of drug interactions.

For example, a combination of alcohol and barbiturates may result in death when the same amount of either taken separately would be less harmful. Amphetamines produce numerous interactions with other drugs. Marijuana prolongs the action of barbiturates, while withdrawal from barbiturates may produce convulsions and death if not properly treated.

Fire Department Drops 'Bomb' On Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe was hit with a "bomb" at its meeting this week. The "bomb" was in the form of 18 individual warrants for $150. Every fireman on the department turned in a bill for $75 for clothing allowance and $75 for gasoline allowance.

The warrants were accompanied by a copy of a letter from the state board of accounts to Fire Chief Fred Rayle quoting Indiana statutes which say that municipalities "shall" pay such allowances, from a certain minimum to a maximum of $75.

Lengthy discussion was held concerning the matter. It was noted that at a previous meeting the fire chief had said the department would not "push" the town board for the allowances. A question was raised as to what "clothing" meant in the term "clothing allowance," inasmuch as fire hats, boots, coats and so on are considered "equipment."

Part of the discussion centered on the fact that a new fire number has been announced by the fire department under a new system of answering fire calls. But neither the town board nor the township trustee and advisory board were consulted, though they are responsible for any liabilities incurred by the department.

With board president Ted Haberkorn and member Larry McKown expressing displeasure with the fire department's tactics, as did clerk Emma Frank, the president declared the presentation of the claims out of order and the diacussion ended.

In other matters, member Paula Tinstman reported that the liquid anti-mosquito chemical had been moved to the fire hall to prevent damage from freezing.

John Bopp reported that much of the work on the dog kennels had been completed.

The board voted to pay dog warden Betty Baker the balance of salary due for the time she has served in that position in 1980. Mrs. Baker had voluntarily refrained from billing for the salary in order to help provide funds to renovate the dog kennels.

Rich Musser was authorized to install four 5000-watt electric heating elements in the town hall at a cost of $1,300.

The president reported that a recent "bad" test result on a water sample sent to the state health department had prompted the department to ask for samples on three consecutive days. However, because one of the samples took more than 48 hours to be delivered by first class mail, a conclusion could not be made as to the indication of the tests.

The original "bad" test came right at the time the local water system was turned off and on several times during repair of a fire hydrant. As in the past, there appears to be no pollution of the local water supply.

A special session of the board will be held Wednesday, December 10, at 7:00 p.m. at the fire hall for year-end business. An executive session will be held at 8:00 p.m. concerning internal affairs.

FD Auxiliary Sale

The Auxiliary of the Saint Joe-Concord Township Volunteer Fire Department will hold a bazaar and bake sale Saturday, December 6, from 9:00 a. m. to 3:00 p.m. The sale will be held in the town hall.

In addition to the items to be offered for sale, there will be a drawing for a handmade macrame hammock. Tickets for the drawing can be obtained for a donation of fifty cents.

The public is invited to attend the sale.

The auxiliary uses its funds to purchase needed items for the fire department.

Meeting Nights Changed

The town board of Saint Joe will change its meeting night for the months of December, January and February.

Normally scheduled for the first Monday of the month, the meetings for the three months will be held the first Tuesday of the month.

Meeting time is 7:00 p.m.

Legal notice of public hearing. — The Alcoholic Beverage Board of DeKalb County, Indiana, at 1:00 p.m., on December 22, 1980, at the Commissioners Court, Court House, in the City of Auburn in said county, will investigate the propriety of holding an alcoholic beverage permit by the following person and location listed herein, to-wit: DL17—66365—Ransom & Casebere, Inc., Gene Casebere, pres.; Daniel Ransom, sec'y.; St. Rd. 1, St. Joe, Ind.—liquor, beer and wine dealer, new. Said investigation will be open to the public. Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission, by Bruce McLaren, exec. sec'y; James D. Sims, chairman. 42t1

NEW FIRE NUMBER 925-3365

Those having telephones in the 337-(Saint Joe) exchange area should make emergency fire calls by dialing 925-3365. This change affects such calls through the sheriff's department central dispatch. Local firemen are then summoned by a tone code heard on their monitors. The firemen recently purchased monitors in order to set up the new system.

The word from Oxford-

A newscaster reported late last year that a schooner went to the bottom of the sea when it "floundered in a gale." Could he have meant "foundered"? In one sense, "flounder" means to move clumsily and with difficulty, as in mud or deep snow: "The wagon floundered and the horses fell." In another sense, "flounder" means to make mistakes or become confused: "On the witness stand, the politician floundered." "Foundered" means to stumble or fall, or to fill with water and sink. So, was the news report correct or incorrect? You have it right: the schooner "foundered" in the gale. The newscaster blew it.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. We just inherited a vase having the figure of a woman in the center marked G. Argy-Rousseau. What can you tell us about this piece? —Katherine, Corning, NY.

A. When the conversation switches to famous Art Deco glass artists, the name Gabriel Argy-Rousseau is almost certain to be mentioned. Numerous objects in the colorful pate-de-cristal techniques have been ascribed to this famous Frenchman. Collectors endeavor to track down vases, cigarette boxes, lamps, perfume bottles and various other view-worthy objects attributed to this gentleman. He showed affinity for such motifs as poppies, gazelles, flowers, wolves and those fantastic Art Deco stylized female heads! Value guide: vase, female figure, marked "G. Argy-Rousseau," 8 inches tall, circa 1925, $600.

Q. Can you provide us with a price list on early Jim Beam bottles in the Executive series? —Frank, Harrisburg, Pa.

A. The Executive Series first issued by the Beam Distillery of Kentucky in 1955 always stimulates some spirited bidding among bottle buffs! Value guide: Black Porcelain, 1955, $425; Royal Gold, 1956, $150; Royal DiMonte, 1957, $85; Cherub, gray, 1958, $400; Tavern Scene, 1959, $75; Cherub, blue, 1960, $140.

Q. Would it be possible to enlighten us about a vase bearing an Indian motif marked "La Moro"? —MM H. G., Oceanside, Calif.

A. Around the turn of the century, Zanesville, Ohio, was a thriving center for the production of pottery specialties. One active firm in this area was aptly named the Zanesville Art Pottery. The firm started operating about 1900. Originally utilitarian articles were marketed, but eventually art pottery pieces were introduced. The foremost line was La Moro, a ware which was handpainted and decorated under the glaze. Pieces bearing the impressed block print "La Moro" are coveted by ceramic aficionados. Value guide: vase, Indian decor, 9 inches tall, $375.

Q. Is it true that the book "The Decisive Moment" is quite valuable? —Tom, Hot Springs, Ark.

A. Simon and Shuster in collaboration with Editions Verve of Paris published this large format book in July of 1952. It measured 15 by 12½ inches. The handsome volume contained magnificent photographs by Henri Cartier Brisson. Henri Matisse was responsible for the eye-catching cover design. A separate book contained the captions for this work. When published the book sold for $12.50, but "The Decisive Moment" is apparently growing more valuable with every passing hour as a mint condition copy just fetched $165 at auction!

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Important news about drug interactions

Drug interactions occur when two or more drugs given to an individual cause an undesirable reaction totally different to the desired effects of each individual drug. As could be imagined, there are many types of drug interactions.

For example, a combination of alcohol and barbiturates may result in death when the same amount of either taken separately would be less harmful. Amphetamines produce numerous interactions with other drugs. Marijuana prolongs the action of barbiturates, while withdrawal from barbiturates may produce convulsions and death if not properly treated.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.
P.O. Box 60
Ft. Wayne, Indiana 46801

Send in the coupon above and we'll tell you about a special heating system that heats your home and water at a new, lower electric rate.

It's called Electric Thermal Storage. ETS, for short.

It includes a furnace, a water heater, even individual room heaters, too.

ETS works differently from any furnace and water heater you might be using now. That's because ETS stores heat. At night. Then, releases the heat to warm your home and provide hot water throughout the day.

Because Indiana & Michigan Electric can supply electricity at a lower cost during the "Off-Peak" hours of 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., we can offer ETS customers a reduced nighttime rate. This rate is in effect every week night, plus all weekend hours, too.

Add up those hours and you'll see that the lower rate applies to more than half the weekly hours your household uses electricity.

That can amount to substantial savings.

So take the first step. Learn more about ETS by sending in this coupon. It'll bring you our ETS brochure.

You'll find ETS is worth looking into.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Sir:

Find enclosed a check for two years sub. I am sorry that I haven't sent it in sooner, as my subscription ran out 2-80. Every time I would get the paper I would say to my wife I must send your money and then I would forget it. I sure enjoy the paper although there is a lot of people in town I don't know now. Thanks again for sending the paper although I owed for it. I have received the paper ever since I left St. Joe and went into the service in 1939.

Thanks,

Gerald D. Gee

Dayton, Ohio

P.S. Would it be possible to publish the date of the school reunion a month ahead as I don't get my paper for 2 wks. after they are printed.

The school reunion is always held the third Sunday of September. It certainly would help if the News got out in time with a reminder. The fault is ours, not that of the post office. In the past year we have allowed town matters to take precedence over business matters many times. This has resulted in late, late papers. It's lousy business practice, we know. But we can't resist the desire to help others in every possible way when drains are clogged or hydrants break and water is running in someone's basement or — — —. A good New Year resolution for Ye Ed would seem to be to not let it happen again. —Ed.

Natural Gas For St. Joe Under Investigation

Frank Sechler of "Sechler's Pickles" informed the News Office this week that a natural gas line may come to Saint Joe.

Mr. Sechler, Keith Busse of the local Vulcraft plant and William Cassady of Northern Indiana Fuel & Light, the gas company, met this week and reviewed the area potential for natural gas users. Vulcraft now uses large quantities of propane gas and Mr. Busse reported that the plant's needs for gas will expand in the future. With other commercial users indicating interest in the project, further investigation is being made in the matter.

The estimated cost to bring gas to Saint Joe and the surrounding area is a half-million dollars. A large portion of capital funds needed to extend gas lines to this area would come from private industry which would then receive future credits on their gas bills.

Several years ago the Town of Saint Joe entered into a conditional agreement with the gas company for installation of gas lines. Board members Ted Haberkorn, Lynn Lake and Jack Bowser entered into the four-year conditional agreement which placed no obligation on the town but required that the gas company do whatever repair, repaving and replacement necessary to keep town facilities in their original condition after gas line installation.

However, the agreement was never fulfilled because of the dramatic increase in costs of operating and interest rates on investment capital.

Natural gas now comes north of Leo. Continuation of the line to the Saint Joe area and on up to Butler where natural gas is now available would complete a "loop" in the system of cross country pipelines, an asset in providing natural gas throughout the area.

Jenny Haines Of EHS Is Named DAR's County 'Good Citizen'

Jenny Haines, DeKalb Eastside High School senior, has been named the county winner in competition with representatives from DeKalb County high schools inn the John Houlton Chapter DAR Good Citizen contest.

The DAR sponsors the contest each year for senior girls and boys in public and private accredited schools. all over the nation. The National Association of Secondary School Principals has placed the contest on the Approved List of National Contests and Activities. The contest has also been approved by the Indiana Department of Public Instruction.

Jenny is the daughter of MM Ralph Haines of R1 Saint Joe. She earned awards in French, typing II and other scholastic awards during her freshman, sophomore and junior years. She has participated in French Club, Science Club, National Honor Society and Mat Maids. She served as secretary-treasurer for the National Honor Society chapter at Eastside.

Jenny is secrtary-treasurer of her church Sunday School and is church chorister. Her personal interests include biking, sewing, reading, crocheting and cooking. She plans to attend Indiana University to major in international business and in computer technology.

Recommended procedure for selecting each school's Good Citizenship representative is that the senior students choose by vote three seniors who possess to an outstanding degree the qualities of dependability (truthfulness, loyalty, punctuality), service (cooperation, courtesy, consideration of others), leadership (personality, self-control, ability to assume responsibility), patriotism (unselfish interest in family, school, community and nation).

From the three students the faculty then chooses the one to be the school's Good Citizen. The principal submits the name to the chairman of the DAR contest and tests are then given. Tests run from two to three hours and cover questions concerning historic, patriotic items, community activities, personal activities, the student's interpretation of the four basic qualifications. The final requirement is writing an essay on "Our American Heritage and My Responsibility To It."

DeKalb Central's representative was Jill Dicken, daughter of MM John Dicken of Auburn. Garrett's Good Citizen contestant was Cristopher Crowe, son of MM David Crowe of R3 Auburn.

Case-s Of The Well-Packed Pickle

You can't complain about the quality of the cardboard cases used for shipping Sechler's pickles.

That point seems obvious in the story related by Frank Sechler concerning an overturned truck at the T-intersection of State Road 1 east of Saint Joe.

Some 640 cases of pickles were loaded in a Ryder rental truck by 3 p.m. Tuesday afternoon. United Parcel uses rental units for larger pickups such as those at Christmas time. The truck had two more pickups to make.

But after leaving the pickle processing plant, the truck failed to negotiate the right angle curve east of town and overturned. The young woman driver was shook up over the accident, even though she has been driving for seven years. Frank said she relaxed a bit when he commented, "Now you're really in a pickle."

As if that wasn't enough, a couple of days later another truck, from a pickle customer in Springfield, Ohio, pulled into the path of a southbound vehicle at the some somewhat confusing yield intersection. Fortunately, there were no serious injuries in the accidents.

—Oh yes, about those shipping cases. Out of the 640 cases of pickles, only three jars were broken when the truck rolled over on its side.

Blazers Split

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers split two close games, winning December 5 over Lakeland 58-52 and losing the next night to Norwell, 50-48. The Blazers are 2-3 for the year.

Randy Burns led scoring in the Lakeland game with 24 points. Chuck Barkley and Rich Timmerman each had 12.

The game was decided in the fourth quarter when the Blazers outscored the Lakers 21-13.

Against Norwell, Eastside was down 32-22 at the half. But in the third quarter the Blazers came up with 14 points to Norwell's 6 to make it 36-36 Norwell. Both teams scored a dozen points in the final quarter and Norwell had the win.

Burns had 16 points and Timmerman a dozen.

Will Republicans 'Blow It'??

The disenchantment felt by a significant numer of American citizens as far as the preelection statements and "promises" of presidential candidates and the winner's failure to follow through may increase even more, if actions in the U. S. Senate are any indication.

Ronald Reagan campaigned partly on the idea that it isn't the American people who are living too well; it's the government that's living too well. That statement was used to counteract President Jimmy Carter's statements (and some other high officials) that Americans must lower their standard of living in that too many uses of resources and money go for unnecessary luxuries. I found myself agreeing with Mr. Carter for once; this matter was talked about long before the election. But I didn't see any definite proposals coming from the White House to indicate just what he meant.

Mr. Reagan's reference to high living by the government is fact, not fancy. His campaign was successful because more Americans than the experts anticipated agree with him.

But look what has happened. A proposal was made in a Senate committee hearing that a pay raise of $10,400 be given to—believe it or not— members of Congress. And—believe it or not—the proposal was made by a Republican, Ted Stevens of Alaska.

Now how are you going to keep the public's confidence if, after a successful campaign of vote Republican "for a change" you have a Republican propose a self pay raise? High living by government includes members of Congress. And if the Republican Party is going to live up to its promises to the voters, IT HAD BETTER GET ITS HOUSE IN ORDER. And although Mr. Reagan is not yet in office, he is setting up his administration which includes individuals picked on particular "philosophy" and its compatability with Mr. Reagan's ideas.

The first thing the president-elect should do is get that pay raise knocked out. The proposal was reported to be "dead" after the first announcement about it. But then the proposal was tacked on to appropriations bill as I recall and with Congress in a hurry to adjourn for Christmas, there apparently was little if any debate on the matter.

There have been instances in which employees in a private industry have taken pay cuts in order that their employer might stay in business and in order that all employees would continue to be employed. Unfortunately, those instances have not be played up to any great extent by the major news media; the stories usually are found buried somewhere in the inside pages of the large dailies.

The proposed Congressional pay raise is a total contradiction of Republican campaign statements prior to the November election. It is dumbfounding, to say the least, that the proposal came from a Republican senator. Such actions make it very difficult to argue against the oft-heard comment, "They (politicians) are all alike."

Death Of A 'Beatle'

I'm a bit perturbed at the amount of publicity given to the killing of a member of "The Beatles," a rock group which paved the way for the saturation of the music industry with the heavy beat and blaring sound which has plagued us for almost 20 years. While the Beatles did perform and record "quieter" tunes, my general recollection is one of noise. I must admit that I never did like them or their music. But that doesn't mean they should be murdered!

All this "peace" and "love" that is being poured out in connection with the murdered Beatle has me puzzled. I have not heard of anything which relates the man to any religious motivation. His wife suggested that mourners pray for his soul. But I have the question: pray to whom or pray to what?

It may be an indication to Beatle fans that the greatness of the man is reflected in the mourning nationwide by millions of young people; you would think the world had come to an end for them, too. I think it is instead an indication of how gullible we are at an early age.

I don't mean any disrespect for the man as a human being. However, I cannot accept the eulogizing along the lines of "love" and "peace" when my recollection is that the Beatles opened the door not only to "hard rock" but also to the drug culture which has grown in direct proportion to rock music.

There may be those who have found love and peace in in the music of the man and the Beatles. But I wonder how many others were led into a culture—the drug culture— in which the only "peace" came from death due to drugs.

A couple of weeks ago, there were five people killed on the streets of Las Vegas when an angry driver (angry at what I don't know) deliberately drove onto the sidewalk, mowing down pedestrians. You know where that story appeared in one of the Fort Wayne dailies? Somewhere inside with not too big a headline.

Then we have the murder of an individual whose contribution to American culture is debatable, and the pages are full of the story. Some radio stations observed a period of silence in mourning. TV programs were quickly put together to add further to the mourning hoopla.

But — that's what the American public goes for, I guess. How else can you explain the man's estate running into millions of dollars.

Somewhere along the line we have lost our sense of values.

—And I haven't even mentioned bearing children out of wedlock or co-habiting man and woman "living in sin" as President Carter put it early in his Presidency.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. Is the Eastlake style platform rocker we purchased at a local market regarded as a flea market fvorite? MM G.D., Highland, Ill.

A. When the platform rocker rocked onto the scene in the 1870s, it practically revolutionized the chair industry. It represented a distinct departure from earlier styles as the base remained stationary while the chair rocked on its spring-type mechanism. Thus even repeated rocking failed to wear out a carpet. Because Eastlake-style furniture was the rage of the moment, many rockers surrendered to prevailing details. These comfortable chairs are as dearly loved today as they were a century ago! Value guide: platform rocker, Eastlake details, walnut, $350.

Q. Would it be possible to furnish me with a price list on advertising thermometers? —Ronald, Mobile, Al.

A. Regardless of weather conditions, prices on store thermometers are rising to ever higher levels: Carter's Ink, porcelain, 7 inches tall, $55; Kentucky Club Tobacco, 36 inches tall, $45; Old Dutch Root Beer, two windmills, 26 inches tall, $35.

Q. Can you enlighten us about a floral decorated dresser tray marked "C. A. Limoges"? —Frances, Walnut Creek, Calif.

A. Charles Ahrenfeldt (1807-1893) operated a decorating studio in the Limoges district of France in the 1880s. By the early 1890s, he was engaged in producing porcelain presentations. Upon his demise the business was conducted by his son Charles J. Ahrenfeldt. American wholesale agents found an immediate market for their handsomely ornamented china, which resulted in the Ahrenfeldt's opening a second factory in Carlsbad-Altrohau. Porcelains bearing the initials or name of this prestigious potter are rapidly vanishing into ceramic collections! Value guide: dresser tray, roses, circa 1895, $35.

Q. When were pickle castors popular? We have one in a blue glass daisy and button pattern, housed in an ornate frame. —Mrs. K. P., Albany, N.Y.

A. The lowly pickle was elevated to a position of prominence during the 1890s, when pickle castors suddenly popped onto tabletops. The glass jars holding the pickles were made of clear, colored and opaque glass of every description. Those designed in the daisy and button pattern are prized. The metal frames, often of silverplate or Britannia metal, has a base and handles rising above the jar generally in an arched shaped effect. A pair of tongs to procure the pickle from the jar could be found hanging from the metal frame! Value guide: daisy and button pattern blue glass jar, ornate silverplated frame, 1900, $265.

The word from Oxford-

Although "discreet" and "discrete" share a Latin ancestor and are pronounced identically, they have discrete meanings that are observed by discreet users of the American language. "Discreet," related to the noun "discretion," is the more common of the two. It means showing caution and good judgment in what one does, not giving away secrets, not showy or obtrustive. "Above all, be discreet about your company's business and discreet in matters of dress and grooming." "Discrete," related to the noun "discreteness," means discontinuous, individually distinct. "A working coalition resulted when discrete elements decided to cooperate." "The project comprises six discrete tasks."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Give your furnace an energy-saving partner.

You could save energy and money. Because the add-on heat pump will become your furnace's partner, regardless of the type of fuel it uses, sharing the task of heating your home. And, in a very efficient manner.

The heat pump does the job by extracting heat from the outside air. And it only operates when it's more efficient than your furnace.

The add-on heat pump and your furnace. Together, they could save energy and money.

Together, they'll also give you a hedge against the anticipated rising cost of fuels.

If you think it's time you and the add-on electric heat pump got together, call or stop by our office. We'll introduce you.

We give it our best.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

In the article about possible natural gas service to this area, I inadvertently forgot to mention that Spencerville residents would also benefit from such an installation.

Late one afternoon, a couple of grade school girls (I don't remember their names) stopped in at the News Office and sang "Jingle Bells" before leaving with a cheery "Merry Christmas!" as they walked out the door.

And Kay Rosselot brightened the season again, leaving a box of baked goodies for Ye Ed to feast on. They didn't last long!

I had the opportunity to enjoy more baked "goodies" as one of several judges for the Eastside Home Ec bake-off. I lingered a while after the judging and found out from Home Ec instructor Linda Charlesworth that her first semester class is made up of half girls and half boys. And the boys are taking the course as an elective.

—Times ARE changing!

Special Session

The Town Board of Saint Joe will meet in special session Tuesday, December 30, at 7:00 p.m. at the town hall. The meeting is open to the public.

An executive session will be held at 8:00 p.m.

GS Troop 29

—Lois Hook, reporter

Nine troop members and several families attended the Ice Capades November 22. On December 6, 11 troop members and two leaders spent most of the day in Auburn. We practiced singing Christmas carols with several other troops from DeKalb County, then gave a concert at the court house square. After the concert, all the troops returned to McIntosh School for refreshments and a visit from Santa.

At our December 1 meeting we made pillows for our friends at East Auburn school and made personalized tree ornaments for ourselves.

At our December 8 meeting we decorated cookies for our families, then had a party and gift exchange.

December 9 we went roller skating at Roller Dome North.

Our next meeting will be January 5, 1981.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Marie Myers, reporter

DeKalb County Farm Bureau's Christmas meeting was held December 11 at the Exhibit Hall in Auburn with 54 attending. A delicious potluck dinner was served along with ham fixed by Jackson Township.

Hugh Myers led the singing of Christmas songs along with Donna June Knox at the piano.

Devotions on the meaning of Christmas were given by Rev. George Schuette, pastor of St. Mark Lutheran Church.

Carl Perkins, Tri Township, introduced the group of six who sang for us. Theye were MM Robert Shull, MM Robert Noble and MM Gary Sible. Everyone enjoyed their singing.

Gifts were presented to the board and its officers.

It was announced that Carol Negel is our new State Director At Large, replacing Lois Gross who has retired after 23 years of service in this post.

Town Board

A special meeting of the Town Board of Saint Joe was held December 10. Present were president Ted Haberkorn; board memers Paula Tinstman and Larry McKown; clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; street superintendent John Bopp; and firemen Don Moore, Steve Monroe and Jake Fetters.

Immediate discussion began concerning a letter from the town attorney, known to the the president just shortly before the meeting and claimed to have been requested by the other two members. The letter stated that the board "must" pay a clothing and automobile allowance, according to state statutes. It also spelled out the definition of a volunteer fireman and requirements of a volunteer fire department.

The president stated that a desire for a legal opinion could have been requested at the previous open meeting so that all board members would know what was transpiring. A second letter was known and referred to by the firemen present and the two board members; the president had no knowledge of the letter all others were referring to. That letter was dated in October and was sent to Fire Chief Fred Rayle by attorney Brad Thomas at the request of the fire chief. It apparently pointed out the mandatory requirements of the statute related to fire department allowances.

After lengthy discussion, the board unanimously passed a motion made by Mrs. Tinstman, seconded by Mr. McKown, that the minimum firemen's clothing and automobile allowance be paid if the town attorney says the town is liable for all 18 firemen. The question of liability was raised by the president because some members of the fire department reside outside the corporate limits of the town.

At the request of the firemen present, the balance of a fund for allowances was designated for purchase of four firemen's helmets. The motion was by Mr. McKown and seconded by Mrs. Tinstman. It passed unanimously.

The firemen' present also asked if the board would allow a large truck entrance door to replace two present single stall doors if such replacement did not weaken the basic structure of the fire hall. Or, if that was not done, the firemen asked if the board would permit the construction of another stall on the west end of the fire hall. The board indicated it would allow either project but at no cost to the town.

Though the meeting was to have lasted only until 8:00 p.m. when an executive session was to be held, it was 8:30 when the firemen had completed their business with the board. The board then discussed enclosing an area for town office and meeting room. After the president showed a proposal marked on the building floor with chalk to show dimensions, Mr. McKown made a motion to enclose a 12'x26' area at the east end of the town hall for office and meeting room. The president seconded the motion. Mrs. Tinstman moved that a proposal from J. H. Schwartz Construction to do the work be accepted, seconded by Mr. McKown. Mr. McKown moved that a proposal from Brown Furniture & Hardware for carpeting the office and meeting room be accepted; second by Mrs. Tinstman.

The meeting ended at 9:40 p.m. and no executive session was held.

Lodge To Install Officers Jan. 3

Installation of officers of the Concord Lodge F&AM of Spencerville will be held January 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the lodge hall.

Charles Rosenbury will be installed as Master, James Rosenbury as Senior Warden and Robert Bowser as Junior Warden.

Bowlers Win

On December 5 the Multiple Handicapped class from East Auburn Elementary School participated in Special Olympic bowling competition at Georgetown Bowl.

The team of Tracey Brumbaugh, Chad Harpel, Danny Hook, Jonathon Miller and Chris Williams placed second in their division and each received a silver medal.

The team of J. J. Czaja, Scott Keller and Angie Presley placed third and each received a bronze medal.

They are now looking forward to the field and track competition next spring.

Their teacher is Connie Landes.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Margaret Stenberg, reporter

Nineteen members and four guests answered roll call at the holiday-decorated home of Zella Collins which was the meeting place December 10 for the Newville Extension Homemakers Club.

After a traditional Christmas dinner, a short business meeting was held. The minutes of previous meeting were read by Freida Engle. The treasury report was given by Dorine Singer in the absence of Gladys Impton who is recovering from surgery.

A report was made on the club's contribution to the "Tasting Bee" held in Auburn December 3.

Devotions were given by Dorothy Meeks on the "A B C's of Christmas," reminding us of its true meaning.

The identity of secret pals were revealed with the opening of gifts and everyone enjoyed singing the old Christmas carols accompanied by Dorine Singer's accordion music.

One of the guests known as "Rags the Clown" or better known as Nancy Guiff appeared in her holiday outfit, green curly wig, and red and white suit to present a pantomime of how to gift wrap. This was an entertaining finish to a very enjoyable day.

The January 14 meeting will be hosted by Dorine Singer and Annabelle Culler.

NOTE OF THANKS

On the evening of December 16, we had occasion to call for the services of the St. Joe-Concord Volunteer Fire Department.

We were very proud of the way they responded. We found that this group were well trained, VERY well organized, well disciplined, and a most compassionate group of GENTLEMEN.

As it turned out, our emergency was very minimal, but they were there in force, (even though it was their dinner hour) in case it turned out to be more.

Our heartfelt thanks to this group of dedicated, public-spirited men.

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. Is the wagon seat we acquired at auction having a cutout heart back a rarity? — MM K. L., Youngstown, O.

A. The auxiliary wagon seat found on horse drawn wagons from the mid-18th century finds favor with country antique aficionados. Most wagon seats resembled a pair of short slatback chairs, with the legs conforming to the depth of the wagon. Splint or rush seats were favored by most makers. Those having a cutout heart back suggest a piece of Pennsylvania provenance. Because they are regarded as being just a cut above the rest, most examples sell in the neighborhood of $500!

Q. Would it be possible to list the five most valuable comic books from the "Gloden Age"? —Ken, Jacksonville, Fla.

A. Comic book prices tend to fluctuate dramatically depending on the supply and demand factor. Collectors are discovering that comics rate not only as fun finds, but financially rewarding ones as well. According to a recent nationwide price survey the following comics in mint condition top the list from the Golden Age: (1) Marvel Comics, No. 1, $12,000; (2) Action Comics, No. 1, $9,000; (3) Motion Picture Funnies Weekly, No. 1, $7,600; (4) Detective Comics, No. 27, $5,100; (5) Whiz Comics, No. 1, $5,000.

Q. Can you enlighten me about a bug shaped political pin featuring pictures of McKinley and Hobart. The pictures appear on the wings when the tail is pushed. —Mr. V. H., Waco, Texas.

A. Political campaign collectors pay premium prices for this "Mechanical Goldbug" issued during the campaign of William McKinley and Garret Hobart. The bug supposedly symbolized McKinley's support of the gold standard. By pressing the tail of the bug pictures of the candidates popped out on either wing. Anyone electing to acquire this goldbug could find themselves parting with $125!

Q. Everytime I visit a sale I acquire another butter pat. When were these in vogue? — Helen, Vancouver, Wash.

A. Throughout the age of Victoria (1837-1901) diners found individual butter pats placed before them on cluttered tabletops. Because they were typically a part of a dinner service, specimens can be unearthed bearing a trademark of a renowned potter. Butter pats of flow blue, ironstone, tealeaf ironstone or majolica presently melt collectors' hearts. Delicately colored floral motifs adorned many porcelain models. Butter pats prove ideal for those working with limited collecting space, or on a limited collecting budget! Value guide, Butter pat, Haviland, Princess, $7.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 200, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. "Tucked away in the attic we discovered a marigold candle lamp in the Grape and Cable pattern." Mrs. W. R., Gary, Ind.

A. If you want to light up the life of a Carnival Glass buff, simply tease him with a candle lamp from the famed Northwood Glass Company. Generally, their "N" within a circle trademark may be found on the candlestick portion of these fantastic finds. The Northwood firm excelled in creating Carnival glass confections in the early 1900s. Many flea market fans consider these green, purple and marigold candle lamps to be just a shade above the rest. Value guide: Candle lamp, marigold, $500.

Q. "Prices on early box cameras would be appreciated."—Henry, Medford, Ore.

A. Flea market shoppers battle for early box cameras of leather, wood, cardboard and metal. Even some of the plastic models from the 1930s fetch snappy returns. Those dating prior to World War I often bring prices capable of making photographic collectors shudder! Value guide: Bullet, No. 2c, 33 1/2 inches by 3 1/2 inches, $32; Kodak, No. 3, circa 1890, $300; Tengor, Zeiss, 1930s, $24.

Q. "Our sled figural napkin ring is marked 'Wilcox Silver Plate Co.' " —MM B. R., Hattiesburg, Miss.

A. Once the first napkin ring patent was granted in 1869, numerous American firms began producing these silver novelties. One active maker was the Wilcox Silver Plate Co. of Meriden, Conn., established by a group of investors in 1865. Originally, the firm was organized as the Wilcox Britannia Co. In 1898 they became a part of the International Silver Co. Figural napkin rings fetch fancy returns and your old fashioned sled sells for a neat $60.

Q. "I just missed purchasing a Buck Rogers 'Dangerous Mission' popup book for $51."—Bill, Parsons, Kan.

A. Blue Ribbon Books, Inc., undoubtedly prompted by the successful launching of the Buck Rogers comic strips and radio programs, introduced two popup books related to this space hero in 1935. "Buck Rogers in Strange Adventures in the Spider Ship" featured Buck and Wilma in three eye-popping popups. A smaller book "Buck Rogers in a Dangerous Mission" also pictured them in "mission impossible" type feats. Missing out on a bargain priced "Dangerous Mission" popup is a "close encounter of the wrong kind," for prices presently hover in the $40 to $50 vicinity!

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

Sometimes I think that the use of children for soliciting funds for various projects is not fair to the public. When a child asks for donations or has some sort of merchandise to sell, it is very difficult to say no. And that's exactly why children are used so much for solicitations which may not be directly related to children or even the local community.

But the worst example of using children was illustrated in a recent photo published nationally. It showed a three year old negro child on the shoulders of an adult. The story read:

"Three year old Antoine Mikell (right) receives a light-hearted lesson on making a clenched fist salute Sunday from Rogers Felder, Miami, Fla., at a rally in which more than 300 persons commemorated the first anniversary of the beating death of black insurance agent Arthur McDuffie. About 100 marched and chanted through riot-scarred Liberty City earlier."

The wire service reporting the story may see the incident as "light-hearted." But I see it as early indoctrination of a child into the rigors of mob rule. The upraised clenched fist is not a symbol of American national spirit; it began as a symbol of racial assertiveness.

Mind you, I'm not saying the charges of police brutality in the beating death are false. I'm saying that gatherings to seek justice are no place for children.

The same holds true for the "farmers' march" on Washington, D.C., a couple of years ago. That attempted effort at mob rule—including "invading" a public office—was hardly a good example to set for the kids who were taken along—and the kids who weren't taken along.

Channel 21 at Fort Wayne has received highest ratings in area surveys of TV news viewers. They've been having a snowguessing contest, which ordinarily sounds like a fun thing.

The trouble is the prize is a free quart of Pepsi. The second trouble is, the answers must be submitted in metrics.

With all the information being put out about the poor diet too many Americans live by (TV dinners, fast-food driveins, too much sugar, too much fatty food intake, and so on), the soft drink continues to be a heavy steady year around enterprise. I noted in a grocery recently that some 30 feet of wall space was devoted entirely to soft drinks; shelves of it.

The pleasure-seeking of today is centered around, among other things, the need to have —NEED to have—a good supply of soft drinks. While it is good that water is being consumed when a soft drink is downed, the trouble is the water is loaded with sugar which is harmful to the teeth and is heavy in calories but having no nutritional value; and contains (in cola drinks) caffeine which is a stimulant; and contains other additives which have been shown to change normal youngsters into hyperactive offspring.

It's so bad that today it isn't "normal" if a kid doesn't have a couple of cans of pop a day—or more. Their parents are in the same boat.

Soft drinks are best used in a limited way.

As far as metrics are concerned, it is disturbing that a TV station having the highest news viewer ratings in the area takes upon itself the privilege of forcing contest participants to submit answers in metrics.

In the first place, there is no law requiring metrics to be used; the metric conversion act of several years ago is a voluntary thing, but the "anything for change sake" pushers have managed to give the public the impression that conversion is mandatory.

With WPTA's Susan Waddey seeking homes for handicapped children on her "Wednesday's Child" segment and the obviously people-oriented efforts of the news staff, it seems very inappropriate for the same station to give habit-forming soft drinks as a prize in a contest in which the station forces the use of a measuring system which the majority of the public considers unnecessary.

Public schools have been used to "sell" metrics. The public and parents had no say-so; "modern education" assumed it had superior judgment.

Snow Pl'ing, FD, 'Donation' Make Board Meeting

The Town Board of Saint Joe met January 6 in regular session. Present were president Ted Haberkorn; member Paula Tinstman; clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; fire chief Fred Rayle; fireman Don Moore; and resident Loretta Loy.

Member Larry McKown was absent due to a death in the family.

The president requested that a letter of December 30 and a sworn statement be attached to the minutes of the December 30 meeting. A letter of December 10 was attached to and made part of the December 10 meeting.

Mrs. Loy complained of snow piling up at sidewalks as a result of clearing town streets. She also said the plowing was not going to the curb. The president noted that the inconvenience of blocked sidewalks also occurs when state highway trucks go through town. The need to maintain momentum is part of the problem. He noted that there was considerable snow cover at this time and that the local contractor for snow plowing was not equipped to clear away the sidewalk pileups at intersections. The assistance of town residents is necessary. He also stated that after the first plowing this winter, he had instructed the contractor to plow to the curbs. Another resident had asked if the town was paying to have State Road 1 plowed through town. The president said he answered "yes in order to give main street residents and businesses the same service as elsewhere intown if the state trucks do not come through after a significant snowfall." He noted that the town also occasionally cleans catch basins on the main street to avoid higher expense should there be plugging of surface water tile.

Mrs. Tinstman volunteered to contact Jerry Kirkpatrick who does the snow plowing to iron out any "bugs" in the snow plowing service. The board expressed general satisfaction with the work being done.

Fire chief Fred Rayle asked that the department be allowed to change locks on the overhead doors because of "too many keys floating around." The board agreed to pay for the locks and keys.

The chief also asked for use of the town hall for a tool auction to be conducted by an outside auctioneering firm. The fire department would get 15% of the sales receipts. The date February 1 was mentioned, but when it was noted that that date is a Sunday, the president objected and asked that another day of the week be used. Mrs. Tinstman did not object to the Sunday date but noted that a different day of the week would probably bring a larger crowd.

The fire chief requested a meeting of the town board with the officers of the fire department and the township trustee. The president questioned the need for another meeting inasmuch as the board, trustee and at least one advisory board member attended a fire meeting at the request of the fire department last summer to "straighten things out." At that meeting the president was accused of being "out in left field" by the fire chief when an effort was made three times to explain part of the town budget related to the fire department.

When the chief said Tuesday that the department was going to discuss having only designated spokesmen attend town board meetings at its January meeting, the president said "contact us after your meeting."

When the president noted that the town attorney's letter of December 10 quoted state statutes regarding qualification of a "volunteer fireman," the chief asked for a copy of the letter.

The clerk raised the question about paying for the present conference system for local fire calls. The president noted again, as he had at the December 30 board meeting, that the fire department had undertaken a change in the fire call system, paid for by the town and township, without consulting with or getting the approval of either the town or township. The chief said that should have been done. However, since the fire department has already taken steps to change to a central dispatch system out of the sheriff's office, it seemed evident that the present system would be discarded despite the improper procedure. Firemen are going to distribute telephone stickers with the new number in the near future.

As a final item of business, the president handed a check for $250 over to the clerk-treasurer as a "donation" to pay part of the wiring bill for the town office which he described as appearing to be "exorbitant" in relation to other costs. He had authorized the wiring when the heating system was installed but did not consult the other board members because it didn't appear that the cost would be high, the office needs wiring to be useable and the contractor was already on the site. The other board members are employed outside the community during the day.

The meeting adjourned at 8:30 p.m.

Fireman 'Sig' Forgery Passed Over By Board

A fraudulent claim was among 18 claims presented to the Town Board of Saint Joe at its December 2 meeting. The claims were for maximum allowances for clothing and automobile expenses.

Following the board's December meeting, one of the members of the fire department, Bob Miller, informed board president Ted Haberkorn that he, Miller, did not remember making out a claim, signing a claim or authorizing someone else to file a claim for him. When shown the claim form with the signature "Bob Miller," the fireman said it was not his writing.

The information, plus a sworn statement from Miller that he had not signed a claim, was given to town attorney James McCanna.

At a special meeting of the board December 30, firemen again filed claims for the allowances, this time for the minimum. The first claims were for the maximum of $150 per member for 18 members. The president ruled them out of order because there had been no discussion and agreement on the amount of the claims.

A letter from the attorney was read at the meeting. It said the board should require that such claims be signed in the presence of a town official and when the board would "again" meet, to consider the claims according to funds available.

The board president attempted to carry the matter over to the January 6 meeting. But board members Paula Tinstman and Larry McKown expressed the desire to get the matter overwith. A motion was passed to allow the claims for those firemen who were present with absent firemen to file claims in person with Mrs. Tinstman on December 31. The motion passed 2-1 with the president stating such action was not in accordance with the advice from the town legal counsel.

A reporter from the Evening Star was present for the meeting, the county daily having been notified by telephone by a fireman that the allowances claims would be presented. It was the first time in months that a reporter from the Star attended a board meeting. No Star reporter was present for the January 6 meeting this week.

The December 30 meeting was heated at times, with accusations directed toward the president of "one-man control."

The president said he would "hate" to see it become necessary to draw up a legal contract for fire protection, fearing that such a legalistic approach would destroy the "classic and traditional volunteer nature" of fire protection in a small community wherein everyone recognizes a mutual need for help.

Fire chief Fred Rayle suggested a meeting of the fire department officers with the town board and township officials "so we know just what you want from us."

A meeting was already held this summer for mutual understanding when town and township officials attended a meeting of the fire department.

The board president also attended the November meeting of the fire department to discuss equipment needs. But no mention of the claims matter was made while he was present.

Elwood - A Precious 'Nobody'

The name "Elwood Savage" doesn't bring anything in particular to mind for those who are comparatively new in this community. And probably there are some older residents who recognize the name and that's about all.

For others, however, "Elwood" brings many things to mind—things which you might call precious possessions, memories of conversations full of kidding, joking, put-ons and the like.

Elwood probably seemed to many to have a grouchy, complaining disposition. But this was only an outside cover. Underneath he was considerate, kind and helpful.

A regular daily "fixture" at Wanda Coburn's restaurant, Elwood's greatest delight came in seeing how far he could go with his kidding before getting a rise out of his victim. Everyone knew what he was doing and if you were his target, you tried not to react, to make a failure of his "needling." But not many were able to hold out and eventually he gotcha!

Elwood particularly enjoyed kidding the ladies, young and not so young. I don't think I ever heard him say he liked someone; but a measure of his affection for you was in the amount of kidding you got from him. The more he needled you, the more certain you could be that he liked you.

Elwood was a familiar sight on his motorbike, making the rounds at the barbershop, the service station, the hardware and the restaurant.

And Elwood was a fisherman, and a good one. And he had the fisherman's tales to go with it. Unfortunately, that part of his daily living had to be dropped the past couple of years as he didn't feel well and didn't look well.

That gruff exterior hid his concern for others. He was a good provider for "Ma"; he did odd jobs for other members of the family; and he looked after old Anna Hursey who is now confined at Meadowhaven.

And Elwood was a painter, a meticulous painter. During his fishing days when you finally got him cornered to do some painting, the waiting was worth it. He was as careful with your furniture and rugs and so on, that might get spotted by paint, as he would be if they were his possessions. A few years ago, when I asked him to paint just the kitchen in time for the Christmas holidays, he did his usual masterful job. When I saw him shortly thereafter, I got even with him on the kidding bit. I said, "Say — you're losing your touch. I found some paint on the woodwork." He looked dismayed—until I continued: "I found one spot about the size of a pinhead!" His look of dismay turned into a sheepish grin when he realized the joke was on him, not someone else.

Isn't it strange? All these words about someone who was, in worldly terms, a "nobody." For some of us, Saint Joe has lost some of its character because its "character" is no longer among the living. Thus, a "nobody" becomes a "somebody." And it serves as a reminder that death makes life more meaningful.

If there is such a thing as St. Peter at the Golden Gate, I can just hear Elwood saying, "Now I suppose you're gonna tell me you lost the key!"

Elwood — — how we miss him.

Dear Editor:

I wanted to drop you a line after I read your editorial entitled "Death of a Beatle." I found your editorial totally lacking in insight and compassion.

With statements such as "I don't mean any disrespect for the man as a human being" you were plagueing the wrong person. It is [illegible] you were [illegible] to; it was the millions of Beatles fans who are not drug addicts, [illegible]. [illegible] ics. I can barely believe a man in your position can be so naive as to blame our social problems on a form of music. Music of all types are forms of art. Most music is a mirror of society in one way or another.

I would hope you would share with us, your readers, your source of information that shows that the drug culture has grown in strict proportions to rock music because if this is true then we should share this wisdom with the powers that be because you have stumbled on the answer to all the drug problems we now face.

I felt a personal loss when John Lennon was murdered. I did not particularly care for his music after the Beatles broke up, but that will never detract from the contribution he made to me when I was growing up.

I am sure that after you die your readers and friends would be upset if an editorial such as yours would appear in a newspaper degrading your contribution to society and blaming the problems of St. Joe and southeastern DeKalb County on your actions while editor, owner and publisher of the St. Joe News. We all know that would be ridiculous, just as ridiculous as your attack on John Lennon.

Very truly yours,
Gerald M. McNeely

Town Has New 'Home' After Seven Years

(The "old" town hall in Saint Joe was razed in January of 1974. It had been built after a $1,000 bond issue in 1914—$950 for known costs to erect a two-story cement block building and $50 for incidentals! The upper floor was for town offices and the lower level for the fire truck and town equipment.

The "fire hall addition" completed in 1977 was intended for public use, in particular as a town hall.

With the enclosure of an 18'x 36' area last month by the present town board, facilities were again provided for town matters after almost seven years of no official "home" for Saint Joe town government. The cost of the office and meeting room is given here so that Saint Joe residents will know how their tax monies have been spent to once again provide a home for the town government "orphan.")

A town office and meeting room is awaiting finishing touches. Yet to be installed is an inside door to separate the office from the main hall area and thereafter the installation of heavy duty commercial carpet.

The meeting room walls are finished with dark woodgrain paneling. The ceiling is finished with 2'x4' tile with two recessed fluorescent light fixtures.

The cost breakdown for the office-meeting room is as follows:

Ashley Building Supply, paneling, ceiling tile, rails and cross Ts, prehung door, trim, paneling nails	$934.84
Brown Furniture & H&w. carpet, pad installed	575.12
2 light fixtures, lags, nails, misc.	140.00
Furrow Building Materials lumber, insulation	313.81
Jacob H Schwartz labor	270.00
Dick Musser wiring, 6 wall outlets, light switches,	525.00
Fiberglass ceiling insulation, self-installed	95.70

Paneling, ceiling tile, rails, cross Ts and insulation for the ceiling and walls are all fire-coded.

The above costs include finishing one wall of the main area, paneling having been installed on both sides of the wall separating the town office from the assembly area. Electrical outlets are included in both sides of the dividing wall.

Heat for the building was installed at a cost of $1300. One heater serves the office area and three the assembly area.

The board had been notified in the past of the availability of an electric heating system being replaced by a church. However, the unit would have required an outside concrete slab and duct work through a wall and throughout the building. The cost of $800 covered only the used heating unit.

The president of the town board presented cost estimates for finishing the main area and the two rest rooms at the December 30 meeting of the board. These projects were tabled for further consideration.

2 sink cabinets, tops and hardware	258.36
paneling	199.00
2 pre-hung doors	113.90
3 stools and 1 urinal	201.90
Jacob Schwartz, labor	100.00
lumber and insulation	144.15
2 mirrors (estimate)	75.00
(wiring and plumbing labor not available)

Costs presented for finishing the assembly area included:

paneling and ceiling (fire coded)	1424.25
Jacob Schwartz, labor	600.00
Wiring and 14 light fixtures (estimate)	2000.00
lumber, lags, misc.	142.65
insulation (self-installed), fiberglass	287.10
Total (subject to adjustment)	4454.00

Funds for finishing the interior of the building are available from the Capital Cumulative Investment Fund

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. "Where and when did John Henry Belter create all that fabulous furniture?" —MM P. D., Detroit, Mich.

A. John Henry Belter (1804-1863) established a cabinet-making shop in New York City during the 1840s after serving his apprenticeship in Wurtenburg, Germany. He was destined to become New York's most fashionable cabinetmaker, a title previously held by the distinguished Duncan Phyfe. His magnificent furniture designs brought him instant recognition, particularly pieces executed in the curvilinear Dococo Revival style. His firm remained active into the 1860s. Belter was Numero Uno in Victorian cabinetmakers!

Q. "Are Beatrice Potter figurines the antiques of the future?" —Bill B., Akron, Ohio.

A. The beautiful bone china Beatrice Potter figurines created by Beswick & Co of England have acquired a legion of admirers. They appear to have popped right from the pages of a tale by this talented artist and author. Her first book, "Tale of Peter Rabbit," was published in 1901. It was followed by 21 other equally fascinating tales, all published by Frederick Warne. Book buffs search for the original titles. These figurines may enter the wonderful world of antiques faster than you can say Jemina Puddleduck!

Q. "I'm always on the prowl for unusual tiles and just acquired one marked 'Mosaic'. Can you identify it?" —Mrs. R. C., Boston, Mass.

A. Smile, happy hunter, you have just uncovered a super tile! The Mosaic Tile Company of Zanesville, Ohio, was founded in 1894 by Karl Langenbeck and Herman Mueller. Their beautiful floor and wall tiles met with instant public acceptance and the firm flourished. Fortunately, their wares were clearly marked with the firm name and trademark providing positive identification. Mosaic tiles absolutely floor tile buffs!

Q. "When were spoon trays in vogue?" —Anne, Houston, Texas.

A. Sterling silver and silver plated spoon trays were fashionable tabletop accessories around the turn of the century. They sent the earlier bowl type spooners straight to the confines of the attic. These attractive boat shaped trays with handles were frequently footed. They were decorated with ornate or beaded designs with fancier versions having a gold lining. Granny preferred calling this presently outmoded article a Spoon Basket. Alas, the spoon tray has practically vanished from every tabletop except the Flea Market tabletop.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

The cost of heating has led to installation of many wood burning stoves, both commercially built and homemade. If you have a source of supply (such as your own woods), the use of such stoves can be financially rewarding.

Until the U.S. felt the energy "shortage" (which is really more a matter of high cost than lack of resources), not much attention was paid to efficiency. But now efficiency is THE selling point.

Last fall I bought one of those "Kero-Sun" portable oil heaters. It's the largest model and cost around $275 and has a BTU output of 18,000 or 19,000 per hour. I bought it to use in the house for those days when a fire in the furnace was a bit too much heat but you needed a little something at night.

The heater didn't heat the entire house (10 rooms and 11-foot ceilings) and I didn't expect it to. But along with turning the stove elements on low and closing the kitchen doors, the Kero-Sun took the chill out of the air until the sun warmed things up.

In recent weeks I have been using it in the News Office to make a comparison, if possible, between just electric heat and a combination of electric and oil.

The shop is 30x40 and if the temperature is around 20 to 25 and no heavy wind, that little heater keeps the temp right up at 70—according to the thermometer which was knocked to the concrete floor once and may not be accurate.

99% efficiency is claimed for the oil heater and it is, as the ads say, smokeless and odorless.

Burning at less than full tilt, the heater uses roughly two gallons a day.

I keep a window open just a crack to allow for inflow of fresh air.

—Just thought I'd mention it in case anyone wondered how the Kero-Sun heater works. I'd say, so far so good.

If there ever was a nervous bridegroom, it was Herb Holden in December.

Herb is now a captain in the armed forces. Serving in Washington, D.C., Herb and his bride-to-be (also stationed in Washington) came back home to get hitched. Judy is from a small town in Michigan.

It was a small wedding, just the immediate families, and Judy was a beautiful bride. She seemed to have things under control. But poor Herb was shaking in his boots, so to speak.

All during his time in military service, Herb always came to church at St. Mark in Saint Joe when he was on leave.

Herb played on the church softball team not too many years ago and was noted for his tremendous shots over the right field fence (some almost went over the old dairy building and State Road 1).

He's still a young man. But I have a hunch that coming back to Saint Joe just for church when he's on leave indicates Herb's early knowledge of what is meant by "fond memories."

Establishment 'Canonizes' John Lennon With No Mention Of Marxism, Narcotics

((Headline and story from the "Spotlight," January 19, 1981)

—by Harry T. Everingham, in "The Fact Finder," PO Box 10555, Phoenix, Arizona 85064.)

"John Lennon's most famous line was, 'We are more popular than Jesus!' That may have caused his assassin, Mark Chapman, to think that this murder would make him famous too.

"He could be right. At once, the major networks gave much valuable time and honored mention to John Lennon. You would think we had lost a national hero, instead of an avowed atheist, a pitchman for illicit drugs and a Maxist lyricist. At the continued Lennon build-up by our nation's major news media, the Kremlin bosses in Moscow must still be chortling with glee.

"John Lennon was murdered by a young Beatle rock fan who had twice attempted suicide. It was Lennon's hard rock music that helped to make Mark Chapman what he was. Mark was known for his open 'hostility.' His mind showed that hard rock and drugs had taken their toll.

"But Mark wasn't the only one—millions of young Americans have showed the effects of John Lennon's lyrics against God and all religion, and against patriotism, private property and national sovereignty.

"LYRICS PUSHED DRUGS

"John Lennon's lyrics were even more specific: His hard rock songs openly pushed drug usage and sexual promiscuity among America's young people—drugs that sapped their strength and drained their brains—and wild sex orgies that led to teenage pregnancies and abortions, venereal disease in epidemic proportions, and destruction of the will to live.

"Yoko Ono, Lennon's Japanese sex mate (who finally persuaded Lennon to marry her), asked all of Lennon's friends 'to pray for his soul.' But to whom will they pray? The Beatles once said that 'We probably seem to be anti-religious because of the fact that none of us believes in God.' ('Playboy' magazine, Feb., 1965). Lennon once portrayed Jesus as 'a garlic-eating, stinking, little, yellow, greasy, fascist b—d.'

"The primitive beat of rock music excites the sexual passions of teenage girls. Many young girls, 13 to 17, were easily seduced after being 'morally disarmed' by the rhythm of rock 'n roll. It also led young boys to rebellion against authority—just what the communists in the U.S. need for riots and revolutions to destroy our nation.

"John Lennon's Beatles helped to prepare young minds for the radical rebellion. They also gave money to radical causes. (For details, read 'The Marxist Minstrels' by Dr. David A. Noebel.)

" 'Rock 'n roll dulls the capacity for attention; the steady beat creates a kind of hypnotic monotony' ('Reader's Digest,' Nov., 1964).

"The ryhthm of rock 'n roll is as primitive as the rhythm of the jungle. Dr. H. E. Brown, director of Music Therapy Department, New Jersey State Hospital, says that primitive rhythms are rarely good, as they arouse basic instincts in the emotionally insecure person. All delinquents are emotionally insecure, so rock 'n roll has a direct bearing on delinquency ('American Institute of Hypnosis Journal,' Oct., 1963).

"The Beatles were in Seattle for a 'concert' in August, 1964. Dr. Bernard Saibel, child guidance expert for the state Division of Community Services, attended the performance at the request of the Seattle 'Times.' The following is Dr. Saibel's report:

" 'The experience of being with 14,000 teenagers to see the Beatles is unbelievable and frightening. And, believe me, it is not at all funny as I first thought when I accepted this assignment.

" 'The hysteria and loss of control go far beyond the impact of the music. Many of those present became frantic, hostile, uncontrolled, screaming, unrecognizable beings. Parents and adults have a lot to account for to allow this to go on.

" 'This is not simply a release, but a very destructive process in which adults allow the children to be involved without the reassuring safeguards of protection from themselves.

" 'The externals are terrifying. Normally recognizable girls behaved as if possessed by some demonic urge. The hysteria is from the girls and, when you ask them what it is all about, all they can say is, "I love them."

" 'The music is loud, primitive, insistent, strongly rhythmic, and releases in a disguised way the all too-tenuously controlled, newly acquired physical impulses of the teenager.

" 'Mix this up with the phenomena of mass hypnosis, contagious hysteria and the blissful feeling of being mixed up in an all-embracing orgiastic experience, and every kid can become "Lord of the Flies" or the Beatles.

" 'Why do the kids scream, faint, gyrate and in general look like a primeval, protoplasmic upheaval and go into ecstatic convulsions when certain identifiable and expected trademarks come forth, such as "Oh yeah!", a twist of the hips, or the thrusting out of an electric guitar?

" 'Regardless of the causes or reasons for the behavior of these youngsters, it had the impact of an unholy bedlam, the like of which I have never seen. It caused me to feel that such should not be allowed again, if only for the good of the youngsters.

" 'It was an orgy for teenagers' (Seattle 'Daily Times,' Aug. 22, 1964).

"RADICAL REBELLION

"Dimitri Tiomkin, famous composer and conductor, said of rock n' roll: 'The big beat is deliberately aimed at exciting the listener. There is actually very little melody, little sense in the lyrics, only rhythm.

" 'The fact that music can both excite and incite has been known from time immemorial. That was perhaps its chief function in prehistory and it remains so in the primitive societies that still exist in the far reaches of the world. In civilized countries, music became more and more a means of communicating pleasurable emotions, not creating havoc.

" 'Now, in our popular music, at least, we seem to be reverting to savagery. And the most dramatic indication of this is the number of occasions in recent years when concerts of rock 'n roll have erupted into riots.

" 'Those riots, however, are only the obvious manifestations of what I mean. More to the point is the fact that youngsters who listen constantly to this sort of sound are thrust into turmoil. They are no longer relaxed, normal kids.

" 'They will tell you they get a "charge" out of rock 'n roll. So do the kids who smoke marijuana and shoot "H" (heroin)!' Los Angeles 'Herald Examiner,' April 21, 1965.

"When the Beatles presented their 'concert' in Vancouver, British Columbia, 100 persons were stomped, gouged, elbowed and otherwise assaulted during the 29-minute performance. Nearly 1,000 were injured in Melbourne, Australia. In Beirut Lebanon, fire hoses were needed to disperse hysterical fans.

"In the grip of Beatle fever, we are told, the teenagers weep, wail and experience ecstacy-ridden hysteria that has to be seen to be believed. Also, we are told, teenagers 'bite their lips until they bleed and they even get overexcited and take off their clothes.'

"To understand what rock 'n roll in general and the Beatles in particular are doing to our teenagers, it is necessary to return to Pavlov's laboratory. The Beatles' ability to make teenagers weep and wail, become uncontrollable and unruly, and take off their clothes and riot was proved. It was scientifically induced artificial or experimental neurosis (Ivan P. Pavlov, 'Lectures On Conditioned Reflexes.' International Publishers, New York, 1928, Chapter 36).

" 'Parade' (Oct. 4, 1964) 'Last month when the Beatles toured this country, taking home with them another million dollars, America's teenage females, largely in the 13 to 17 age bracket, behaved wildly. They hid in air ducts, freight elevators and men's rooms, bribed bellboys and ticketsellers, did almost anything to get a glimpse of their favorite long-hairs. Their lack of restraint, caution and courtesy

"Thanks, Doc!"

There was a picture in one of the dailies showing a billboard with a brief message paid for by a sponsor whose identity I don't recall at the moment.

The message:

"Thanks, Doc!"

The message was in reference to the record of Dr. Otis Bowen as he relinquished the office of Governor of Indiana to his successor.

That brief message was very appropriate. I think the many thousands of people who never met Governor Bowen had a sort of direct line of communication or mutual understanding with Dr. Bowen that didn't take a phone call or a letter. You just knew he was thinking about you in his approach to exercising authority and leadership as governor. It had to be something like that or there wouldn't have been an 80% "favorable" rating in the minds of Hoosiers as to his performance in office when he served his final days.

Doc Bowen is an "odd" politician. His sincerity, the way in which he spoke, had the effect—in my mind, at least—of making it seem that Doc Bowen never campaigned. He didn't need to; there is something about the man that makes you feel you just KNOW you can trust him.

I think I heard Doc Bowen speak in person only one time. And it was at an election rally in our county. And I can say that his "speech," though just a one-sided matter as far as participation is concerned, left the feeling that he was talking with each one present individually, not to a crowd. He came across not as someone campaigning but rather as someone stating facts which ought to be known and recognized.

I marvel at his ability to carry out the duties of his office while he knew a personal tragedy was in the future—the death of Mrs. Bowen.

But carry on he did. And in so doing he set an example of quiet, "unspectacular" courage and devotion.

Indiana is fortunate to have had Doc Bowen as governor. A man of his stature comes only once in a lifetime.

Mutual's News Bias

One of the pet peeves of this smalltown journalist is to witness the subtle manipulation of public thought by the major news media—and not be able to do anything about it. (I suppose there are News readers who feel just as helpless when they read something in these pages with which they disagree and they feel these columns are wrongfully used.)

The major news media reach millions of people. Unfortunately, people are often being led into a trend of thought rather than being provided with information with which they can make up their own minds about specific matters.

Someone on the Mutual Broadcasting System is guilty of using questionable tactics in reporting about news of President-Elect Reagan's cabinet appointments. Alexander Haig was nominated by Mr. Reagan to be Secretary of State. Such appointments are reviewed in committee and then submitted for Congressional approval.

The Mutual news service reported that General Haig's nomination was approved in committee by a 15-2 vote.

Nothing wrong so far.

But here is where the trouble begins. Instead of broadcasting comments from one or some of the 15 committee members approving the appointment, Mutual interviewed one of the two dissenters.

15 out of 17 say General Haig is OK for Secretary of State, and only two say "no"—and one of the two gets interviewed for national news???

Someone at Mutual has their prejudice showing.

Had there been a taped segment of an interview with one of the committee's majority, no "foul" could be called. But this wasn't done. And so millions of Americans will remember the negative comments about General Haig, if they remember anything at all.

And Mr. Reagan will have just a bit more to overcome in public relations when he takes office.

Those who protest about the manipulation of the news are often looked upon with skepticism. But a good example of such manipulation occurred in Mutual's reporting of the Haig matter.

There are those in the news media who obviously do not know the difference between factual reporting and biased reporting—and the need to be constantly aware of the fact that "reporters" are not supposed to be editorialists.

Just one sentence, or a phrase—or even just one word—can create a picture in the public's mind, a picture which can be way out of focus.

The Auburn Evening Star of December 31, 1980, is a good example of what I am talking about, in local matters.

Q. We just inherited a conversational sofa. When was this piece fashionable? —Mrs. G. L., Concord, N.C.

A. It was none other than Empress Eugenie who prevailed upon French furniture designers to create the tete-a-tete seat in the 1850s. They obligingly conceived the conversational, whereby two people could sit and converse face to face. Basically, the form consisted of two chairs joined together by an S-shaped form. Furniture makers favored black walnut or maple, often enhanced with striping or gilding. Empress Eugenie adored the conversational, and Victoriana devotees share her enthusiasm. Value guide: conversational, walnut, circa 1860, $1,500.

Q. When were cuckoo clocks in vogue in America? —Henry, Corning, N.Y.

A. Throughout the 19th century German clockmakers exported cuckoo clocks in tre - mendous quantites to the shores of America. Catalogs of the era pictured a number of variations, the difference in price depending somewhat upon the degree of carving. Finely crafted models often boasted grape leaves, oak leaves, mushrooms, pheasants, rabbits, deer heads or other appropriate ornamentation. When a cuckoo clock featured more than one bird, the second timekeeper was frequently a quail! Value guide: cuckoo clock, Black Forest scene, ornate carving, circa 1880, $285.

Q. Is my brochure describing the Ile de France a sought-after collectible? —Grace, St. Louis, Mo.

A. Ile de France brochures have been floating into Art Deco collections in ever-increasing numbers. The brochure with its blue and silver tones of the ship billed as "The Paris Aristocrat of the Atlantic" was included in the brochure. In the years after World War I, a ride on a luxury liner was indeed a luxury to be savored. Many inexpensive souvenirs were sold aboard ship, and all date as first class collectibles. Value guide: Ile de France brochure, $45.

Q. Would you please assist me in evaluating a small collection of antique inkwells? —Ernest, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. Over the years these desk accessories have appeared in forms ranging from pleasing to perplexing. Either type of inkwell is considered as being "all-write" with collectors! Value guide: Basalt, 3 inches tall, 1880s, $60; brass, florals, French, 4 inches tall, 1890s, $90; bronze, Art Deco, pyramid shape, 1920s, $80; Cloissone, butterflies and flowers, 4 inches tall, 1900, $100; iron, Columbian Exposition 1893, souvenir, globe shape, $45; pewter, figural cat, 3½ inches tall, 18-80s, $125.

Q. At a local market I purchased a charcoal burning iron having a figure of a bird perched on top. When was this style popular? —Ida, Long Beach, Calif.

A. From the 1880s into the early 1900s, work weary homemakers accomplished their pressing chores with charcoal burning irons having figural fasteners. While these various bird, animal and fish representations lent irons of the period a whimsical appearance, they also served a utilitarian purpose. It was their weight which kept the top secure. Domestic and European makers fitted their irons with such devices. A maker's name or patent date on a turn of the century iron can help eliminate the wrinkle on a collector's brow! Value guide: charcoal iron, bird figure, 1910, $45.

Q. Can you assist me in evaluating a small collection of early radios? —Mr. E. T., Columbus, Ind.

A. Do you have a radio hidden in the attic? Then tune in for some prices which might prompt you to rescue it from gathering any further dust! Value guide: Atwater Kent, M44, matching speaker, $85; Angelus, cathedral case, $120; Crosley, Model 601, $65; Eveready, table model, 1930s, $90; Kolster, 6 tube battery, $60; Philco, Beehive type, 1930s, $80; RCA Victor Traveler, battery operated, 1920s, $120; Zenith, Big Dial, $80.

Q. I'm an avid collector of Hall China Company teapots. When were they introduced? —Rita, Seaside Heights, N.J.

A. Looking for a find with a future? Then permit me to introduce you to the diversified line of Hall china teapots. The Hall China Company, of East Liverpool, Ohio, was organized about 1903. In 1920, the company officials wisely decided to introduce a line of teapots. They met with warm public acceptance, appearing in a variety of colors. Since each teapot bore a special design, collecting them can prove to be a never ending source of surprise. Value guide: Melody, Chinese red, $22.

Q. Would you please enlighten me about corkscrews as I'm about to start collecting these oddities? —Tim, Des Moines, Iowa.

A. The corkscrew, that device utilized in drawing a cork from a bottle, has been known for centuries. Figural versions existed during the 17th century. By the Victorian era, designers captivated inbibers with some ingenious mechanical models which often appear on flea market tabletops. Some ornate specimens boasting mother of pearl, ivory or serling silver handles surfaced in the Art Nouveau period (1890-1910). As collectors became more aware of these finds, they should prove somewhat more difficult to pry loose from their owners! Value guide: corkscrew, figural cat, silver, circa 1890, $55.

Meeting Nights Changed

The Town Board of Saint Joe will meet the first Tuesday of January and February at 7:00 p.m.

LENNON (continued)

was shocking.

" 'Most shocking of all, however, was the failure of their parents to guide them, believing the children's antics to be clean, wholesome, innocent, youthful fun—without realizing how far such teenage worship of entertainers can go.'

"With teenage mental breakdown at an all-time high and juvenile delinquency nearly destroying our society from within, it is important to note that both are caused in part by destructive 'music' such as rock 'n roll. Therefore, no matter what one might think about the Beatles or the Animals or the Mindbenders, the results are the same—a generation of young people with neurotic tendencies, loose morals and little desire or ability to defend themselves from those who would bury them.

"Through royalties on record albums and other investments, as well as concerts and movies, John Lennon is said to have amassed an estate of up to $235 million. He owned a quarter interest in Apple, one of his recording companies. He also had extensive farm land and other real estate investments.

"In 'The Marxist Minstrels,' Dr. David A. Noebel's great handbook on communist subversion of music, are many well-documented accounts of John Lennon's influence on the youth of America ('The Marxist Minstrels' is available for $7.50 from Summit Ministries, Box 207, Manitou Springs, Colorado 80829.)

" 'Ono has been described as an avant-garde psychedelic artist from Japan who once made a film entirely composed of 365 shots of naked bottoms. She was still married to an American Film-maker when she announced that she was expecting a baby via John Lennon.

" 'John and his Japanese mistress contrived to have their pictures taken in the raw and placed on their album mistakenly labeled "The Two Virgins." The album cover was so offensive that initially onyl Sweden permitted it into the country. However, even though ruled obscene by a New Jersey Supreme Court judge, it was released in the United States—and, promptly, one of its renditions, "The Ballad of John and Ono," went to the top of the hit list. "If people can't face up to the fact of other people being naked or smoking pot," reasoned John, "then we're never going to get anywhere". ' "

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Lions Club Collecting Old Glasses

The Saint Joe Lions Club is participating in a project which has world-wide significance.

Many people in the world can't see because they need eye glasses but can't afford them. Lions clubs of Indiana collect old, discarded eye glasses and reclaim them. The glasses are cleaned, checked and classified. Then they are packaged by optical classifications and shipped to those who are less fortunate, mostly in South America. There the people are examined and fitted with corrective lenses free of charge by Indiana Lions eye doctors who travel to areas where they are needed.

Readers of The News who have ANY old, unused eye glasses lying around are urged to contact a local Lions club member or drop them off at Crow's Rainbow Farm Center in Saint Joe. Glasses can also be dropped off at the county clerk's office in the courthouse at Auburn.

"The people there can use your old glasses and surely will appreciate them"

Q. Have you any information on the clockmaker Elias Ingraham? We just inherited a Marbelite clock from this maker. —Gwen, Dunkirk, N.Y.

A. The Ingraham name is a magic one to members of the clock collecting fraternity. Elias Ingraham (1805-1885) was destined to become one of the foremost clockcase designers working in Victorian America. He was involved with numerous clock companies during his active period. Such innovative designs as the sharp Gothic shelf clock, also known as the Steeple clock, have been attributed to this adventurous craftsman.In 1852 he founded his own firm, a business which was carried on to the fifth generation. Time marches on, and so do collectors in search of Ingraham timepieces. Value guide: Marbelite shelf clock, 1880s, $425.

Q. Would you please assist me in evaluating a small collection of glass containers? — Tom, St. Petersburg, Fla.

A. Around the turn of the century, these figural representations held small candies. Long after the candies had disappeared, the imaginative containers functioned as children's playthings. Value guide: Ball Player, $35; Betty Boop, $30; Buster Brown with Tige, $50; Fire Engine, "U.S.A.", $45; Liberty Bell, $55; Rabbit in Egg, $40; Rolling Pin, $20.

Q. Can you enlighten us about a ceramic plate possessing a photograph of the Public Library in Boston? We think it dates from the late 1800s. — MM. P. J., Cleveland, Ohio.

A. From the 1890s, advertisements proclaimed that photographs could be reproduced with faultless accuracy on china. It provided a boon to the souvenir trade, and to business establishments which desired to promote their wares in this fashion. Various landmarks popped onto plates, vases and a parade of other pictorial ceramic productions. The American Photographic Company of New York was a leader in the field. Wedgwood, Doulton, Minton's were among the English potters who participated in this prosperous chinafad of the late 19th century. Value guide: plate, Public Library of Boston center, 10-inch diameter, 1890s, $25.

Q. Can you furnish information on a postcard we purchased having Mexican coins as a motif? —Gene, Hayward, Calif.

A. The so-called "Coin Card" depicting embossed coins from Mexico, and the Mexican flag, dates from 1905. Ten different coins are portrayed on this postcard. They are of various sizes. This Mexican postcard rates as a novelty item with dedicated deltiologists who are willing to part with more than small change to acquire one. Value guide: Mexican "Coin Card," $15.

Teacher, Students Win With Old Math Texts

(from the Chicago "Tribune"
—by Jack Mabley

When Stan Hartzler started using old math textbooks with his students at Crete-Monee (Ill.) High School, his students began winning competitions. The olden the texts, the more they won.

The the time Hartzler was teaching his kids from a 1900 textbook, they had won five conference championships.

Hartzler's almost accidental discovery of the merits of old-fashioned math teaching changed his career and may have a profound effect on the teaching of math in U.S. high schools.

Hartzler, who is 33, now is teaching at the University of Texas at Austin, is working on his Ph. D. in mathematics education, and is preparing a historical study of math textbooks.

Hartzler recalled the beginning of his coaching for math competition.

"I was looking around to see how other teams succeeded," he said. "One of the other coaches pulled a 1947 algebra text off the shelf. When I read it.I saw things I'd never seen before.

"I started going to old book stores, and using the texts that I found with my team and my classes. It was quickly apparent that the older books were working.

"A great many of the older books — published around 1900 — were written by one-room teachers. The lessons and assignments were artfully constructed and easy to read. Students could learn by themselves and wouldn't have a lot of questions. The teachers didn't have time to lecture because they had to move on and teach other children reading.

"One of the first things I noticed was that my kids stopped coming in with a lot of questions about last night's homework.

"The old books have a continuing sequence of problem-solving, and they continually challenge the students to use their minds. These days students are taught to rely on the text and the teacher rather than using their own minds."

Hartzler also is troubled by today's heavy influence of curriculum study groups.

They set up standards for the national college entrance tests, he said, so the texts have eliminated problems that are harder than these standards. "They drill kids — and it can be a pretty boring drill.

"Older books continue to build the kids' skill beyond that point. Modern books teach through repetition.

"Most of the new books are written by teams. The authors write their own chapters and often never even see each other.

"Modern books are packaged to sell. The printing is very professional and the layout is impressive. These details catch a teacher's eye. The books are designed more to sell than to teach."

Hartzler now is teaching elementary education majors. "At least one student in each class comes up to me and says, 'I don't feel stupid in math any more, and I always used to.'

"Some of the modern theories on how to teach math spoil it for the kid because he doesn't learn to trust his own problem-solving power."

So Hartzler teaches, reads and prowls Salvation Army stores, garage sales, antique shops, used book stores and attics. If anyone wants to send him an old math text, his address is 5302 Branding Chase, Austin, Texas 78759.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercisod in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

"That must have been some snowmobile ride," was the observation I made to Jan Roberts this week when she asked to have a "lost" ad run.

What she is looking for is her size 6 snowmobile boot for her right foot. Finder please call Jan at 337-5165.

People have been taking spills this week, what with the ice, then the ice covered with snow. Esther fell in our driveway Wednesday and Jake Schwartz fell near the same place later.

Watch your step. The light snow cover is deceiving.

Donors Sought

It's Bloodmobile time again.

On Tuesday, February 24, the excellent record of public response to the Riverdale Bloodmobile goes on the line as the annual solicitation for a pint of blood from each donor is sought.

Delores Hicov, local chairman of the Riverdale Bloodmobile, urges area residents to mark the date on their calendar to participate in the charitable cause. Students at Riverdale Elementary School and local adults help to set up the equipment needed to process blood donors. Registered nurses from the area are utilized to see that all the procedures are in order and that donors are afforded the necessary routine precautions.

The Riverdale Bloodmobile has had remarkable response in recent years and it is hoped that the cooperation of the public will continue this year.

The most convenient way to give blood is to make an appointment to donate between the hours of 1:00 and 6:00 p.m. However, if an appointment is not convenient, "walk in" donors are welcome.

One of the encouraging factors in the Riverdale Bloodmobile has been the participation of students from DeKalb Eastside High School. Their willingness to donate a pint of blood indicates an awareness of the needs of other people and the opportunity to be of great help in others' time of need.

Robin Miller Is YFC Contestant

Robin Miller, daughter of MM Jim Miller of Saint Joe, is DeKalb Eastside's representative in "Miss Campus Life" competition. The contest is sponsored by Youth For Christ Campus Life. Competition is through penny-a-vote donations gained through coin canisters in business places, bake sales and neighborhood solicitation. Proceeds go to support the Youth For Christ program.

Girls from eight Campus Life clubs in DeKalb, Noble and Steuben counties are competing.

EHS's Beverly Martin Honored

Beverly Martin, faculty member at DeKalb Eastside High School, was recently named "Outstanding Teacher" by the Northeast Area of Indiana Council for Exceptional Children.

Mrs. Martin began teaching in the Special Education Department at Eastside 16 years ago. She had been teaching in another school system when the opportunity appeared in the Eastside schools.

After many years of work with students requiring special attention, Mrs. Martin says she would not want to return to the regular classroom.

One of the greatest rewards in the special education field is the demonstrative attitude of students in special education. They freely express their gratitude and appreciation for the attention they receive, more so than students in the regular classroom.

That comment reflects the statement of Florence Weaver at Riverdale a few years ago when she told The News: "The children beg for homework. They think they are being punished if they don't get any."

Eastside has had its Secondary Level Resource Room since 1963. It got an early start in special education.

Donation Returned, Letters Read At Town Board Meeting

The Town Board of Saint Joe met in regular session Tuesday at the Town Hall. Present were president Ted Haberkorn; member Larry McKown; clerk Emma Frank; attorney James McCanna; and street superintendent John Bopp.

The president asked that the wording of the minutes of the previous meeting be changed to show that the president had not "refused" use of the building for a tool auction benefitting the local fire department; rather, that the president's objection was to the use of Sunday. It had appeared that a different day of the week would be used at the previous meeting. However, the auction was held Sunday, February 1, at the Spencerville Community Building. The president's objection to the use of Sunday had been explained with the observation that "Sunday has been infringed upon enough as it is" destroying that day's traditional position as "a day of rest."

Under old business, Mr. McKown said that he and board member Paula Tinstman had talked the matter over and decided that the $250 check presented at the January meeting by the president to cover part of the expense of enclosing a town office should be returned. The two board members did not feel that the president was obligated to make the donation.

Mrs. Frank reminded the board that a water rate increase is necessary to keep the system on a sound financial basis. The matter had been brought up several months ago but no action taken. The board is to determine what new rates will be before the town attorney can petition the Public Service Commission for the increase.

The president asked if the waterworks had received any income from the filling of swimming pools by the fire department last year. Mrs. Frank said there were no such receipts. Rates for such water use had been set by the board last summer.

A lengthy discussion was held with the attorney concerning the board-fire department relationship.

The attorney presented material for study by the board concerning meeting agendas, etc.

The clerk read two letters. One was from Loretta Loy questioning the "right" of the president to deny the firemen's request for use of the town hall. The other letter was from Margaret Drerup of Rt 8 Auburn who expressed appreciation for the facilities at Wild Cherry Park and suggested that a fee be set for use for reunions and other large gatherings. Since the park was opened in the 1950s, free will donations have been accepted for park use.

Blazers Winning

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers have been ranked in the top ten area teams recently, a comparatively new experience for the local team. And on January 30 the Blazers gave their status a boost with a 63-62 win over the Garrett Railroaders.

Led by Randy Burns and his 33 points, the Blazers gained a commanding lead in the first three quarters, or so it seemed. They trailed 18-10 at the first quarter, gained a 31 28 lead at the half and extended that lead to 51-39 at the end of thre quarters. Then the Railroaders came to life and outscored the Blazers 23-12 in the final period but the rally fell short of a win.

Rich Timmerman had a dozen points and was a key man in first half fast breaks.

Lions Club Collecting Old Glasses

The Saint Joe Lions Club is participating in a project which has world-wide significance.

Many people in the world can't see because they need eye glasses but can't afford them. Lions clubs of Indiana collect old, discarded eye glasses and reclaim them. The glasses are cleaned, checked and classified. Then they are packaged by optical classifications and shipped to those who are less fortunate, mostly in South America. There the people are examined and fitted with corrective lenses free of charge by Indiana Lions eye doctors who travel to areas where they are needed.

Readers of The News who have ANY old, unused eye glasses lying around are urged to contact a local Lions club member or drop them off at Crow's Rainbow Farm Center in Saint Joe. Glasses can also be dropped off at the county clerk's office in the courthouse at Auburn.

Indiana Lions are attempting to obtain a truckload of glasses to take to South America.

"The people there can use your old glasses and surely will appreciate them"

'Quiet' Saint Joe Financially Sound

At one of the recent meetings of the local town board, a comment was made by a member of the local fire department that Saint Joe wouldn't be having money problems if past boards had "gone after" federal grants. That opinion came from an obvious belief that not enough money was being spent for the fire deprtment.

It was also thought that the lack of progress in getting the sewage treatment matter completed was somehow related to other money matters of the town.

The truth of the matter is, the sewage treatment project is entirely separate from the normal financial functioning of the town. If there is a lack of adequate money for town matters, it is not due to failure to apply for and get federal funds for this or that program.

The further truth of the matter is, Saint Joe DOESN'T have any money problems for the simple reason that the town HAS NOT sought federal aid in various matters. No, we don't have money running out our ears. We do have adequate funds to provide for normal and reasonable expenses related to maintaining smalltown government.

If readers have kept their eyes open in recent months, they have read about cities and towns having financial problems, finding it necessary to cut back on expenses in significant amounts. Remember New York City?? Remember Cleveland?? (Remember the federal government!?)

The matter reaches down into communities in our immediate area. Monroeville has had to adjust its trash collection methods. The annual bill of $30,000 or more could not be met any longer under the former method of payment. What was that former method? It was to pay the bill with tax funds (maybe federal revenue sharing funds). But with the property tax freeze and costs going up for everything, there wasn't enough money to pay the trash bill for residents. The solution to the problem is: Monroeville will require residents to pay the bill.

That's what Saint Joe has been doing ever since the trash collection service was contracted for several years ago. So, Saint Joe isn't having a crisis in trash collection simply because its town boards have obtained the necessary funds the way they should be obtained—by monthly billing to residents.

If federal grants were the solution to city and town financial problems, why are so many cities and towns having financial trouble? The answer: because outright grants and other financial assistance tempted those cities and towns to live beyond their means. The temptation has been so great in some instances that federal assistance money has been used for purposes other than those intended.

There is nothing spectacular about life in Saint Joe. Most surrounding communities ignore us, in a sense. But there is something noteworthy about our little town, and that is that it continues to function as a unit of civil government without asking someone else to help pay the bills.

Generally, it has never been popular to oppose the view that "if we don't get it (federal aid tax money), somebody else will." However, there is a justifiable sense of pride in that Saint Joe has not resorted to asking for handouts and as a result it has a sound financial structure today as compared to those communities which have fallen victim to the federal aid enticement.

Every child should have good teeth

It is a mistaken notion that "baby" teeth do not need care just because the body replaces them with "permanent" teeth. Imperfect "baby" teeth often cause many later-life dental problems.

Every child should be taken to a dentist at about two and a half years to three years of age. By then all the "baby" teeth will be in. The dentist will check for minute signs of decay, or any malformations which can cause later troubles. Dentist patients under four years have an average of three tooth that need fillings. If dental aids are needed, whether it be a child's tooth-brush or a good-tasting effective toothpaste, we have a complete stock.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. We found an old bandbox in the barn. When were these bygones in vogue? —Mrs. D. W., Norfolk, Va.

A. During the first half of the 19th century, bandboxes crafted of pasteboard or thin strips of wood proved popular as traveling companions. Round or oval versions, covered with colorful wood block printed papers, served as storage receptacles for ladies and gentlemen alike. The printed designs ran the gamut from romantic, classical and naturalistic motifs to to national heroes. Their current prices would seem to belie the fact that may of these traveling adjuncts sold for between five and 50 cents each. Value guide: Bandbox, pasteboard, florals, 1830s, $175.

Q. Please assist me in evaluating a small collection of cameras I've acquired over a number of years. —Frank, Travis City, Mich.

A. Now that photography is recognized as an art form, collectors are becoming increasingly interested in vintage cameras. The result? Steadily climbing prices for objects in this captivating category. Value guide: Brownie, box, No. 2A, $22; Eastman Kodak, Crown Tripod, 1903, $45; Kodak, Bantam, f4-5, Flash, $40; Kombi, original box, $100; Tourist, Hawk-Eye, (Blair), $170.

Q. Is my camphor glass shoe from the Libbey firm from the 1893 World's Fair a sought-after item? —Madge, Colorado Springs, Colo.

A. "Sell the cookstove if necessary and come," wrote one visitor to his parents after attending the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. Souvenir seekers who attended the Chicago fair grounds returned home laden down with treasures and trifles. One fast mover was the camphor glass lady's shoe marked "Made Libbey Glass Co., Toledo, Ohio, for 1893 World's Fair." Camphor glass was so named because it had the appearance of gum camphor. Flea marketeers would walk a mile to uncoved one of these sought-after souvenirs priced under $30.

Q. When did cigar and tobacco cutters come into general use? —James, Albany, N.Y.

A. Knives and other devices, especially designed for cutting plugs of tobacco or the ends of cigars, surfaced as smoking adjuncts in the early 19th century. Some pocket cutters were highly ornamental, having unusual handles in a variety of forms. Somewhat less ornate were the table models, designed to be screwed to a shop bar or counter and operated by elongated handles. Advertising types proliferated as the century progressed and the number of cigar smokers increased proportionately. Value guide: Tobacco cutter, The Star, $60.

It's Bloodmobile time again.

On Tuesday, February 24, the excellent record of public response to the Riverdale Bloodmobile goes on the line as the annual solicitation for a pint of blood from each donor is sought.

Delores Hicov, local chairman of the Riverdale Bloodmobile, urges area residents to mark the date on their calendar to participate in the charitable cause. Students at Riverdale Elementary School and local adults help to set up the equipment needed to process blood donors. Registered nurses from the area are utilized to see that all the procedures are in order and that donors are afforded the necessary routine precautions.

The Riverdale Bloodmobile has had remarkable response in recent years and it is hoped that the cooperation of the public will continue this year.

The most convenient way to give blood is to make an appointment to donate between the hours of 1:00 and 6:00 p.m. However, if an appointment is not convenient, "walk in" donors are welcome.

One of the encouraging factors in the Riverdale Bloodmobile has been the participation of students from DeKalb Eastside High School. Their willingness to donate a pint of blood indicates an awareness of the needs of other people and the opportunity to be of great help in others' time of need.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I had to do some floor repair around the stool in our bathroom. It had been wiggling and when I lifted the carpet, the basement was plainly visible.

Talk about shaking thrones in foreign countries—our throne was the shakiest!

While at the Butler Company to get a new seat for the stool, I noticed this tidbit on a wall: "Old plumbers never die, they just smell that way!"

We've sure had some strange weather—from the 30's to b'zero to the 30's again, in only a few days' time.

That's the kind of weather that plays havoc with pavement. Chuckholes have blossomed almost overnight.

Mutual Reples To 'News' Editorial

Editor
The Saint Joe News

Concerning your editorial of 1/15/81 titled "Mutual's News Bias," apparently you did not hear more than one Mutual newscast. On the day Alexander Haig's nomination as Secretary of State was approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, 15-2, Mutual News broadcast the following interviews:

Sen. Claiborne Pell on why he was supporting Haig;

Sen. Paul Tsongas on why he voted against Haig;

Sen. Charles Percy praising the Haig nomination and approval;

Sen. Joseph Biden on his reasons for voting for Haig.

The Percy interview was used on three different newscasts during the day, while the Tsongas material was aired twice. The other interviews were each heard once.

Additionally, on Tuesday, January 13, and Wednesday, January 14, General Haig's responses to the committee were heard on at least twelve newscasts. These responses included his defense of his actions during the Watergate crisis and other questions raised by the committee.

I think in all honesty you cannot say Mutual "has their prejudice showing" on this or any other story we cover.

I trust you will, in fairness, reprint my letter in its entirety and send me a copy so we can consider the matter closed.

Very truly yours,

Donald A. Budd
Vice President
Director, Domestic News Coverage
Mutual Broadcasting System

We appreciate the reply. The problem is, we (and other citizens) can't hear every news broadcast. Therefore, it would seem appropriate to have differing views on EACH news report, rather than one side on one program, the other side on another program. The problem is time, we acknowledge. And that's where editing responsibilities come in.

By coincidence, a local resident commented on the same reporting bias to us on the same matter: General Haig's appointment. However, that individual's reaction came from viewing TV news programs, not the radio broadcasts. Mutual is not a TV network. —Ed.

Parent Objects To 'Values' Methods

Darla McCammon of R1 Saint Joe has expressed concern as a parent about some of the materials used in public schools. She has written a letter to Rex Tullis, principal at the Riverdale Elementary School. It reads as follows:

"Dear Dr. Tullis:

"As a parent of the DeKalb Eastern School District, I must protest your recent introduction of the 'What Kind of Kid Are You Quiz' being given to the students at Riverdale. Something very similar to this has also been going on up at Eastside High and I object very much to these 'Values Clarification' sessions.

"Schools are to teach my children such things as are facts and do not have the right nor the responsibility to mold my children's minds in such areas outside the realm of facts. You do a very fine job in reading, writing, and math and I would appreciate it very much if you would stay in those areas as too many of our children are coming out of school not even functioning in those areas. Leave the values where they belong—with the parent.

"Values clarification is very deceptive and sounds like a marvelous idea at first blush, but upon investigation, I doubt that very many parents either at Eastside or Riverdale would approve of its existence in our schools.

"In values clarification, students are to form their OWN opinion about their values in life. This means teachers introduce such questions as 'Do you think there are times when it is O.K. to lie?' and then the teachers do NOT influence the group, but allow each in the group to express themselves. In a group of 30 children if 29 have said it is O.K. to lie, do you think No. 30 is going to bend to peer pressure or will they really form their OWN value at this point. In other words, the children will come away not REALLY with their own values (the supposed goal), but with the consensus of the group. I do not think I wish my child to have her life's values dictated by a bunch of sixth graders — or vice versa.

Thank you.

Mrs. Darla McCammon

"P.S. I have read numerous books and articles critical of values clarification and its corresponding evil, 'situation ethics.' Among them: 'The Battle For the Mind' by Dr. Tim LaHaye, a noted Christian educator; 'Are Textbooks Harming Your Children?' by James Hefley; and numerous articles and books by Indiana legislator Dr. Don Boys from Indianapolis."

The "values clarification" quiz referred to includes the following questions:

1. Do you think everyone needs to learn to read and write?
2. Do you think everyone should have to go to school for a certain amount of time?
3. Do you think kids your age should be allowed to vote for the President of the United States?
4. Do you think kids should get an allowance?
5. Do you think kids should work for an allowance?
6. Do you think it's possible to watch too much TV?
7. Do you watch too much TV?
8. Do you think kids should be allowed to watch any movie they want to?
9. Do you think older brothers and sisters should discipline younger ones?
10. Do you think kids should decide what time they go to bed?
11. Do you think there are times when it's ok to lie?
12. Do you think it's important to have a best friend?

Lions Club Collecting Old Glasses

The Saint Joe Lions Club is participating in a project which has world-wide significance.

Many people in the world can't see because they need eye glasses but can't afford them. Lions clubs of Indiana collect old, discarded eye glasses and reclaim them. The glasses are cleaned, checked and classified. Then they are packaged by optical classifications and shipped to those who are less fortunate, mostly in South America. There the people are examined and fitted with corrective lenses free of charge by Indiana Lions eye doctors who travel to areas where they are needed.

Readers of The News who have ANY old, unused eye glasses lying around are urged to contact a local Lions club member or drop them off at Crow's Rainbow Farm Center in Saint Joe. Glasses can also be dropped off at the county clerk's office in the courthouse at Auburn.

Indiana Lions are attempting to obtain a truckload of glasses to take to South America.

"The people there can use your old glasses and surely will appreciate them"

Imbalance In 'Benefits' Structure

Some things slowly creep into our lives. Without realizing it, we accept as normal or justified that which we would not approve. Time sort of wears us down.

One of those things is public responsibility for retirement funds for public employees. Along with it goes public responsibility for providing public employees with medical and hospital insurance.

I don't understand why I am expected to help pay for these fringe benefits for civil government employees but they don't pay a dime toward providing such benefits for me.

If you read the legal notices of commissioners' claims when they are published, you may have noted an item called "Public Employees Retirement Fund" for county employees. A notice of such claims, for the December 29, 1980, meeting of the County Commissioners included several bills paid to the Public Employees Retirement Fund, plus additional bills for Blue Cross-Blue Shield insurance for county employees, both elected and appointed.

Just for the fun of it (fun???) I totalled those two items from the legal notice. The result: on December 29, 1980, the county commissioners paid over $31,000 for those two items — public employees' retirement and medical-hospital insurance coverage. Every month finds similar expenditures.

I don't know if anything is withheld from an employee's paycheck and included in that amount or not. It doesn't really matter because all the money comes from taxes in the first place.

Along the same line, much of the concern related to state and federal governmental money matters has to do with having enough money to cover future financial obligations related to retirement or disability. A frequent subject of bills proposed in the state legislature is pension funds for governmental employees.

In recent years, there has been an acceptance of the idea by public officeholders (both Republican and Democrat) that the public owes a debt to those employees, that those employees have made a "sacrifice" by seeking public office. I don't understand that outlook. I don't understand why a taxpayer is responsible for keeping a government employee in retirement.

My problem, I suppose, is that someone in business for themself must provide for retirement and health care out of his or her own pocket. There is no painless "withholding" of a portion of wages or salary.

However, there IS an obsession with pension and retirement prevalent in today's American society which just does not fit the principle of self-reliance associated with the development and growth of our nation's business community. When labor contracts are negotiated, all the talk is about what the employee gets; there is no discussion about how good a job the employee will do.

The self-employed get hit by a double responsibility in providing for health care and retirement—their own AND every employee associated with every product they buy.

If the self-employed are expected to take care of their own needs as far as health and retirement, why shouldn't an employee have the same responsibility for himself?

Much of our financial predicament today, nationally and on down the scale, is due to the socialistic philosophy we are now following that everybody else should help keep the employee in good health and provide for his retirement. And the frightening thing is that the obligations already incurred for future years in that area are staggering in size.

If we are having money problems now, what do you think it will be like 20 years from now—or sooner?

If we're going to say that the small independent shopkeeper and businessman should pay for certain needs of the "public servant," isn't it only fair to say that the "public servant" owes something to the small shopkeeper and independent businessman for providing tax monies used to pay government employees???

Maybe the answer is that the independent businessman should be exempt from income and social security taxes. That may sound a bit extreme and sound like too much. But it really isn't considering the fact that the cost of fringe benefits in big industry per employee is almost as much as the employee's wages. Government officers and employees enjoy the same significant benefits.

To even things up for the self-employed single income families they ought to be exempt from income and Social Security taxes but remain eligible for all the benefits and have their medical and dental bills paid by the federal government. The self-employed are paying for everyone else's.

Why should the historic "backbone" of American business, the self-employed, be penalized for being self-employed??? Why are government employees so special??? Why are private business employees so special???

Mayor's Memos

—by Butler Mayor Guy Masteller as published in the Butler "Bulletin"

President Reagan's speech, a few nights ago, clearly pointed out the condition of our country in regards to financial matters. He also asked for the full cooperation of all of us, as it would be the only way we can expect to correct the situation. We are going to have many changes in our life style before we can expect a change in the economy and a reduction in unemployment. We like to complain about world events and what government agencies are doing, but have each of you stopped to ask yourselves what we have contributed to try to improve the situation? At a meeting several years ago, it was suggested that we write our government representatives and let them know our feelings. All were agreed, but the final results were not what we expected, since I was the only one who took the time to write. I was later criticized for my efforts. However, it hasn't changed my feelings, and I still continue to write and express my feelings and concern.

I know times have changed, but many of the old beliefs and methods of solving a problem are better than present day methods. Many will not agree with me, especially attorneys who didn't exist during those times. We continue to put people in positions where their only objective is to make or change law after law, and what is the ultimate gain —CONFUSION. Most people who read them can interpret them differently, and then we spend thousands in courts trying to prove them wrong. Constant offenders of law are repeatedly put back into society, with a mere slap on the hand.

During a recent luncheon, the table conversation switched from one topic to another, including welfare. I am not against helping those in need, but I threw in my two cents worth, suggesting placing some of the able bodied ones into the working classification, cleaning highway property and any other duties that require the use of tax dollars. What is wrong with performing a little work for the money provided, especially to those who are too lazy to contribute a few hours of their time. It might even be wise to round up a few old army drill sgts. and place them in command.

I was told that was against these people's constitutional rights and all the legality involved would not warrant it. Don't the rest of us who work for a living have any rights? In other words, our tax dollars will still support these people, and help to fatten the pockets of those who spend the time to find the loopholes in the law. I guess the old "school of hard knocks" taught some of us a different outlook in life.

We read about cities now facing bankruptcy, because the government is not passing out the "Big Bucks" so generously. Like most individuals living those prosperous years, cities were taking the easy route also, believing that a vast amount of money was there for the asking. Now, we are going to learn to think, budget and provide differently, which may not be all bad. Perhaps we can revert back to the time when working with out local government and neighbors was the right thing to do, after all. Sure, we may have to do with less of the finer things in life, but I still have faith that we will all find that we can still live and enjoy our short time on earth.

Every child should have good teeth

It is a mistaken notion that "baby" teeth do not need care just because the body replaces them with "permanent" teeth. Imperfect "baby" teeth often cause many interlife dental problems.

Every child should be taken to a dentist at about two and a half years to three years of age. By then all the "baby" teeth will be in. The dentist will check for minute signs of decay, or any malformations which can cause later troubles. Dental patients under four years have an average of three teeth that need fillings. If dental aids are needed, whether it be a child's tooth-brush or a good-tasting effective toothpaste, we have a complete stock.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Q. Does our Philco Baby Grand Cathedral style table model radio rate as a collectible? —MM E. L., Cherry Hill, N.J.

A. In the late 1920s, American radio manufacturers introduced tube sets, which could be conveniently plugged into an AC electric socket. This sent the earlier battery operated versions straight to the attic. Initially, table models proved popular, but by 1928 console radios built into furniture cases graced parlors throughout the country. Collectors covet early table model radios, especially the cathedral or Gothic styles which proliferated during the 1930s. Because they popped into prominence during the Great Depression, some people refer to them as depression models. Value guide: Philco Baby Grand cathedral radio, 1932, $140.

Q. Are first edition copies of F. Scott Fitzgerald's work in demand? —Kenneth, Long Beach, Calif.

A. A review of recent auction prices obtained for Fitzgeralds work enables us to read between the lines in this collecting category. The prices surprised even those who predicted an upsurge of interest in this field. A first edition copy of "The Great Gatsby," a work highly favored by Fitzgerald scholars, just sold for $325 at a New York auction. Adding to the excitement at this event was a first edition signed presentation copy of "This Side of Paradise," which brought $1,600. Fitzgerald first editions truly qualify as fortunate finds.

Q. Would it be possible to enlist your aid in evaluating a small collection of Westward Ho pattern glass? —Helen, Duluth, Minn.

A. The beloved Westward Ho design, marketed by Gillinder & Sons in the late 1870s, is a pattern worth pursuing. Tip: Beginning collectors should exercise caution for reproductions abound. Value guide: butter, covered, $160; compote, 6 inches tall. $150; creamer, $90; goblet, $80; spooner, $85; sugar, covered, $150; wine, $140; water pitcher, $200.

Q. At a local market I purchased a cigarette tin marked Myrtle Grove having the portrait of a young lady. Where did this tin originate? —Tom, Des Moines, Iowa.

A. Around the turn of the century, English tobacco makers tried to lure customers by packaging their products in attractive tins. The pocket size Myrtle Grove tin, issued by Taddy & Co. of London, pictured the head and shoulders of a young lady. She was appropriately attired in late Victorian hat and boa. However, Myrtle Grove did not refer to the belle, to to Sir Walter Raleigh's home. It was one of the most popular brands of tobacco during this period. Pocketing this tin for under $25 is cause for celebration.

Young Men Set Up Special Tornado Meeting For This Community Thursday, March 5, At Concord UM Church

Two community-conscious young men, one still a student at DeKalb Eastside High School, have voluntarily taken steps to set up a "Tornado Safety Seminar."

Bruce Johnson,, a 1979 graduate of Eastside, and high school junior Joe Wojciechowski have set up a "Concord Volunteer Tornado Department" out of concern for the safety of residents in that area.

However, the seminar is for residents in the entire local community, to anyone who wants to know more about tornado safety.

Morgan Ballard, official in charge at the National Weather Service Office in the Baer Field Terminal south of Fort Wayne, will lead the seminar. Bruce corresponded with Mr. Ballard recently about tornado safety and the latter suggested that a meeting date be set for presenting pertinent information to the public. Mr. Ballard indicated in a letter to Bruce that "we are going to concentrate heavily on Safety Tips!"

The seminar will be held Thursday, March 5, at the Concord United Methodist Church starting at 7:30 p.m.

The seminar idea being promoted by the two young men is particularly appropriate since March 15-21 has been designated "Tornado Preparedness Week" in Indiana. A statewide drill is set for Thursday, March 19, between the hours of 1 and 2 p.m.

Mr. Ballard noted in his letter that the Baer Field office is open 24 hours a day each day of the week. Anyone interested in becoming involved in dissemination of watch/warning information is invited to drop in and visit. Advance notice is necessary if a group is going to visit the office.

Bruce apparently has gotten a taste of a type of "bureaucracy" in his and Joe's efforts, being told that some of their planning is "not allowed" unless there is "official" involvement. However, this does not have to do with the Baer Field weather station.

Bruce says he has spent between $275 and $300 of his own money toward a warning system for those residing in the Concord area. The young men not only have a list of residents, they have the names of whom to notify if a Concord family has an emergency.

The kind of community interest shown by the young men is a rarity. It is hoped that their efforts will result in a significant response from residents throughout the area and members of area fire departments.

Clara, a former resident of Saint Joe, added a P.S. to her note:

"That was a nice memorial to Elwood. My late husband and he used to do a lot of ice fishing as you will remember."

I do remember. The January 7, 1960, issue of this paper had a picture of the two men with a 11½-pound 29-inch channel catfish caught by Elwood in the St. Joe River. Wanda Coburn has the News' picture on a wall at her restaurant.

Harvey Carr

Harvey A. Carr, 68, of Saint Joe died Friday, February 13, at 12:01 a.m. at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. He had a blood condition which required frequent trips to the hospital for new blood. Born in Paulding, Ohio, on March 19, 1912, Mr. Carr was the son of Harvey, Sr., and Sylvia Williamson Carr. He married Fern M. Bailey June 4, 1933, in Auburn. He retired from International Harvester in 1973. The Carrs have resided in Saint Joe 38 years. Mr. Carr served as clerk-treasurer for the Town of Saint Joe in the 1960s.

Survivors include his wife; three daughters, Andrea Barber of Eugene, Oregon, Melanie Gaffin of Bloomington, Indiana, and Renee Collins of Ashley; a son, Nicholas, of Saint Joe; a sister, Iona Woodcox, of Antwerp, Ohio; eight grandchildren; and two nephews.

Cremation was arranged by Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville. A memorial service is planned for a later date.

NOTICE

St. Joe Municpical Water Department Drinking Water Exceeds Microbiological Standards

The St. Joe Municipal Water Department water supply failed to comply with the Federal drinking water standard for coliform bacteria for December 1980. The coliform organism is used as an indicator of the microbiological quality of drinking water. Coliforms indicate possible contamination and the possible presence of disease-causing organisms.

The St. Joe Municpal Water Department is attempting to solve the problem by a thorough inspection of treatment facilities and sampling techniques. If necessary, a private engineering firm will be contracted to help solve the problem.

However, tests taken since December have been satisfactory and there appears to be no contamination in the water supply.

Ralph Keeler

Heart attacks suffered Monday, February 16, by Ralph "Jiggs" Keeler of Saint Joe eventually proved fatal. He died Thursday morning at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Keeler, born July 27, 1914, in Saint Joe, was the son of William and Daisy Meek Keeler. On February 26, 1938, he and Olevia Metzger were married in Auburn.

The owner of Jiggs' Motor Service in Saint Joe, Mr. Keeler benefitted from mechanical experience gained while working for D. W. "Mose" Yeiser at Yeiser's Standard Service. In 1945 he opened his own garage business where it is still located on the main street of Saint Joe.

Several years ago Mr. Keeler required neck surgery and undertook chemotherapy treatments. He was then able to return to his regular work day duties. However, the past few years he was able to do only limited tasks at his garage and he suffered from loss of memory to an increasing degree.

The day of his heart attack he had complained of pains in one arm in the morning. At noon the pains became intense and he sought relief by hanging from a door with his weight held by his arms.

The DeKalb EMS was summoned and Kevin White of Saint Joe, a fulltime EMS technician who was off duty, went to the Keeler residence to give assistance. Mr. Keeler suffered a heart attack before the EMS unit arrived, and Kevin revived the stricken man. Mr. Keeler suffered additional heart stoppages at the hospital. He was under intensive care until his death.

Mr. Keeler was a member of the Saint Joe Lions Club and served as its president in 1953; the Saint Joe Conservation Club and the Saint Joe Church of Christ. He served on the town board of Saint Joe in 1956-59 and on the Concord Township Advisory Board.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Tony of Saint Joe and Lonny of Fort Wayne; a daughter, Randa Koch of Fort Wayne; a brother, Judson, of Kendallville; a sister, Mrs. Flossie Bassett, of Auburn; and one grandchild. A brother, Clayton, died a few weeks ago.

Rev. Russell Snyder, former pastor of the local Lutheran parish, officiated at the funeral February 21 at the Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Harvey - Morale Booster

Not often does one have the sobering opportunity to express thoughts about two friends who have died within a week. But that is the case now.

I remember Harvey Carr mostly because of a selfish reason—he was a morale booster for me.

One time it was out of a clear, blue sky, as the saying goes. I was riding a bike toward the ball diamond one evening several years ago and as I passed the Carr residence I called a "hello" to Harvey. He motioned me back. The gist of his remarks was: "I know we were on the opposite sides of the political fence when you were on the town board and I was clerk; and we had our differences from time to time. But we worked things out. And I just want to say that I appreciate what you've done for the town."

Then last summer Harvey was in the News Office one day and he said: "I know you catch a lot of h— on the town board. So I want to say I, and others in town, appreciate the time you take to do things for the town and the community."

What made those moments so meaningful for me was the fact that there was no particular reason at the moment for him to say anything like that. But he did it for someone else's sake. There is no greater gift one can give.

With Harvey and Fern both possessing pretty stubborn attitudes when they wanted to, I am certain there were shouting matches of a sort from time to time in the Carr household. But I also know, from private conversations with Harvey and with Fern, there was love, and that love overrode everything else. I'm certain the Carr kids know what I mean.

'Jiggs' Inspired First Editorial

And then there's Jiggs—hurrying, hustling Jiggs.

Honest, trustworthy, conscientious—every good quality a customer would want was to be found in Jiggs' handling of his business with his patrons.

When I took over this paper in 1948, the first editorial I presented of a specific nature appeared in the April 15, 1948, issue. It's title was "A Fairy Tale" and it went like this:

"Once upon a time there was a motorist who needed some work done on his car. He approached a mechanic and asked if the car could be worked on that day. The mechanic replied that he had plenty to do, but he would at least take a look to see if he could find the trouble.

"Late that afternoon the motorist called the mechanic and the following conversation took place:

" 'Did you find anything wrong with the Studebaker?'

" 'Well, I put the car up on the hoist and checked the tie rods and tie-rod ends and they're as tight as can be. Then I took the car out and drove it; I don't think you're getting a shimmy - I think the trouble is in the tires; they're out of balance. The wheels bounce and set up a vibration.'

" 'O.K. I'll be down to pick it up. How much do I owe you?'

" 'Nothing. I didn't do you any good.'

" 'But it took time to check it over, didn't it?'

" 'I know, but I don't like to charge if I don't do anything and I didn't do anything to your car.'

"Having become accustomed to the 'strictly business' attitude which is characteristic of the comparatively Big City, the above incident is to us something out of a story book. —But it did happen in St. Joe.

"It is a good example of the friendly service and helpfulness given by the businessmen in the small community to their customer-friends — something which is sorely needed in the larger communities. The small town folk are indeed fortunate people.

"Oh yes, we won't tell you the real name of the mechanic in the above story. Let's just call him 'Jiggs'."

Though I was only 23 at the time, I knew a good thing when I saw it. And the attitude on Jiggs' part in my first contact with him remained constant through the years.

For some time I've wanted to give Jiggs public recognition with a public participation approach. But Olevia and the boys discouraged the idea because things were not registering with him any more and his actions were occasionally unpredictable — he might get up in the middle of the pregram and walk out, or something of that sort.

But what did register with him until he died was "there's a customer to be taken care of."

It has been a burden to Olevia, Tony and Lonny to have Jiggs "busybodying" about every little thing. And there were times when patience just was almost impossible to keep. But there is love in that family, I know. And there is respect for what Jiggs stood for, because Tony and Lonny show the same concern for the customer as did their father. No, they don't move as fast as Jiggs did—or maybe it just looks that way; their legs are longer than his.

I'll miss seeing that hurry-hurry walk of Jiggs', the man who served as the inspiration for my first editorial, who represents most endearingly the effort to serve the public.

Thus, two more friends are gone. I hope these words tell the story of how much they meant to me.

Burns Gets 33

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers appeared headed for a winning season toward the end of the current basketball season. But late-season losses left them with a 10-11 record for 1980-81.

Their final game for the year was a sectional contest with the Angola Hornets who had defeated the locals earlier in the season.

Despite a 33-point effort by Randy Burns, the Blazers were defeated 74-63 Tuesday night at the DeKalb Central gym. The 33 points made Randy the third highest single-game scorer in the local sectional history.

Angola led at every quarter, 16—10, 36—29 and 52—43.

Rich Timmerman had nine steals during the game.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

We have read with marked interest your splendid editorial which appeared in the February 5th (issue) of your newspaper. It should be read by every politician, taxpayer and tax spender in the land.

Most of the so-called State and Federal grants are the curse of the country. The people are being bribed with their own hard earned money. It is only, as you pointed out, aids them in their own disaster. Hundreds of cities are bankrupt, or on the verge. Ghost towns of crime, violence and corruption.

President Harding, upon assuming office under severe adverse conditions due to the after-math of a World War, declared: "We shall first put our house in order." Expenses and waste was drastically reduced. Taxes were lowered. There was no unemployment or welfare. All this was accomplished without fanfare. First principles prevailed; WORK and SAVE!

Ever since the days of FDR, who sired the socialistic, left-wing, superwelfare state, it has been: Tax and Spend!

Evidently, few ever heard of Dr. Franklins axiom. "Those who go a borrowing, go a sorrowing."

May God grant you the strength to continue serving as "a Watchman—on—the—Walls". While Liberty is being lost in many areas of our country, it will never vanish in vigilant communities like yours.

I remain,
Very respectfully yours,

George Koch
Member, Harding Memorial Association
R2 West Unity, Ohio 43570

Dear Ted,

Thank you for sending the back issues of The News. For some reason November slips by me before I remember to renew my subscription.

Well—have a good reason for being so late—we each came down with a cold and then flu or maybe it was the flu from the start, about mid December and are just now trying to snap back.

Christmas and New Years seem just a blur as we didn't feel well enough to care—and with delightful weather outside—in or near 80 degrees.

I appreciated the back issues as they contained the obituaries of my two cousins.

I'm enclosing a check for two years—that way I'll be ahead the end of the year instead of behind. Let me know if the price has gone up.

Thank you again. I appreciate your doing this for me.

Sincerely,
Marcellean Curie Hanauer

P.S. I hear from Mrs. Mabel Thornton each Christmas. She was 95 years old December 24 and still doing well and living alone in her apt. in D.C. We had the pleasure of having she and her daughter Geraldine as dinner guests in New York when she was 80 years old—we marveled at her then, she looked so young.

A former neighbor from St. Joe—Devere Woodcox and wife Ginny live in Sun City and we have seen them several times—he and my brother Leonard Curie grew up together—played ball, etc. Now they are each good golfers, although Devere has detached retinas—reason he's retired so early.

Thought maybe some of the older ones there (we are in that category now) might be interested. Sometimes we jog our memory and wonder what happened to this one or that. Seems like we have more time to remember as we grow older.

M.H.

(I feel like I know you well enough to write this—even though I don't. We heard from Blanche Johnson Boyer at Christmas. We were friends. She is your cousin, isn't she?) A cousin she is.

And as far having more time to remember as we grow older, perhaps that is an indication of a full earlier life, rich with friends, neighbors and relatives. We became a member of that "awareness" club just a few years ago ourselves. —Ed.

World Day Of Prayer On 6th

World Day of Prayer will be observed this year Friday, March 6. The observance will be held at the Saint Joe Church of Christ at 7:30 p.m.

The theme for 1981 is "The Earth Is the Lord's."

Organized and carried out throughout the world by women of all denominations, the annual observance provides an opportunity to meditate and worship collectively as a visible witness to the unity of the Christian world in the fight against humanistic influences which place man as the supreme being having the ability to gain within himself all the wisdom necessary for a happy and peaceful existence.

World Day of Prayer services are not just for women. They are for anyone who wishes to participate in the service.

Dinner Meet

—Secretary, Janet Imoff

On Saturday evening, February 21, the DeKalb Eastern Schholbus Drivers gathered at Lucky Steer Restaurant for their annual dinner party.

In attendance were 13 regular route drivers, three substitute drivers and their spouses. Dr. Rex Tullis, Director of Transportation, and his wife made it through the fog to be with the drivers for the evening.

Harold Murphy, president of the organization, entertained those present with his natural wit and humor, surprising some in attendance with some startling facts.

Surprise awards were presented to Pete Akey, Cloyce Baxter, Jerry Eck, Sue Surface, Bob Miller, Harold Murphy and Janet Imhoff. But nobody went home without an award, the rest of the drivers received lollypops.

Dr. Tullis was present with a cartoon strip drawn for the occasion by Gerald Murphy.

Door prizes of ceramic planters in the shape of a school bus and filled with green plants were won by Pete Akel and Mrs. Jerry Eck.

Harold Murphy ended the meeting by reading the following:

An iron worker was nonchalantly walking the beams high above the street on a new skyscraper, while the poeumatic hammers made a nerve jangling racket, and the compressor below shook the whole steel structure. When he came down, a man who'd been watching him said, "I was amazed at your calmness up there. How did you happen to go to work on a job like this?"

"Well," said the worker, "I used to drive a school bus, but my nerves gave out."

Every child should have good teeth

It is a mistaken notion that "baby" teeth do not need care just because the body replaces them with "permanent" teeth. Imperfect "baby" teeth often cause many later-life dental problems.

Every child should be taken to a dentist at about two and a half years to three years of age. By then all the "baby" teeth will be in. The dentist will check for minute signs of decay, or any malformations which can cause later troubles. Dental patients under four years have an average of three teeth that need fillings. If dental aids are needed, whether it be a child's tooth-brush or a good-tasting effective toothpaste, we have a complete stock.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Before you start the day, save some energy.

Saving energy is easy. Even in the morning. All you need to know is what it takes and follow through.

Here's a list of little things you can do that won't cost a cent.

So start putting them into practice.

You'll be surprised how much energy you'll save.

Surprised, too, that your lifestyle won't change.

Morning Energy Savers

Starting tomorrow, take short showers.

When shaving, don't run hot water continuously. Fill the sink halfway instead.

If you use an electric razor you actually save energy, using less of it in a year than a hand razor and hot water uses in a week.

Whenever possible, use a toaster, toaster-oven or a fry pan in place of the large oven or range surface units.

Never use the oven as a heater.

Place a pan on the surface unit before turning the heat on. Heating air is wasteful.

Match pans to the size of the heating surfaces on your range.

If boiling eggs, use a minimum of water. It shortens cooking time.

Save breakfast dishes until evening or a time when all dishes can be washed together.

If frying bacon and eggs, surface units can be turned off a short time before food is done. Let the retained heat finish the cooking.

In winter, open the draperies so sunlight will warm your home. Turn the thermostat down.

Turn off all unneeded lights, radio, TV, etc. when leaving the house or no one is using them.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional ideas, call or visit our office and ask for our free series of SAVE* booklets.

'Fantastic!' - 187 Pints At Riverdale Bloodmobile!

Delores Hicov, chairman of the recent Riverdale Bloodmobile, sends the following letter and report concerning the somewhat amazing response by the local area:

"An excellent turnout of blood donors this year at the Riverdale Bloodmobile gave us again record donations of 187 pints. The Vulcraft plant responded beautifully through the very fine efforts of Jan Roach, plant nurse, 17 students coming from Eastside High School, and our own community people made it a super day!

"The entire operation went very smoothly with additional units and equipment being used. We had 27 volunteer workers, eight RNs, two LPNs, who were from our area, and six RNs who came with the mobile unit from Fort Wayne. It was a beautiful sight!

"I want to say thanks much to all of the volunteer workers, all the nurses, 6th grade boys for setting up, John Sechler's Boy Scouts and Harold and Lorraine Murphy for tearing down, Mr. Hampel, Mr. Tullis, Loretta Musser, The Saint Joe News, Lois Hook and Pat Osmun's Girl Scouts, Eastside students, Vulcraft, and our faithful community donors. Many thanks also to Concord United Methodist, Newville United Methodist, St. Mark and St. Peter Lutheran churches and the Literary Club for all the cookies, Sechler's Pickles, and the very generous money donations from the Saint Joe Lions Club and Crow's Nest Farm."

WITH THE EDITOR

I won't identify the reader to prevent embarrassment. A subscription renewal came in recently with the following justifiable comments:

"If your paper continues sending out blank pages, excerpts from other papers, reports on your own plumbing problems, etc., etc., this will be my last subscription.

"There is much news that could have filled the blanks.

"For instance, the death and burial of Clayton Keeler (Jiggs' brother) 5 weeks ago.

"Jiggs was taken to hosp—Mon. 16th by E.M.S.—died 4 a. m. Thursday—buried Sat. p.m.

"Harvey Carr—died—cremated—services pending.

"Mildred Jarrett at Hicksville Hospital—etc., etc., etc.

"Beauty parlor changed owners—restaurant changed owners."

In fairness to the complaining reader, it should be noted that the appropriate issues to report some of the items had not been published when the note was written. They were late—as usual!

Ila Coburn is able to get out and around a bit again. She had radium treatments for cancer since December and says "they got it!"

But those treatments take all the starch out of you and it is taking time for Ila to regain her strength.

Roger Cook and helpers were seen recently putting up a new sign at the beauty shop he and wife Marcia bought from Kay Smith. The new name—"The Hair Snippers."

Bud Shuff, a native of Saint Joe now residing in Auburn and managing Bob White's Westwood SuperValu, started a conversation last week with, "Hey, what's going on over there!" He was referring to the string of deaths in the community involving names long familiar to long-time residents. He isn't the only one noticing the circumstance. A half dozen people have started a conversation in the last week or so with something like, "Say — you know . . . ."—and I have known exactly what their thoughts were because they were mine, too.

This thing of getting older has some strange — or maybe I should say rude — awakenings. I catch myself conversing with someone and registering to names or events familiar to me—and I then-suddenly realize that the person to whom I am speaking was only five or six years old at the time or event I refer to. Some of them weren't even born yet!

I find it difficult not to think of myself as being as young as the person I am conversing with. And it makes me wonder if there really is a so-called "generation gap" and, if there is, whether it is as divisive as it seems to be or we make it out to be. I wonder if we don't attach too much importance to calendar years as far as age is concerned, and thus MAKE a gap which need not be there.

Sarah Jane Smith of Spencerville has offered to send in some poems from time to time. Her note also referred to a newspaper clipping with a story from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, telling of a young woman who does not know how she got there and doesn't know her name. Mrs. Smith wonders if it might be a missing person from this area.

I can't reproduce the photo in the other newspaper; copying and reproduction would give poor results. But if anyone wants to take a look at the photo, they can see it at the News Office.

Here's a poem written by Dorothy Vernon in October of 1970 and sent in by Mrs. Smith:

"The Savior's Parade

Some day you will join the big parade

And pass the Judge's stand;

But He will look into your heart

And not into your mind.

"The Judge Supreme" will not be swayed

By color, race or creed;

But only by your records

In His Books of Golden Deeds."

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted,

I just read your editorial on Jiggs Keeler.

Ted, it was one of the nicest things I have ever read.

Yes, he was a fine man and the community lost a wonderful friend.

I imagine there is a story everyone in the community could tell about Jiggs helping them.

Just thought I would let you know how one person felt about him.

Sincerely,
Victor L. Duke

This and several other complimentary comments about the editorial serve to emphasize the good character of the man Jiggs and the respect he gained in the community. —Ed.

Other photographs will be available to be purchased. Coupon purchasers will be contacted by a PTO member concerning a time to be photographed.

A skating party is planned for April 14 at the Silvermoon rink. The public is invited.

Anyone wishing further details for the portraits should call the Riverdale school or Donna Ramer, PTO president.

Humane Shelter Donations Sought

Helen Sanders, treasurer of the DeKalb County Humane Society, has announced that every resident in DeKalb County is being contacted with a plea for financial help to complete the shelter located on the north side of US6 between Butler and Waterloo. Many people may not be aware of the fact that the shelter is now nearing completion with the grand opening scheduled for late in May. The walls and roof are constructed. Interior work is now being done.

"We need your help. Any amount will be greatly appreciated. We also need annual memberships as they will be an important factor in the success of the shelter when it is open and operating. Any donation of $10 or more may be considered as a membership. Membership does not obligate you in any way. However, if you are interested in becoming active as a volunteer at the shelter or in other ways, please let us know as there are many categories available," Mrs. Sanders said in describing the program of the society.

All contributions are tax deductible and should be mailed to Mrs. Sanders at 1101 Highland Drive, Auburn 46706.

The society's office is on the third floor of the city hall in Auburn.

'Actor-President' Label Unfair

If there is anyone in the TV world of news reporters I don't particularly care for, it's Frank Reynolds. He irks the h— out of me.

Following President Reagan's address to the Congress and the nation recently, there was the usual "expert" analysis of the speech by commentators and reporters. (It seems the networks think you and I must have what we heard explained, that we can't hear or something.)

Mr. Reynolds' comments included a reference to Mr. Reagan's acting experience as a help in his carrying out the duties of a public official, including making a speech. The subtle suggestion is that Mr. Reagan is "acting" as a President, in other words, what you sees and what you hears is artificial.

Fortunately, one of the other reporters on the same telecast neutralized Mr. Reynolds' remarks by stating that the feeling in the halls of Congress, including members of the opposite party, is: the public is strongly in support of the President in his efforts to reduce the role of government in our private lives, to cut back on federal spending. The reporter said it appeared the message heard by Democrats in Congress is: the November election indicates the public is more concerned about cutting government spending than about reducing taxes, even though the latter is something the public would hardly reject.

Mr. Reynolds' closing comments then seemed to be less forceful than just a few moments before. In a sense, the reporter's comments said, "You're wrong, Frank."

I deeply resent the suggestion constantly thrown out by anti-Reaganists that he is "only an actor." A question appearing the "Parade" Sunday supplement recently possibly indicated the questioner was seeking some anti-Reagan ammunition. They didn't get it.

The question: "When Ronald Reagan attended Eureka College in Illinois, what was his major? Dramatics? —May Franklin, Urbana, Ill."

Walter Scott's answer: "Reagan had a double major of sociology and economics."

Fleamarket Finds

Q. What information can you furnish on a double pedestal library table made by the Hartman firm? —Mr. S.P., Dunkirk, N.Y.

A. In the early 1900s the Hartman Furniture Co. of Chicago, Ill., was garnering raves from consumers for its golden oak furniture. A 1912 catalog lists two pedestal library tables, having square or oval tops, modestly priced at $19.25. The tables came complete with a large drawer, suitable for stationery accessories. Early English, fumed or mahogany finishes were available at no extra charge. The two shaped pillars on either side of the table furnished it with a formidable appearance. Value guide: two pedestal oak library table, circa 1912, $200.

Q. Is my 1936 Brown & Bigelow calendar "Golden Hours" a worthwhile find? —Sally, Waco, Texas.

A. Earl Moran, noted fashion illustrator of the Art Deco period, executed this provocative pinup calendar for Brown & Bigelow. Moran studied at the Chicago Art Institute and the Art Student's League of New York, prior to becoming one of the most acclaimed pinup calendar artists of the 1930s. Golden Hours (1936) features a beautiful girl clad in a sheer blue bathing suit. she stares directly at the viewer. Brown & Bigelow's Golden Hours calendar has developed into 14K collectible valued at $20.

Q. When was the Drapery pressed glass pattern produced? I just inherited two goblets in this design. —Peggy, Hayward, Calif.

A. When Doyle & Co. of Pennsylvania introduced its Drapery pattern in 1870, a lambrequin rage was sweeping the nation. Apparently the designer of this pattern was inspired by the lambrequin fad for the pattern features two rows of finely stippled V-shaped drapes beaded around the edges with tassels hanging from the lowest point to form the design. The original patent papers referred to this clear glass design as the Lace pattern. However, no one can dispute it, the Drapery pattern definitely resembles the hand embroidered lambrequins so fashionable during the 1870s. Value guide: goblet, $22.

Q. Would you please assist me in evaluating a small collection of old fashioned counter top store jars? —Dave, Tyrone, Pa.

A. Advertising aficionados scour the marketplace endeavoring to add these counter top containers to their collections. Therefore, the prices in this category are on the upward trend! Value guide: Horlick's Malted Milk, $55; Lance Crackers, original lid, $40; Kis-Me-Gum, $45; LaPalina Cigar, glass, $20; Planters Peanut, emblem with large peanut on lid, $120; Tom's Peanut Butter Sandwiches and Sweet Sandwiches, $30.

4-Hour Session For Town Board

The Town Board of Saint Joe met Monday in regular session. Present were president Ted Haberkorn; members Paula Tinstman and Larry McKown; clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; firemen Don Moore, Jake Fetters and Kevin Kretscher; John Bopp, street superintendent; and Walter Miller.

The president again asked that the minutes of the January meeting be reworded to indicate the use of the town hall for a tool auction for the benefit of the fire department was not denied outright; it was the use of Sunday for the fundraiser that was oppobed by the board president. Firemen at the meeting indicated there was no other date available from the auctioneer. The auction was held at Spencerville.

A report was given that the water test samples have been generally satisfactory recently after a report of poor tests from the Chicago office of the EPA and the requirement of publishing a notice of the poor December results. Superintendent Maurice Kline was reported as having telephoned the Chicago office with up to date information.

Reimbursement was allowed for Bud Shockley for rental charges to clear a blocked town tile at his residence.

Discussion was held on mosquito control with Mrs. Tinstman to further investigate the availability and use of an airplane for spreading chemical "pellets."

A letter of thanks was read from the Corunna fire department for Saint Joe's donation of an unused siren.

Installation of new drain tile on West Washington Street is progressing. Inoperative catchbasins are now functional with the work done thus far. Rigid plastic "Schedule 40" tile has been used in 10-foot lengths to eliminate the majority of tile joints into which root systems can grow when regular field tile is used.

A request from Joe Robinson for access to the fire radio system was questioned by Mr. Moore. Mr. McKown is to investigate the matter.

The price of grave openings was raised by board action to $150 due to increased labor costs.

Mrs. Frank pointed out the need for general maintenance at the cemetery. Mr. McKown and Mrs. Tinstman are to investigate.

The need for caps on several curb boxes was noted.

Bids for mowing, trimming and general care at the cemetery and park will be received until 7:00 p.m., Monday, April 6, when the board again meets in regular session. The president's suggestion that specific requirements be included in the cemetery contract relative to having the cemetery ready for Memorial Day and Fourth of July holidays was agreed to by the other board members. Specifications are on file with the clerk-treasurer relative to the sealed bids. They include: each mowing shall be completed within three consecutive calendar days, weather permitting; the cemetery is to be ready for the two specific holiday observances by the second day prior to the holiday observance; and the park is to be ready for week end use by scheduled groups.

The town furnishes the gas and oil for the contractual services.

Mr. Miller offered suggestions during the discussion of the contracts.

The president presented a proposal for water rate increases. Included are a new flat rate of $5 per month per household, as compared to the current charge of $2.50 per month.

Businesses will pay no more than residences under the proposed new rate structure. The current business flat rate is $3.50 per month. The president noted that the majority of businesses use less water than the average household and it is unfair to demand a higher rate from them. Metered high-consumption customers will be billed at metered rates except for "off-season" months in certain specific instances.

The proposed rate increases require three readings unless there is a suspension of the rules. Monday's review of the proposal was not the first reading due to the need for clarifying a few points.

Present water rates have been followed for the past 21 years. The original rate structure was established in 1946 and a rate increase was made 13 years later, in 1960.

Before the proposal does reach the point of its first reading in the near future, the public is invited to give their comments and opinions to any of the town officials.

There then followed a lengthy discussion brought about by questions raised by firemen present. Mr. Fetters questioned the annual report, as did Mr. Moore, concerning "compensation of firemen." All board members and the clerk-treasurer pointed out that the $500 designated as "compensation of firemen" was used, along with other allowances in last year's budget, to pay the firemen's claims for clothing and gas allowances. The town officials pointed out that the use of the money was fully explained when the firemen made their claims last year.

During the discussion Mr. McKown expressed disappointment that the fire department still has not presented a financial report to the board. At a December 31 meeting of the board, the fire chief said such a report would be given to the board at the first of the year. An explanation was given that it was taking time to get financial records organized for a report. Mrs. Tinstman suggested that the department get a ledger and keep track of income and expenditures. A fireman replied, "Will you (the town board) buy the books?"

Mr. Moore said he didn't see why a financial report is needed since "most of the department's money is raised by the department."

The president asked if the town had received any income for the waterworks for water to fill swimming pools. The firemen had done the hauling of the water from town hydrants. The question had come up last month also. The answer was that there had been no payment to the waterworks by the fire department for water hauled. Mr. Fetters said he would check to see how many loads were hauled by the department; a charge of $20 per load was made by the firemen.

A schedule of gallonage fees was established by the town board last summer at a meeting at which firemen were present.

Mr. Moore said information on a new fire emergency number had been distributed to all affected households in this area. The matter then came up about removing the "conference system" now in use for fire or other emergencies. The president expressed concern about the new system which involves dialing 925-3365, the sheriff's department, and then a signal goes out to firemen's monitors from the central dispatch. The president said he had been informed during a call to the sheriff's office that, if someone were dialing the number at that moment for a fire call, they would get a busy signal and would need to wait until the line was open. That information was challenged at the board meeting with the statement that more than one call can be handled by the 925-3365 number. Mr. Moore said he had investigated the matter of changing the number thoroughly.

A request for authorization to purchase an automatic night light for use outside the fire hall was given by the board.

During the approval of claims, a bill for $200 for fire truck radios repair (to be split half and half with the township) was questioned by the president and Mr. McKown. The clerk said board minutes had no record of authorization of such expenditure. The explanation by the firemen present was that "we need the radios." None of the board members approved the claim Monday night.

With the lengthy discussion about fire department matters, the meeting lasted over four hours.

Claims allowed included:
Town—Brown Furniture & Hardware, supplies 43.21; The Saint Joe News, publication of annual report 38.92; Miller Safety Equipment Company, four air bottles for fire department 732.00; Jerry Kirkpatrick, snow plowing 157.50; DeKalb County Farm Bureau Coop, half of fuel oil billing 126.60; Auburn Veterinary Clinic, disposal of dog 5.00; Betty Baker, gas and dog food 17.23; Roy Eck, open graves 200.00; Hess & Sons, trash removal 345.00; John Bopp, labor 152.50; Indiana League of Clerk-Treasurers, dues 20.00; Butler Company, tile and other materials for street drain 477.10; Bud Shockley, reimbursement for rooter rental 23.10.

Waterworks—Maurice Kline, salary and postage January 84.00; Maurice Kline, salary and postage February 81.86; A. E. Boyce Company, printed forms 77.10.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Before you start the day, save some energy.

Saving energy is easy. Even in the morning. All you need to know is what it takes and follow through.

Here's a list of little things you can do that won't cost a cent.

So start putting them into practice.

You'll be surprised how much energy you'll save.

Surprised, too, that your lifestyle won't change.

Morning Energy Savers

Starting tomorrow, take short showers.

When shaving, don't run hot water constantly. Fill the sink halfway instead.

If you use an electric razor you actually save energy, using less of it in a year than a hand razor and hot water uses in a week.

Whenever possible, use a toaster, toaster-oven or a fry pan in place of the large oven or range surface units.

Never use the oven as a heater.

Place a pan on the surface unit before turning the heat on. Heating air is wasteful.

Match pans to the size of the heating surfaces on your range.

If boiling eggs, use a minimum of water. It shortens cooking time.

Save breakfast dishes until evening or a time when all dishes can be washed together.

If frying bacon and eggs, surface units can be turned off a short time before food is done. Let the retained heat finish the cooking.

In winter, open the draperies so sunlight will warm your home. Turn the thermostat down.

Turn off all unneeded lights, radio, TV, etc. when leaving the house or no one is using them.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional ideas, call or visit our office and ask for our free series of SAVE* pointers.

*Save Automatic Valuable Energy

We give it our best.

WITH THE EDITOR

What looks dirtier than the outdoors when the snows of winter thaw and the ground and streets are wet or damp? I suppose that's what makes the sunny "dry-out" days we have now seem to much more beautiful.

But — we aren't out of the woods yet. We've had some dumdingers of snowstorms in the month of March and on occasion into April.

—At least there's a touch of warmth in the air frequently now that adds to the anticipation of nature's renewal of plant life.

Here's another poem sent in by Sarah Jane Smith:

"A Little Work

"A little work, a little play,
To keep us going, and so, good day;
A little warmth, a little light
Of love's bestowing, and so good night.

"A little fun, to match the sorrow
Of each day's growing,
And so a good tomorrow.
A little trust that when we die
We reap our sowing,
And so, Good Bye."

—George Du Maurier

Seeing cars load up with Girl Scouts or Boy Scouts from time to time brings to mind the fact that some unsung heroes are those adults who give of their time to serve as adult leaders for the kids. The parents who help the leaders deserve a "thank you", too.

A field trip during the day or an overnight campout, especially the campout, mean someone is giving a lot of time for the benefit of the kids.

A little bird pointed out to me recently that the late Jiggs Keeler received some mechanical experience from Don Keller at Don's garage years ago when Jiggs was still in high school. And — with spring on the way and the use of Wild Cherry Park a part of community activity — it was Maurice Kline who "sold" the late Roscoe Walter on the idea of selling the land to the town for a very reasonable $500 back in 1959.

Thanks to "little bird" Frank Bechler for the info.

I had to smile when I read the wire services story about the woman who in the past ran a "house of ill fame," as the saying goes. Now she plans to seek public office. And her fund raising plan is to ask for $1,000 from each of her former clients. Then she'll burn the list — she says.

—I wonder how an election ethics committee will handle THAT one.

On March 5 the infant son of MM Don Robinson stopped breathing. Firemen with EMT training came to the rescue, clearing the child's throat and administering oxygen. The child had been ill with flu.

The Butler and Auburn EMS units also answered the call for help and the child was taken to DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

Town Drain Tile System 'Ain't'

—Ted Haberkorn, President, Town Board of Saint Joe

Board members are frequently contacted about plugged drain tiles and there often is a misunderstanding as to where the responsibility lies for maintaining or repairing drain tile.

There may be a few exceptions. But generally speaking, the town has the responsibility only if surface water drains into a catch basin and the problem is "downstream" from the basin. The fact that a tile runs across a street, alley or other private property does not place the responsibility for repair or maintenance on the town or the person across whose property a tile may run.

In other words, those who benefit from the drain tile are responsible for its upkeep.

Every small town such as Saint Joe has the problem of determining where tile runs and whose tile it is. Through the course of many years, from the time the first house was built, and then another, and then another, and drain tile was installed progressively, a confusing pattern of drainage resulted. And as some of the old buildings were torn down, either business or private, tile was left unused. That's why today, when drain tile stops functioning, it is not unusual to find two or three or more runs of tile when digging is done to make repairs. That's when the fun begins!

So, when residents of Saint Joe have drain trouble, it is helpful to remember that there is no "planned" drainage system in town just because of the manner in which small towns come into being. And today's property owner in Saint Joe has the responsibility for getting their drain problem taken care of, regardless of where the tile may run. When it is a tile used by more than one property owner, the owners have equal responsibility. When the problem is shown to be somewhere farther down the line beyond a catch basin, then it becomes the town's baby.

Board members know what it means to have a plugged tile, jut like everybody else. It is an unpleasant situation, but it is also somewhat of an adventure seeking out the cause of the problem, finding it, and making the repair so the water starts flowing again.

Oh what a relief it is!

Counseling Fee Raised At Center

Starting April 1, the Northeastern Comprehensive Community Mental Health Center will increase rates charged for services provided.

A 50-minute outpatient visit will cost $55.00 instead of $50.00. This is the first increase in outpatient rates since July of 1978.

The ability to pay scale will continue as in the past. Each patient will be charged on their ability to pay. For example, a patient who is expected to pay 50% of charges based on their ability to pay, as determined through their income and family size, will pay 50% of the $55.00 instead of the current charge of $50.00.

Information locally can be obtained by calling 925-2453.

Negotiations are currently being held to provide inpatient facilities at LaGrange Hospital. A proposed $3 million new building met with considerable opposition in recent months. Also, with cutbacks in state funding generally, it appeared impossible to expect enough money for a new facility. In addition, DeKalb County councilmen felt it was extravagant to build a separate facility if other facilities could be obtained.

'Out Of Politics' Not Really Good

Members of the news media recently received a letter from Dennis T. Avery, a member of the House of Representatives in the Indiana State Legislature. Mr. Avery's concern is related to the setup followed for years in operating license bureaus throughout the state. He and others would like to have the license bureaus "taken out of politics."

Every so often we have an appeal made to take something "out of politics" or take politics out of that something. (A suggestion was made a few months ago at a fire meeting that the fire department be "taken out of politics.")

There is an appealing sound to these periodic suggestions concerning the operation of a particular public service. Unfortunately, that appeal is based on a general conception that "politics" in and of itself is bad. That is not the case. Politics involves the functions of a governing body. There are "dirty politics," it is true. But that is only a part of the entire picture. "Politics" in its proper sense and use is not a bad word.

Mr. Avery's particular concern is that license bureaus function as a part of the political "spoils" system—the party in power in the governorship appoints license bureau heads from its ranks. Since the Democrat Party has not had control of the State House for several years, it is understandable that the benefits from operating the license bureaus are something to yearn for.

It should be noted that when a Democrat WAS in the State House, nothing was said about taking the license bureau "out of politics."

Mr. Avery has introduced two bills to change the setup in the handling of auto and driver licensing. One would require that the records of the license branches be made public. That sounds OK; why shouldn't the public know how that tax money is being used.

However, the other bill would remove the license branches from the control of a political party and put it under the control of the county treasurer.

Also, all funds would be used for public services.

If the county treasurer is going to have the responsibility of handling the licensing procedures, and the county treasurer is elected in our political process, doesn't that keep the license bureau "in politics" only in a different place?

Also, if the county treasurer is to handle the licensing procedure, that creates the need for more governmental employees. I wonder on what basis the elected county treasurer would appoint those who are to serve in the license bureau!

Look at what has happened since thousands of federal jobs were taken out of politics under Civil Service laws. The intent was to increase governmental efficiency by protecting those jobs. The change from one party to another in the White House would theoretically not disrupt the functioning of the various departments of the federal government because Civil Service laws would retain the same people in their jobs.

But look what has happened. Instead of greater efficiency we have a sprawling bureaucracy. People holding government jobs under Civil Service can't be fired except for extreme and obvious instances of misconduct of some sort.

Taking politics out of the government, then, has led to more "politics"—that is, part of preserving one's Civil Service job in government involves getting enough other people into government in order to justify the first job.

Taking politics out of government jobs has brought less efficiency, not more. Pay is based not on merit but on seniority.

There are other examples of bad results coming from what sounds like a good idea. Right now, at this moment, there is a prime example of the falsehood in taking something out of politics, or vice versa.

The U. S. Postal System is getting another raise in first class postage rates. They asked for a nickle raise, to 20 cents, and got three cents, to 18 cents. There is nothing in the granting of the postage rate raise to indicate resulting better service. The cost of automation is part of the "need" for the raise, apparently. However, automation has been going on for some time now. And there is almost an equal-opposite decline in service.

Isn't it strange? Even during the depression days of the 30s and into the better days of the 40s and 50s, Saint Joe had twice a day pickup and delivery of mail. Postal department employees were making a living, raising families, and you had overnight delivery to points outside the state of Indiana.

Those were the days of penny postcards and two or three cent first class mail.

Today, Saint Joe receives mail in the morning and there is a pickup in the afternoon.

The price keeps going up. And for further "goodies," we have a zip code system which the Postal Department says speeds the delivery of mail. And that five-digit zip code is now proposed to go to nine digits!

A mail patron at Fort Wayne recently sent a large envelope containing several private papers from a shopping center pickup point to downtown Fort Wayne. The story was: "If you send it first class, it will go right into Fort Wayne. If you send it third class, it will go to Detroit first."

This is getting a little off the subject. However, the point is that removing politics from government service employees brings less efficiency, not more. Furthermore, it becomes increasingly difficult to do anything about that inefficiency.

Americans ought to remind themselves when these situations arise (taking something out of politics) that it is "politics" which gives them, as voters, the power to make changes.

There ought to be a concerted effort in high school government and civics classes to make it clear that "politics" is a legitimate and necessary part of our form of government, that it is "politics" which provides an opportunity for the voting public to make changes in the elected leadership from the national down through the state, county and local units of government.

When you "take politics out of" governmental functions, you remove the power of the voting public to make a change when it sees fit through our election processes.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Q. Can you enlighten us about our Columbia Victrola, Standard model A? —MM S. L., Rapid City, S.D.

A. Although a phonograph resembling device was patented by F. B. Henby in 1863, the first true talking machine made its appearance in 1878. The inventor? None other than Thomas A. Edison. One of the leaders in the field around the turn of the century was the Columbia Phonograph Co. The firm's early disc Victrola, Standard Model A, dating from about 1901, rates as a rarity. Perhaps collectors are captivated by that red metal horn which provides this Victrola with its unique appearance. Value guide: Victrola, standard model A, 1901, $650.

Q. During what period did Jet jewelry become popular?—Fran, Bay City, Mich.

A. Jet jewelry is synonomous with the Victorian era (1837-1901). The vogue started in the 1860s, when it was worn primarily as mourning jewelry. By the 1870s jet jewelry became so fashionable that it was found acceptable to be worn with any attire. Although it appeared heavy and impressive, jet was actually very light in weight. True jet is a type of fossiled coal having a glossy surface that is intensely black in color. Thus it is easy to distinguish it from the inexpensive Victorian jet black glass imitations known as French Jet. Value guide: jet pendant, gold filled chain, circa 1870, $40.

Q. When was the Bamboo pressed glass design introduced? —Elsie, Corning, N.Y.

A. In 1883 the La Belle Glass Works of Bridgeport, Ohio, issued a unique pattern of pressed glass in a design simulating bamboo. The timing was perfect, for it capitalized on the bamboo rage of the 1880s. Complete tableware settings were made in clear glass, with sticks of bamboo outlining the individual pieces in well rounded relief. The handles also simulated bamboo, while covered specimens had easily recognizable high spreading fan finials. Value guide: butter dish, $30.

Q. Would you please comment on dessert molds? —Mrs. W. R., Houston, Texas.

A. By checking in the pantry at an estate sale it may be possible to uncover a copper, brass, pewter or tin dessert mold. The sumptuous contents were easily removed from these molds which opened on hinges in the center. Throughout the second half of the 19th century, pudding, jelly or ice cream centerpieces and pyramids were conceived by ladies and gentlemen. Many followed detailed instructions in leading periodicals with astonishing success. A pewter mold was favored whenever freezing was necessary. These factory produced molds created treats in simple and startling motifs, some forming delicacies too beautiful to eat. Value guide: pewter, rabbit, hinged, $55.

Q. We just purchased a haberdasher's shop sign. Would this be regarded as a sought-after item? —Ernest, Souderton, Pa.

A. The numerous trade signs and shop figures once viewed along main streets throughout America, during the 18th and 19th centuries, rate as admirable acquisitions. Most of the earlier free-swinging symbols were the work of wood carvers. Later, trade symbols customarily fell under the domain of local carpenters and sign painters. Unfortunately, few signed specimens are known to exist. Folk art fanciers treasure such standbys as the fishmonger's fish, optician's eyeglasses and cobbler's booots. Value guide: Haberdasher's tin trade sign, 12 inches tall, 17½ inches wide, $600.

Q. Can yau enlighten me about a doll marked "Suzette, EFFanBEE, Made in U.S.A."? —Wendy, St. Joe, Ind.

A. In 1939 the EFFanBEE Doll Company of New York City marketed the sought-after Suzette doll. This all-composition doll with a closed mouth was jointed at the neck, shoulders and hips. The eyes were quite unique as they were painted to the side. As with other EFFanBEE creations, this doll came with a metal heart bracelet. Locating the 11½ inch tall version in fine condition priced under $70 is guaranteed to bring a smile to the face of a flea market shopper.

Q. Would you have any information on the Star Tumbler lantern I acquired at a local market? —Tom, Dallas, Texas.

A. Throughout the second half of the 19th century the United States Patent Offiie was besieged with patents for anterns. The Taylor Manufacturing Co., a leader in the field, patented its Star Tumbler lantern on Jan. 13, 1874. Advertisements proclaimed that "the beauty of the Star Tumbler lantern is that its globe can be replaced at any time, as an ordinary tumbler is used and can be procured always from the country store." It further assured users that it could burn kerosene or oil and positively would not blow out in the wind. Value guide: Star Tumbler Lantern, $75.

Q. Would you please assist me in evaluating a small collection of silverplated napkin rings? —Joe, Oceanside, Calif.

A. These small tabletop accessories of the late Victorian era hold folded napkins. They presently fetch tidy returns! Value guide: Bird Perched on Twig, $120; Cherub, with wings, $125; Dog, next to dog house, $90; Fans, with butterflies, $100; Parrot, outstretched wings, $90.

'Tis The Season To Be Wary - Tornado Tips

A small number of people attended the recent tornado information meeting at Concord United Methodist Church. However, the local fire department was well-represented.

Morgan Ballard, officer in charge at the National Weather Service Office at Baer Field at Fort Wayne, showed slides to illustrate the various effects of high wind storms and tornados on a directional basis.

The Baer Field office has supplied news media with information for the public's benefit. The News will present the information in this and future issues.

TORNADO! TIPS THAT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE

—from the National Weather Service, Baer Field, Fort Wayne

Each year tornados kill hundreds of people. Thousands of homes are destroyed. Whole buildings disappear and only their basements are left.

No one can stop a tornado; but there are precautions you can take to safeguard lives and property.

The peak tornado season in Indiana is generally recognized as March, April, May and June. One may hear Monticello or Rochester, and remember the fury of tornados in our state.

There is little that can be done to avoid property damage that accompanies tornados; but tornados do not have to be killers. You can take precautions when a storm threatens and thereby save lives, reduce the threat of injury and lessen property damage.

A tornado is a severe storm. The winds in a tornado turn counter clockwise with wind speeds that vary from under 100 miles an hour to approaching 300 miles an hour. Tornados do their destructive work through the combined action of their strong rotary winds, flying debris and the partial vacuum in the center of the vortex.

Most tornados move from the southwest to the northeast. Generally, tornados occur in the spring in the late afternoon on a hot day. But remember, tornados can happen at any time.

EASY TO RECOGNIZE

You'll have no trouble recognizing an actual tornado! It is a funnel-shaped cloud extending down from the base of a thunderstorm. As it touches earth, it writhes and twists, throwing debris in all directions. It is usually accompanied by hail, violent thunderstorms and winds. Its noise is so loud it can blot out the sound of crashing buildings and falling trees.

When the skies look threatening, listen to the radio. The National Weather Service and the National Severe Storms Forecast Center track all weather systems with sophisticated equipment and instruments and are usually able to give adequate advance warning of violent weather conditions. A TORNADO WATCH means the atmospheric conditions are such that tornados and severe thunderstorms could develop. A TORNADO WARNING means a funnel has been sighted in your area. Warnings are usually accompanied with a description of the speed and direction of travel of the funnel. Many communities have also arranged special warning systems such as sounding warning sirens.

When a watch is issued, listen to broadcast advisories, be ready to take cover. It is wise to collect a battery powered light and radio and have family members within earshot under watch conditions. Also, take your car keys. Should a tornado hit your area, your car may still be operable, but keys could be lost in the rubble.

IMMEDIATE ACTION SAVES LIVES

When a tornado threatens, immediate action can save lives. Stay away from windows, doors, outside walls and protect your head.

IN HOMES OR OTHER SMALL BUILDINGS

—go to the basement or a place in the middle of the house, like a closet, bathroom or interior hallway. Get under something sturdy, if available.

IN SCHOOL

—be calm and follow the directions of your teacher. Stay away from auditoriums and gymnasiums with wide, huge roofs that could collapse easily.

IN SHOPPING CENTERS OR VERY LARGE BUILDINGS

—look for a predesignated shelter. If there isn't any, a middle hallway on the lowest floor is the next best place to take shelter.

IN MOBILE HOMES OR CARS

—leave them and find shelter in a reinforced building. If there is no shelter nearby, lie flat in the nearest ditch, ravine or culvert with your hands shielding your head.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Those pictures in the last issue were from 1966 when DeKalb Eastside had a sectional championship. The remainder of the team is in this issue.

The smudges last week in the photo article were due to the fact that some old Elmer's Glue-All didn't hold and some of the photos were pulled off the wood mounting base when the press was running. They're in this issue — if the masking tape holds.

I picked up a gallon of kerosene at Yeiser's one day. Harold handed me the can and said, "I'll take you for 73 cents plus tax." I looked at him with a strange look, I know. He hesitated momentarily, then acknowledged that he had forgotten to double the price shown on the pump.

—For a few seconds I thought happy days are here again, the oil prices are dropping!

Norman "Buck" Ritenour put it short and sweet recently in the "Universal News." With all the talk about putting quotas on imports of Japanese automobiles, it appears a lot of people have stuck their heads in the sand as to the real problem. And Mr. Ritenour lays it on the line as follows:

"Most of the reason that the imports are affecting the auto industry is not a result of the car companies converting to small cars soon enough but simply a matter of the American worker producing too little for a too high labor rate. No American manufacturer could ever complain about a high labor rate if they received a comparable rate of productivity."

Keep in mind that Universal is not considered an "anti-labor" or "anti-laborer" type corporation. It has employee profit sharing along with other fringe benefits, and seeks the advice of its workers to compete in the auto jack industry.

So when the head man can speak so bluntly about labor conditions apparently without fear of employee reaction, you better sit up and take notice.

I don't recall ever hearing a Universal employee bad-mouthing about his place of employment. That speaks well for Universal's management.

I think the Antwerp "Bee-Argus" is carrying this thing of racial integration and racial equality a bit too far. A recent headline read: "Antwerp School Ends Year In the Black."

If they're gonna give blacks credit like that, how about the next time reporting the school "Ends Year In the White"???

Kindergarten Roundup April 13-16

Registration dates for kindergarten roundup at the Riverdale Elementary School in Saint Joe have been set, according to Rex Tullis, Riverdale principal.

The dates for degistration are April 13 through 16 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Parents are to contact the school office for an appointment at 337-5111.

To be eligible for kindergarten, children must be five years of age on or before September 1, 1981. Verification of age must be established by birth certificate at the time of registration.

During registration, parents will receive health forms that must be completed by their family physician and dentist and returned by the time the child enters school in the fall.

Indiana law mandates that all children entering school must be immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, rubella (German measles) and poliomyelitis. No child will be permitted to attend school for more than thirty days beyond the date of his or her enrollment unless he or she is fully immunized or has begun the immunization and produced a schedule from a doctor for the completion of them. In addition, a child must have proof of tuberculosis skin test.

Riverdale Alert Is 'Well Done'

The statewide tornado alert drill March 19 brought good results at Riverdale Elementary School, according to County Civil Defense Director Paul Freeburn and Riverdale area director Joe Robinson.

The school received the alert signal at 1:28 p.m., and all students were sheltered in a safe place in less than five minutes.

What was particularly gratifying, according to Mr. Robinson, is the fact that the alert response was carried out despite the absence of the school principal and school secretary. Both were momentarily out of the building on school business, so Joan Meek, a schoolbus driver and Riverdale janitor, took over as overseer of the alert classroom evacuation drill. Mrs. Meek and teachers were in "complete control" bringing the good result.

Shelter for students is taken in a lower level unfinished hallway at the school. With the building constructed partly in the side of a hill, the lower level utility passage serves as an ideal shelter. It is used also to house residents of the local mobile home court when a tornado warning is in effect.

Mr. Freeburn and Mr. Robinson described the Riverdale effort as "a job well done."

Robinsons Attend IVFA Meeting

MM Joe Robinson of Saint Joe attended the March 19 meeting of the 6th District of the Indiana Volunteer Firemen's Association held at South Milford. Mr. Robinson is secretary of the district while Mrs. Robinson is chairman of the district auxiliary group.

Part of the business conducted at the March 19 meeting was the selection of Lisa Shultz of Butler as the District 6 "Miss Flame" representative for the state convention in June at Merrillville. She is the daughter of MM Ron Shultz. Candidates for the "Miss Flame" competition must be offspring of fireman members of IVFA.

Is Driver Training Cost Worth It?

The current concern in taxing units at all levels (federal, state, county, cities, towns, townships and school corporations) about "where's the money going to come from" is due in great part to the obvious intent of President Ronald Reagan to carry out a basic campaign promise—to "get government off the backs of the American people." He never said it would be easy, it would be painless. That should be kept in mind as efforts continue to pare the federal budget.

One of the benefits of this difficult transition from easy money to less money (if Americans truly DO make the best of the situation) is the need to examine the use of tax dollars in general and re-establish priorities based on true need. Americans have fallen away from "true need" for many years.

In reading about the problems facing school corporations, for instance, it appears that a close examination of true facts will help to make certain cost reductions. The DeKalb eastern district appears to be in comparatively good shape—but that doesn't mean there's plenty of money, that the "gravy train" is still rolling. Meanwhile, the DeKalb central district must trim over $300,000 from its budget in order to make ends meet.

In recent weeks the matter of finances in schools has included costs of so-called "driver education" classes. The eastern district has left the fee at $50 per student. This was accomplished by paying instructors at the beginning teachers' wages of over $10 per hour. (I wonder how many people knew what the starting pay is for a teacher??) The central district has a higher fee per student, as do many other school corporations.

However, the point I want to make is not about comparative student fees for driver training. My suggestion is: driver training could be dropped and the hassle over fees thus eliminated. "But how would the kids learn to drive?" some will ask. The answer: the same way they did before driver training was incorporated into school matters: Mom and Dad teaching them how to drive.

I'm not boasting; I'm just stating a fact: when I was in my early teens, I began watching my parents drive, observing the coordination between the foot on the clutch pedal and the foot on the accelator, along with the movement of the gear shift lever. Dad let me scoot over next to him on the highway on occasion so I could steer the car. It was just a little thing, but it was a start. The result was that the first time I drove that beautiful black 1936 Oldsmobile four-door sedan, I had no trouble.

There are a couple of points about today's "driver training" that are puzzling. When you take out automobile insurance, a discount is given for teenage drivers who have taken driver education. I have never been able to figure out how a discount could be given when the teenage and early 20s age group has the highest rate of accidents. With the large number of students who have taken driver education through the past several years, the young driver still remains the worst driver as far as accident incidence is concerned. Something just doesn't fit. Driver training isn't all that beneficial, according to statistics, it would appear.

The second point is: driver training doesn't give total driver training. Our youngest son took driver training, but he never had instruction with a stick shift and—more significantly—he never had instruction on parallel parking, that is, actually parking a car in parallel to the curb. Yet he received a driver license WITHOUT taking a driving test with a state examinar—just because he took driver training. Something doesn't fit.

So, when I read about driver training and the increasing fees and the wages per hour paid to instructors, my reaction is, "Eliminate driver training as it is now set up through public schools. The training isn't that thorough and in fact may be responsible for getting young drivers on the streets and roads without adequate knowledge of the fundamentals of driving."

'The Battle For The Mind'

The biggest hoax of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries is that evolution is a scientific fact. Admittedly, it is a widely accepted THEORY of man's origin, held chiefly by those who reject a belief in God, but theories are not accepted as scientific fact until they can be proved. Remember, the hypothesis that traces man's lineage back to the amoeba has never been substantiated, and there is increasing evidence to the contrary. Not only do the 600 Creation Research Society scientists referred to earlier reject the idea that evolution is a fact, but many nontheistic scientists admit to a startling lack of evidence. . . Thomas Huxley . . . admitted that evolution was only a hypothesis. Dr. Clark acknowledged that there are no "missing links" and no substantial evidence for evolution.

Creation obviously occurred BEFORE anyone was around to witness the incident. Consequently, it is impossible to verify its occurrence by witnesses. In fact, the best evidence for evolution should appear in fossils embedded in rocks, but so many questions arise in this study (paleontology) that even many evolutionary paleontologists put little stock in the record of the rocks. Besides, all such formations can be accounted for by a universal flood, which both the Bible and modern archeology substantiate. Basing one's belief in evolution on geology or paleontology, therefore, can scarcely be considered scientific. Dr. Robert A. Milliken, a physicist and Nobel prize winner, stated in a speech before the American Chemical Society: "The pathetic thing about it is that many scientists are trying to prove the doctrine of evolution, which no science can do."

—from "The Battle For the Mind," by Tim LaHaye, a pastor for 30 years and conductor of Family Life Seminars, and founder of the San Diego Christian Unified School System and Christian Heritage College

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Margaret Stomberg, reporter

The lower level party room of the Hicksville Bank was the meeting place for the Newville Extension Homemakers Club March 11. A potluck dinner was hosted by Doris Ball, Dorine Singer and helpers. Zella Collins opened the meeting leading the group in the Lord's Prayer. Devotions were given by Zella.

Members recited the "Homemakers Creed" and answered roll call with a show and tell about their favorite antique. This proved to be very interesting and educational. Minutes of last meeting were read by Freida Engle and the treasurer's report given by Gladys Impton.

One goal of the club is to sponsor and assist leaders of a 4H group and make the special holidays a little nicer for the adopted patients of local nursing homes. These effotrs of the club were rewarded by receiving many thank you cards and notes.

Birthdays of Doris Ball, Bivere Brush, Ruth Phillips, Leta Schaeffer, Lynn Kaiser, Myrtle Mills and Dorine Singer were recognized by the group singing the "Happy Birthday" song.

Myrtle Mills entertained with a reading "Reasons For Life." Kathryn Kreig gave a lesson about "Homemade Sunshine" suggesting that we all learn to greet each day as a gift of love.

The meeting adjourned with plans to meet April 8. Charlotte Kimmel and Mary Rose Kimmel will serve as hostess and co-hostess.

DAR Meets

Mrs. Oris Wise hosted the John Houlton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at her home in Auburn February 21.

The meeting includede a national Defenes Report by Mrs, Roy Baker. She gave a brief report on the Bilingual Education Program which was recently removed by the Reagan administration. The American tradition has been for each wave of immigrants to put aside its native language, except for special occasions, and learn English. But in the mid-60s, the federal government, in an effort to overcome the problems of minorities, abandoned the tradition.

The bilingual program was very costly, Mrs. Baker said, considering that 25 or more non-English speaking students in a school were required to be taught in their native tongue.

The states most affected by the program were Florida, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California, where floods of immigrants continue to pour in from Mexico, South America and Central America.

Mrs. Baker reported there is a new book available, "Liberty's Women," edited by Bob McHenry. This book contains biographies of more than a thousand American women who have contributed to the growth of the United States. Some of the women mentioned are Virginia Dare, who in 1587 was the first European child to be born in America; Chris Evert, Susan Sontag and Julia Child. Among them are artists and astronomers, church leaders and criminals, feminists and frontier heroines, poets and politicians.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof required age.

Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weatherstripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost you a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well.

When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat.

When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip.

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. Can you assist me in evaluating a small collection of white milk glass animal covered dishes? —Fay, Toledo, O.

A. Animal covered dishes dating from the late 19th century have become such heavy flea market favorites that several scarce types are threatened with extinction. Value guide: cat, $70; chicken and eggs, Atterbury, $140; dog, basketweave base, $90; lamb, $170; owl, red eyes, Atterbury, $150; rooster, $75; swan, spread winged, $150; turkey, McKee, $160.

Q. My latest find is a tortoise shell walking cane from the Harrison firm. When was this company founded? —Mr. R. P., Belton, Mo.

A. By the late 19th century, a gentleman seldom ventured out of the house without his favorite walking stick in hand. One of the foremost American makers of umbrellas and walking sticks was W. W. Harrison of New York City. The firm, established in 1876, advertised cane handles of sterling silver, gold, ivory, pearl, tortoise shell, crystal, fancy wood and gun metal. The designs ranged from simple to startling. Art Nouveau floral motifs bloomed into fashion during the 1890s. Value guide: tortoise shell walking stick, scrolled design, 1890s, $70.

Q. Is my Coca-Cola pocket mirror from 1904 a worthwhile item? —Gary, Spokane, Wash.

A. Advertising aficionados never pass by a Coca-Cola pocket mirror without giving it a second look. The 1904 versions issued to commemorate the St. Louis Exposition rate as a rarity. It was the first oval pocket mirror made by the firm. Through 1920 various other pocket mirrors appeared, usually in oval shapes, but occasionally a rectangular model surfaced. Pocketing a 1904 pocket mirror from the Coca-Cola firm for under $125 is a flea marketeer's fantasy.

Q. I enjoy collecting old diaries. Would you discuss these unusual collectibles? —Grace, Gainesville, Fl.

A. Decorative diaries for ladies obtained an elegant appearance during the grand and glorious Victorian era. A would-be buyer pondered at some length over the lavishly ornate bindings of ivory or mother of pearl inlaid with gold or silver. For the more affluent there were others with silver or silver-gilt bindings. Most were fitted with small slim matching pencils to jot down the day's happenings. Other materials were also employed along with semiprecious jewels. Decorative diaries fell from favor during Edwardian times and almost disappeared by World War I. Value guide: diary, embossed leather, circa 1885, $60.

New Creek Bridge Now Open

The new bridge permits two lane traffic. The old structure allowed only one vehicle to pass over at a time.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

While working with the Biddy Basketball Program, we know how important it is to put in a lot of time and effort working with these boys but its something we have enjoyed.

We've had a great coaching staff not only in Biddy Basketball but all the way up to varsity.

This is one reason we are writing this letter to let the public know how we feel as others do in the Eastside school system.

First of all, would you take a job in Butler, Indiana for $4.00 an hour, 6 hours a day, stay after 2 hrs. to help with basketball, come back on Saturday and drive from Montpelier, Ohio, if you didn't want to stay in Eastside's school system?

It is our understanding that the Elementary P.E. job is going to be open, why not give Scott Weis a chance for it?

We feel the School Administration and School Board should look at a successful person already familiar with our school system and someone who's well liked.

Scott Weis has not only done the above but has given up a lot of time for something he's enjoying doing, working with these boys in basketball.

Our point is this, why not give him a chance, he's a great coach and person. Why let him go? We need to keep teachers like Mr. Scott Weis in our school system.

He works well with kids and he would do a good job in our elementary system, he has already proved to be a good coach for Eastside's Jr. Varsity and we are sure he'd be just as good in the elementary system.

We would like to see the parents in Eastide school system speak out for Scott Weis. We are in favor of keeping him here, where he belongs.

Let's tell Eastside school board members, we want to keep Scott Weis.

We need your support. Call a board member today.

Thank you.

Bob Gerber and Jerry Vinson

Kindergarten Roundup April 13-16

Registration dates for kindergarten roundup at the Riverdale Elementary School in Saint Joe have been set, according to Rex Tullis, Riverdale principal.

The dates for registration are April 13 through 16 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Parents are to contact the school office for an appointment at 637-4311.

To be eligible for kindergarten, children must be five years of age on or before September 1, 1981. Verification of age must be established by birth certificate at the time of registration.

During registration, parents will receive health forms that must be completed by their family physician and dentist and returned by the time the child enters school in the fall.

Indiana law mandates that all children entering school must be immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, rubella (German measles) and poliomyelitis. No child will be permitted to attend school for more than thirty days beyond the date of his or her enrollment unless he or she is fully immunized or has begun the immunization and produced a schedule from a doctor for the completion of them. In addition, a child must have proof of tuberculosis skin test.

Renters Abuse Use Of Community Club

What was thought to be an "anniversary" celebration at the Spencerville Community Building Saturday, March 21, turned out to be something more. County police, state police and excise agents raided the gathering bringing 69 arrests on alcohol-related charges. It was also reported that there was evidence of drugs on the premises.

The building, which has been a useful facility for the area for several years, was raided after an excise officer reportedly gained entrance by purchase of a ticket for $3.50. 31 of the 69 arrested were under 18 years old.

Parents and a school official informed police prior to the party of possible problems, including alcoholic beverages, in the group which rented the building for the evening.

The county sheriff's office has a record of informing those present at 6:36 p.m. not to serve minors. It was then the police were told it was an "anniversary" celebration.

Education And The Budget Pinch

With the budget cuts now under consideration at all levels of government and in schools as a result of President Ronald Reagan's efforts to fulfill his basic campaign promise of reduced spending, those in education—teachers, principals, superintendents, school boards—face a difficult task. Much of the difficulty is due to the "gravy train" atmosphere in our society for several years by which new programs came into existence. There was no question asked as to whether we could afford it; the only question was "how soon can we get the program started." Now, after years of a spending "binge" in education, frugality becomes difficult.

Specialization came into existence in education. What had been part-time duty became full-time duty—and pay. Education came to have too many chiefs. But you couldn't say anything against it; that would be questioning the wisdom of educators. Intimidated into silence, the taxpaying public saw things happening which it did not believe to be necessary nor affordable.

Federal intervention into the picture didn't help any. With Title This and Title That mandated by the federal government, local school corporations were compelled to spend money which brought little positive result. The opposite occurred; the quality of education went down.

There is little comfort in the words, "I told you so," which many average citizens undoubtedly are thinking today. The worst part is that millions and BILLIONS of dollars have been spent for theories concocted by the educational intelligensia. And the parents had no say-so in the matter.

But even with the need to cut expenditures in education today, we are hearing some of the same ideas being pushed as have been pushed and achieved to a degree as we heard starting several years ago.

Busing of pupils for racial balance is still going on even though it has not brought any notable rise in achievement for those whom it was supposed to benefit — AND it is costly. No matter that the American public never has accepted busing as a means to improve education; busing still goes on.

Smaller size classes are still being sought, even though there is no evidence that the reduction in classroom size has or will bring better results.

Teachers (not all of them but enough of them, including their spokesmen) mean about "demeaning" tasks such as monitoring the cafeteria or the halls or the rest rooms. They want to have more time for "more important" things in education. Their goal of "total education" for the "total child" somehow manages to overlook the importance of fulfilling menial tasks each day in each person's life. Self-discipline goes beyond the classroom.

There has always been a big noise made when new ideas are thought up by educators and a selling job is done on the public. Several years ago, in our own school at Riverdale, the error of educators' theories was seen. We were told that separating students according to ability would result in faster learning for the faster learners and more effective learning for the average or the slow learner. (Parents who didn't like that kind of "class distinction" were ignored.)

After a few years, the idea was dropped—but you didn't hear much from the educators. No news releases were forthcoming that the educators' theory had failed and classrooms would go back to the old system of dividing alphabetically. You found out accidentally—as I did.

What happened was that the educators got educated—at least in that particular theory. What they found at Riverdale was that slow learners learned faster from the fast learners than from a special class with the teacher and a program in line with their slower pace. (I'm not talking about the "special education" classes which have brought positive results for students functioning under various handicaps, both physical and emotional.) In addition, educators' concern for "equality" in education was contradicted by their own theory of class separation. Students became "class conscious."

In other words, the doubts of the "unenlightened public" were justified; the "common sense" feeling of the general public was more reliable than the theory of the educators.

So, when you hear wailing and moaning about the need to cut programs in education, take a good look at what is being cut before deciding that education is going to suffer. This could be a "learning experience" for educators—learning how to live within our means.

Others say. . . .

'The Battle For The Mind'

—from "The Battle For the Mind," by Tim LaHaye, a pastor for 30 years and conductor of Family Life Seminars, and founder of the San Diego Christian Unified School System and Christian Heritage College

Until a few years ago, America led the world in providing its citizens with the greatest educational system. We were the first nation to insure compulsory education, enabling even the poorest of children to learn to read and write. Our nation's amazing industrialization and mechanization were largely due to the high degree of education among our people. Have you ever wondered where this came from? It certainly did not reflect the Virginia colonial system, where the education of the young was entirely dependent on the financial ability of the parents, as it had been in Europe.

The New England colonies and Pennsylvania (under Governor William Penn) were the originators of the idea that every household should seek to educate its children. And we must not forget the motivation of godly Puritans and Pilgrims, who lived during the great age of biblical translation, making it possible for the common people to read God's Word for themselves. That was a monumental time in English history. Consequently, the New World settlers not only quested for religious freedom but carried a burning desire that their children be able to read the Bible for themselves.

Among the early settlers, of course, were ministers of the Gopel, who located churches in the heart of the new communities as they sprang up. Since the minister was one of the few educated people in the community, and because he had to work to supplement his small salary (usually by farming), the town settlers often engaged him as the teacher of their young. In exchange, the other settlers did his farming. The term "one-room schoolhouse" is more than a cliche in American history; that one-room building not only accommodated all the grades, first through sixth or eighth, Monday through Friday, but it housed the church and its activities on Sundays.

It would be impossible to overestimate the profound moral influence of the churches on the young and on education during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. First graders didn't learn to read with "See Jane run" or "Jump, Spot, jump," as they do today. Instead, the man of God would normally start them out with, "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." The "McGuffey Reader"—often ridiculed by todays humanistic educators, who are doing such a disastrous job of teaching Johnnie to read—would tell the first grader, "God made the world and all things in it." The text was filled with references to God, obedience, morality, and character building. Such moral character trafining of our young is absolutely essential to the maintenance of a morally sane and safe society. As one European statesman observed after visiting America over fifty years ago, " America is great because she is good. If she ever ceases to be good, she will cease being great." Moral goodness has to be taught clearly and consistently to our young, because mankind is not good by nature.

("Humanism—1. The character or quality of being human. 2. A system or attitude in thought, religion, etc., in which human ideals and the perfection of human personality are made central, so that cultural and practical interests rather than theology and metaphysics are at the focus of attention. 3. The study of the humanities." —from "The Reader's Digest Great Encyclopedic Dictionary")

'Tis The Season To Be Wary - Tornado Tips

TORNADO! TIPS THAT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE
—from the National Weather Service, Baer Field, Fort Wayne

AFTER THE STORM

If a tornado should hit, remain calm—panic never helps. Most tornados are short-lived, lasting only about four or five minutes and traveling on the ground for about two miles, on the average.

Closely inspect your property, including automobiles, for damage. Check immediately for electrical problems, telephone problems, and gas leaks and report them to the utility company or fire department if danger is imminent.

If you have extensive damage, contact your insurance company as soon as possible. In the meantime, secure your property from further damage or theft. Heavy rains often follow a tornado.

Take inventory of the damage to speed your insurance settlement. Your policy provides coverage for additional living expenses should you not be able to stay in your home. There is also policy protection for paying the expense of debris removal.

If you have not suffered damage, be a good neighbor and help those who need it. But, do not telephone directly into or visit a disaster area. Reports will be broadcast, so let the rescue work proceed unhampered by spectators and curiosity seekers.

Do not enter a building damaged by a tornado until you are sure it is safe and will not collapse.

Use only approved or chlorinated supplies of drinking water. Check food supplies. Food may contain particles of glass or slivers of other debris. Discard canned goods with broken seams.

Get food, clothing, medical care or shelter at Red Cross stations or from other local communities if necessary.

Notify your relatives of your safety. Local authorities may waste time trying to locate you if you don't send word. Do not tie up telephone lines if they are needed for emergency calls.

Cooperate in the general cleanup of debris. You are responsible for cleaning debris from your own property. During repairs and cleanup, wear shoes and gloves. Glass, including fiberglass insulation, can injure unprotected hands and feet.

WHAT IF YOU ARE A VICTIM?

Do your best to protect yourself, your family and your neighbors from further damage.

Make certain authorities are notified that you are a storm victim. Be prepared to cooperate with trained and authorized officers and volunteers who will arrive to give aid.

Do NOT sign contracts for repair work, removal of rubble or new insurance without consulting authorities.

Tornados can strike Indiana at any time. That's why the National Weather Service is attempting to inform Hoosiers across northeast Indiana of the dangers involved and the safety precautions necessary in the event a tornado strikes.

By thinking calmly and clearly and helping one another, Hoosiers can limit the injury and destriction tornados cause.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738 (Adv.)

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

SPECIAL SPARKLE

There's a special Sparkle waiting every day
When friends like little dew drops
Lift the fog away.
The old ones and the new ones
Are all the same to me
The old bring home memories
The new, the things to be.
I lock each golden moment
Safe within my heart
And there's a special Sparkle
When each new day starts.

County Populat'n Up In 1980

The population of DeKalb County increased 8.2% between 1970 and 1980, according to statistics compiled by the Bureau of the Census. The 1980 count showed 33,360 residents in the county.

LaGrange County grew by 21%, Steuben County 19% and Noble County 12 %.

Saint Joe's population is recorded as 549, as compared to 504 in 1970.

In some instances census results are being questioned, possibly due to the increasing mobility of American citizens.

1970 and 1980 census results are as follows

NEW FIRE NUMBER 925-3365

Those having telephones in the 837-(Saint Joe) exchange area should make emergency fire calls by dialing 925-3365. This change from such calls through the sheriff's department central dispatch. Local firemen are then summoned by a tone code heard on their monitors. The firemen recently purchased monitors in order to set up the new system.

Kindergarten Roundup April 13-16

Registration dates for kindergarten roundup at the Riverdale Elementary School in Saint Joe have been set, according to Ron Tullis, Riverdale principal.

The dates for registration are April 13 through 16 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Parents are to contact the school office for an appointment at 837-9911.

To be eligible for kindergarten, children must be five years of age on or before September 1, 1981. Verification of age must be established by birth certificate at the time of registration.

During registration, parents will receive health forms that must be completed by their family physician and dentist and returned by the time the child enters school in the fall.

Indiana law mandates that all children entering school must be immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, rubella (German measles) and poliomyelitis. No child will be permitted to attend school for more than thirty days beyond the date of his or her enrollment unless he or she is fully immunized or has begun the immunization and produced a schedule from a doctor for the completion of them. In addition, a child must have proof of tuberculosis skin test.

Drainage, Water, Wet Ground And 'Zappers' In Mosquito Problem

—from Ted Haberkorn, President, Saint Joe Town Board

Saint Joe's annual problem of coping with mosquitoes has already been noted. Mosquitoes were evident three weeks ago.

The town board had planned to scatter chemical "pellets" in the lowland area at the southeast edge of town. It is a problem finding someone licensed to do such work by plane. The pellets are intended to destroy the "first batch" of breeders and thus cut down the mosquito problem from the start.

But there is another related problem which appears to have priority. Drainage through the lowland, coming from catchbasins and other private sources, is running on top of the ground due to broken and plugged tile. Thus, every time there is rainfall, sections of the lowland hold standing water and provide breeding ground for mosquitoes. The drainage tile is a large one and runs a considerable distance to Bear Creek which flows into the St. Joe River. Because of the distance and the large size tile, the use of a backhoe for digging seems necessary. But, the ground must be able to support the backhoe before digging can be done.

The board is trying to work out the problem as quickly as possible. The use of chemicals for mosquito control appears to be wasted until the drainage matter is taken care of. The cost may be high. It may mean no significant street work this year, since the drainage matter comes under street fund financing.

Last summer, I visited Pioneer, Ohio, on two separate occasions, specifically to get information on that small city's mosquito program. The mayor said it was planned to place a line of electronic bug killers around a portion of the town on the windward side. There are four or five small rivers or creeks at Pioneer so their situation is somewhat similar to Saint Joe's.

The electronic "zappers" are placed between the source of the mosquito population and the area to be protected to intercept the mosquitoes as they are attracted toward the human population. The special bulbs in the zappers set up an electronic field which attracts mosquitoes and other insects. As they circle round and round the bulbs they eventually contact an electric grid and—zap—that's the end of the bug.

The units are left on 24 hours a day to maintain the electronic field, according to the manufacturer's explanation.

I purchased one of the large size zappers and used it in our back yard last summer. I can't say there were no mosquitoes; there were even with the zapper. However, with the millions of mosquitoes that were present in town last year, there was a noticeably small number of mosquitoes in the yard when I sat in a lawn chair purposely to see how effective the zapper was.

Pioneer's mayor said the city planned to spend $10,000 for its zapper installation. Saint Joe doesn't have that kind of money and doesn't need that much because of its smaller size. But it is something to think about—installation of a line of zappers at the edge of the lowland.

The unit I purchased has two 48-inch bulbs. The cost was around $280.The mayor of Pioneer said the city was making a "deal" with households which paid $100 to the city. A zapper would be installed at the property and the city would assume responsibility to maintain the units. Presumably the household would pay the electric bill, which isn't much. The large unit I purchased uses only the equivalent of a 75-watt incandescent light bulb. Considering the fact that the cost of operation is only for six months out of a year, the pennies per day cost appears reasonable.

Pioneer also uses a chemical fogger to combat their mosquito problem. Saint Joe's town board is investigating the cost of a low-temperature fogger to replace the fogger it has used for 25 years or so. The older type generates extremely high temperatures to vaporize the oil base containing approved chemicals. It has been suggested that the high temperature may be "burning up" the chemical, reducing the effectiveness of the fogging operation. The newer type fogger does not generate as high temperatures as the old type and there is less visible fog.

So, Saint Joe has two problems to take care of and has had for some time. We can't get rid of the mosquitoes until we get rid of standing water in the lowland, and that will take a good hunk out of the street fund. When that is taken care of, there will be the question of whether or not to take further steps to cope with mosquitoes, such as a string of zappers. And that brings the question: how would you pay for them?

It should be noted that Joe McPherson began clearing his lowland area last summer to reduce the breeding area for mosquitoes in tall grass and wild brush growth. He is continuing the clearing program this spring.

Any property can provide a place for mosquitoes to breed—in long grass, in weeds, in old tires or tin cans or what have you which sits outside and collects rain. Keeping property trimmed and free of debris is the first step toward mosquito control.

Suggestions or comments are welcomed by the members of the town board: Larry McKown, Paula Tinstman and me.

Too Many Reporters - Inaccuracy

If anything was proved by the recent assassination attempt on President Ronald Reagan, it is this: there are too many people employed full time in the news-gathering industry and too little quality in what they produce.

Having just recently expressed criticism of Frank Reynolds in these columns, I must say that my opinion of him went up a bit when he was caught in a big error in reporting. As "anchorman," he was depending on others for accuracy—and he was left out on a limb.

I don't know if anyone got fired — but they should have. Irresponsible snooping and nit-picking characterizes too much of TV's on the spot reporting. It is especially disappointing that Dan Rather, whom I had come to consider to be capable and responsible, insisted on belaboring the point, twice after he said, "I don't mean to belabor the point," when someone decided to make a juicy item out of Alexander Haig's alleged "take-over" at the White House. Mr. Rather insisted on doting on the matter, even after an on the spot reporter stated that Mr. Haig was referring only to a momentary situation until Vice President Bush arrived back in Washington; he was away from Washington when the assassination attempt was made.

Of particular note, in this matter of reporter competency, is the press conference during which a detailed report of the President's surgery was given. Some of the questions were just plain stupid. Others were repetitions. It became a joke after a bit that some of the reporters asked the doctor to spell this or that word. Even though medical terms were involved, not commonly known to the average citizen including the reporters, it was laziness that kept certain reporters from making a stab at certain spelling in their notes and then doing some footwork to get the spelling after the news conference.

White House staff member Lyn Nofziger came out with flying colors in the minds of many people when he politely but definitely put an end to the exhibition of stupidity by certain members of the news media. His frankness was refreshing: "I don't know," in reply to a question outside his field of knowledge; "I'm not going to answer that question," in reply to a query which involved speculation and not fact; and finally, "I'm not going to answer any more questions. We have given you all the information available" — if that's not exactly correct on the quotes, it's close enough to give the picture.

The attempt to make the assassination story a full-time live pre-empting thing was a bit too much. The event was a terrible thing. But after so long a time, there isn't anything to do but rehash. And with the number of conflicting reports, all the networks would have been better off to check out those reports and put their act together than to go full-time live on and on and on as they did.

However, the most significant thing is that all those people we saw in the TV studios and in the White House press room and elsewhere are pulling full time pay for digging up whatever scoop they can to be "first" with the news. Incompetency prevails in the news media today. What is most frightening is the fact that a nameless reporter can cause national embarrassment for an elected or appointed official—or their own anchorman!

'The Battle For The Mind'

—from "The Battle For the Mind," by Tim LaHaye, a pastor for 30 years and conductor of Family Life Seminars, and founder of the San Diego Christian Unified School System and Christian Heritage College

During my lifetime, the "new morality" as vigorously advanced by humanists has overturned centuries of moral values and virtually created a new life-style for millions of people, particularly those under thirty years of age. That is not to say that preceding generations were moral purists. I spent two years in the Air Force, including one year in Germany, so I know better. But back then, an adulterer or fornicator was IMMORAL. Today's generation is AMORAL. What is the difference? Conscience.

Only animals, prostitutes and moral degenerates could "sleep around," "bed hop," or practice "free love" without feeling guilty about it, in past centuries. But the new morality, spawned in the creative minds of the God-rejecting humanists, is presented as science. Since it appeals to the baser appetites of mankind, giving him clinical or academic approval to practice his urges and "guaranteeing" that there are no absolutes, it silences his conscience by education.

A human being whose conscience has been killed is amoral. Consequently, he is capable of performing like the animal he considers himself; that is, he can be inhumane. If you deem that an exaggeration, you have forgotten that the humanistic doctors and psychiatrists of the Third Reich advocated and practiced euthanasia (the killing off of those considered unfit to live) before Hitler made it state policy. The Germans could easily practice genocide against the Jews, because they had made a practice of eliminating the weak, old and unwanted in the name of euthanasia before 1940.

Consider abortion for a moment. Nothing shows the amoral influence of humanism on modern thought like the 1973 decision of the United States Supreme Court to legalize abortion. How could the majority of the august body of judges come to such a lowly evaluation of human life as to decide that the unborn is a non-person? "Expert" (humanist) medical opinion led these judges to make their decision. As

Dr. C. Everett Koop noted at a Schaeffer seminar, "I find it hard to understand why biologists have no trouble recognizing life in worms, frogs, rats, and rabbits, but medical doctors have a difficult time determining when life begins in the highest form of life—human beings."

Since 1973, over EIGHT MILLION abortions have been performed in America. At this rate, we will soon have to apologize to Adolf Hitler.

Those who favor abortion-on-demand are not necessarily humanists, but they certainly have been influenced by humanism's inadequate view of human life. The Bible sets a premium on human life, as illustrated by the fact that God gave His only Son for mankind. Jesus told us that life was worth more than the whole world (Matthew 16:26). Therefore, anyone who favors abortion does not reflect a biblical view of life, but shows the influence of humanism on his thought process. Such individuals should not be in charge of our government, nor should they have access to the impressionable minds of our young. Anything that takes eight million lives can hardly be called scientific or humane.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true measure of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Q. Over the years we've purchased a number of cut glass articles. Would you kindly assist us in evaluating our collection? —MM G. L., Oceanside, Calif.

A. The Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876 ushered in the so-called Brilliant Period cut glass. Within collecting circles this cut glass possessing a prismatic sparkle rates as a super seller! Value guide: bowl, pinwheel design, 10 inches diameter, $145; box, powder type, hobstar, 5 inches tall, $160; celery holder, star motif, $135; cordial, Russian pattern, $85; cruet, original stopper, Strawberry diamond design, $75; pitcher, pinwheel, cross matching, 8 inches tall, $175; toothpick holder, diamond fan, $50.

Q. Would it be possible to enlighten us about our Acme Giant coal burning stove? — Bill, Monroe, Mich.

A. Around the turn of the century, "The Acme Giant" coal burning stove was available to Sears, Roebuck & Co. catalog customers in four sizes. The prices ranged between $4.50 and $11.25. Advertisements proclaimed that it was suitable for shops, churches, halls, school or any place where a heavy stove was required. It came complete with a "swing feed" door, large ash pit, cast foots rails and extra heavy fire pot. During the energy conscious 30s the smaller 40-inch tall Acme coal burning stove meets with a warm reception despite its $400 price tag!

Q. Can you assist us in dating a ceramic teapot we recently inherited in the Beatrice pattern? —Madge, Salem, Ohio.

A. When Wedgwood & Company of Tunstall, England, registered the Beatrice pattern with the English registry office in 1867, it proved so popular that a second registering occured in 1890. Consumers were elated with the design which featured a tree trunk and leaves combined with flowers and ribbon. This was just one of the highly successful dinnerware services combining natural forms with conventional themes during this period. Bagging a Beatrice pattern teapot for under $45 is termed a bargain in flea market terminology.

Q. I just acquired a set of architectural blocks from the Bliss firm. Are these items sought by collectors? —Mr. R. S., Des Moines, Iowa.

A. Some of the most pleasing playthings of the 19th century originated at the factory of R. Bliss & Co. of Pawtucket, R.I. Playroom floors of the era were littered with the company's wooden toys, games and blocks. By the closing decades of the century many toys of lithographed paper on wood such as doll houses, stores, furniture and stables were added to the production schedule. Complete sets of architectural blocks, housed in their original boxes, bearing the Bliss name fetch blockbusting prices. Value guide: Bliss, architectural blocks, complete, boxed, $90.

Q. Can you enlighten us about a lady's antique bamboo desk having a lacquered front section? —MM S.L., Petersburg, Va.

A. Real and imitation bamboo furniture forged into popularity in America during the 1880s. One commentator remarked that it was "growing more and more fashionable with every passing season." Imitation bamboo pieces were generally crafted of birdseye maple. Because a craze for Japanese art was also sweeping the nation during this period, your desk fell under the influence of these converging fads. Desks rate as rarities. Therefore this bamboo beauty is worth a highly respectable $300.

Q. I just purchased "The Game of Merry Christmas" by Parker at a church sale for $10. Did I get a buy? —Linda, St. Louis, Mo.

A. The Parker Brothers firm of Salem, Mass., affectionately known as the "Tiffany of the game business" was established in 1883. A youthful George Parker invented his first game "The Game of Banking" while still attending school. The Game of Merry Christmas, patented in 1898, possesses a delightful Santa Claus cover scene which makes it a coveted collectible. A drawer in the base contained the necessary playing paraphernalia. Locating this holiday game in fine condition, complete with its contents, for under $75 makes any collector merry.

Q. Are there any guidelines on dating the Hummel figurine Little Gardener? —Terry, McConnelsburg, Pa.

A. Little Gardener, Hum 74, has developed into a perennial favorite with a host of Hummel devotees. The Goebel firm marketed this representation in sizes between 4 and 4½ inches in height over the years. Earlier versions may be distinguished by an oval base. The later models have a round base. Originally the gardener carrying a watering can was dressed in a dark green dress, but on later examples the dress is considerably lighter in color. The pre-1950 versions of Little Gardener have been springing up at flea markets priced at between $160 and $190.

Q. Knife rests are my pet collectibles. Would you please comment on these fun finds? —Mrs. W. L., Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. The small objects, resembling miniature dumb bells, for resting table knives popped onto tables tops during the late 18th and 19th centuries. Glass versions proliferated, ranging from deep cut glass to ornate colored glass sometimes incorporating latticino or millefiori decoration. Others were made of pottery or porcelain. As with other oddities, occasionally a knife rest reaches the marketplace which was home-crafted, making it a sought-after "one of a kind" collectible. Value guide: cut glass, knife rest, hobstars, circa 1880, $35.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

A story came out recently that the Susan B. Anthony dollar and the paper $2 bill were being withdrawn from circulation. The public didn't take to either one—not even after several hundred thousand dollars had been spent to promote the new currency and coin. (Remember the little cards in the post office not too long ago trying to get you to ask for your change in Anthony dollars??)

But the government has now figured out how to make the new money attractive: create a shortage. Doesn't that sound familiar? With the new money "taken out of circulation," everyone will want them—so—you put them into circulation by taking them out of circulation.

When Dick Roberts was repairing the siding on the hardware recently after a strong wind had pulled some of it loose, I was going in the door of the hardware and said, "Take a look," and nodded toward the grocery. He did—and reacted normally with, "Hey! —that's new around here, isn't it?" I told him no, it was just one of our community's "little girls" growing up faster than you realize. What bedazzled us was Virginia Duke attired in a zingy slit skirt outfit and wearing high heels. The leggy miss really looked sharp.

Sometimes radio and TV commercials of a serious nature as just plain funny—or the timing is bad. This was the case the other night when we had WIFF on as usual listening to Sue Thompson. Commercial time came and we heard: "Seven months pregnant—and now hemorrhoids . . . ." — just as I bit into a hunk of pork sausage.

Karl Mavis, who resides in the local mobile home court, dropped off some information about foggers to combat our local mosquito population. He corrected a statement I made in the writeup about the town's efforts to fight the biters. I said the electronic bug zappers set up an electronic field. That isn't exactly correct. As Karl pointed out, the grids only provide an electric charge to destroy bugs on physical contact. The purple bulbs attract the bugs and the area of attraction is the "field" involved.

Francis B. Sible

Funeral services were held April 10 for Francis B. "Bill" Sible, 66, of Saint Joe who died April 7 at Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne following a stroke. He and his wife, Marcia, had attended church Sunday morning and he had shortly thereafter said he would "rest a bit" at home before the couple left for Fort Wayne. Mrs. Sible sensed that the short rest was longer than usual and upon investigation found her husband on a couch, unable to speak or move.

Mr. Sible was a retired circulation manager for the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette and a farmer. He and his wife had wintered the past few years in Florida. He was the son of William and Clara Barnhart Sible and was born April 17, 1915, in Fort Wayne.

Survivors include his wife, Marcia; two sons, Gary of Mt. Saint Joe and Gene of Glens Falls, New York; a daughter, Glenda Shull of Saint Joe; two sisters, Mrs. Opal Sechler of Hillsdale, Mich., and Marian Bloom of Chula Vista, Calif.; and three grandchildren.

Services were led by Rev. George Wiring at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe and burial was in Riverside Cemetery at Saint Joe.

Delayed Bill Causes Board Trouble; Drain Work Brings Results

The Town Board of Saint Joe met April 6 in regular session with all town officials present. Others present were Don Moore, John Bopp, Arthur Nieto, Ray Miller and Gene Mavis.

Under old business, Paula Tinstman said she was to be contacted by a pilot concerning distribution of chemical pellets by air to combat the annual mosquito problem.

Discussion about previously authorized replacement of door locks at the fire hall, requested by the fire department, revealed a misunderstanding on the locks. Board president Ted Haberkorn said he understood the replacements were for the large vehicle-entry doors only and did not include the two doors in the town hall. Assistant fire chief Don Moore said all doors were to be included. The president said he saw no reason for the department to be concerned about the town hall doors since there is a locked door between the two sections of the building. The reason originally given for changing the locks was that there were too many keys "floating around" in the possession of those no longer members of the fire department. During the discussion Mr. Moore alleged that Joe Robinson, no longer on the fire department, had driven fire trucks in response to fire calls. When the president asked how often this had occurred, the answer was, "At least once." The president said the matter should be investigated further before any more locks are changed and that the fire department should get the keys back when someone leaves the department.

The department has in its by-laws a requirement for automatic retirement of active firement at age 60. Insurance coverage ends at that age for heart attacks in fire fighting but does not end for other areas of coverage.

Mr. Robinson has informed The News that he did drive a truck one time when there was need for his assistance for a fire run. He has also voluntarily "manned" the radio under similar circumstances.

Clerk Emma Frank asked for a report on drainage work. Tile at the west end of town on Washington Street has been installed new on the south side of the street from State Road 1 to Hart Street. Tile on the north side has been opened and thus far it appears the work has eliminated the flood of water which soaked yards on the north side in the recent past when there is heavy rainfall. A low section of tile in Hamburg has been replaced to relieve a backup problem suffered by a home on Randolph Street.

Mrs. Tinstman said she had received "another bill" from Mavis Communications for repairs to fire department radio equipment. Discussion between Mr. Mavis and the board was slightly [illegible] until it was made clear that the board has not received a bill until the March meeting for work it did not know about nor authorize and Mr. Mavis did not know his three requested duplicate billings had not reached the board directly. They were sent to the fire chief who had authorized the work. Mr. Mavis said that the chief is appointed by town boards and is acting as an agent of the board, therefore the board does not need to approve such repairs. The board president noted to Mr. Mavis that the chief is not appointed here and that problems in the past few years concerning expenditures for the fire department were due to a lack of communication. (State law has stated for many years that town board responsibilities include the appointment of a fire chief. The local fire department has been allowed to elect its own chief, supposedly with the final approval of the town board. Such approval has not been sought in recent years and the board has not pressed the matter.)

After a long discussion during which a better understanding of the situation was reached between Mr. Mavis and the board, the town's $100 share of the five-month old bill was approved unanimously.

Mr. Mavis stated during the discussion that repairs to the radio equipment were authorized despite his advice that the equipment was "not worth the money."

During the discussion about radio repair, the matter of removing the conference telephone system for fire emergencies came up. Mr. Mavis said he had heard of an article in The News stating that only one line was available for emergency use under the central dispatch system recently installed by the fire department. Board President Ted Haberkorn said the information referred to came from two separate contacts with the sheriff's department concerning the central dispatch setup. He had gotten two different explanations, neither of which convinced him that the new system was better than the local conference system. Mr. Mavis said he understood there were four lines into the emergency dispatch switchboard at 925-3365. The board then unanimously voted to remove the present conference system, subject to approval also by the township trustee. The town and township split the telephone system cost 50-50.

The president reported that his inspection trip at the east end of town showed that wet ground and standing puddles in the lowlands were due to a broken large town tile which carries virtually all the drainage for most of the main street area. Repair of the tile appears to be a major project and he said there may be little street work this year except for routine maintenance.

For many years town boards have paved streets, a block or two at a time in the street improvement program.

It was unanimously voted to [illegible] the waterworks supervisor to attend the next session of statewide training seminars for waterworks personnel.

Bids were opened for cemetery and park mowing, trimming and general cleanup duties. Arthur Nieto submitted a bid of $1,000.00 for the cemetery and Walter Miller's bid was $1,400.00. Board member Larry McKown suggested that it would be best to have someone residing in the community doing the work for general convenience in communication and the other two board members agreed. Mr. Miller's bid was then accepted unanimously.

Park bids were Arthur Nieto $00.00 and Walter Miller $1,400.00. One bid was rejected unopened because the envelope was marked in a manner not conforming with the specifications on file with the clerk. Mr. Miller's bid was accepted unanimously, again due to general convenience in communication. Last year the park was maintained for $800, but it was recognized at the start by the board that the bid was lower than reasonable considering the duties involved.

Hess & Sons Disposal, under contract with the town for pickup of trash every Monday, included in its bid last year a free extra pickup day for spring cleanup in the town. The board decided to have the extra pickup in May. So, for those in town having trash of all kinds, including large appliances, the cleanup day will be Saturday, May 9. Pickup will be made throughout the day and provides town residents with an opportunity to get rid of trash of all kinds which might usually be left untouched because of lack of hauling facilities.

Approval of an additional appropriation for interior finishing of the town hall and installation of rest rooms was tabled until an exact amount of funds available is determined.

Bills allowed include:

Town—Mavis Mobile Radio, half-share with township on radio repairs 100.00; Paul Fetters, hauling 17.93; Broadview Lumber Company, fire hall security light 36.58; Butler Company, street tile 149.26; Butler Bulletin, legal notice 4.05; Midwest Tile & Cement, street tile 190.91; Roy Eck, backhoe work on street drainage 662.50; Yeiser's Standard Service, gas 22.31; John Bopp, labor 236.00; Hess & Sons, trash collection 345.00; Betty Baker, stray dog expense 12.00; Auburn Veterinary Clinic, disposal of dogs 10.00.

Waterworks—Maurice Kline, salary and postage 82.82.

Margaret Chaney

Funeral services were held April 8 at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville for Margaret C. Chaney, 61. She died the previous Sunday after several weeks' illness.

Owner and operator of Chaney's Restaurant at Spencerville for 31 years, Miss Chaney was the daughter of Roy and Izetta McNabb Chaney and was born June 22, 1919. She was a lifetime resident of Spencerville. Prior to opening the restaurant she had been employed as teller at the Farmers and Merchants State Bank in Spencerville.

Survivors include a brother, LeRoy, Jr., of Kendallville; and three sisters, Mrs. Phyllis Blauser of Grabill, Mrs. Eleanor McMaken of Harlan and Mrs. Eula Horne of Defiance, Ohio.

Rev. Gerald Keller of Harlan officiated at the funeral and burial was in White City Cemetery at Spencerville.

Bike-A-Thon To Be Held Sat'day

The Spencerville-Saint Joe Bike—A—Thon co-chairmen, Cindy Furnish and Cheri Edgar, have asked area residents to participate in the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels For Life" Bike—A—thon Saturday, April 25, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

Volunteer workers and riders are needed for the event to raise funds for the world famous research center and its battle against childhood cancer and other catastrophic childhood diseases.

Cindy said this year's ride is being dedicated to Terry, a leukemia patient at St. Jude. "By riding for Terry, we'll really be helping all stricken children since research is the only way these illnesses can be conquered," she said. "We're looking for people who will contribute some of their time and energy to help children live. We rally need bike riders, since they are the ones who can make this Bike—A—Thon successful."

In the Bike—A—Thon, riders enlist sponsors who donate a sum for each lap completed. Laps will run the block starting at the Riverdale School on County Road 60 to Third Street, north one block to Jefferson Street, west one block to School Street and south to County Road 60's starting pont.

Traffic will be blocked off from this area during the four-hour Bike—A—Thon.

Riders who raise $25.00 will receive a St. Jude T-shirt, and those raising $75.00 will receive a back pack. Sponsor forms are available at Riverdale Elementary School, Laub's Shell Mart in Spencerville and Knisely Branch Bank at Saint Joe.

"You can put your muscles to work for a child's life in this Bike—A—Thon," Cindy said. "We need every bike and every rider."

Participants should be at the school parking lot at 9:30 a.m. the day of the Bike—A—Thon. Riders may pick up sponsor forms then in they have not previously received one.

During the ride there will be refreshments and food for sale by the Riverdale Youth League concession stand.

Interested persons can contact Cindy Furnish at 868-5445 or Cheri Edgar at 238-4254.

St. Jude Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas and operates primarily from public contributions.

NEW FIRE NUMBER 925-3365

Those having telephones in the 337-(Saint Joe) exchange area should make emergency fire calls by dialing 925-3365. This change runs such calls through the sheriff's department central dispatch. Local firemen are then summoned by a tone code heard on their monitors. The firemen recently purchased monitors in order to set up the new system.

The Presidential Pardon

I haven't seen any reaction yet, but I wouldn't be surprised if President Ronald Reagan's pardon of two former top-level FBI officials brings some complaints from civil rights radicals. The two men were convicted of conspiring to violate the civil rights of friends and relatives of the Weather Underground by permitting agents to break into their houses in a hunt for fugitive radicals.

President Reagan granted the men full pardons "on his own"; they hadn't requested the pardons. President Reagan said, "Four years ago, thousands of draft evaders and others who violated the Selective Service laws were unconditionally pardoned by my predecessor. America was generous to those who refused to serve their country in the Vienam War. We can be no less generous to two men who acted on high principle to bring an end to the terrorism that was threatening our nation."

One of the drastic changes in our criminal justice system in recent years has been the protection of the rights of the criminally active to a greater degree than the protection of the rights of those who suffer personal or property damage. The general public was never convinced that protecting human rights—period—was the primary way to carry out justice.

The big change came at the insistence of what some people refer to as "do-gooders," those who were quick to forgive transgressions—transgressions against someone else's person or property. Between state and federal legislation and decisions by federal courts, we saw the protective cover of law enforcement stripped away. The "loose" thinking of certain people is reflected in part by their use of the term "victimless crimes" in some instances. The traditional standard of morals in American society was virtually destroyed. The appeal of "do your own thing" came to mean "do anything." And our society has suffered for it.

One of the puzzling parts of our system of justice is that related to the defense of the accused. Laws are meant to protect the innocent. So it has been difficult to understand how so many practicing attorneys can accept a client's case when they know their client is guilty. Lawyers are needed to protect the rights of the accused, to be sure. However, too many cases involve the freeing of an accused because of some technical error.

I know I'm probably getting some of my attorney friends a bit upset with these comments. The point is, if we the people understand the need to protect the rights of the accused, why don't attorneys and judges understand that justice is not measured only by adhering to the letter of the law; justice involves striving for an answer to a problem situation which is as fair as possible to all concerned.

Under the late J. Edgar Hoover, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) came to be synonymous with protection of the public against criminals. A good many detractors have destroyed that image in recent years, dating an real or alleged abuse of authority by Mr. Hoover. He has been pictured as a blackmailer of a sort in relation to certain Presidents. Despite these efforts at character assassination by Mr. Hoover's critics, my personal opinion is that Americans can be thankful for the emergence of someone to "take over" in crime fighting. My opinion is, "Thank God for J. Edgar Hoover."

Today, who is there for us to look to with confidence? Part of the problem is that we have so liberalized our law enforcement and judicial system that those methods which were in the past used to protect American liberty have become unlawful. Infiltration of suspect groups is a no-no. So how can you determine the level of danger to our society if law enforcement cannot "get inside" legally? The protection of human rights has gone so far to the extreme that, if your child takes a notion to say out on the streets into the wee hours and you don't know where they are and call the police, it is unlawful for the police to pick that child up; all they can do is suggest to the child that he or she go home or at least get in touch with the parents. (At least that is the way it was explained to me just a couple of years ago by a law enforcement officer.)

So, the Presidential pardon of former FBI officials does not necessarily mean he has taken a couple of crooks off the hook. It means basically that the condemnation which they have lived under for four or five years was wrong in the first place.

Our concept of American justice is that we are innocent until proven guilty. But look how touchy the situation has become under the extreme interpretation of that concept. An assassination attempt on the President has been seen by millions of people on TV replays and in newspaper photographs; even the gun is visible. The man with the gun is wrestled to the ground in seconds. Yet, news media must be careful to use the word "alleged" in connection with the man with the gun. It is potentially damaging to the case against him if publicity refers to him as "the man who attempted to kill the President."

It's no wonder criminals get back on the street so quickly nowadays. Law enforcement is walking on eggshells at every moment, and this can't do anything but bring less protection for the general public. (And then some people wonder why so many hand guns are being sold today.)

I wonder how many school students think of the late Mr. Hoover with admiration. When you hear about grade schoolers cheering at the announcement of the recent attempt to assassinate the President, things are getting a bit scary.

It just occrred to me—I wonder what "values clarification," the brainchild of modern educators, is doing to properly enlighten today's students as to the positive characteristics of some of our nation's recent and some not so recent public figures such as Mr. Hoover. I wonder if perfection isn't being demanded where perfection is impossible.

Donald McCann

Funeral services were held April 13 for Donald R. "Abie" McCann, 65, of Saint Joe who died April 11 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. In failing health for some time, Mr. McCann had been hospitalized eight days immediately prior to his death.

Mr. McCann was born April 14, 1915, in Wilmington Township, the son of George and Mildred Sebert McCann. He was a lifelong resident of DeKalb County and worked as a mechanic for Hipskind Asphalt Company in Fort Wayne before retiring. He married Effiebel Freeburn November 28, 1934.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Ben (Sandra) Krafft of R1 Saint Joe; a son, David, of R2 Spencerville; two brothers, James of Muskegon, Michigan, and Marshall of Fort Wayne; four sisters, Pauline Oberlin of Butler, Josephine Jones of Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Jessie Pettit and Martha Jean Mettert of Painesville, Ohio; and two grandchildren.

Rev. George Wirsing officiated at the funeral at Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

Free Cleanup Day Pickup May 9

The coming of spring brings the need—and the urge—to do some house and yard cleaning.

To assist residents of Saint Joe in the cleanup effort, Hess & Sons Disposal provides one free pickup a year in its contract for trash removal, an "extra" or bonus for the town.

This year that extra pickup day will be Saturday, May 9. The firm will pick up all trash placed at the curb, including large appliances which should be set out during the morning. Other trash can be set out throughout the day; the pickup is not just a one-time shot. Hess & Sons will be patrolling the streets several hours to pick up trash.

EHS Wins Opener

The DeKalb Eastside Blazer baseball team opened its season April 7 with a 3-0 shutout win pitched by Jeff Fee. He allowed Fremont only two hits. He issued no walks and fanned five batters.

The Blazers had only three hits but made them count. In the first inning Jeff Voirol walked and was forced on a fielders choice by Jeff Keller. A stolen base then brought a run when Randy Young singled and he then scored later on a single by Roger Voirol. The third run came in the sixth inning when Keller singled and scored on subsequent fielder's choices.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Margaret Stemberg, reporter

16 members of the Newville Extension Homemakers Club ate out at Richards Restaurant in Auburn April 8.

Hostesses were Mary Rose and Charlottie Kimmel. Although she was unable to attend, Mary Rose sent little paper bunnies and jellybean cups as favors.

President Zella Collins opened the afternoon session with all repeating "The Home Economics Creed." A get-well card was signed for Mary Rose Kimmel.

For devotions Dorine Singer read an editorial taken from Luke 10:27 on loving one another.

Everyone really enjoyed the roll call of "a secret I have kept from my husband."

Recreation consisted of a contest and bingo led by Lois Guiff.

Achievement night will be held April 28 at the First Methodist Church in Auburn. Remember the time change; it will be 7 p.m. Indiana time.

The May 13 meeting will be held at the Newville UM Church on State Road 8 at 1 p.m. Indiana time with Freda Engle and Doris Hart in charge.

4th Annual Open House May 16

Saint Joe's fourth annual open house will be held Saturday, May 16. The event began in 1978 when the local beauty shop had a grand opening and some of the women in the community thought it would be a good time to have garage and yard sales. A large turnout was enjoyed that first year; the weather was perfect and some folks "came home" in a somewhat "homecoming" type of atmosphere. Rainy weather and general slowdown of retail business somewhat dampened subsequent open house events. But there were still many garage and yard sales.

One of the main attractions will be the re-opening of the Nosey Nook by Marie Noel after being closed for the winter. Flea market space will be available in the building for a rental fee and Marie plans to have her own "goodies" ready for those who enjoy flea market and yard and garage sales.

Anyone planning to have a yard or garage sale can have it listed at no charge in this paper simply by notifying the News Office as soon as possible.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. What information can you give on The Competition mandolin I recently inherited? —Mrs. S. W., Jacksonville, Fla.

A. The Competition mandolin was prominently featured in Sears, Roebuck & Co., catalogs of the early 20th century. According to advertisements, the mandolins were "made by skilled experts, the highest paid mechanics in the country." They were constructed on the "most scientific principles." The neck of The Competition was made of imitation mahogany, while the patent heads were of fine quality brass. Musically minded individuals found these super strummers affordably priced at just $2.65! Value guide: The Competition, circa 1909, $85.

Q. At a local yard sale I purchased a crystal covered butter dish in the Columbia pattern. What firm produced this find? —Agnes, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Columbia is a coveted Depression Glass design produced in crystal and pink by the Federal Glass Company between 1938 and 1940. The pink pieces are scarcer and slightly more valuable than the crystal specimens. The design is comprised of a bull's eye center, flanked by a sunburst with large beading within the rim. The wide outer rim possesses radial rows of graduated circles which become smaller toward the edge of the rim. Columbia ranks as a gem of a pattern with many Depression Glass pursuers. Value guide: covered butter dish, crystal, $25.

Q. Is the crown shaped teapot I just acquired commemorating the coronation of King George VI a sought-after item? —Grace, Sonoma, Calif.

A. One of the most striking royal souvenirs issued to commemorate the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in 1937 was the crown shaped teapot attributed to General Household Utilities of Norbury, England. Because the teapot was formed to resemble a crown, it represented the ultimate symbol of royalty. Unfortunately, manufacturers had only a limited amount of time to produce items for this royal event. Numerous pieces appeared after the occasion, causing some firms to lose money. This teapot has attained an "heir" of importance with collecting circles, which accounts for its $65 price tag.

Q. Would you please assist me in evaluating a collection of old mineral water bottles purchased at markets over the years? —Tom, Tyrone, Pa.

A. In the latter part of the 19th century, health conscious individuals displayed a preference for mineral water. Collectors have developed a thirst for the bottles which once held this natural spring water. Value guide: Adirondack Springs, N. Y., emerald green, quart, $45; Buffalo Lithia, aqua, half gallon, $20; Empire Spring, Saratoga, N.Y., dark green, quart, $40; Magnetic Springs, Hennicker, N.H., golden amber, pint, $120; Veronica, California, amber, quart, $12.

Q. How old is the 14 inch tall Jeannie Walker doll I acquired at a local yard sale? —Delores, Elkhart, Ind.

A. Jeannie Walker, one of the sought-after Madame Alexander dolls, strutted into prominence in the early 1940s. Who could resist that walking mechanism? This composition doll, having jointed neck, hips and shoulders, was available in several sizes. She has sleeping eyes, a closed mouth and mohair or human hair wig. Jeannie Walker was dressed in fashions of the forties, complete with a straw hat! Doll buffs would walk a mile to uncover a fine condition example priced under $125.

Q. Would you assist me in appraising some Greek Key carnival glass pieces? —Mrs. C. L., Hayward, Calif.

A. Collectors are discovering that Northwood's Greek Key pattern can unlock the way to unexpected profits! Value guide: bowl, marigold, 8 inches diameter, $45; bowl, purple, 9 inches diameter, $60; bowl, blue, 9 inches diameter, $200; plate, 9 inches diameter, marigold, $175; tumbler, green, $80; water pitcher, purple, $550.

Q. When were green glazed earthenwares fashionable? —Jim, Spokane, Wash.

A. From the second quarter of the 19th century, English potters responded to the public's plea for green glazed earthenware. The ware was aptly named, for a green glaze of a semi-translucent quality covered the raised molded designs on pieces. Most makers showed an affinity for attractive floral and leaf motifs. Although as the century progressed more complicated figural and landscape scenes were utilized. Who made this ware? Such well known factories as Wedgwood, Copeland, the Rockingham Works! Value guide: dish, leaf shaped, marked "Copeland," 9 inches diameter, $25.

Q While cleaning out the attic we found a Sweet Orchid talcum powder tin. Would this have any value? —MM S. T., Metuchen, N.J.

A. Decorative tins and containers are prized by flea market followers, especially American made versions. When the Richard Hudnut firm decided to market its "Sweet Orchid" talcum powder, an oval tin having an orchid motif was utilized. The container bears a patent date of Aug. 21, 1912. Locating the 5¼-inch tall Sweet Orchid talcum powder tin priced under $30 represents one beautiful buy.

Patterns are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The discomforts of the 1970s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true measure of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are universally realized, it is in the resistance exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the good requires age.

Rosenbury-Sand'son

Ken Mathes Suit Has Legislative Effect For Public Protection

In October of 1973, Brenda Mathes of Saint Joe was kidnapped from the local coin laundry then in operation. Her body was found later on the bank of the Saint Joe River just below the dam at Spencerville.

Kenneth Pierce of Waterloo was apprehended and charged with the woman's death. He was committed to a state institution for psychiatric treatment.

Some time thereafter, when Kenneth Mathes, husband of the victim, learned that Pierce was seen in the Waterloo area but law enforcement agencies and the court where his hearing was held did not know of weekend "leaves" from the institution, Mathes began legal proceedings with the purpose of getting laws changed in order to provide greater protection for the public against potential repeat offenders. He filed suit for $300,334 in damages against Pierce; Pierce's mother; his grandparents; Oakdawn Psychiatric Center at Elkhart; and the Northeastern Psychiatric Center at Kendallville.

Special Judge Robert Hines of Fort Wayne dismissed all but Pierce as defendants in the suits. Mathes took the case to the Indiana Court of Appeals and that court ruled April 27 that the original defendants should be reinstated. The decision was 2-1 in Mathes' favor. Pierce's father was originally included in the suit but was removed because he did not live with his son at the time of the murder.

Mathes has spent several thousand dollars through the years in his court case. The brief for Judge Hines alone cost $1,000, according to Mathes, who stopped in at News Office this week to provide information about the matter and to say "thanks for the support through the years."

The matter is not yet closed, however. The defendants can file an appeal with the State Supreme Court to override the appeals court's overruling the district court. But Mathes feels that a victory has been won to a degree because, as he said, "The laws have been changed."

The difficult and often frustrating route through the courts had a few other bright moments. At one point, the Governor Otis Bowen stepped in when he was made aware of the circumstances and asked the state institution involved to notify local authorities if and when Pierce would be considered for release. At that time, state laws removed law enforcement and judicial agencies from any case where a court ruled for commitment of an accused to a mental institution. The way in which the Pierce matter was handled by the state so incensed DeKalb Circuit Court Judge Stump that he removed himself from Mathes' suit for damages due to personal involvement. Judge Stump's efforts to gain information about Pierce's treatment and weekend "leaves" were virtually ignored by the state institution. When then-prosecting attorney H. Charles Winans finally did receive a letter from the institution, the mishandling of the mater became more evident. The letter stated that Pierce would no longer be given weekend leaves when unofficial statements before that time by the institution were that Pierce was not getting weekend leaves.

State laws have been changed according to Mathes, so that notification must be given in mental cases when a patient is released after having been confined due to criminal activity.

Mathes gives a lot of credit to State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn and State Senator Richard Worman of Grabill for the progress made in the Indiana General Assembly to provide greater public protection in this type of confinement case. The help of these local representatives was essential in getting certain provisions changed or added.

Mathes willingness to continue legal actions during the past several years can in a sense be considered a public service. The changes in the law regarding handling of mental patients in criminal cases is a benefit to everyone. It is a departure from the practice in recent years to protect the criminal more than the victim.

Now it appears that the protection of the law is returning to the potential victims of mentally unstable individuals because of the perseverance of Kenneth Mathes.

Free Cleanup Day Pickup May 9

The coming of spring brings the need—and the urge—to do some house and yard cleaning.

To assist residents of Saint Joe in the cleanup effort, Hess & Sons Disposal provides one free pickup a year in its contract for trash removal, an "extra" or bonus for the town.

This year that extra pickup day will be Saturday, May 9. The firm will pick up all trash placed at the curb, including large appliances which should be set out during the morning. Other trash can be set out throughout the day; the pickup is not just a one-time shot. Hess & Sons will be patrolling the streets several hours to pick up trash.

Bid Questions Answered

—from Ted Habarkorn, President, Town Board

Two telephone calls during the past week deserve to be recognized because of their significance in the matter of communicating with the public who may be misled by rumors.

One call concerned the manner in which bids for cemetery and park mowing and care were handled. Reference was made to "smalltown politics" and the temptation to call up Susan Welday, Channel 21's "trouble-shooter." I am glad the temptation to contact the TV station was resisted by the caller for the simple reason that some folks were spreading stories that were entirely false.

To dispel the false impression given by rumors, the following facts are given:

1. There were no "politics" involved in the consideration of the cemetery and park care bids. The clerk-treasurer did not make any decisions in the matter. The clerk-treasurer made no recommendations because that is not a part of the clerk-treasurer's responsibilities. The town board utilizes the knowledge of the clerk-treasurer of town business in general; she can express an opinion—or even if it doesn't seek an opinion. But the decisions are not made by the clerk-treasurer; the board is the decision-maker.

2. The board did not ignore a bid. It did, however, at the direction of the president, leave a bid unopened because the specifications on file with the clerk, advertised as available for public inspection as required, stated that bids were to be submitted in summarized envelopes. Except to indicate that a bid was for cemetery or park care, this is not an uncommon practice, to specify unmarked sealed envelopes. The purpose is to protect the bidders from any prejudice or bias which might influence a board member prior to the official opening of the bids. Board members and the clerk-treasurer can inform someone that bids have been received but they cannot divulge the identity of the bidders prior to the announced opening of bids. If this practice were followed—to tell in advance who was bidding and perhaps how much was bid (if the bidder had stated conversationally how much he or she was bidding), then "politics" would be a justifiable accusation.

In summary, the bids were received and opened according to advertised procedure.

3. The board rightfully assumes that bidders have read bid specifications. The assumption is based on the outlook that a bidder knows what he or she is bidding for. It is the bidder's responsibility, not the board's responsibility, to see to it that the terms of the bidding are known by the bidder.

It is unfortunate that a third bid was rejected. The town might have been able to save some money. However, since the bid was rejected unopened, any stories that say directly or indirectly that the board acted in a way that cost the taxpayers hundreds of dollars are based on hearsay. The board does not know how much was bid in the unopened envelope and is therefore being criticized unfairly.

The situation illustrates the old saying, "Penny wise and pound foolish." Had the board president's intent to publish the specifications in their entirety been followed, the present false rumors would have been avoided. But the suggestion was followed that only a brief notice to Bidders be published. The longer notice would have cost a few more dollars, but the misunderstanding could have been prevented.

The second call was from a non-resident of Saint Joe who noted that it seemed as if there is a constant "fight" at Saint Joe. The comment was made in reference to fire department-town board relationships. The caller also acknowledged that such "fighting" has been going on for many, many years everywhere it seems.

It's an unfortunate situation. The board has had to tolerate almost constant pressure from the fire department for the past 16 months. More time has been devoted to fire department matters in that time than to any other town matter. The board has even tolerated false accusations by the assistant chief and the secretary of deliberate false figures in the town's annual report. (The township trustee and advisory board have themselves had to bear up under accusations of inadequate funding for township fire fighting purposes in a letter sent to them last October by the fire department.)

The caller's comment that it "seems to be going on everywhere" is accurate. A fire department in Allen County recently suggested it would seek impeachment of the trustee. A story of striking firemen in communities of all sizes is not uncommon today.

At the root of all the trouble is — money — or rather the demand for more money. It is a sad but true story that the traditional mutual aid in a small community, of people helping one another, under the non-money-oriented word "volunteer" has all but disappeared in fire department matters. And the state legislature has been responsible for that destruction by telling smaller units of government what the latter "shall" do and not what they "may" do in certain areas of financing.

Despite the problems, however, Saint Joe and Concord Township have good fire protection, as they have had for decades.

CL Meets 7th

The Saint Joe Church Softball League will meet Thursday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Churches planning to participate should have managers or other representatives present to plan for the 1981 season.

Election of officers will be held. Consideration will be given to a request from the Youth League for use of the Church League lights for Wednesday games and for a week-long tourney in July, as was done last year and the year before.

Managers, pastors and players are invited to attend the meeting.

4th Annual Open House May 16

Saint Joe's fourth annual open house will be held Saturday, May 16. The event began in 1978 when the local beauty shop had a grand opening and some of the women in the community thought it would be a good time to have garage and yard sales. A large turnout was enjoyed that first year; the weather was perfect and some folks "came home" in a somewhat "homecoming" type of atmosphere. Rainy weather and general slowdown of retail business somewhat dampened subsequent open house events. But there were still many garage and yard sales.

One of the main attractions will be the re-opening of the Nosey Nook by Marie Noel after being closed for the winter. Flea market space will be available in the building for a rental fee and Marie plans to have her own "goodies" ready for those who enjoy flea market and yard and garage sales.

Anyone planning to have a yard or garage sale can have it listed at no charge in this paper simply by notifying the News Office as soon as possible.

The Shroud Of Turin

A segment on the "20-20" TV program hosted by Hugh Downs concerned the Shroud of Turin, that centuries old piece of cloth said to have covered the body of Jesus Christ in a tomb prior to His resurrection. According to a news report prior to the show, there was a debate as to whether or not an objective presentation could be prepared. Reporter Geraldo Rivera is said to have convinced others that the story should be presented with the comment that there could be no question of favoritism with the story prepared by "two non-believers."

Mr. Rivera taped interviews with the scientists involved in testing the fabric, after permission was given for such examination. Great care must be taken in handling the cloth which has a visible shading of a human figure.

Some of the eye-opening results include:

—When a test was made to produce a negative from which to make a positive, the process produced a positive. In other words, when you go from the original to a copy negative to a reproduction print positive, the procedure will indicate a fake. In this case, a negative would have been convincing evidence that the shroud was "prepared" in some manner to look like the image of Jesus. But the test results didn't bring a negative; they brought a positive definitely showing the features and body of a man.

—Tests show that the shroud does come from the area from which such cloth originates. There had been a question about the cloth itself. The tests appear to have eliminated the questions.

—Tests of the blood spots on the shroud indicate all are from the same source, although it was stated that the tests could not confirm that it was human blood.

—One of the many scientists doing the testing (I think there were 20 involved) showed that the spots of blood on the shroud are in the exact places conforming to the Biblical account of the crucifixion. He said that the nails were driven not through the hands as is commonly thought but rather through the wrists, because of the weight of the body; nails through the palms would not hold such weight he said. And blood spots on the shroud indicate bloodied wrists. He also noted that the arms would be extended at an upward angle as the body hangs from the cross. Blood from the wrist wounds would flow downward toward the torso. The blood stains on the shroud do just that. Blood stains on the shroud where the head is shown indicate some sort of sharp object placed on the head, the scientist said. (The crown of thorns is recorded in the Bible.) The blood spots on the torso indicate wounds with small bits of flesh torn out. (Jesus was scourged in the Biblical account of His final moments on earth.) The wound in Jesus' side is also clearly shown on the shroud.

Although the final report has not been officially completed and issued and there are some areas of doubt or skepticism in the minds of what appears to be a few of the investigating scientists, it was stated on the TV program that the final results will be "startling."

One of the scientific investigators was noted to have said: " Science was my 'god' in the past. . . Now . . . I get down on my knees."

The TV show was timed for presentation a few days before Easter. On that festive occasion the Christian world celebrates Jesus' resurrection. The Shroud of Turin doesn't "prove" anything. But the tests appear to confirm the belief that the shroud did cover a body centuries ago and the body was that of Jesus Christ. As a result, the Bible becomes more and more a record of fact and not just a "fairy tale" written with only idealistic motivation.

We can't and shouldn't worship a shroud. But we can certainly take its existence into our knowledge of Bible history.

The Christian faith still can't "prove" anything. But evidence seems to be accumulating with the passage of time to indicate the Scriptures are more than just literary efforts from various writers living in widely separated times in history.

As Mr. Rivera said to Mr. Downs in closing his report:

"Happy Easter!"

EHS BB Camps

The third annual Blazer Basketball Camp will begin the second week of June for boys and the third week of June for girls. Registration deadline is June 1.

The camp will be conducted by DeKalb Eastside High School basketball coaches Rick Hudson and Becky Thompson. Hudson said individual offensive and defensive fundamentals would be stressed.

Boys and girls will be grouped according to their age and ability to provide the best instruction setup.

The boys camp begins June 8 and ends June 19. Grades 4, 5 and 6 will participate from 8:30 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. Boys in grades 7, 8 and 9 will have two-hour sessions beginning at 10:00 a.m.

Girls camp is scheduled to begin June 22 and end July 3. Daily scheduling will be the same as for boys.

Coach Hudson explained the camp program: "We planned the camp for early in the summer and in the morning to avoid conflicts with Little League and other activities. I'm aware that there are basketball camps all over this state, big name camps, and I encourage kids to attend them if they have the money and the interest. But I think we give a participant more physically; it's a bargain."

The cost for two weeks of camp this year will be $20. Each player will receive a Blazer Basketball Camp T-shirt, a baseball cap, a Converse NBA superstar poster and an 8x10 camp photo. There will be free daily Coke breaks and an evaluation of a player's strengths and weaknesses. Certificates of participation will be awarded to girls and boys.

The fee families sending more than one child is $15.00 per child.

There will also be drawings for prizes—basketball shoes and basketballs—and those achieving perfect attendance will participate in a prize drawing.

The camp will feature instructional films, contests, guest speakers, a five-on-five league and a one-on-one tournament.

Starting in the second week of the junior high boys camp the players will participate in games against area schools. There is an extended third week of camp for boys which will feature only interschool competition.

Checks should be made payable to Blazer Basketball Camp and sent to Rick Hudson at the high school in Butler.

Q. Can you furnish us with information on our award winning cast iron world globe from the E. Steiger firm? —MM F. D., Houston, Texas.

A. Studious young scholars of the late 1800s had this world globe, which was mounted on a cast iron stand, constantly spinning about in their pursuit of geographical knowledge. The design from the E. Steiger firm won a First Prize Medal at the Paris Exhibition of 1867. Patent papers for the globe were issued on November 23, 1868. The label, a storehouse of information in itself, read as follows: "J. Scheller's American (Terrestrial) School Globe, compiled from the Latest and Most Authentic Sources, including all the recent geographical discoveries." Value guide: Steiger world globe, $600.

Q. When did the Phoenix glasshouse produce its sculptured line? —Linda, Walnut Creek, Calif.

A. When the Phoenix Glass Company of Pennsylvania was established in 1880, its production centered around utilitarian commercial lines. However, by the 1930s when Art Deco designs were in full bloom, the company marketed an unusual sculptured line. Gift shops sold the ware throughout the country into the early 1950s. Naturalistic motifs abounded on these objects. Nowadays, sculptured glass articles from the Phoenix firm are landing squarely into private collections. Value guide: vase, dogwood design, pink, 7 inches tall, $85.

Q. Where did my silver thimble marked "MKD" originate? —Gladys, Corning, N.Y.

A. By the late 19th century the firm of Ketchum and McDougal was regarded as one of America's foremost thimble makers. From 1892 the impressed trademark "MKD" was utilized, generally appearing on the underside of the thimble apex. Advertisements mentioned a number of styles including Louis XV, Embossed Scroll, Embroidery Allover and Allover Embossed. Other thimbles from the firm had ornate engraved motifs. Start searching through those old sewing boxes, folks, because thimbles bearing this firm's trademark are treasured. Value guide: Embossed design, marked, silver, $60.

Q. Would you quote some prices on old newspapers having major headline stories? —Vince, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. When some earth-shattering event happens, do you automatically save that newspaper because of its headline? If not, be prepared to read these prices and weep. Value guide: John Dillinger shot, $18; Judy Garland's death, $15; Lindbergh baby kidnapped, $40; Marilyn Monroe's death, $15; Queen Victoria's death, $10; Nixon resignation, $8; Roosevelt-Hoover election outcome, $7; Stock market crash of 1929, $45.

Follows are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not [illegible] Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Then did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers would well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Do thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Disease in a fruit country is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little collusion promotes growth, but much destroys the ruits.

The true criterion of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are [illegible] rather, it is in the resistance exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is the good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

4th ANNUAL 'OPEN HOUSE' MAY 16th

The Saint Joe News

Established March 7, 1963, as free paper—as subscription January 28, 1967 MAY 7&14, 1981 VOL. 98-16

CL To Have Nine Teams, Tourney

Tentative plans for the 1981 season of the Saint Joe Church Softball League include nine teams representing ten local area churc congregations. The teams include Hicksville Church of Christ; Hopewell United Methodist; Coburn Corners Church of Christ with one full team and a second smaller group combined with Saint Joe Church of Christ; Newville Church of Christ; Newville United Methodist combined with the Lutherans; Norris Chapel United Methodist; Mt. Pleasant United Methodist; and Spencerville Methodist.

The group which met May 7 set the entry fee at $100, unchanged from last year. It was voted to hold a tourney at the end of June with matchup of teams by draw. Games will be played Friday and Saturday with the championship game on Sunday. The tourney will have no effect in determining the regular season champion.

Rainout dates are for the following weekend.

The church league voted to allow use of its lights by the local Youth League for a week of tournament play in July and on Wednesdays during the regular schedule.

Officers were re-elected, including Ted Haberkorn, president; Roger Cook, vice-president; and Lavon Hart, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Hart has reported that the amount of electricity used last summer took a big jump over the previous year. That combined with the league being placed in a higher rate category than in the past has resulted in increased operational costs. Despite this, the league continues to provide the lowest priced recreational activity as is possible for some 150 or so church league participants. The Saint Joe Lions Club has given a helping hand for several years with an annual contribution to the league.

Among the league rules is one which requires attendance at church services by team members on at least two Sundays of the month preceding a scheduled game. This means that players are eligible for the start of the schedule in June if they attend worship twice in May. Players are supposed to be members of the church on whose team they play. This is to prevent "team jumping" and "recruiting" just for the sake of playing softball. It also protects the opportunity of younger participants to play among whom are faithful church members. Adherence to the eligibility rules is a matter of the honor system, each team manager having the responsibility of determining a player's eligibility in keeping with the spirit of league rules. Players themselves are responsible for being honest and fair in declaring their eligibility.

The league president has noted that there has never been a formal complaint presented about player eligibility but there have been comments from time to time questioning certain eligibility. He pointed out that once the spirit of the rule is violated by one team, other teams feel justified in following suit. This destroys the purpose of the league and creates ill feeling and distrust. "For the most part, the league has run itself through the years because of mutual cooperation," he said, "and we do not want to destroy that feeling of fellowship by 'bending' the rules too far. Neither do we want to become legalistic in our league activities. The situation compares very much with the Bible itself, which certainly is appropriate for a church league. The Old Testament gave us the Law, but it was often literally and something was missing. The New Testament gives us the Gospel, which is the Law administered in love."

4th Annual Open House May 16

Saint Joe's fourth annual open house will be held Saturday, May 16. The event began in 1978 when the local beauty shop had a grand opening and some of the women in the community thought it would be a good time to have garage and yard sales. A large turnout was enjoyed that first year; the weather was perfect and some folks "came home" in a somewhat "homecoming" type of atmosphere. Rainy weather and general slowdown of retail business somewhat dampened subsequent open house events. But there were still many garage and yard sales.

One of the main attractions will be the re-opening of the Nosey Nook by Marie Noel after being closed for the winter. Flea market space will be available in the building for a rental fee and Marie plans to have her own "goodies" ready for those who enjoy flea market and yard and garage sales.

Anyone planning to have a yard or garage sale can have it listed at no charge in this paper simply by notifying the News Office as soon as possible.

EHS BB Camps

The third annual Blazer Basketball Camp will begin the second week of June for boys and the third week of June for girls. Registration deadline is June 1.

The camps will be conducted by DeKalb Eastside High School basketball coaches Rick Hudson and Becky Thompson. Hudson said individual offensive and defensive fundamentals would be stressed.

Boys and girls will be grouped according to their age and ability to provide the best instruction setup.

The boys camp begins June 8 and ends June 19. Grades 4, 5 and 6 will participate from 8:30 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. Boys in grades 7, 8 and 9 will have two-hour sessions beginning at 10:00 a.m.

Girls camp is scheduled to begin June 22 and end July 3. Daily scheduling will be the same as for boys.

Coach Hudson explained the camp program: "We planned the camp for early in the summer and in the morning to avoid conflicts with Little League and other activities. I'm aware that there are basketball camps all over this state, big name camps, and I encourage kids to attend them if they have the money and the interest. But I think we give a participant more physically; it's a bargain."

The cost for two weeks of camp this year will be $20. Each player will receive a Blazer Basketball Camp T-shirt, a baseball cap, a Converse NBA superstar poster and an 8x10 camp photo. There will be free daily Coke breaks and an evaluation of a player's strengths and weaknesses. Certificates of participation will be awarded to girls and boys.

The fee families sending more than one child is $15.00 per child.

There will also be drawings for prizes—basketball shoes and basketballs—and those achieving perfect attendance will participate in a prize drawing.

The camps will feature instructional films, contests, guest speakers, a five-on-five league and a one-on-one tournament.

Starting in the second week of the junior high boys camp the players will participate in games against area schools. There is an extended third week of camp for boys which will feature only intramural competition.

Checks should be made payable to Blazer Basketball Camp and sent to Rick Hudson at the high school in Butler.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The discoverers of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They emphasize one things Jesus did not emphasize. Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Then did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "He that runs and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation prevents growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true measure of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are conveniently realized, but in the resolution exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is the good whiskey. The list of ingredients are on exhibit, but the proof requires age.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

I had occasion to make a trip to Archbold, Ohio, this week and found a tourist attraction I had not heard of. It is the Sauder Museum complex which includes "Die Alt Scheier," a restaurant housed in an old barn — but it's far from a "barn" is we usually think of it. The building has been decorated in a rustic manner and the menu specialises in good food "cooked from scratch."

I took one of the menus which was in the form of a small newspaper. Some of the history of the museum and the barn are printed in the menu, and the prices appear to be reasonable.

I was there Wednesday, and although I didn't tour the museum nor eat in the restaurant, I have them on my list of "places I want to visit." The parking lot held three or four Greyhound buses plus many automobiles. So, obviously the museum and restaurant have a strong attraction for tourists.

The restaurant has facilities to accommodate private gatherings in addition to its regular public dining room. Hours are Monday through Friday 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.; Saturday 8:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.; closed Sunday. If you want to phone for a reservation just on my recommendation, call (419) 445-2231.

Part of the souvenir menu-newspaper states:

"Die Alt Scheier is proud to be a part of the Sauder Museum complex, which was designed and built by Archbold native and self-styled historian Erie Sauder.

"For many years Mr. Sauder had collected old woodworking tools as well as antique farm equipment and the like. In the late sixties he realized that his collector's zeal had grown to be something more than a hobby so he decided to erect his museum.

"It consists of an old homestead, including the original house and many of the outbuildings, a craft village which serves as a haven for many frontier style artisans, and a large display building featuring the tools and equipment which enabled the early settlers to transform the treacherous Black Swamp into fertile Fulton County.

"We hope you take the time to leisurely wander through the museum. As you do, take time to reflect on the ingenuity and perseverance of these first settlers as well as the great debt we all owe to them."

If you want to take a look at the souvenir newspaper-menu, it's at the News Office—a bit messed up (I spilled a milk shake on it), but you can still get the gist of the place.

Somewhere along the line in recent months the 100-foot steel tape or "snake," used for unplugging drain tile, has come up missing. If someone borrowed it and has not yet returned it, please contact John Repp. The town needs it!

To Pat Roberts' tribute to her late husband, Kenny, who was my "town board sidekick" not too many years ago, I add a loving "amen."

L.E.T.T.E.R.S—
TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted,

Just a note to thank you for the excellent article you wrote. You really told it like it is. Of course, you have helped Ken in any way you could, from the time he decided to file this suit. It has been a long (and expensive) eight years, as you well know. I know you had all the facts. We can think of no finer tribute to Brenda. If this law can be changed, the family, and the institution responsible, for people like this, will be very sure, before turning them loose on society.

I am firmly convinced that the Judge, not the Board of Mental Health, should decide when, if ever, people like this should be released. Thanks again.

Joint Effort Brings Crossing Improvement

A cooperative effort resulted in a greatly improved railroad crossing on Third Street in Saint Joe.

With Pat Crow coordinating the improvement four sources combined to accomplish resurfacing of the street approach to the Chessie System tracks.

Pat brought the matter to the attention of town board president Ted Haberkorn who in turn sent a letter to railroad officials. Pat had also contacted the railroad in the past but nothing had been done. Mr. Caldwell from the Garrett office of the Chessie System came to Saint Joe a week or so later and offered to provide seven tons of resurfacing material. County highway department superintendent Paul Graham furnished a roller, the Crows, Pat and Andy, provided Farm Center labor and the additional funds for three more tons of material, and the town board contributed funds toward the project in the amount of $100.

The result is that vehicles do not have their exhaust systems endangered by "hitting bottom" as was the case before. A sharp drop in the pavement due to the rise in railroad track level as repairs were made through recent years resulted in a hump which hit the underside of vehicles as they crossed the track.

The cooperative effort means Saint Joe has a much-needed improvement accomplished at the lowest cost to all concerned.

IN MEMORY OF MY BELOVED HUSBAND, KENNETH ROBERTS, WHO PASSED AWAY MAY 22, 1978

He never said a lot
Nor sought to be well known
But when he had a job
He could be counted on.
He never tried to lead
Or boast that he was smart
But everything he did
He did with all his heart.
He never sought man's praise
Like many of the rest
But in all the things he did
He did his very best.

Sadly missed by his wife, Pat

On Saying What 'Is' 'Ain't'

Two recent sports articles about one of Indiana University's basketball stars served to illustrate that the illiteracy of those working for the major news gathering media can mislead the public.

The articles were about Isiah Thomas and both articles made reference to the book in the Old Testament with the same first name — or so they inferred. However, the Biblical name is "Isaiah" and the basketball star is "Isiah." Now, maybe his parents thought they were using a Biblical name. But the spelling didn't come out the same. The IU basketball player (who has now decided to drop out of college to go into pro basketball lured by the million-dollar sign which is "unbiblical" if you ask me) has no extra "a" in his name. And it means that all sportscasters have been mispronouncing the first name.

It may seem like a trivial thing—what difference does it make if there is or there isn't another "a" in his first name? But the national media use and spelling of the player's first name led Jane Kemp to make reference recently to "Isaiah" Thomas in one of her columns in the Evening Star. And I am certain that she thought she was spelling the name correctly. After all, that's the way everyone has been pronouncing it — "Isaiah."

We have too many little misconceptions creeping into our daily living. I don't believe it is trivial to point some of these things out, because from time to time we are puzzled as to why certain things are as they are, or why people do as they do. Often the reason is—people have been misled by a source whom they assumed "knew" just because of their position. We assume stories coming over the wire services and coming from local reporters is correct because we assume they have investigated or they are well educated or whatever. As the old song goes, "It Ain't Necessarily So." And because it isn't, the general public and some others in the news media, are are not only misled, they are "mis-educated."

There are other examples of "mis-education" prevalent today. For instance, the school menu for Monday, May 25, says there is no school because it's Memorial Day. Well, May 25 is not Memorial Day; May 30 is Memorial Day. True, the Congress of the United States has made Memorial Day (and some other traditional holidays) a Monday observance and a "legal" holiday. However, such action has been purely for the sake of a lot of people in government and private business (the employees, that is) to get paid a day's wages for doing nothing. —And then we wonder why we have inflation!

If we are going to teach our offspring anything about the history of our country and the meaning of certain dates in the development of freedom for mankind in this country, we are first facing the need to keep "hands off" those significant and historic dates and observe them on the correct dates according to tradition. You don't strengthen a building by picking away at its foundation for the sake of installing new gimmicks which are mistakenly referred to as "progress." In a similar manner, you don't strengthen our nation's historic tradition by picking away at its significant moments and changing their timing for the sake of modern convenience.

One fact is not going to be changed by the Indianapolis "500," the U. S. Congress or anyone or anything else:

Memorial Day is May 30.

—And Isiah Thomas, talented athlete as he is, is not comparable to the Biblical prophet named Isaiah, no matter what you may have read in the wire service feature stories.

The Cost Of 'Quality' Education

The Indiana State Teachers Association, especially its president, Cordell Affeldt, has in recent weeks been putting Indiana Governor Robert Orr on the spot for his alleged failure to live up to a campaign promise to make education his number one priority. Despite the facts of life — decreasing enrollments, increasing costs, less education — teachers continue to zero in on their own personal welfare as their main concern. They use the word "quality" in referring to education and their efforts to get more money. But quality never has been achieved by quantity and it never will.

It is unfair for me to use the all-encompassing word "teachers" in these critical remarks because there are many teachers who do not support the "more pay at any cost" approach made by their so-called spokesmen. But because the teachers' lobby, the most powerful lobby there is, gets the headlines and gets the attention of state legislators, those teachers who are truly professional and realistic must be included because of their silence. It isn't a pleasant situation.

A couple of things stand out in the current situation (which is becoming somewhat of a continuous situation):

1. Indiana teachers are using the same appeal to the emotions as is being used by those seeking to stop President Ronald Reagan's attempts to reduce government spending. The teachers hit the public with such words as "quality of education" and "depriving children of their right to a decent education." For the President's situation, he tries cope with the unofficial pitch contained in "taking food away from the poor" and "penalizing the elderly."

2. Teachers seem to be living in an ivory tower of untouchability in their actions inasmuch as they seem to think nothing of raising taxes just for their benefit. What is often forgotten by teachers and the general public is that, even without the raises they seek, more money is being spent each year for education. Yet, our sons, daughters, grandsons and granddaughters graduate each year with less and less ability to read, write and spell. Money does NOT mean "quality" in education. The quality is in the individual teacher, and we seem to have a lower quality of individual serving as teacher spokesmen for all teachers.

There are those who shudder at the prospects of reducing certain areas of school programs. However, most reductions are coming in non-academic areas. The world is not going to come to an end when certain athletic programs are reduced or eliminated. After all, in the past decade we have had an outburst of athletic programs not because they were needed or demanded but because some court somewhere said "if you do it for the boys, you do it for the girls." In addition, there has been the feeling in the minds of many parents that "there ought to be a team for the freshmen" or "there ought to be a team for the eight grade and seventh grade and sixth grade and fifth grade." I'm not saying a program for those groups is unnecessary. I'm saying that today there is some extra pay involved; a fee schedule for extra-curricular teacher leadership exists today which did not exist years ago. To show how mercenary teaching has become, there may be some trouble in the driver training program because faculty instructors will be paid a flat rate of over $10.00 an hour. Some teachers don't like it; they think they should be paid on a seniority basis: the longer you've been in teaching, the more you get paid for extra-curricular leadership such as driver training. (Note that it does not seem important as to the driving capabilities of the instructor.)

State legislators and the governor are now being bombarded by teachers for a pay raise higher than any other public employee has been awarded. If the teachers get what they say they want, it does not seem fair to the taxpayer who has no lobbyist working for them. The only lobby taxpayers have is in the making of a phone call and the writing of a letter.

Town Board

The Town Board of Saint Joe met May 4 in regular session. Present were president Ted Haberkorn; members Paula Tintsman and Larry McKown; clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; street commissioner John Bopp; fireman secretary Jake Fetters; and waterworks superintendent Maurice Kline.

Mrs. Tinstman reported that an airplane pilot was to be in Saint Joe in a few days to look over the land which the board wants to cover with insecticide pellets for mosquito control. 18 acres are involved.

The board carried over for further consideration a proposal from Scott Engineering of Auburn to build a low-heat fogger for mosquito control for $1,000. The town's old fogger is a high-heat generating unit, and two sources have told the board a loss of insecticide, possibly up to 65 or 70 percent, comes with the use of high-heat units. The insecticide is burned up rather than expelled in fog.

The board voted to pay $100 toward repair of the Third Street railroad crossing. Crow's Rainbow Farm Center offered labor and money, the Chessie System offered materials and the county highway department offered the use of a roller.

Mr. Bopp was authorized to contact Roy Eck about repair to field tile at the west end of town which serves residents in that area.

Rates for use of the town rooters were established at $10 for town residents, $20 for out-of-town use. Mr. Bopp must always be the operator. The clerk noted that tractor use for private purposes was set a few years ago at $15 per hour. Mr. Bopp mut be the operator of the tractor also. These rates do not include labor ,which is set according to agreement between Mr. Bopp and the property owner. He noted that he had not been paid by certain property owners for his labor.

An estimate of $92.50 plus delivery charge of $20.00 for native oak lumber to rebuild the foot bridge at Wild Cherry Park was accepted by the board. Mr. Bopp is in charge of the rebuilding.

The president reported that he had written to State Representative Norman Gerig about state laws which mandate certain allowances for "volunteer" firemen. Mr. Gerig replied by stating he had raised the same question in committee and would pursue the matter further at the next session of the general assembly.

Mr. Fetters asked about the water rates for filling swimming pools. Local firemen hauled water for pool filling last summer but the town has not received any payment for the water. He also asked about the petition to allow parking on Spencer Street under limited conditions and was told the town board had forwarded the petition to the state highway department. The clerk was authorized to contact the state again.

Mr. Fetters presented a ledger from the fire department which is supposed to serve as the fire department's annual report promised the board five months ago. Each board member is to examine the ledger and return it to the department.

A new fire hydrant was to be purchased for installation at Washington and Fourth streets. However, since the board meeting it was determined that the new hydrant could not be used and will be returned.

Waterworks superintendent Maurice Kline was authorized to obtain luminous paint and have it applied to all town hydrants.

The meeting ended at 9:30 p. m.

Bills allowed were as follows:

Town—Walter Miller, park and cemetery mowing 400.00; Mavis Mobile Radio 12.50; Hess & Sons, trash removal 345.00; Jiggs' Motor Service, gas 20.30; Paula Tinstman, salary five months 200.00; Yeiser's Standard Service, gas 60.05; John Bopp, labor 307.50; Michael Duke, labor 62.50; Midwest Tile & Cement, materials 74.04; I&M 291.33.

Waterworks—John Bopp, labor 47.50; Maurice Kline, salary and postage 84.03; Indiana State Board of Health, water analysis 1981 10.00; Post Office 18.00; I&M 54.73.

Alice Kagey To Be Honored At Open House June 7

An open house will be held Sunday, June 7, from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. in the Riverdale Elementary School cafetorium to honor Alice Kagey who will retire from teaching at the end of the current school year.

Alice is the fifth generation of her family living in this area and participating as a member of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ.

She graduated from the old Spencerville 12-year school with sixteen in her class in 1937. She received her teaching degree from Ball State University.

Alice's first teaching job was in a one-room school house, Bog Island, in Union Township. She recalls the pot belly stove and running water (you run out to the pump and run back in!). She had to fire the stove, do all the janitor work (sweep, clean and carry ashes). Teachers had to buy all the supplies for the students. Alice played the pump organ and played ball at recess. The school was modern enough to have a sink with a drain in the corner.

At 20 years and two weeks of age she remembers her first day of teaching well. It was the day Hitler invaded Poland. Then Miss Alice Hart married Harold Kagey in 1941. She took a break from teaching while Harold served in the Navy.

In 1947 she returned to teaching at Spencerville and taught until Anne was born, taking thirteen years off to raise her family, Anne, Dick and Martha. In 1962, Alice returned to teaching. She has taught a total of 23 1/2 years. She received her bachelor degree at Defiance, Ohio, in 1968 and her masters at Saint Francis in 1970.

Alice has seen big changes in the schools. One room with four grades became one room for each grade. A school with no equipment became a very sophisticated school. The trustee was the boss, teachers received $100.00 a month, $20.00 for janitor services, no benefits, no insurance. Jobs could be taken if the trustee had a friend who needed a job. The children have changed, too. Alice finds them more sophisticated, with wider knowledge, with less respect, and so very materialistic and mouthy.

In times past there were longer school days, and the big sports event was the game with Mooresville and a potluck dinner with a musical. She remembers the day the stove pipe (that went half way across the room) came loose after she had started a fire, and she had to stand and hold it in with a broom until students came to get help.

Alice has several big joys from teaching. A former third grade student, Gail Jacobson, wrote a high school theme, "My Most Memorable Teacher," and, of course, Alice was the teacher. She enjoys having received graduation and wedding invitations from former students letting her share in big moments in their lives.

Alice has a firm offer to be a dorm mother at Central Florida Christian College in Orlando, Florida, and then to teach Christian Education. She will be working under the Dean of Students and help counsel. Alice says, "Teaching school has been a delightful experience but now I want to work for the Lord."

Her family includes daughter Anne, a graduate of Minnesota Bible College planning to go to the Dominican Republic as a recruit nurse; daughter, Martha, married to Ron Beard (they have two children, Laura 4 and Tim 1 year old; and son, Dick, a graduate of Vincennes University as a horticulturist, presently a draftsman at Universal and also working at Hart's Nursery (his wife is Rogetta).

Alice has been under treatment for an eye problem and will return to the Mayo Clinic in June.

Present and former students and families, friends and neighbors are invited to the open house honoring Alice at her retirement.

Before you start the day, save some energy.

Saving energy is easy. Even in the morning. All you need to know is what it takes and follow through.

Here's a list of little things you can do that won't cost a cent.

So start putting them into practice.

You'll be surprised how much energy you'll save.

Surprised, too, that your lifestyle won't change.

Morning Energy Savers

Starting tomorrow, take short showers.

When shaving, don't run hot water continuously. Fill the sink halfway instead.

If you use an electric razor you actually save energy, using less of it in a year than a hand razor and hot water uses in a week.

Whenever possible, use a toaster, toaster-oven or a fry pan in place of the large oven or range surface units.

Never use the oven as a heater.

Place a pan on the surface unit before turning the heat on. Heating air is wasteful.

Match pans to the size of the heating surface on your range.

If boiling eggs, use a minimum of water. It shortens cooking time.

Save breakfast dishes until evening or a time when all dishes can be washed together.

If frying bacon and eggs, surface units can be turned off a short time before food is done. Let the retained heat finish the cooking.

In winter, open the draperies so sunlight will warm your home. Turn the thermostat down.

Turn off all unneeded lights, radio, TV, etc. when leaving the house or no one is using them.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional ideas, call or visit our office and ask for our free series of SAVE* booklets.

We give it our best.

Failure are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The discoveries of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparisons to give a holy cover to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not level Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, acted, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished as in the Scriptures: "Go thou and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent is a free entity in the life cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true cadence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are circumscribed; rather, it is in the extremity exercised in granting those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is the good thinking. The best of ingredients are essential, but the good cannot out.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

The news release for Coburn Corners Church of Christ's vacation Bible School was typed on the church's stationery. At the bottom is this:

"Just one life, 'twill soon be past, only what's done for Christ will last."

I couldn't help but think of the late John Paul Hill, who ordered the stationery, and how phophetic was his choice of a quotation in relation to his own life.

The most lasting tributes are not in monuments but in memories.

News media have received a lot of material in the past several months about the "White River Park." The state legislature has passed bills to provide funding for the park.

The trouble is, the park has been touted as a potential attraction for new business, for tourists and so on. It has been "sold" as a benefit for the entire state. But — in my opinion, the whole thing is beneficial to Indianapolis and Marion County. And all Hoosiers are helping to pay for it.

The project includes a total of 4,100 acres, including a "downtown urban park" of 250 acres for Indianapolis—not counting the land referred to as the "river corridor."

Alice: Tells It 'Like It Is'

Alice Kagey is not one to mince words and never has been, in the time that I have known her. The comments she makes at her retirement reflect an honest and frank appraisal of what has happened in education in the past twenty years.

We're better off to be told the truth than to be deceived by soothing reassurances. And Alice pulls no punches as noted in her comments about today's children:

Significant is the fact that Alice finds today's children "more sophisticated, with wider knowledge, with less respect, and so very materialistic and mouthy." These are not words from an unkind, cruel and harsh type of person. They are from one who has a family and loves kids. But her love for them does not smother her recognition of the need to be honest and frank in her opinions.

The part of the news story accompanying the announcement of her retirement having to do with her duties years ago as a teacher is also significant. She tells of other duties such as building a fire each day, of serving as a "janitor, of longer school days, and so on. What a difference! Today, teachers in Indiana discourage homework because it means time for grading papers outside of school; they set examples of questionable citizenship by publicly hinting at a strike at the moment because they want a bigger pay raise than the state legislature says it can afford under Indiana's efforts to keep tax burdens under control; they want to be paid for extra-curricular activities; and so on.

One might be led to think that teachers years ago were virtual slaves. If it WAS as bad as that, why did people like Alice go into teaching in the first place??

Is if any wonder that the children are more materialistic today, when teachers themselves are so materialistic? I find it difficult to believe that teachers can resort to the type of tactics they use today without affecting school students. It is a sad realization, but teaching is no longer a profession in the true sense of the word; teaching is now just another job with teacher unions having total control of education. You may elect your school board members, but it is the unions which have the upper hand and they and their spokesmen are not held accountable in any way comparable to the accountability to the public felt by elected school officials.

There is one point, however, in which I think Alice is wrong in her comments. She says, "Teaching school has been a delightful experience but now I want to work for the Lord."

Alice, you're wrong. You've been working for the Lord every year you've been teaching.

Self-Employed Outside 'The System'

Part of President Ronald Reagan's plan to reduce the rate of increase in government spending (no one has proposed to "reduce" government spending in a literal sense) involves the matter of Social Security. His motivation to serve the interests of the truly needy are being misinterpreted as "taking away" the means of support of all senior citizens. It is a convenient opportunity to for those wish to scuttle any possibility of Mr. Reagan becoming a successful President to emphasize the alleged cold-hearted attitude of Mr. Reagan and those who are helping to formulate his approach to our national problems. Unfortunately, many people are swayed by the emotional pitch represented by such phrases as "take food away from the poor" and "penalize the senior citizens" and the like.

There is another area of public welfare not included at the present time; but it will be in time. That area concerns the health care system in our nation. "System" is an appropriate word because that's just what it is — a "system" of guaranteed protection for everyone through group insurance plans. The benefits are guaranteed to everyone—doctors, nurses, therapists, hospitals and their employees from the janitors to the clerks to the administrative organization, employees in all business all over the country — everyone is part of the system EXCEPT the self-employed until shopkeeper and farmer. Those still functioning in the "old fashioned" and traditional single-income-family pattern are not a part of the system AND CAN'T GET IN on the same terms as enjoyed by employees.

With our family still in the midst of a major medical need, some of the comments made here in months and years past are even more firmly substantiated by what has occurred thus far. As with pension programs for governmental employees and employees in private business and industry, the health care "system" as it has evolved benefits everyone except the self-employed. Consider these points:

1. The health care system is financed by everyone. Group hospitalization plans, whether paid for entirely by the employer's company or paid in part by the company, are financed from the income of the company and employee. That income is received from the consumer — everyone is thus paying for employee health benefits.

2. Group plans of health insurance guarantee payment of bills. As a result, there is a prevalent attitude in the field of medical health care that the patient will not be hurt financially by health care cost. Therefore, the charges and fees, and the use of all types of materials is not particularly of concern to the health care provider who knows that the patient has insurance — or so they assume because that's the way the "system" works in their minds.

3. The consequence is that the self-employed are paying for all employees' health insurance with every purchase of any kind any day of the week. But these same employees don't pay a single penny toward the health care of the self-employed.

One word of caution is necessary: these thoughts are not critical of the care that is given. The vast majority of those providing service within the health care system are doing careful, conscientious services for the patient. But they are also getting paid for the job. It is difficult to accept the oft-heard comments that nurses are underpaid as is everyone else in the health care "system." A recent report indicated that the average pay of a registered nurse today is around $16,000 — that's average pay, mind you, so some get under $16,000 and some get over $16,000. What is forgotten is that they also get (as far as I know) fringe benefits, including health care benefits, as do employees elsewhere in the business world.

In some instances, therefore, you have a self-employed patient who can't afford medical insurance struggling to pay for services rendered by those who are receiving medical protection from the medical bills paid by the self-employed patient.

What's wrong with the system? Well, for one thing, the private relationship between the patient and the doctor and the patient and the hospital and the patient and the insurance company is destroyed. The first question posed to a patient upon seeking admission to a hospital is, "How are you going to pay your bill?" Even before any services have been rendered, the patient is expected to guarantee financial "results" but the hospital guarantees nothing. That's why the patient must sign so many papers.

Another thing, doctors have been subtly influenced to cease opposing the "system" because the "system" guarantees payment of bills or a major portion of bills. The vital doctor-patient relationship has been all but destroyed, generally speaking, because the "system" steps in when illness or injury occurs to those having medical benefits as employees.

For still another thing, the use of the word "insurance" in describing the "system" of medical care is misleading. Insurance, in its traditional sense, means payment of a fee for whatever protection is sought with the cost of insurance based on probability of need for whatever protection is involved. Today, the money paid for medical "insurance" is based on a predetermined "pre-payment" scale. In other words, medical insurance premiums are based not on probability of loss but on probable cost of care under the assumption that there will be need for medical care in the family of each policyholder.

This is not a far-fetched theory; it is a matter of fact. The medical "insurance" industry speaks today of "pre-pay medical coverage," not "insurance." The only reason insurance is used to describe the financial program is to seduce the public into believing it is getting "protection." What the public is getting is a bill for medical care before the need occurs. And if the need does not occur in one family, the significantly high premium pays for someone else's need. Ordinarily that's what insurance is supposed to do—pay for the need of a percentage of policyholders. The difference comes in the fact that the "system" has thousands of people doing nothing but bookwork. Hospital offices have more employees today than fifteen years ago simply because the "system" demands reams of paperwork. Doctors have more office help than before simply because the "system" demands reams of paperwork. All these people do absolutely nothing as far as patient care is concerned. But they are a part of patient expense for "medical care."

Medical care costs have skyrocketed for only one reason: the general public fears a loss of its accumulated assets, perhaps ALL of its accumulated assets, due to a major medical expense. Fear of such loss prevents any significant number of voices to be raised in protest against the high premiums. Why should they? —the "company pays the premium or most of it as a "fringe benefit." It's a form of blackmail if you question the "system," you may lose your "protection."

A man in DeKalb County had a medical bill of $44,000 in the past year and a half. If he had not carried a major medical policy, he would have been, in his words, wiped out. One bill alone, for surgery, from one physician, was $7,000. As the man put it, "If you ask me if my life is worth $7,000, yes it's worth that and more. But no doctor is worth over $2,000 an hour, I don't care what he does."

Would the surgeon's fee have been $7,000 if that man DIDN'T have major medical coverage?

That's a good question.

In the meantime, the cost of medical care will continue to rise faster than other cost-of-living standards as long as the prepayment of fees guarantees the income of those providing medical care. Until there is a return of concern for the ability of the PATIENT to pay for health care, not the "insurance" company's ability to pay, the public will continue to pay out more for health care than is reasonable and necessary. Under the present health care "system," there is nothing — repeat, nothing — controlling health care costs.

And at the bottom of the heap are the self-employed who must pay the increased costs one way or another for themselves AND everyone who is listed as "employee" throughout the working world. But the employee pays not a cent for the medical liabilities of the self-employed.

After-thought: perhaps "system" isn't the correct word; perhaps the correct word is "bureaucracy."

More Reader Interest Per Square Inch In Saint Joe's Largest Newspaper

. . . Saint Joe's ONLY newspaper!

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The disciplines of the 1980s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy cover to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Then did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true measure of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is the good athletes. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

There is a set of keys at the News Office, found recently on State Road 101 by the bridge north of County Road 60A. There are what appears to be two GM car keys, another key with "Feather lite" on it and another stamped "Kwik set."

It's not by choice but by circumstances that some recent issues of the paper have been double-dated.

Betty Baker Is New County Humane Officer

The DeKalb County Humane Society has named Betty Baker of Saint Joe manager of the society's humane shelter. The appointment was made last week after Mrs. Baker was highly recommended by the town board of Saint Joe for her services for the town.

Mrs. Baker will be in charge of five CETA workers who are doing yard work and painting the shelter.

The society will have a big garage sale June 18 and 19 at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Barry at 711 Greenhaven Terrace in Auburn. Proceeds will be used for the shelter.

The society collected over $800 on Wag Tag Day with Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts assisting.

The next meeting of the society will be held June 17 at Auburn City Hall. The public is invited to attend.

Concert Sunday

The Saint Joe and Coburn Corners Churches of Christ invite the public to attend a concert entitled, "I Love America," written and arranged by John W. Peterson and Don Wyrtzen. The concert will be given at the Coburn Corners church Sunday, June 14, at 7:00 p.m.

The invitation invites all to "come and praise the Lord with us as we give thanks and honor to our Lord for allowing us to express ourselves freely in a country where we can worship without governmental interference."

New Bridge In '83

LEGAL NOTICE OF PLANNED IMPROVEMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Indiana State Highway Commission, in its current 1980-1982 Highway Improvement Program, is developing plans for a new bridge and roadway approaches thereto, over Bear Creek (Daniel Hursey Ditch) on SR 1, located at the eastern edge of the town of St. Joe, in DeKalb County.

As planned, the new bridge will be a three-span continuous reinforced concrete slab type bridge, with a clear roadway width of 44 feet between safety railings, and constructed in the same corridor as the existing structure. New roadway approaches to the proposed structure, approximately 200 feet to the east and 238 feet to the west will consist of two 12 foot travel lanes with 11 foot shoulders. This proposed project is approximately 0.194 mile in total length and will require a minimum permanent right of way width of 90 feet to a maximum of 190 feet, and some temporary right of way for construction. As presently proposed, SR 1 will be closed during the construction period.

Involved property owners will be contacted by State Highway Agents, and the extent of involvement will be fully explained at the time of initial negotiations. Construction is currently anticipated in the [illegible] season. Total costs are estimated at about $[illegible],000.00, and as presently planned it is anticipated [illegible] both State and Federal funds for [illegible] of this project.

Copies of the location [illegible] hearing, relocation corridor design study report, detailed plans and written views and comments which may be received from any source relative to the proposed project are publicly available for inspection and copying during normal office hours in the Road Development Office of the State Highway District at Fort Wayne, Indiana, 46808, and in Room 1265 of the Indiana State Office Building, 100 North Senate Avenue, Indianapolis, Indiana, 46204. It has been jointly determined by the Federal Highway Administration and the Indiana State Highway Commission that this proposed project falls within the guidelines of a Non-Major Environmental Action with apparently no wetlands involved.

Any interested party, including representatives of Federal, State, and local governmental agencies; agricultural, commercial, industrial, business, transportation and utilities interests; civic social, economic, ecological, and environmental concerns; and other interested citizens and property owners, may obtain sketches and other pertinent information, upon request, at the aforementioned offices, or may petition that a corridor-design public hearing be held by submitting a written request to the Highway Commission's Planning Information Manager, at the aforementioned Indianapolis State Office, on or before July 6, 1981. In the event a request for hearing is forthcoming, a notice establishing the time and place for it will be published. Otherwise, Plans will be finalized as currently proposed.

This notice is published in compliance with Title 23, U.S. Code, Federal Road Acts of 1958, and the Federal Highway Administration's Federal-Aid Highway Program Manual, Volume [illegible], Chapter 7, Section 6, dated [illegible] 30, 1974, and the Indiana State Highway Commission's approved Action Plan.

Nucor Praised By Columnist Paul Harvey

Nationally-known columnist and commentator Paul Harvey commented favorably in a column this week on the success story of Nucor Corp., parent company of the Vulcraft plant at Saint Joe. The column appeared in the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel and reads as follows:

"Over my shoulder a backward glance.

"Norfolk, Nebraska, is 20,000 people near noplace else.

"Historically a shopping center for farmers, Norfolk in recent years has begun to attract industry.

"Way out there in the verdant Elkhorn Valley Norfolk has become the adopted second home of 3-M and Sherwood Medical and Dale Electronics and Goodyear and Nucor.

"The industry immigration to this area of comparative isolation derives from two lifeline railroads at the back door and a reservoir of willing workers, farm-bred strong and unafraid of work.

"A scant dozen years ago a Purdue metallurgical engineer named Ken Iverson decided to take on the giants of the steel-making industry.

"Convinced their antiquated facilities had left them cumbersome dinosaurs, he began converting scrap to steel products — 'electronically.'

"His Nucor Corp. in those dozen years has expanded from Norfolk, Neb., to Darlington, S.C., with similar facilities in Jewett, Texas, and a new one opening in Plymouth, Utah.

"Old crushed-up and shredded automobiles and whatever are melted in electric furnaces that keep the factory and the town clean as a whistle. The composition, the alloy, of the molten stuff is controlled by computer.

"And before it is cool it is shaped and shipped!

"That's what I wanted you and the Japanese to hear.

"I started at the furnace end of the giant steel mill. I walked as fast as I comfortably could, but that scrap metal went into liquid, through casting and rolling and into fabrication as angle-iron, from billet to finished product, faster than I could follow it to the other end of the building.

"So . . . .

"While the steel giants have been falling behind foreign producers, these mini-mills and some 20 like them have been racing ahead of foreign producers.

"And Nucor earnings have improved 31 percent a year every year.

"Nucor is now selling steel at $20 a ton LESS than foreign suppliers.

"Nucor workers are non-union — but average, with incentives, higher pay than their union counterparts elsewhere.

"It is common for steelworkers there to earn $35,000 to $40,000 a year.

"I promised to explore Nebraska's long-term marriages. Recently we honored Norfolk's first family, the Walter Fleers, married 58 years.

"They told me the formula for that kind of 'success' is the same as for successful farming or steelmaking: Walter says, 'You have to work at it.'

"Norfolk, Nebraska — lead on."

'Pegg' Edits State Capital Magazine

Ted,

We don't have anything about St. Joe or Spencerville in this issue, but we do have a story about the old woman in Auburn who sells popcorn. (I haven't thought about her in years, but the description of her brings back some vivid memories of her stand.)

Thought we might want to see what we produce. But we also think this is a good Indiana issue that would serve Hoosiers well.

Just like small-town newspaper editors, I have to hustle stories, ride herd on writers, arrange for photos, promote circulation and distribution, write press releases and sell. Just last week my sister Anita (a freshman at IU) and I were selling magazine T-shirts at the track. (I'll doing ANYTHING to make this a success because I really believe in it.)

Hope you like this issue. Every time I'm in Spencerville, I manage to get a copy of the St. Joe News and "catch up" quickly.

When I was living in Spencerville, little did I realize I'd have printer's ink (instead of Sechler's pickle juice) in my veins!

Have a nice summer.

Pegg Kennedy

Pegg Hudson Kennedy is now editor of "Indianapolis Magazine," a publication of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce. She sent us a copy of the June 1981 issue which can be seen at the News Office, for those who may be interested. Pegg is the recipient of several compliments in the issue in the column headed "Publisher's Note," written by Thomas A. King. He notes that the magazine has received several awards since she became editor.

In 1980 Pegg was named "Magazine Editor of the Year" by Indiana Business Communicators. She also received a first place award for health and medical reporting from the Indiana State Medical Association. Among still other awards Pegg received is the "Francis Wright Award" for integrity in reporting and magazine publication, given by the Indianapolis Chapter of Women in Communications, Inc. —Ed.

Doctors 'In The Middle'

"Medical care costs have skyrocketed for only one reason: the general public fears a loss of its accumulated assets, perhaps ALL of its accumulated assets, due to a major medical expense. . . ."

I wouldn't be surprised if someone took exception to that observation of mine last week. They might ask, "What about the doctor? He or she puts us in the hospital and makes all kinds of tests and doesn't seem to be in much of a hurry to end our hospitalization."

Well — what about the doctor???

What would you (as a doctor) do if the public expected the doctor to be responsible for any loss suffered by the patient—loss of mobility, loss of income—or loss of life? Wouldn't there be a tendency to perhaps "overshoot" in diagnosis and care, just to make certain there would be no trouble?

Consider this: if a doctor does "too much" in diagnosis and treatment, he or she is "wrong." If the doctor "undershoots" in diagnosis and treatment, he or she again is "wrong." In many instances, therefore, the doctor can't win—or even come out even. The public expects good results.

Hovering over the medical and dental professions today is the cloud of alleged malpractice— that is, an accusation that the doctor did something wrong, or he didn't do enough, or he went too far. And in the past 20 years, the public has come to expect someone else to pay the bills or pay damages when alleged malpractice occurs. Consequently, in court cases involving jury decisions (and juries are made up of "the public"), the trend has been to award damages to patients not because the doctor is at fault but because the doctor has insurance and the insurance company has the money to pay the damages.

In some instances judges have required that the doctor tell if he has insurance and how much—even before the trial begins!

Many judges in courts in the United States render decisions on the same basis as juries made up of average citizens: if there is insurance money available, rule in favor of the patient-plaintiff.

Medical care costs were within reason not too many years ago because doctors had insurance protection covering alleged malpractice and courts were ruling on the basis of fault. General practitioners could get insurance protection for less than $30 a year in some states. Today, the annual premium for the barest minimum of insurance is forty times that much, into the hundreds of dollars. And when you get into specialty groups where "better" results are anticipated by the general public, insurance premiums run into thousands of dollars. In a certain instance, the annual premium of a specialty group runs over one hundred thousand dollars. Think of it—over one hundred thousand dollars for a specialist in medicine in order to get "protection."

While such insurance premiums are not the primary reason for the increase in the cost of medical care, they are part of the picture being painted by the hand of the general public. There is a tendency to expect perfection from medical practitioners who are only human, just like the remainder of us. There is a tendency to forget that the more demands the patient makes on those who provide health care services, the more it costs the patient. And the more "fault" is taken out of the decisions regarding alleged malpractice, the more the patient is going to pay—it isn't the doctor who pays, it's the patient.

One of the "cancers" in our society today is the tendency to think in terms of "no-fault" insurance — that is, when you have an auto accident, your insurance company pays your loss and the other driver's insurance company pays his loss. People have been led to believe that such "no fault" insurance costs less than insurance obtained in the past. It just can't be true. When losses are paid regardless of circumstances, a pile of money must be lying around somewhere from which to pay claims. And what happens if you have a major claim or two or three lesser claims? Your premium goes up for a time and you, in effect, pay for part of the insurance company's payoff—and it's your money you were paid with!

Similarly, the expenditure of damages paid by an insurance company for alleged malpractice by a doctor changes the entire structure of medical care protection. And the patient, demanding cash whether or not the doctor did anything wrong, makes the patient's cost of medical care go up—'way, 'way up.

Unfortunately, there doesn't seem to be any change in the system in sight. And a family's accumulated assets can be taken away when a major medical cost comes up, with those family assets re-distributed to doctors, hospitals, nurses, technicians, clerks, and so on.

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

The discoverers of the Watergate sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparisons to give a holy aura to their own misdeeds. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Individualism is a matter of courage. Anyone can do so in phrases; but it takes courage to do so one's self.

Dissent is a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

The true courage of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are individually realized, but it is in the universal commitment to providing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Wisdom is the good sibling. The best of Republicans are cautious; but the good requires us.

Fire Number Confusion Due To Lack Of Proper Approval Procedure

—from Ted Haberkorn, president, Town Board of Saint Joe

There may be some "talk" concerning what appears to be a waste of money related to the way fire and other emergency calls are handled in the Saint Joe telephone exchange. This was apparent at the June meeting of the town board when the question was raised as to why the telephone conference system had not been removed. The conference system means that when you dial 337-5555, 20 firemen's telephones ring. The township trustee was reported to have said such removal was OK with him, and the town board had recently voted to remove the system, subject to the trustee's approval.

When I talked thereafter with Trustee Roger Cook and informed him of the town board's action, we agreed that the conference system should not be removed until we were satisfied that the new system provided adequate fire protection for local residents.

The trustee and I left it that whichever one was able to get to Auburn first to check with Bell Telephone Company about the matter would do so and report to the other. Both of us became very much involved with business and personal matters thereafter and neither one of us had reported to the other by the time of the June town board meeting.

Board member Larry McKown volunteered to investigate the matter at the June meeting. He met with Sheriff Larry Myers and reported the following to me:

There are but two lines going into the sheriff's office for Saint Joe fire calls, Spencerville fire calls AND any other emergency or non-emergency calls involving the sheriff's office. It was explained to Mr. McKown that under present conditions the chances are fairly good that an emergency caller would get a busy signal. He was also informed that a request was planned to county officials for additional telephone lines for the sheriff's office. Naturally, this would mean additional expense to the county or to benefitting communities.

There has been confusion about our local fire number for some time. The confusion is the result of the failure of the local fire department to follow proper procedures in making the change. The Town of Saint Joe is responsible for the operation of and liability of the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department in town fire matters. It is, under state statutes, the governing body in the functioning of the fire department and thus must give approval to any significant matters related to the department. This fundamental responsibility of the Town Board is not understood by younger members of the fire department who have obviously been led to believe the department is independent and answerable to no one except itself. They appear to believe the department can function on its own, forgetting that the liability for their actions in fire fighting falls upon the Town of Saint Joe and its elected board of trustees. Therefore, it becomes a matter not of personal decision but rather a matter of law that the town board be consulted and give the final approval in significant matters.

The emergency calling system is a significant matter. Unfortunately, the change in emergency number was made without direct request to and approval by the town board. Despite the statement by a fire department officer at a town board meeting recently that the change was "thoroughly investigated" before it was made, conflicting statements from other sources placed a cloud of doubt over the supposed advantages of the new system. The inference at the June town board meeting that the board president was responsible for unnecessary expense to the town (because the conference system had not been removed) was unfortunate. I had not been asked prior to the meeting about the reasons for the delay, and an embarrassing misunderstanding resulted.

Both Mr. McKown and I (because we have been directly involved in the matter) have agreed from the start that the conference system should not be removed until we are certain that the alleged advantages ARE really advantages. Mr. Cook has also been in agreement along the same line. His responsibility lies in township fire protection.

Doubts we have had about the change in fire call procedures have been justified by the following: an accident occurred last weekend at the Cook farm when two vehicles collided on State Road 1. Mr. Cook said he dialed the new number three times and got the busy signal.

What if his house or barn had been on fire???

Part of the local problem is (and it is present in other small communities) that today's electronic gadgetry is appealing. It is impressive to have, for instance, a monitor strapped to your belt with emergency calls coming in and you can hear the immediate details, or a "beeper" alerts you. Such electronic equipment is useful; the question is does the cost justify such use. In a small community such as ours, we are not in the business of full-time emergency service. What we ARE involved in is providing as much fire protection as we can afford. If individual volunteer firemen want to buy their own electronic equipment, that is their privilege. But it is the town board's DUTY to provide fire protection for its residents at a cost it can afford and under a system which provides the surest communication.

The questions to be answered might be put this way:

What would you prefer: a fire emergency number which automatically rings 20 local firemen's telephones . or a fire emergency number which goes into the sheriff's office on a number used by everyone in the county, in the state, in the nation if need be, for any type of matter related to the sheriff's office? What gives you greater protection, an emergency number used ONLY for local fires, or an emergency number used for emergency and every other type of call to the sheriff's department?

There appears to be a prevalent opinion that electronic radio equipment is "the way to go" for every community. The facts seem to challenge that opinion, at least as far as smaller communities are concerned. "Everybody's doing it" does not make "it" right. And the expenditure of public tax dollars by elected public officials is an entirely different ball game from spending money from your own personal finances for your own personal preferences; the manner in which the volunteer fire department spends "its own" funds falls in the same category.

The conference system has not been cancelled and will not be removed because at least two of the three board members have determined through investigation that the conference system serves local residents in fire protection better than the unauthorized new system put in by the fire department.

For fire calls, dial 337-5555.

Cubs' Sale - End Of An Era?

It's a sad day for the Cubs.

Although baseball players are on strike, no games are being played and no gate receipts are coming in, the "big news" in the baseball world the past week is the sale of the Chicago Cubs by the Wrigley family to a conglomerate which includes the Chicago Tribune, the New York Times, radio station WGN and other interests.

I can understand the Wrigley's not having a taste for the big money—BIG money—atmosphere in baseball and other sports today; it's a rat race. But I can't help feeling disappointed, and perhaps a bit fearful, that a baseball "institution" has changed hands. I don't like the "corporation" influence the sale represents. I don't like losing that "family" background the Cubs have had for decades.

Some misleading statements are being read by millions of people about the Cubs today. A wire service story sent throughout the nation this week had words to the effect that the change in ownership would end "65 years of frustration" for Cub fans.

I don't remember who wrote the story, but either they talked to the wrong people, or were still wearing diapers when some exciting things happened with the Cubs and at Wrigley Field. I've been a Cub fan for almost 45 years (I was a Yankee fan before Dad got me on the right track!) and I resent the contemptuous comments and observations made about the Cubs.

I resent the suggestion that for 65 years the Wrigley family were penny-pinchers in fielding a baseball team. Sure, there were times when it was obvious that a Cub manager was being told how to manage ("front office interference" has been a familiar phrase from time to time in Cub history). But cheap?—penny-pinching? Not in my book.

I resent the suggestion that the new owners should install lights at Wrigley Field for night baseball. My gosh, that would destroy the character of the Cubs! Baseball was made to be played in daylight. If you have a good team, you don't need lights to bring fans to the games. (Playing under the lights in 40-degree weather is "good" or "exciting" baseball???)

I resent players, such as Barry Foote who was traded by the Cubs this year, getting public attention through the news media with his comment that lights should be installed, that it should have been done long ago. What does Barry Foote know about business management? Perhaps if he had given more attention to his own personal lack of contribution to the Cubs batting power (when he was traded he had something like 6 hits in 94 times at bat), perhaps the Cubs would not have had such a dismal start this season. It always amazes me how much the players know about running a ball team. I wonder why NONE of them, the know it alls, ever buys a major league team???

I resent the suggestion that artificial turf should be installed at Wrigley Field. Artificial turf poses a greater threat to player safety than natural turf. A promising Cub rookie is now on the disabled list because his spikes caught in a seam of artificial turf at another ball park. On a hot day the temperature on artificial turf can go up to 120 degrees; natural turf is cooler. One of the selling points for artificial turf has been it gives a uniform bounce and this benefits the fielders. Hey — what are we playing baseball for? To have everything "just so"? I thought the challenge of the sport was in seeing how successful players can be in overcoming obstacles such as hitting the pitcher's fastball or slider or whatever. And the pitcher is trying to prevent the slugger from knocking the cover off the ball. I thought the thrill of the game came also in the unexpected short hop, or high bounce to test the fielder's agility and capability. If we want to take out the obstacles and make everything uniform (including the size and shape of the ball field), let's just have a pitching machine installed to throw the ball exactly were every batter prefers. That way you eliminate sore arms, the puzzle of where the pitcher is going to put the next one and so on. And the outfielders on artificial turf can be credited with a catch if they get within ten feet of a fly ball. And infielders are never charged with errors, the batter always gets credited with a hit. That way all fielders will gain Golden Glove fielding awards, and batters will have their averages hiked. Oh, and let's call a base on balls a hit (I think they were way back when). Think of the .300 hitters there would be!

Finally, I resent the statements read elsewhere that the Cub fans haven't had any exciting baseball (the logic seems to be, "If you don't have a pennant winner every so often, you don't have exciting baseball").

Somebody doesn't know what exciting baseball is. I have been disappointed, as have all Cub fans, in the last ten years when a seeming pennant winner went into a nosedive and lost out. 1969 is the prime example; the Cubs were 8 or more games in front in August. They ended the season 8 or more games behind the winner. The Cubs nosedived, sure. But the Mets also had something to do with the situation; they had an unbelievable won-lost record the final month. The Cubs didn't lose the title in 1969; the Mets won it.

But in 1969 there were exciting things about the Cubs. And there were exciting things about them in virtually every section. Two years ago—or was it three—on a WIFF baseball excursion, we saw excitement that matched the winning of a pennant. The Cubs were playing the Reds—it was 2-0 Reds in the last of the ninth—there were two men out—the count was 2 strikes on Steve Carlvers, as who at the time couldn't hit his weight in batting average. But what happened? Steve got a hit, Dave Kingman got hit by a pitch, the next batter walked—and Mike Vail (I think) hit one off the wall in right field. The Cubs won 3-2.

Talk about exciting baseball! Nobody left their seats for ten minutes—it was shouting and hollering and clapping and smiles. No exciting baseball at Wrigley Field with the Cubs?

Baloney!

And two years ago, when Dave Kingman hit 48 homers and Bruce Sutter had his split finger fastball "exploding" as Vince Lloyd and Lou Boudreau described it on radio—when big Dave came out of the dugout for his time at bat, even the national TV network announcers were aware of the murmur that went through the crowd. And when Sutter pitched fans would stand up before the pitch and start cheering and every futile swinging strike by the opposing batter brought a cheer comparable to those heard when a Cub hit a homer.

And what about the no-hitters by Cub pitchers, especially the one by Sam "Toothpick" Jones in 1955 when he walked the first three batters in the ninth, then struck out the next three Pirate batters?

What about the diving stops by Ron Santo of shots down the third base line, turning a hit into an out or a double play?

No exciting baseball by the Cubs at Wrigley Field? Baloney!

And what about those many glorious years when Mr. Cub, Ernie Banks, was patiently waiting for his pitch, never complaining, just doing his best for the Cubs and the Cub fans, pennant or no pennant. It was worth the price of admission just to see him play.

Not all Cub fans are true baseball fans. Bob Kennedy made some terrific deals while he was general manager. But when things didn't go right, he was the reason, in the minds of some "fans" and even some of the Chicago media sportswriters. Strangely, it wasn't the players who were at fault; it was the general manager.

Selling the Cubs may turn things around for them, but I have my doubts over the long run. The trouble with the Cubs today isn't the Cubs, or the owners, or the general manager. The trouble is with baseball in total. Ball parks have become circuses—except at good old Wrigley Field—scoreboard fireworks, moving caricatures, recorded bugle calls answered robot-like by the crowd with "Charge!"—artificial turf which has taken away the challenge of the unpredictable—uniform ball park dimensions which have short foul lines of just over 300 feet, yet Wrigley Field is continually looked down upon because it is "small" and because the wind blows out and the wind blows in—elimination of the reserve clause which gives no investment protection to club owners but players can shop around and take the best offer—the prohibiting of players from arguing certain calls or sometimes to even make a remark (I don't mean the abusive type of protest, I mean the kind from the good old days when Guy Bush would come down off the mound when the ump called a ball to bark at the ump and the ump barked back, and that was about it, and sometimes there was a nose to nose confrontation but somehow it didn't seem unsportsmanlike or dangerous)—and today's player salaries and retirement benefits as players changed from ball players to union members.

Today's baseball is a collection of gimmicks—except for the Chicago Cubs and Wrigley Field. "The World's Most Beautiful Ballpark" is not a description of Wrigley Field only in physical terms; it's a description also of what Wrigley Field represents in the history of baseball, an unchanging element in a society which has generally changed drastically. It's in that stubbornness to resist change at Wrigley Field, the home of the Chicago Cubs, that the true character of baseball has been preserved.

Please, Mr. Tribune, please, Mr. WGN—don't take away that beautiful green grass, don't put in lights for night baseball, don't build a new ballpark and move — — don't destroy my Cubs!

Little River Railroad Runs

The Little River Railroad thinks fathers are special and will offer free passage for fathers Sunday, June 21. The steam engine pulls the train departing at 1:30 and 2:50 p.m. from Pleasant Lake, and 2:10 p.m. from Angola.

Prices for other members of the family are $3.50 for adults, $1.75 for children, and tots under age 5 ride free.

The railroad will be "robbed" Sunday, June 28, during the 1:30 p.m. run from Pleasant Lake. Butch Cassadity and the Sun Dance Kid have vowed to steal the Wells Fargo shipment and take a hostage for ransom. Riding horses and toting guns, the gang will stop the train with an explosion, tie up the conductor and run off with the loot.

Then on July 3, there will be a special night run at 8:00 p. m. to mark Fourth of July festivities.

The all-volunteer crew runs every Sunday in June, September and October, and Saturdays and Sundays in July and August.

The phone number for information is 925-9182, or 833-1804. The mailing address is: P. O. Box 178, Angola 46703.

Town Board

The Town Board of Saint Joe met June 1. Present were members Paula Tinstman, Larry McKown and Ted Haberkorn; clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; street superintendent John Bopp; and firemen Don Moore and Jake Fetters.

Due to vacations, the July board meeting will be held in mid-July.

Purchase of a new fire hydrant was approved. The president reported that a new mosquito fogger had been ordered from Scott Engineering in Auburn. It was noted that spring rains this year had prevented any early action to control the mosquito population in its hatching stage. Mrs. Tinstman is to contact Denny Baker concerning spraying grassy areas.

A request for permission to bring a mobile home into town to be placed on a lot now occupied by a permanent residence was denied by the board. It was felt that making an exception would bring further similar requests, thus making ineffective what little housing control the town board does have under its ordinances.

Mr. Bopp was authorized to paint the trim at both pumphouses of the local waterworks system. He reported that the tile on Jefferson Street running east from the Frank Beerbower corner had been opened.

The clerk was asked to get cost figures to the president for drain work done recently which turned out to be a private residence problem.

Mr. Moore reported that the fire department wants to purchase a used van for $900 for rescue purposes. The present van is too small for the amount of equipment carried. Housing of the vehicle was discussed as was the cost of making the van useful. It was stated that an additional $900 or more would be needed. The board took no action on the matter which is a joint responsibility with the township trustee. The firemen reported that the trustee is looking for a chassis for a tanker.

Bills allowed included:

Town—John Bopp, repairs 10.00; Walter Miller, mowing park and cemetery 400.00; Hixson Gravel Pit, asphalt 185.00; Squier Sawmill, 129.25; DeKalb Fire & Safety, pumper repair 41.65; Roy Eck, grave openings 200.00; Hess & Sons, trash removal 365.70; John Bopp, labor and materials 285.50; I&M 279.22; A. E. Boyce Company, forms 26.50; General Telephone Company 40.21 and 21.09.

Waterworks—Maurice Kline, salary and postage 82.68; John Bopp, labor 10.00; Roy Eck, backhoe 50.00; I&M 112.39.

On June 1, 13 Junior Girl Scouts and 2 Senior Girl Scouts visited the Auburn Airport. While there, Vance Hook took each girl for an airplane ride—the first time for most of the girls. All agreed it was a fun and exciting experience and would like to go again.

The girls who participated were Julie Antrup, Amy Czaja, Angela Czaja, Jamie Holman, Amy Hook, Shannon Kirchner, Susan Landrum, Honore Lehmer, Althea Moore, Gena Thompson, Beth Washler, Brenda Payton, Liat Osmun, Dawn Payton and Clara Custer.

Leader Pat Osmun also enjoyed a plane ride.

The girls and leaders wish to thank Vance and the airport management for making it all possible.

On June 4 approximately 35 Girl Scouts at four age levels, Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors, boarded a bus in St. Joe bright and early in the morning and traveled to Battle Creek, Michigan. We toured the Kellogg Cereal Company, ate our sack lunches in Kellogg Forest, toured the Kellogg Bird Sanctuary and visited the Kingman Museum.

The girls and leaders Pat Osmun, Lois Hook, Judy Tejan and Jane Studebaker wish to thank the following: Pat Shilling, Shirley Johnson, Glenda Shull, our adult chaperones, and Carol McMaken for driving the bus.

Driver Training Brings Suits About Pay

Several school corporations, including DeKalb eastern and DeKalb central, have been sued by the Indiana State Teachers Association because the schools do not pay driver instructors on the school faculties at the same hourly rate the instructors receive for regular classroom studies. The ISTA says driver training pay should be based on the same pay schedule under which teachers are contracted for the academic school year.

With the state providing no funds for driver training this year, school corporations hiked driver training fees and set instructors' pay at the hourly rate for a beginning teacher. That hourly rate is generaly a bit over $10 per hour. Teachers say that isn't enough.

A recent editorial in The Saint Joe News posed the question of "driver training—is it worth it?" The comments were not based on the current pay controversy, rather on the "loose" instruction which gave no actual driving practice in parallel parking in one example, yet student trainees automatically qualified for a driver license without taking a driver on the road test with a state examiner.

With the current pay controversy, the teachers in Indiana may have helped Hoosier families answer the question of "driver training—is it worth it?"

New Bridge In '83

LEGAL NOTICE OF PLANNED IMPROVEMENT

Notice is hereby given that the Indiana State Highway Commission, in its current 1980-1982 Highway Improvement Program, is developing plans for a new bridge and roadway approaches thereto, over Bear Creek (Daniel Hursey Ditch) on SR 1, located at the eastern edge of the town of St. Joe, in DeKalb County.

As planned, the new bridge will be a three-span continuous reinforced concrete slab type bridge, with a clear roadway width of 44 feet between safety railings, and constructed in the same corridor as the existing structure. New roadway approaches to the proposed structure, approximately 235 feet to the east and 236 feet to the west will consist of two 12 foot travel lanes with 11 foot shoulders. The proposed project is approximately 0.114 mile in total length and will require a minimum permanent right of way width of 90 feet to a maximum of 190 feet, and some temporary right of way for construction. As presently proposed, SR 1 will be closed during the construction period.

Involved property owners will be contacted by State Highway Agents, and the extent of involvement will be fully explained at the time of initial negotiations. Construction is currently anticipated in the 1983 season. Total costs are estimated at about $481,000.00, and as presently planned it is anticipated to utilize both State and Federal funds for construction of the project.

Give-away location sketches are on hand, a draft corridor-design study report, detailed plans, and written views and comments which may be received from any source relative to the proposed project are publicly available for inspection and copying during normal office hours in the Road Development Office of the State Highway District at Fort Wayne, Indiana, 46808, and in Room 1205 of the Indiana State Office Building, 100 North Senate Avenue, Indianapolis, Indiana, 46204. It has been jointly determined by the Federal Highway Administration and the Indiana State Highway Commission that this proposed project falls within the guidelines of a Non-Major Environmental Action with apparently no wetlands involved.

Any interested party, including representatives of Federal, State, and local governmental agencies; agricultural, commercial, industrial, business, transportation and utilities interests; civic social, economic, ecological, and environmental concerns; and other interested citizens and property owners, may obtain sketches and other pertinent information, upon request, at the aforementioned offices, or may petition that a corridor-design public hearing be held by submitting a written request to the Highway Commission's Planning Information Manager, at the aforementioned Indianapolis State Office, on or before July 6, 1981. In the event a request for hearing is forthcoming, a notice establishing the time and place for it will be published. Otherwise, Plans will be finalized as currently proposed.

This notice is published in compliance with Title 23, U.S. Code, Federal Road Acts of 1958, and the Federal Highway Administration's Federal-Aid Highway Program Manual, Volume 7, Chapter 7, Section 5, dated December 30, 1974, and the Indiana State Highway Commission's approved Action Plan.

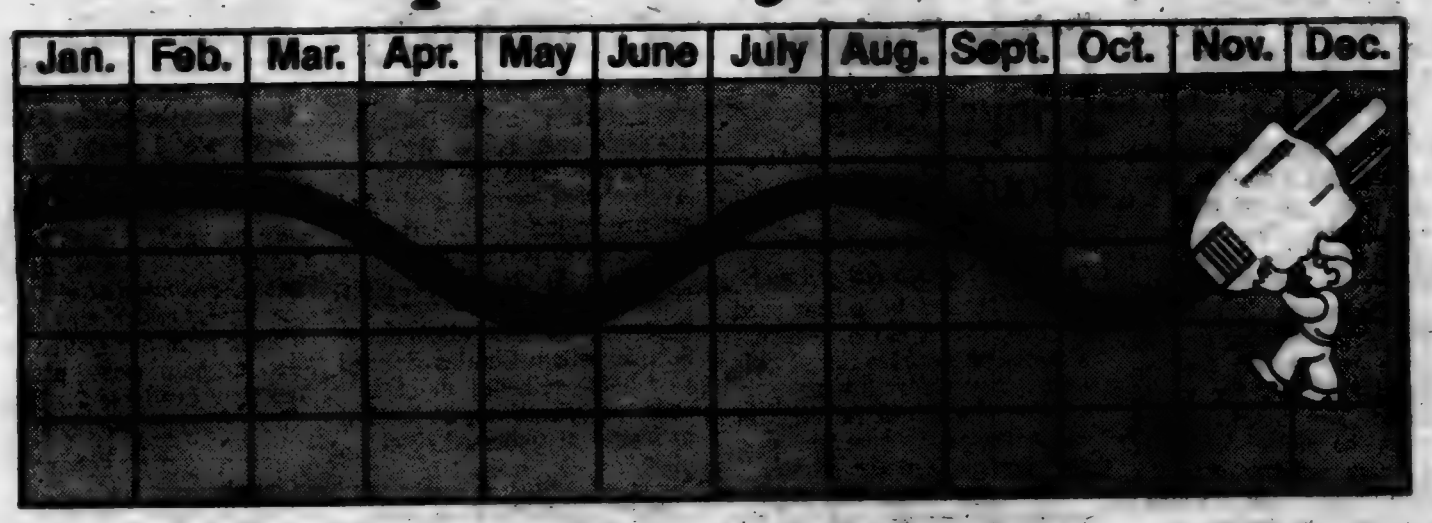
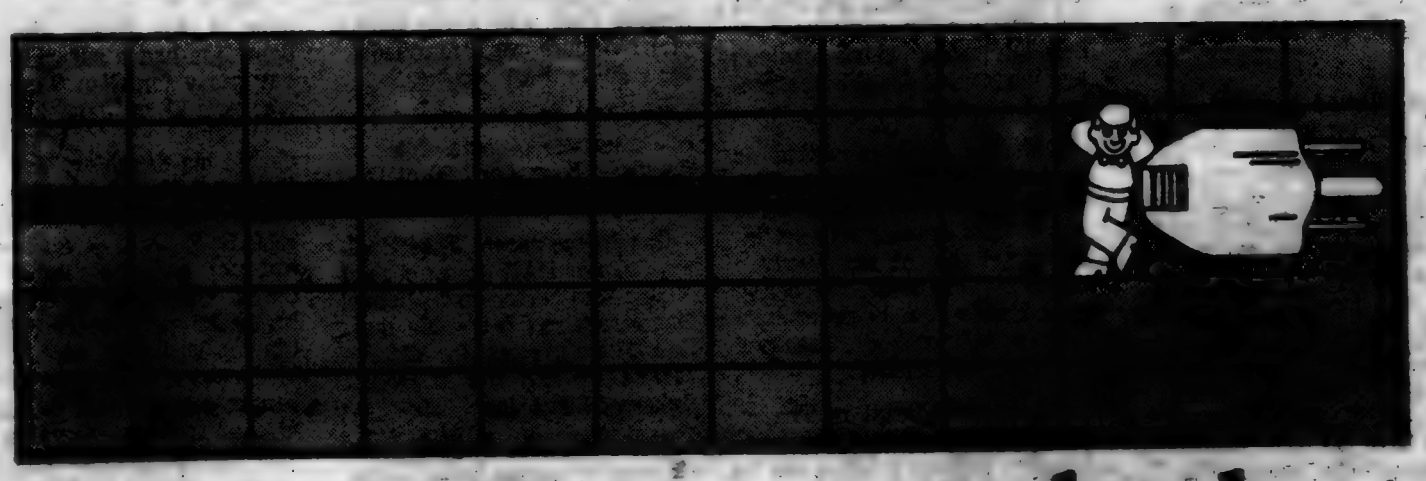
The Equal Payment Plan.





A convenient way to budget for your electric bill.

Some household expenses are fairly steady throughout the year. But your electric bill varies from month to month because your electric usage fluctuates with the changing seasons. The bill is usually higher in the winter. It dips a little in the spring months, then, for most people, rises during the air conditioning season, before dropping again in the fall.

We can't do anything about the weather, but we can help you smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill. And that's by offering you our Equal Payment Plan.

With the Equal Payment Plan, we bill you a fixed amount each month based on your average usage.

Every six months we'll review your account so you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, down or staying about the same. The bill at the end of the twelfth month is the "settle-up" bill.

Many of our customers are already taking advantage of the Equal Payment Plan. If it sounds like a good idea to you, simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

We give it our best.

Mortgage-Burning Sunday Marks 'Do-It-Yourself' Effort Of Spencerville Community Club Over 11 Years

The Saint Joe News

Established March 7, 1883, as free paper—as subscription January 28, 1887 June 25, 1981 Vol. 98—21

The Spencerville Community Building—bought and paid for!

When the mortgage burning ceremony is held Sunday during the Bridge Festival at Spencerville, it will mark the culmination of a community effort covering 11 years.

"We did it ourselves" could be an appropriate theme for the mortgage-burning ceremony at 2:00 p.m. Sunday. There were no federal or state grants, no handouts to make things easier. It was just a methodical "plugging away" at a debt on the basis of self-help.

The building shell cost an estimated $30,000. With a start in the treasury from donations and pledges, the Spencerville Community Club borrowed $18,000.00. That debt has been paid off, as of February 1981, through income gained by renting the building for parties, meetings, receptions and so on.

On Saturday, January 31, 1970, fire destroyed a building at Spencerville which had served in its early years as a community activities site, as a gym for the Spencer Township School system and later as a community building for various activities. The February 5, 1970 issue of The Saint Joe News carried this account:

"Fire destroyed the Spencerville Community Building early Saturday morning, causing losses in building and equipment estimated at $40,000.00. Six fire fighting units fought the blaze, including those from Spencerville, Saint Joe, Grabill, Auburn, Butler and Cedar Canyon.

"Flames scorched the south wall of an adjacent rental property owned by Lynn Fisher of Spencerville causing unestimated damage. Flames also threatened St. Peter Luthern Church located across the road from the Community Building. Witnesses stated that the flames encircled the church steeple, but the church building apparently suffered no extensive damage.

"During the fire, a furnace fuel tank, located in the basement, exploded and sent a big fireball high in the sky. The tank had been filled just last week.

"Tanks of bottled gas, located at the rear of the building, were removed to prevent additional explosions. The sheriff's department evacuated nearby residences due to the danger of explosions.

"The fire apparently was due to faulty wiring in the building, flames first seen in the northwest section of the building where electrical service was located. The club had just held a special meeting last Thursday to plan the re-wiring of the building. Several fuses were reported to have blown recently and the need for new electrical service was recognized.

"It is reported that insurance coverage amounted to $10,000 on the building and $2,000 on contents.

"The Saint Joe Lions Club had used the building for several years to store its fair tent and framework, plus other supplies. Harold Curts, president of the Lions Club, reported that all they had left was collesmaldive and plastic cups which he had taken to his home for storage.

"The Spencerville Boy Scout Troop also suffered the loss of tents and other equipment stored in the basement of the old building.

"An interesting background is associated with the old building which burned last week end. Back in 1919 a stock company was organized by those who recognized the need for a public gathering place in the Spencerville community. The hall and basement were completed in 1920.

"Information contained in the 'History of Spencerville' by the late Dr. Willis W. Carey, published in 1952, plus other information from Beicks Erick of Spencerville, indicates that the group had difficulty in meeting its financial obligations on the building thereafter and it became somewhat of a 'white elephant.' It was then turned over to the township trustee for school purposes.

"The building then served the school and community for many years, with Spencerville High School basketball teams playing their home games on the basketball court on the main floor. The gym and basement were, also used for other community activities as well.

"After the consolidation of the Concord, Newville and Spencer townships into a single school corporation in the mid-1950's, the school board advertised the building for sale on bids. The Community Club entered a bid of $25.00 along with one other private bid. The school board rejected both bids and set another bid date. The board then sold the building to Argil Richmond in June of 1958 for $675.00.

"Community Club members fought the sale filing a suit in March of 1959 seeking to nullify the sale. The group contended that the property had never been legally transferred from the original stockholders to the trustee and therefore was not the property of the school corporation.

"The matter was soon settled with the payment of some $1,500.00 by the Community Club for Mr. Richmond's interests plus legal expenses which were incurred.

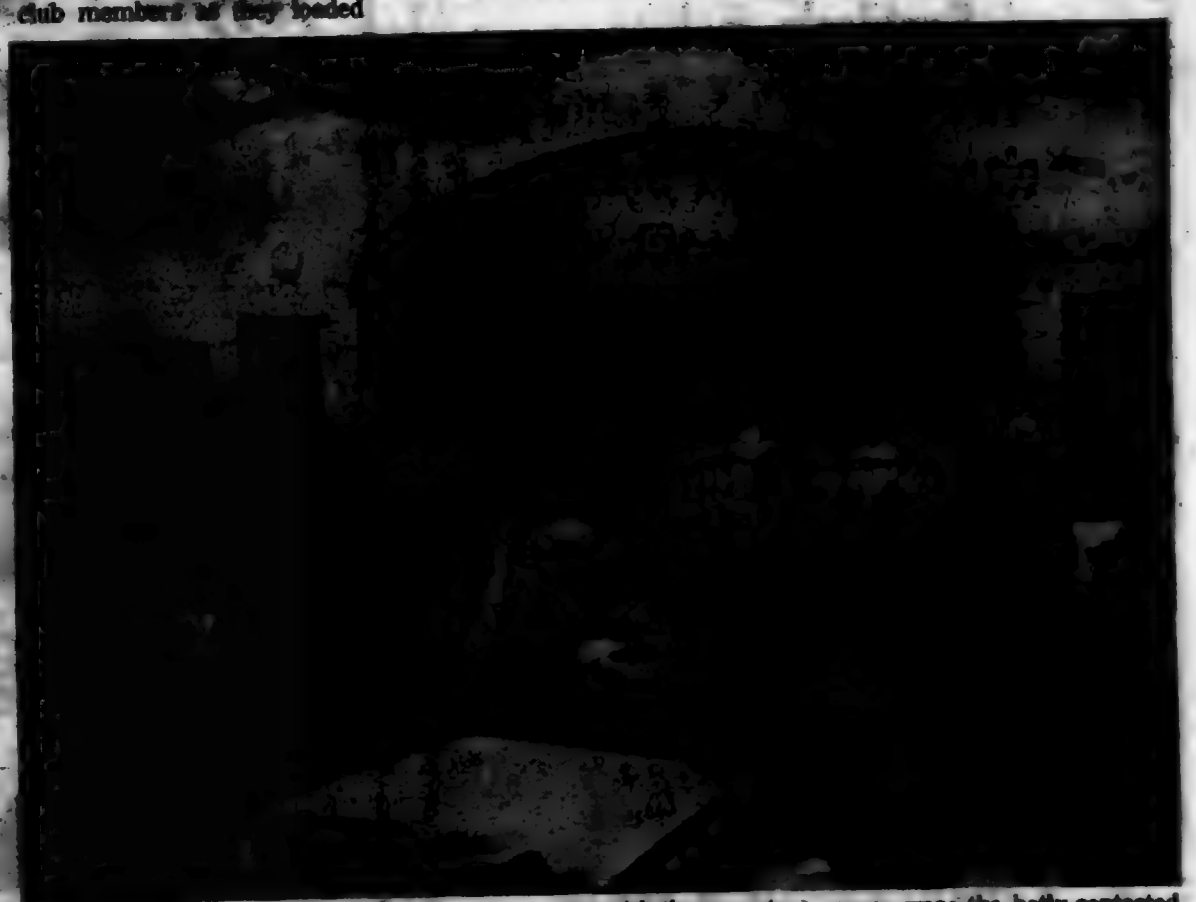
"For the past ten years, the building has been used extensively for public recreation, club fish fries and carnivals, dancing and twirling lessons, organization meetings and so on.

"The Spencerville Community Club has been and still is an active element in the community life of Spencerville and Spencer Township."

In an accompanying article in the same February 5, 1970, issue of this paper, it was reported that residents of the Spencerville community had already begun plans for erecting a new building in a story headlined, "Undaunted Club Members Plan To Rebuild." It was reported that the club had purchased additional property for the proposed new building.

The original Community Building at Spencerville was used for many purposes. From the files of The Saint Joe News comes the above photo, published August 14, 1969, when the Spencerville Class of '43 held a reunion. Those attending were MM Clifford Carnahan, MM William Brace, MM Maurice Gerig, MM Bryon Cook and daughter, MM Wayne Poff (Florine Coles), MM Harold Hudson (June Allen), MM Herbert Edwards (Aileen Stemen), MM Ralph Howe, Miss Joy Gerig, Miss Barbara Longbrake, MM Hearsel Shockley and son, Mrs. Josephine Crowl and granddaughter, and MM Keepler (Margaret Hart). MM Donald Doucher (Wilma Macklin), MM Darrell Murphy, Mrs. Bina McKay and Miss Ida Reed, all former teachers, also attended the reunion.

The Saint Joe Lions Club had its fair tent and equipment stored in the old building. The above photo shows a few of the club members as they loaded the equipment on a truck for the trip to Auburn and erection of the tent for the annual county fair. (It looks like Frank Laub, the late Clifford Billow, the late Jiggs' Keeler and Bob Wilder doing the loading.)



The original Community Building was used for various activities. Above is shown a Republican rally for the Concord, Spencer and Newville townships area with then-county GOP chairman Dean Kruse presiding. Basketball and roller skating were recreation activities on the same floor. And many were the hotly-contested games between Spencerville and Saint Joe high schools in a typical rivalry between small schools.

Dean Kruse - Man Of Honor

Mention the name "Kruse" and you come up with mixed public reactions, mostly unfavorable. Perhaps that's because the public usually distrusts real estate and used car salesmen.

There is a plus side, however, connected with the name Kruse, in particular Dean Kruse. In 1978 the roof fell in on the extensive expansion of the Kruse family into several areas of business activity other than real estate and classic car auctions. The mysterious disappearance of $400,000 in a brief case seems to have been the straw that broke the camel's back. Car owners who sold their classics through the Kruse company weren't getting their money and many suits were filed.

A recent article in a Fort Wayne paper told of Dean Kruse's continuing successful efforts to pay those who still have money coming from the Kruse operations. It notes that Dean bought out his brothers and his father in 1978, then began the continuing task of settling accounts with creditors. He had some 1,250 creditors seeking $3.5 million.

Dean now has the debt down to around $400,000 under 150 accounts. He sold the old Auburn Hotel which he planned to restore. He sold another Auburn building which he had planned to open as a steak house. He sold valuable collectibles which he had acquired personally over the years. He took out a second mortgage on his home.

Dave Haynes article contains the following paragraph:

"I think anyone who knows me knows we played fair and did a good job. The name calling bothered me a little bit, but I think the thing that bothered me most was losing my credibility. I went from being able to borrow $500,000, half a million dollars, with my signature, to not being able to borrow a dime. I woke up one morning after driving a new Mercedes and found myself driving a four year old Chevy."

Dean could have filed for bankruptcy but didn't, preferring to deal with each creditor individually. The list of creditors reportedly runs to 11 pages. As a debt is paid, it is covered with a heavy black line.

Dean says he sometimes regrets not having gone the bankruptcy route. It would have been easier.

I hope he isn't serious about those regrets. I have known Dean many years and always found him to be completely candid and frank in his reply to a question. I think he did the right thing, making the sacrifices he has. Undoubtedly, his church background prevented him from going the easy way. And because he did live by a principle in handling the payment of his debts, he has done more than protect his family name; he has reaffirmed the old fashioned tradition of respecting and protecting the family name in one's own deeds and words, not just HIS family name but THE family name and that's something you don't find prevalent in today's society.

You may be one who still has negative thoughts when the name Kruse is mentioned. But you must admit that Dean Kruse is doing what very few people would do in similar circumstances—go the honorable way and pay off debts which far exceed assets, using even personal possessions to pay off debts bit by bit.

In these days of easy credit, big debts and then bankruptcy to get out of those debts, Dean Kruse stands out as a shining example of the right way, the long hard way to pay off debts.

—And you never hear him blame someone else for his troubles.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

A note from Lazette Keller may reflect the feeling of others in the community:

"Help, Ted. Where are the Boy Scouts. My papers are filling up my garage."

Garrett had its Railroad Steam Engine Days recently. I had forgotten about it one day as I worked in the shop and the windows and doors were open for the pleasant day. But when I heard a whistle from the west, I immediately thought "something's different about that sound." And moments later the special steam engine excursion for Chessie System employees and families went through Saint Joe. It was a long passenger train, viewed by several other Saint Joe residents who also heard the whistle.

—Gee, I wish they'd go back to steam engines—and passenger trains. But you know how it is; today everybody wants to have their own car and drive exactly where they want to go.

Local Historic Tour On 12th

A treat is in store for historical buffs Sunday, July 12, at 2 p.m.

On that date the DeKalb County Historical Society will conduct a tour of the old dam site farm of Orangeville, now the residence of Harriet Oberlin. The farm is located at the intersection of county roads 75A and 69, 1 mile east of SR 101 on 75A or 1 mile southwest of Newville on 75A.

There will be a conducted tour of the Orange and Newville areas. Originally Newville was known as "Vienna."

"Come share and learn."

Town Board Asks No Increase In Budget

While other communities are trying to find ways to get more tax money to cope with rising inflation and more and more tax funded programs undertaken during the past several years, Saint Joe town officials are going in the opposite direction; they are literally trying to keep from spending more.

A special meeting of the Town Board of Saint Joe was held June 25 at 7:00 p.m. At the meeting discussion was held about the budget for 1982. With two of three members present, Larry McKown moved and president Ted Haberkorn seconded a motion to advertise the same budget as was used for 1981. Board member Paula Tintsman was absent due to a death in the family.

Others present at the meeting were street superintendent John Bopp and firemen Doug Fetters and Steve Fetters.

The firemen asked for $450 from the town board to finance half the purchase price of a van to be utilized for hauling certain equipment and for emergency purposes. The two said they had been told the board voted in favor of the idea at the regular June meeting. However, this information was incorrect with both board members present referring to their notes of the regular June meeting at which there had been only a discussion about the matter.

After further discussion, the president moved and Mr. McKown seconded a motion to pay the $450 toward the purchase of the vehicle. The fire department says the present van is too small.

After still further discussion during which rough drawings were shown and an estimated cost given by the firemen, Mr. Haberkorn moved and Mr. McKown seconded a motion to allow the township to add one or two stalls at the west end of the fire hall. The request for permission to add onto the fire hall came from the firemen, not the township trustee. The town board stipulated that there would be no cost to the town for the addition.

During the discussion it was noted that firemen had taken delivery of the larger van and had stored it temporarily in the vacant service station at the west end of town. The president of the board reminded Doug Fetters of their previous conversation about the matter and that the president had pointed out the liabilities incurred by action of the firemen without board approval. He said in the earlier conversation that if any damage occurred to the building or van, the town board would be looked to for coverage for the liability. As it turned out, the concern was prophetic; the station was broken into just a few days later. Firemen immediately removed the van from the premises.

The plans shown to the town board were for a 35x48 addition for two stalls, a radio room and a meeting room. With certain donations related to materials plus the use of volunteer labor, the fire department estimate for the cost of the addition was a little over $6,700.

Only one bill was presented for payment, that for John Bopp, labor and materials, 237.25.

Confusion, Compliment Relate To Fire Dept.

from Ted Haberkorn, President Town Board of Saint Joe

A couple of weeks ago I presented a question to the Saint Joe area telephone exchange users as to whether they would rather dial a number which rings 20 firemen's phones simultaneously or a number which is used by people all over the county, the state and nation to contact the sheriff's department.

That question was misleading in one respect, as I found out at the June 25 town board meeting. Board Member Larry McKown said he had been contacted by a fireman or firemen just before the meeting and was told there are only about a dozen fire phones on the present conference system.

Why the discrepancy? Well, I was going on an assumption. Last November, when I attended a fire meeting to discuss equipment needs, it was stated that the department likes to keep its roster at about 20 members. I asked if these members were about fifty-fifty between town and township residents and the answer was yes.

I assumed, therefore, that 20 telephones were hooked into the conference system since the conference system was this community's way of calling for fire assistance. I assumed that being on the fire department also meant having a telephone on the conference hookup. No comments have ever been made to indicate otherwise.

If I misled the public, I am sorry. But no one told me the number of phones was down

Steam Engine - From Out Of The Past.....

It wasn't the same engine or the same train, but it was a steam engine which pulled the special Chessie System's passenger train on a sightseeing run recently for railroad employees and families at the conclusion of Garrett's Steam Engine Days observance.

The above photo first appeared in The News July 5, 1973. It shows "old number 248" as it sped west at some 70 to 80 miles an hour.

The picture was taken in 1954 by Burtis Dickman, formerly of Saint Joe, now a successful businessman and councilman at Auburn. The photo was taken from the old HK Tower west of Saint Joe at intersection of the B&O (now the Chessie System) and Wabash (now Norfolk & Western) railroad tracks. The Merlin Simanton farm would be at the right in the above picture.

Of Israel - Or, Am I A Bigot??

If there is anything I don't want to be, it's a bigot. I also don't want to be a sucker.

In recent months, I've been trying to assess my opinions to see if I am a bigot or if some of my suspicions are justified.

I'm talking about the international situation related to Israel. My biggest problem is in accepting Israel as a "nation" in the same sense that I accept Germany or France or other foreign countries as "nations." I don't see how a religion can be accepted by our nation as a means to identify a political, military and what have you organization which calls itself a "nation."

Although our country was established on the basis of recognizing the presence of a power greater than man, it was not established as a religious nation of a particular and confining nature. Our founding fathers recognized God as the source of man's inalienable rights, but they did not make specific religious practices a part of our Constitution or of the "Bill of Rights" (the first ten articles of the Constitution).

Israel is a Jewish nation. It is the "homeland" of those of the Jewish faith. It came into being because Jews (or at least their influential leaders) believe their destiny is to have a geographical homeland, a place with definite boundaries. Unfortunately, their quest has involved conflict with non-Jewish background and this has brought bloodshed. As is the case when there is a conflict between peoples, "peace" has a different meaning in the minds of each participant.

Just recently, Israel had its hand slapped in the United Nations for destroying an atomic installation in Iraq. Israel's prime minister said the plant was a threat to Israel's security. But other sources of international information say that the atomic plant wasn't built to manufacture atomic bombs; it was built to provide atomic power for peaceful use.

Whom do you believe???

For many years the conflict between Jews and Arabs was pictured as the "good guys" (Jews) against the "bad guys" (Arabs). However, as time passes it becomes apparent that there is good and bad on both sides. But the attention given to the matter by some of our national leaders and by the national news media continues to the advantage of Israel.

Jews dote on the persecution they have suffered through the centuries. The presentation "Holocaust" brought back memories of Nazi atrocities against Jews. In a way, it seemed like opening an old wound. Other presentations on television recently have been in the same vein. I watched "Masada," as did millions of other people. I was impressed by the presentation which was based on historical fact. (The trouble is, you don't know how much of what you see IS fact and how much is "filler" to make the story complete—or to lead the viewer to a conclusion.)

However, I was completely "turned off" in the last few moments of the final segment because the skit of the historic mass suicide of Jews was shown as the training ground for members of today's military forces of Israel. The narration gave the picture of a group of young men learning to right a wrong. The thought in my mind when the show ended was "I've been had."

I am suspicious that reruns of certain movies are coming at this particular time for the purpose of maintaining our country's sympathy with Israel. "The Odessa File" the other night aroused my suspicions, as did another film within the last couple of weeks. Both related to the persecution of Jews.

It is not without reason that these circumstances raise some questions. It seems to me that Jews (not all of them but those who are "gung ho" for the recognition of Israel as a nation) are constantly capitalizing on the sympathy of the American people and the world. The impression is present in many minds, I am certain, that Jews are generally shut out, ostracized, shunned and so on socially and in the business world. But are they? Are they prevented from living productive and profitable lives?

In the entertainment world, a big percentage of the top personalities are Jews. Some TV programs have so many Jews involved (actors, writers, producers and so on) that I get the impression there is a form of bigotry practiced by Jews in influential positions. But do you hear the general public complain about it? No. Jews pick Jews to work with. Yet they complain of facing bigotry and prejudice. Successful business and industry are loaded with those of the Jewish faith. The business ability of Jews is a characteristic dating centuries back when they were non-citizens, couldn't hold public office and had only the business world in which to function.

I'm not saying that there is no bigotry and prejudice against those of the Jewish faith. What I am saying is that bigotry and prejudice do not exist to the degree certain Jewish leaders claim, and they are overstating their case.

When Menachem Begin orders a military attack on an installation in another country and uses jet planes and other military equipment obtained from the United States to carry out the attack, I think it is time to take a very close look at what is going on to determine if our outlook is based on fact or if it is based on emotions which are purposely aroused to bring support to a religious group.

I think we've been "had." And I don't like it because it means we are being drawn into another war.

More Evidence On Medical Costs

My comments recently about the cost of being self-employed, especially as related to the cost of obtaining medical care, undoubtedly had little support simply because there are so few self-employed single-income families in today's society. My views are read, in all probability, with some degree of fear, because if something WERE done to change the health care "system," most readers would come out losers —their present benefits would be reduced or their share of the cost would be increased. And who wants to lose "security"?

It is significant, therefore, that an article appeared in the June 21, 1981, issue of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel, written by Dan Derfman, with the headline: "Rising Hospital Costs Respect No Limits?"

The article notes that hospital care costs are rising at the rate of 15 to 16 percent a year and such an increase is "ominous." It means hospital care will double in three years and ten months. At the present time average daily charges for a semi-private room, medicine and care are a "stunning" $390 a day. And the average hospital stay is seven days ($2,450).

Keep in mind that these figures do not include doctors' fees, intensive care, ambulance services, etc.

What I expressed as a self-employed is upheld by the article refered to and makes the matter even more significant because the article concerns ALL who need hospital care and that means those who now enjoy the "protection" of a company-paid or partially paid health insurance program. The increasing costs of hospital care will reach into everyone's pocketbook more and more because of the unreasonable increase in hospital care costs.

If a company must pay a higher premium, its products or services increase also. And that's inflation!

The article quotes a leading hospital consultant, David Halvorsen, who observed that "no one seems to give a d—n. Even Uncle Sam, or maybe he should be called Uncle Sap in this case, closes his eyes to an outrageous bill and doesn't effectively monitor what's going on."

Well, it may SEEM that "no one gives a d—n" but that is not necessarily true. The trouble is, those who do give a d—n, like me, are a minority of self-employed; the majority is made up of employees who are satisfied as long as they don't have too big a bill to pay as their share of hospital costs.

Here are more shocker observations in the article:

"Hospitals won't admit it, but they're not anxious to hold down costs."

". . . Hospitals are virtually guaranteed a huge, ongoing revenue stream."

In the May 28, 1981, issue of this paper, I said: ". . . Under the present health care 'system' there is nothing — repeat, nothing — controlling health care costs."

I'm not an expert; I'm just "little folks" as are most subscribers to this paper. When one of us is endangered, we're all endangered. And health care costs are becoming more and more—as I mentioned in another editorial—a means of redistributing a family's accumulated assets among several other people and groups who have no justification in general for laying claim to those private assets. A large portion of the dollar paid for health care has nothing to do with service to the patient. The health care "system" is similar to the governmental bureaucracy which grows and grows under the guise of providing "service" to American citizens. There is a mountain of paper work and busy-busy-busy people with comfortable incomes and fringe benefits (including health care "insurance") paid under a system not open to the self-employed.

The American free enterprise profit system began with self-employed pioneers. Isn't it strange that today, the self-employed face the greatest danger of extinction, and the greatest danger of extinction lies in the present health care bureaucracy which sucks away at the accumulated assets of its individual citizens?

TV Trash v. Mandrell, MASH

I don't know—it seems as if every night has a TV "movie" involving everybody going to bed with everybody else—women propositioning men, men propositioning women. If the TV presentations are accurate, it is now acceptable to live unmarried with a member of the opposite sex and it is "normal" for those involved to talk about and accept past such experiences with no concern or upset.

I know that sort of thing is going on, but gee whiz, do we have to have a steady diet of such goings-on? One of the programs was on prime time, and at about 8:30, after a few commercials, the announcer said, "—And now back to the family presentation of — —." And just before the commercial, a girl had the guy on a couch and was obviously trying to get him to do something about more than the weather.

"Family" presentation? I'm sorry, but TV is being used to corrupt our society, starting with misrepresenting what is associated with "family."

Everything is a soap opera, as one of our boys observed in the past. TV writers are so "wrote out" that you can smell the plot rather early. After five minutes of one TV movie this week, the thought went through my mind, "I bet I know what's going to happen." It did. It was the wornout plot of girl loved by a man but she's happily married to another—happily until she finds out that her husband has been seeing another woman while he's been working for his law degree and his wife has been working for a veterinarian to help pay hubby's way through law school (he also bought a Mercedes she didn't know about) and the vet happens to be the man in love with the faithful wife. Then there is the presence of a big-time operator who offers her a job and he has a reputation for (in his words) having a line of women waiting to go to bed with him.

When I saw these details in but a few minutes, I figured that after the girl found out about her husband's escapades and also took a job with the big-time operator, the story would that the girl would go "bad" to the disappointment of the veterinarian, she would come to her senses after a time, the vet would still be waiting—and they would live happily ever after.

—And that's about the way it did go, with some other flourishes. As for instance, the girl, in a moment of loneliness goes to the vet's pad at night, he answers the door in his robe, she realizes he has another girl on the string in his apartment and leaves saying, "That's OK, I'll see you later."

Another flourish is the girl later says she needs some loving, and the vet says, "No, I can't do it this way—it means too much."

"Means too much"??? For Pete's sake!

I suppose that last part is supposed to illustrate the vet's high character, but somehow I just must shake my head in disbelief that such "garbage" is shown extensively on TV.

But the real garbage comes on Friday and Saturday nights. "Friday" and something called "90/30" or something like that try to copy the early success of "Saturday Night Live." But the skits are sick, sick, sick. I have watched maybe ten minutes of those shows and there is nothing amusing, really funny, on them. The attempt at satire is so overdone it's difficult to believe that people are being paid to write such trash and to act it out.

The only TV program I really have any desire to see is "MASH." I know some people are offended by certain circumstances in the shows. But even the "sex" on the show comes out funny. I have seen even third reruns of the show and they're still funny—and thought-provoking. The people doing the show are masters at depicting the flaws in human nature. Everyone is shown in their moments of glory and in their moments of weakness and despair. I can't recall any episode of "MASH" which left me with a feeling that it was in bad taste. There is too much truth in the efforts of the different characters to escape reality in some way. And the viewer is often laughing because he or she can recognize their own frustration, anger, pleasure, or what have you, in the characterizations on the TV screen.

—Oh, there is one other TV program I make a particular effort to watch most of the time. That's Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters. She has the kind of wholesome sex appeal that forces a man to watch in respectful silence and in wonder that so much talent and good looks can be wrapped up in one neat package.

—So much for the TV column.

to 12.

(A dozen is still a pretty good sized number, it would seem.)

The lack of information led me to question in my own mind some of the efforts being made by our fire department (and other fire departments) in the area of emergency and rescue services. So I stopped in at the office of the county EMS director, Rick Ring, this week, to get answers to some questions.

Part of the dilemma faced by all communities, small ones especially, is that fire departments have gone into the emergency services field to some extent. This brings up the question of who can be held liable for any bad results coming from such emergency services. State laws became so stringent a few years ago that the traditional ambulance service given by funeral homes went out the window. The funeral homes could not afford to have three full-time drivers, plus any other help. Emergency Medical Services came into existence (the EMS) when the funeral homes and other ambulance service firms were legislated out of the business.

Hence, some questions for the EMS director.

From our pleasant chat, the following facts emerged:

Saint Joe and Ashley are the only fire departments asked to respond for emergencies and this is mainly for heart patients, with the firemen providing care until the EMS arrives.

Auburn and Garrett have the "911" emergency system.

When you dial the EMS telephone number (925-4949), the call goes to the sheriff's office dispatcher, not to the EMS office.

One of my concerns has been the liability involved for services rendered by a volunteer EMS or EMT worker. Rick's answer was that they are protected by Indiana's "Good Samaritan" law. That is, services rendered by any non-professional are considered to be undertaken with all good intents and purposes and the person rendering the service is not held liable for any unfavorable results. (It should be noted, however, that the oft-heard statement that someone "can't be sued" is not entirely correct. The fact that a law says someone is not liable does not mean no suit can be filed. If someone feels there has been negligence, there can always be found a lawyer who will take the case regardless of the intent of the law. Generally speaking, anybody can be sued for anything. Then it takes a court decision to uphold the law. So, to say that an EMS or EMT volunteer, or the Town of Saint Joe, or Concord Township "can't be sued" for the emergency work performed is not totally correct.)

At the conclusion of our conversation and in answer to my question as to whether or not our local fire department was "butting in" on emergency calls, the reply of the County EMS director was:

"The Saint Joe Fire Department has done an excellent job in emergency service."

How To Keep Cool—?

(gleaned from other sources plus first-hand experience)
—By The Editor

There are some practical ways to keep a house cool in warm and humid weather and they don't cost a penny. Of course, if there is a lot of in—and—out traffic, these suggestions will not be as effective as in a case where there is normal use of household doors.

The first thing is: keep the doors and windows closed (who can keep the doors closed with kids in the family!). Assuming that the house has been cooled down on a pleasant summer night with the outdoor temperature in the 65 to 75 degree range, closed doors means that the comparatively cooler air is retained in the house, also assuming that the house is insulated and has storm windows—yes, storm windows! They help keep hot air out in summer just as they help keep cold air out in winter. Curtains or drapes should be closed on the sunny side of the house.

Sometimes the thermometer can be deceiving when it comes to determining whether or not to open doors and windows to replenish the house with cooler air. Don't forget that humidity is a close second in importance when you're trying to keep cool.

There are times when the house temperature may be, say, 80 degrees and the outdoor temp is 75. But before you open up, go outside, or just stick your head out the door, and sniff! The nose is a valuable guide in keeping cool. It can "smell" humid air, and humid air at 75 degrees is more uncomfortable than less humid air at 80 degrees.

Sometimes a breeze can be deceiving. A 10 or 15 mile—an—hour breeze "looks" cool from inside the house. But the breeze may be blowing outside air that is 5, 10 or more degrees warmer than the air in the house. This is another instance where it is better to step outside to check the "feel" of the air, not the breeze, before opening doors and windows in the hopes of cooling off just because a breeze is blowing. You may blow comfort right out the front or back door!

If the nighttime air is cooler than that in the house, and if the humidity is at a reasonable level, and if there is no breeze blowing to bring the cooler air into the house, a good-sized air-circulating fan comes in handy. The movement of air in the house draws the outside air in through open doors and windows. If there is a slight breeze, placing the fan in a "downwind" door or window helps to draw the inside air in faster through a windward door or window as a boost to the outdoor breeze.

An exhaust fan can be useful, too. It should be in a "downwind" window if there is a slight breeze. On a breezeless night, any window will do, generally speaking. Just make certain that there is at least one other window or a door open. Experimentation can give you the right combination of fan-placing and window and/or door opening in this type of cooling down setup.

In the use of circulating fans (those which are used only to set up a movement of air, not to draw in air), a common mistake is to reason that if the comfort goes up on the fan's slow speed, the comfort will go up more with faster fan speeds. Ain't so. Why? Well, the cooling effect is gained by the passage of air over your perspiring body. Perspiration is the body's way of cooling off. A slight movement of air makes the perspiration "cooler." But if air is circulated at a fast rate, the movement of air dries the perspiration and you are right back where you started—uncomfortable. And when the circulating fan is shut off after operating at fast speeds, the discomfort is worse than at the start.

So, when using a circulating fan, remember that slow speeds give an almost undetected movement of air, but it is most effective. And don't have the fan blowing directly on you. That's no way to truly "cool off."

Cooking is the biggest culprit in nullifying your efforts to keep cool. But everyone must eat, right? How can we stop cooking?

Microwave ovens are a big help in keeping cool. Since it is the food that gets hot, there is only that comparatively small amount of heat to contend with. However, not everyone has a microwave oven; not everyone WANTS a microwave oven! And they cost money — and these are supposed to be suggestions which don't cost you a penny. (Oops—forgot — it takes electricity to run fans!) So, with cooking a necessity, you'll just have to do the best you can in your particular circumstances.

Another handicap in keeping cool is the heat coming from the refrigerator, or the deep freeze, or the combination refrigerator and freezer. Opening and closing refrigerators and freezers as quickly as possible helps to keep them from running so often. And the less they run, the less heat they give off. "Frost free' sounds good, but there is a penalty—more heat must be dissipated by the refrig or freezer. (When we installed a frost-free unit in our kitchen a few years ago, we added a couple of degrees to the house temperature.)

Using the clothes washer can add to the humidity in the house, especially when hot water is used. Lukewarm or cold water should be used whenever possible; many of today's detergents are effective without hot water.

The clothes dryer is a source of heat, also. Even when vented outdoors, dryers give off a certain amount of heat which is retained in the house. In winter months, venting the dryer indoors gives double use of the heat generated - it dries the clothes and it helps to heat the house. The moisture in the dryer exhaust in winter helps to raise the humidity in combating the dryness of winter air. But in the summer - oh boy.

The best way to dry clothes is still the good old clothesline. The drying sun and breezes are free. Besides, clothes dried outdoors get that genuine m—m—m—m good smell.

Well, there they are; some un-expert ideas on how to cope with these uncomfortably warm and humid days and nights during summer months.

Oh, one other little thing. When you begin to feel that it's hot and humid indoors even with all the efforts you've made to keep cool, just go outside for a couple of minutes (don't forget to close the door!). Then go back indoors. See how cool it is!!

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Margaret Stemberg, reporter

On June 10 the Newville Township Home Ec Club met at 1:00 p.m. in the Methodist Church basement. Those present recited the Home Ec Creed. Doris Hart gave devotions with readings of poetry by Helen Steiner Rice and a special recognition given for "Father and His Day."

Roll call was answered by 17 members sharing an unusual happening on their wedding day. Secretary's report was read by Freida Engle and Gladys Impton gave the treasurer's report. Zella Collins, president, gave a preview of the new program booklet. This booklet is a calendar of events to begin in July such as special meetings and leader lessons on the county level. Each club on the township level then determines who the hostess, co-hostess, devotional leader and recreational leader will be for each month of the year.

Ex-president Leta Schaeffer held a beautiful candlelight service for installation of officers.

An old-fashioned birthday auction was held, proceeds added to the club treasury.

Birthdays celebrated in the month of June were those of Dorine Singer and Gladys Impton.

"What's new and different in crafts" was demonstrated by Berniece Wilder.

After light refreshments, the meeting adjourned with the singing of the Home Demonstration Prayer Song.

Next meeting is July 8 at the home of Belva Smith at Hamilton Lake. A picnic lunch is planned and all club officers will serve as hostesses.

The problem is, the IRS wants to tax banks for the interest income they receive on loans to fire departments. The interest has in the past been tax-free thus allowing a lower interest rate on loans related to providing a governmental service such as volunteer fire departments. Mr. Lugar fears reduced fire department service or even the demise of volunteer fire departments if the loans taken for fire fighting purposes require the going rate of interest. Vacant House Gutted By Fire

Local firemen were called Friday, July 3, to put out a blaze which engulfed a vacant house on School Street. The property is owned by MM N.L. Chandler.

Investigation of the fire by the area Arson Squad is continuing to determine the cause of the blaze. The house, unoccupied in recent months, had become somewhat of an eyesore. Several years ago it was ruled unfit for occupancy by the county health officer. When a few of the required improvements had been made, it was re-opened for occupancy.

Carbon Monoxide Overcomes Young Man

The July 4th weekend almost proved traggic for Tony Keeler of Saint Joe.

The younger son of the late Jiggs Keeler and Olevia Keeler has been carrying the load of operating the family business since the death of his father, with part-time help from his older brother, Lonny. Mrs. Keeler has been the bookkeeper for the garage business.

On July 5 Tony was working on his pickup truck at the rear of the garage. He had had the truck or another vehicle running for a time but had not opened the large overhead door at the rear of the building, possibly because stones and firecrackers had been tossed in or near the door before Sunday.

Mrs. Keeler called the garage at noon and went to investigate when there was no answer. She found Tony unconscious in the bed of his truck. He was installing a pickup cap. She called for help and tried to revive her son with no success. "I splashed water on him and breathed in his mouth and did anything I could think of," she said as EMS and EMT workers took over from the local fire department in efforts to revive Tony. He reports that he remembers nothing of the first aid efforts. He did not stop breathing but was administered oxygen, and information was sent to DeKalb Memorial by "on the spot" monitoring equipment, according to Kevin White of Saint Joe, a full-time EMS worker.

Carbon monoxide gas was determined to be the cause of the problem, from the exhaust of one of the vehicles in the garage.

Tony was kept at the hospital overnight and returned home the next day—and went right back to work.

Carbon monoxide is especially dangerous because the gas is odorless and colorless. The "smell" that comes from the exhaust of a car or truck engine or any other internal combustion engine is not the dangerous gas. It is not "safe" to continue working in an enclosed area just because the exhaust odor can be tolerated. The deadly fumes can't be seen or smelled.

Weekly Papers' Demise

At the end of June, Earth Publications of Edgerton, Ohio, publisher of the Edgerton "Earth," the Edon, Ohio, "Commercial" and the Hamilton, Indiana, "News," announced that the firm was withdrawing support of the Edon and Hamilton papers as of July 15, 1981. Advertising in all three publications came basically from Ohio merchants. Publisher Bob Swope explained the action with, "I'd rather put out one good newspaper rather than spreading myself thin and struggling with three."

I point this matter out because the advertising support for smalltown weekly newspapers has dwindled for several years leading to either consolidations or cessation of publication. Most of the local advertising revenue for these small newspapers has gone to other media—advertisers, radio and television. When I began as publisher of this paper in 1948, and for several years thereafter, Indiana & Michigan Electric Company ran an ad every week. Maxton Motors at Butler, through General Motors' plan of advertising, ran a Chevrolet ad two, three and four times a month; sometimes there was a Buick ad in addition. But now, with certain "watchdogs" keeping tabs on I&M, that utility's advertising program with small newspapers is only periodic today. And General Motors stopped completely. So, in recent years smalltown weeklies have been more and more dependent upon direct local advertising. An auto workers' strike years ago marked the beginning of the end for weekly newspapers' automobile advertising.

Departing Hamilton editor Lucy James noted that the DeKalb County Advertiser is prospering. The Advertiser claims a weekly circulation of some 17,000 homes. The publication contains no news stories; it is all advertising.

I can sympathize with the Hamilton editor's deep concern at the demise of the Hamilton paper, as expressed in her "Editor's Statement" in the July 1 issue. She attempted to rally local support for the paper, but it appears that there has been no response of any size from the Hamilton area.

I won't point a finger at Hamilton residents and say, "Shame on you," because if they don't want a paper, that's their decision. And I won't point a finger at the DeKalb County Advertiser and say, "Shame on YOU for putting a weekly newspaper out of business." The Advertiser couldn't be prospering if area merchants didn't think it was doing them some good. Apparently an increasing number of people prefer total advertising locally; they can get "the news" from dailies, radio and TV. (I personally have nothing against the Advertiser; I read it cover to cover every week.)

But I will suggest that, even with money so tight at the present time, the loss of a local newspaper for Hamilton, or any other small town for that matter, might be penny wise and pound foolish. For every community which wishes to have its own newspaper, you can add a community to the list of those who lose access to "the press" in local matters.

It's a matter of fact and past experience that certain matters related to the Saint Joe and surrounding communities are left untouched by media elsewhere. There have always been exceptions, of course; but generally speaking, the smalltown editor has been the type of breed who despite disagreement with what someone has to say would publish the opposite opinion when it was presented. "Freedom of the press" has been at the level of the smalltown weekly newspaper, a privilege enjoyed not just by the editor but by anyone who wished to see his page of the local paper in a readable way. When you go beyond the local level, this opportunity dwindles because there are so many other communities also "competing" for attention.

There have been many things, on the other hand, which have been seen in the pages of county dailies which the small local paper has not published. This paper, in particular, has failed its readers many times, especially in the past few years, when items which should have appeared did not appear, or issues have been late. This circumstance points out the very personal character of the old-fashioned smalltown weekly paper; when the editor is laid up, the paper is laid up. When the editor is late, the paper is late. It's not good business, but let's face it—personal and family matters DO interfere.

There are those who do not know about the importance of a weekly newspaper to a small community simply because conditions today are drastically different as compared to 25 years ago or more — and they were either just little tots or maybe just a gleam in the old man's eye. Back then, weekly and county daily newspapers sent copies to one another and picked up items from one another's publications for the benefit of readers who liked to know what was happening in other similar-sized communities. Today, the papers still in existence follow the philosophy of so many journalism schools: don't publish a story unless your own reporters write it. And those reporters spend hours of time frequently just waiting around for the opportunity to get a first-hand report of a first-hand quote—all of which costs money, time and dollars into budgets — and dollars into budgets.

The quantity of material put out by today's "reporters" is a drop in the bucket compared to the daily production of the old-timers. In particular, I recall the late Karl Mavis of Auburn who wrote sports for the county daily. He covered every school in the county at a time when there were six high schools in DeKalb County. He attended games at a rollicking basis, and when he couldn't be at two places or more at the same time, he made contacts from whom he obtained information to give a writeup in each county town. They were not the long, long writeups you read nowadays (which aren't really true reporting but merely taking "dictation" from players and coaches). They were concise, interpretative reports of what happened, and what a participant SAID happened.

There is only one paper for miles around which still takes the old-time practice of reporting news in other publications, condensing it into a paragraph and presenting it to readers for their benefit, and you're reading it right now. Those little tidbits from here and there give readers of this paper information of what's happening elsewhere. It's a form of "continuing education," you might say.

A question undoubtedly has come into the minds of readers along this line: "If smalltown weeklies are disappearing because of lack of revenue, how can The Saint Joe News keep going?" The answer is simple: stubbornness — and a subsidy. I am stubborn enough that I'll keep putting this paper out as long as I can even if the revenue for its production won't pay the bills. The subsidy? No, it's not from the government or the taxpayer. It's from me. It's simple: all you do is take from one pocket and put it in the other.

The importance of local independently-owned smalltown newspapers is not understood by many. They don't see how just a dinky newspaper like this — or the Hamilton News — or the Edon Commercial — can be so important to their community and their daily lives. There are two things to point out in explanation. One is that, when this country was born, and pioneers moved gradually from the east coast through the midwest (including this area) to the west coast, settlements became permanent communities. And it wasn't too long before the people in those communities were saying, "We need a newspaper." They saw firsthand the importance of a newspaper to the cause of freedom. They saw how important it is to have a readily accessible source of public information. Their freedom, their independence depended upon an informed public. (Today, with all the "fringe benefits" of employment, who needs to worry about freedom and independence!)

The second point is found in the words of Thomas Jefferson, one of our nation's founding fathers, remembered for his eloquent leadership in expressing freedom's reward and fulfillment:

"Were it left for me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the [illegible] latter."

Keep in mind — you wouldn't be reading these thoughts if there were no smalltown, independently-owned weekly newspaper in Saint Joe.

Q. How about an updated price list on old graniteware accessories? —Shirley, McConnelsburg, Pa.

A. Around the turn of the century, iron cooking items having a specified or mottled finish popped into prominence. Few original makers could perceive that graniteware would develop into the durable collectible that its name implies. Value guide: bedpan, 9 inches diameter, $25; bun tray, green, 9 inches by 14 inches, $30; coffee pot, gray, tin lid, 9 inches tall, $25; plate, dinner, blue, $10; teapot, blue, 7 inches tall, $35; utensil rack, three pieces, gray, $65.

Q. Are silverplated condensed milk can holders worth preserving? —Mrs. M. R., Paducah, Kentucky.

A. In the second half of the 19th century American silver catalogs were dotted with milk can containers. The form consisted of a cylindrical container, with lid, and a base to catch the drippings. Most had handles. Designers enlivened them with repousse or engraved motifs. Although marked examples exist from numerous firms, the Adelphi Silver Company, active in New York City around the turn of the century, practically had an exclusive on these beloved bygones! Value guide: silverplated milk can holder, engraved florals, circa 1900, $45.

Q. Can you enlighten us about an oak hall bench made by "J. & J. G. Stickley"? —MM C. J. Monroe, Mich.

A. Leopold and J. George Stickley, well-known American furniture manufacturers, were the brothers of that Mission furniture man, Gustav Stickley. The brothers formed their own factory at Fayetteville, N. Y., in 1900. They based many designs on Craftsman furniture, frequently utilizing veneers and laminated members. In 1910 they purchased Gustav's factory, renaming it the Stickley Manufacturing Co. Early pieces from this still-existing firm, marked "J. & J. G. Stickley," are being acquired by investment-minded individuals. Value guide: hall bench, oak, circa 1905, $375.

Q. Is the Tootsietoy "U.S.N. Los Angeles" dirigible I found in the attic a worthwhile toy? —Henry, Parsons, Kan.

A. Although Samuel Dowst had been in the die-casting business since the late 1800s, the name Tootsietoy was not introduced until the early 1920s. The name was to honor the daughter of the company's president at that time, Tootsie Dowst. In the late 1930s the firm marketed the "U.S.N. Los Angeles" dirigible. It had two grooved wheels on top which enabled it to be run on a string. According to reports, it was also sold as part of the Buck Rogers set. Nowadays this dirigible Tootsietoy glides out of the flea markets at prices hovering between $35 and $40.

Points To Ponder In Fire Dept. 'Hassle'

—from Ted Haberkorn, President, Town Board of Saint Joe

It is not pleasant to "bring up" in print something which has already been "brought up" elsewhere in matters pertaining to our community and its fire protection. However, the persistent agitation felt by the Town Board in its relationship with the local volunteer fire department is now so significant that it would seem inappropriate not to inform the public concerning that relationship.

The present board has been in office for a year and a half now. It has been under an almost constant barrage from the fire department for spending of money. (Concord Township officials have been under the same "money pressure.") The town budget has for years provided for funds to be used directly for fire protection. Other monies have been used for fire protection when specific fire funds were exhausted (example: the general item of "equipment" in the General Fund allows for equipment of any type, including that for fire protection if necessary).

Last year, at the very end of December to be exact, "clothing" and "gas" allowances were paid for the first time in the history of the town, apparently. Our town boards for many years refrained from paying such allowances because such payment in effect destroys the traditional meaning of the word "volunteer" as related to those who have served on the fire department. But money has become almost an obsession with the department the past several years, to the point where the suggestion has been made several times, not only to the Town Board but also to the Township Trustee, that fire funds be turned over to the department in total to be used by the department at its discretion. The supporting statement from the fire department has been that such a set-up would allow the department to function more efficiently because it would know exactly how much money it would have on which to operate in a budget year.

However, the handling of money in the department's treasury for the past few years does not indicate the efficiency claimed by the department.

For instance, a used truck was purchased by the department for $900 last year for the stainless steel tank the ronless chassis carried. The Town Board was told the stainless steel tank was to be transferred to the chassis already in use as a tanker. But at the same meeting, the board was also told the used truck was going to be put in running condition and used for a tanker.

The used truck sat on the town lot for a year; it presented a public safety hazard because doors in the tank were unlocked. Lack of funds prevented putting the truck in service. (The Town Board did not give the department a "hard time" about the truck; it did not at any time demand removal of the truck even though the town was in danger of liability for any injury which might be suffered in or on the truck.)

At the same time, the department was asking the Town Board for "walkie-talkies," portable radio units which were claimed to be useful enough to justify the almost-$900-each cost of the units. Walkie-talkies were first on a list of "priorities" given to the Town Board last year. Further down the list came such things as new lightweight hose, additional oxygen supply tanks and a few other things. The Town Board passed over the walkie-talkies and bought new hose and oxygen tanks.

Then, when the local American Legion post disbanded last summer, it distributed its remaining money to the two local fire departments and to the Youth League. The $300 given to the Saint Joe department was specifically for a walkie-talkie; but there had been no contact with the Town Board as to whether or not this type of purchase was acceptable. Certainly, an organization has the right to give its money as it sees fit. However, when such use involves a public taxing unit and elected public officials have the responsibility and liability for all matters pertaining to that taxing unit (such as the Town of Saint Joe), it is not inappropriate to seek the opinion of those elected public officials. Such opinion was not sought and the firemen purchased a walkie-talkie.

In another matter, the Town Board rejected a suggestion that used radio monitors be purchased last year. THEREFORE, IT WAS UNANIMOUS, after [illegible] special meeting, that the Board [illegible] electronic departments. But — the fire department not only went ahead with the purchase of several of the units, it also put into effect the use of a toll [illegible] by telephone number. NEITHER THE TOWN BOARD NOR THE TOWNSHIP GAVE APPROVAL TO THE CHANGE —they were not asked for approval. The new number came as a literal "surprise."

One important fact should be kept in mind concerning the relationship between taxing units and fire departments. Saint Joe's department was organized under and has been supported and maintained by the Town Board (with lesser involvement and responsibility of Concord Township). The Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department IS NOT a separate entity; it is not a corporation. It cannot "own" anything. Except for those items purchased by individual firemen out of their own pockets for their own personal use, all fire equipment and facilities are the property of the town or township. Those who having been suggesting that the department be set up on a township-only basis, then to "sell" fire protection to the town, are overlooking the fact that to do so will mean they would start from "scratch." Separation has been looked upon with favor by certain firemen and their leadership as a way to get out from the alleged "one-man rule" of the Town Board.

Obviously, the younger members of the department are not aware that when the department fails to have proper authorization from the town and/or the township, any liability which might result from their administrative actions is a PERSONAL liability on each individual fireman. Taxpayers can not and are not held responsible for decisions made by the department without approval of elected public officials.

Saint Joe taxpayers own the fire hall, Saint Joe taxpayers own the town pumper and half of the emergency van, Saint Joe taxpayers and Concord Township taxpayers own any equipment given to the department or bought by the department for public protection. This is not a "one man" bright idea; it is the way such matters are set up now and have been for years and years. And local elected public officials are responsible for this public-protection service and its facilities.

At a recent township officials' meeting, it is reported, the name of the board president came up repeatedly as the cause of fire department problems. Township officials are reported to have "set the record straight" and to have rejected the allegation that the board president is the cause of all the trouble. Significantly, township officials are reported to have indicated that the fire department should "get its act together" before the township will be inclined to go along with department requests and suggestions. The township trustee is attempting to find a chassis for use with the stainless steel tank; the department has not been "shut off" from township financial support.

In Spencer Township, as a comparison, the fire department IS incorporated; it is a separate entity. The township trustee does not "run" the department; he purchases fire protection from a group which has incorporated and functions "on its own." (It should be kept in mind that Spencerville is not an incorporated town; it is a community within the township and is not a taxing unit as is Saint Joe. Therefore, the incorporation of the fire department is appropriate for Spencer Township's fire protection needs.)

In money matters again, the latest example of inappropriate use of fire department treasury monies is in the purchase of a coin-operated soft drink dispenser. The secretary of the fire department told the Town Board at a recent meeting that some "changes" were being made because the handling of soft drinks for the department was costing the department money. Either the pop wasn't paid for or someone was dipping in the till. But the Town Board was not told that the solution to the pop problem was going to be the expenditure of $200 for a pop machine.

What is more important—a $200 pop machine, or building up the treasury to help purchase a tanker chassis???

In view of these and other money matters related to the use of funds for fire protection, it has been the opinion of at least two of the three Town Board members and the Township Trustee and his Advisory Board that it is not advisable to turn over a "lump sum" treasury to the local fire department each budget year. The use of money by the department in the recent past suggests a hop-skip-jump situation which has made certain fire protection needs unattainable because the department has "dribbled out" a few hundred dollars here and there which add up to thousands in time.

This is NOT to say that the department has totally neglected fire protection. The department HAS made good use of some of the money at its disposal. But the department also has not kept one project at a time as its goal, except in matters in which it has not sought and/or received Town Board support and approval.

The idea that the department should have an "untouchable" amount of money in the town and township budgets for use at the department's discretion does not conform with general practice everywhere else. Recently fire chiefs at two much larger communities in DeKalb County asked for permission to obtain certain items for their departments. The amounts involved were only in the $30 to something over $100 range. They asked the appropriate officials who are responsible for their communities' total budgets.

It is not demeaning to a fire chief to have the responsibility to make such requests. Rather, it is a matter of proper procedure and proper financial support. Despite statements indicating the desire to cooperate with the Town Board, the Saint Joe Volunteer Fire Department has, unfortunately, followed an opposite path in significant matters. And the younger members have been "brainwashed" into believing that their money problems and the "lack of communication" between the Town Board and the fire department are the fault of the Town Board, in particular the president of the board.

It is significant that criticism of the board president at the recent township officials' meeting was made by a fireman who has been on the department less than a year and has never met the board president! It is significant that fire department members were told by their own officers that the Town Board had approved a specific expenditure for the fire department. The board had NOT taken such action and was thus put in the embarrassing position of appearing to renege on an obligation if it DIDN'T do what someone said it would do. Board member Larry McKown's meeting notes and my meeting notes show that no action was taken; there was only discussion. But the fire department—and the public—heard otherwise.

Jim Shilling Wins In Horseshoe Pitching

Jim Shilling of Spencerville, an avid devotee of horseshoe pitching the past four years, recently won first place in Class L of the Greenville, Ohio, July Fourth Ringer Classic.

Jim was one of 225 horseshoe pitchers, both men and women, from the midwest and Canada participating in the contest.

The winner of the Greenville contest for men was Carl Steinfeldt of Sarasota, Florida. He averaged 85% ringers for the 12 games of the Men's Championship Class.

The winner in women's competition was Opal Reno of Lucasville, Ohio, with an 84% average.

The local man had around a 20% average when he started in the horseshoe sport in 1977. But he has improved his average with almost daily practice and participation in many contests. His average is now at the 55% mark.

That percentage may sound pretty good to the novice pitcher, but Jim says that among the state's 250 organization members, he's "just a little above average."

"You get to meet a lot of nice people, and the competitive challenge is good. A person doesn't have to be an athlete to become proficient in horseshoe pitching," Jim observed. "It involves finesse, developing the touch and feel of pitching. And age is no handicap. There are some 70-year-olds I can't even start to keep up with."

Jim has clay pits set up at his home and he averages around 1,000 pitches a week in his practice sessions.

Professional pitching horseshoes weigh 2½ pounds and have special features which distinguish them from the usual type of horseshoe found in game stores. The opening is a little wider and the hooks are tempered according to individual preference and skill.

The gray clay used is kept moist at the consistency of putty. When the shoe lands in the clay, it should stick in the position in which it landed. No rolling or bouncing is found in "real" horseshoe pitching.

Years ago there were several men who were horseshoe pitching enthusiasts in and around Saint Joe, but they seem to have "crawled into the woodwork." Jim would like to see others in this area start participating in the sport in which he has found much pleasure and satisfaction — and a challenge.

He plans to participate in the national tourney in Minnesota at the end of July and into the first week of August.

Maxton's Sponsors Butler Days T'ney

One of the features at Butler Days August 6, 7 and 8 will be Maxton Motors' "3 On 3 Basketball Tourney." The tourney will be held in the DeKalb Eastside gym. Trophies will be awarded to winners in each age bracket.

Entry fee is $5 per player and each participant gets an official tourney T-shirt.

The divisions are as follows:

MEN'S AGE DIVISIONS—

(B1) 7th and 8th grade

(B2) 9th grade

(B3) graduated seniors to age 29

(B4) age 30 and over

WOMEN'S AGE DIVISIONS—

(G1) 7th and 8th grade

(G2) 9th grade

(G3) graduated seniors and over

(Grades refer to 1981-82 school year)

Average height of the three team players must be 6'4" or less. All three team players must be in the same age bracket.

Entry deadline is August 1. Checks should be made payable to "Blazer Basketball Camp" and sent to: Rick Hudson, Eastside High School, 609 East Green Street, Butler 46721.

Additional information can be obtained from Coach Hudson at 868-5674.

Eastside - Innovator, Motivator

DeKalb Eastside High School has been an innovator the past two years in administrative and operational matters. After being the victim of adverse publicity in times past, the educational system in the eastern portion of DeKalb County has made some changes which are now being studied and followed in other school systems.

Statistics compiled by assistant principal Joe Smith, who retired this spring at the conclusion of the 1980-81 school year, show that "The Confined Classroom" approach to school discipline has brought positive results for both the students individually and the school as a whole.

Discipline has been recognized by school administrators, teachers and parents as the main problem in school matters overall. Traditionally, the use of suspensions was the method utilized in coping with the various incidents of disruptive activity by students.

Last year, however, a different approach was undertaken. Instead of keeping students out of school for major disruptive actions, the eastern district kept those students in school but in very confined and controlled conditions. Because the student was kept in school after violating certain rules and was not given what amounted to a "three-day vacation" in some instances, the program was named "The Confined Classroom."

Principal Peggy Cowen is very enthused about the results in the program with two school years to show comparisons. That enthusiasm comes from the first result comparisons prepared by Mr. Smith. They are as follows:

School year	expulsions	Out-of-school susp.
1975-76	8	(unknown)
1976-77	5	(unknown)
1977-78	7	48
1978-79	10	70
1979-80	6	6
1980-81	1	2

The reason for the significant drop in expulsions and out-of-school suspensions is due to the fact that students "know the rules," according to Mrs. Cowen. Errant students are required to bring a sack lunch or buy one at the cafeteria, but they eat alone in their "confined classroom."

Also, students are required to study the student handbook and answer a 25-question true-or-false test based on the contents of the handbook. Many students probably never bothered to read the book. And those who were inclined to be disruptive didn't know basic school policy in matters of discipline.

The drop in two years from 10 expulsions to but one and from 70 out-of-school suspensions to only 2 is indicative of the effects the new program of disciplinary procedure has produced.

The statistics for the past two years are not totally on the positive side. For instance, while the number of cases involving class disruptions, tardies, smoking, obscene language, skipping class, skipping detention, drinking, personality or emotional problem, leaving school, theft and other reasons dropped, there was an increase in truancy, fighting, vandalism and insubordination. Mrs. Cowen said that the truancy increase is probably due to a more positive and immediate investigation of the reason for absence. The other three, fighting, vandalism and insubordination, are somewhat reflective of a nationwide problem with youth. As young people have gained more freedom, they have failed to recognize and accept the responsibilities which are necessary to protect the rights and freedom of others.

Though drugs are not listed in the statistics but drinking is, Mrs. Cowen explained that the two are now an automatic "out" for the student. A legal technicality about drinking had presented a problem, but that has been overcome by exacting regulations which now leave no doubt as to the consequences of involvement with drugs or alcoholic beverages.

Confined classroom assignments decreased from 327 in 1979-80 to 289 in 1980-81.

Confined classroom assignments per class dropped significantly in 1980-81 compared to 1979-80, in some instances at the 50% mark.

In all the categories compiled including individual repeaters, confined classroom assignments, individual students assignments, individual repeaters and the number of disciplinary offenses for the school year, it is evident that 8th graders have the most difficult time adjusting to disciplinary codes and 11th graders a somewhat lesser problem but more so than the other junior-senior high school students.

In operational matters, Eastside, at the instigation of Superintendent Charles Hampel, was the first in the area to experiment with conversion to propane gas for school buses. The experiment has proved to be a money-saver thus far and all buses are to be converted.

Thus, after gaining an undeserved reputation as "the pits" in past years as far as schools are concerned, prompted by a teacher boycott of extra-curricular activities a few years ago and suits filed by disgruntled teachers, DeKalb Eastside has led the way the past two years in facing internal problems with students by establishing a disciplinary code which keeps the student in school but separated from his or her classmates, has taken a step to keep the cost of transporting students to and from school as low as possible and in general established an administrative atmophere which appears to make students more aware of their part in the educational process by setting out clear and concise rules designed not just to punish but also to motivate the errant student.

In the past few years Eastside's enrollment has remained fairly stable as compared to other school districts, in the county and outside, whose enrollments have dropped significantly. Not bad for a school system which has been the butt of criticism both direct and indirect, by other news media in reporting administrative problems.

Eastside's colors are flying high again in education. And it is due to a responsive school board motivated by an innovative superintendent and principal, a nucleus of faculty members—and the students themselves.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. Would you please discuss old bedwarmers? —Harry, Oceanside, Calif.

A. In the pre-central heating period, a bedwarmer was an absolute necessity. When filled with coals they warmed the bed prior to reiring. Brass and copper versions boasted intricate engraved or pierced designs throughout the 19th century. The earlier iron handles were eventually replaced by wooden handles of oak, walnut, applewood or ash. Reproductions abound. However, the antique specimens generally show smoke marks on the pan, and the wood may be lighter around the tip of the handle. Sometimes the joints between the handle and the pan have become loose from constant use. Despite the rash of reproductions, bedwarmers remain hot sellers within the antique marketplace. Value guide: brass, ash handle, circa 1850, $175.

Q. Can you assist me in evaluating a collection of glass bread plates? —Sue, Anderson, Ind.

A. American glass houses of the late 19th century marketed an astonishing variety of bread plates, all have managed to capture collector attention. Value guide: Bible, $55; Bunker Hill Monument, $80; Garden of Eden, $30; Independence Hall, $175; Queen Victoria, $50; Three Graces, $65; Waste Not, Want Not, $45.

Q. I'm smitten with Gibson Girl collectibles. What are some of the finds I might encounter in this category? —Sally, Gainesville, Fla.

A. When Charles Dana Gibson created the Gibson Girl in the 1890s, the entire nation fell underneath her spell. As newspapers and magazines devoted space to the Gibson Girl, she developed into a business bonanza. While the pen and ink drawings by Charles Dana Gibson rate as super finds in this field, there are dozens of lesser known acquiitions for the eagle eye shopper. These include hats, pillows, shoes, silver spoons, wall hangings, buttons, buckles, belts, pictures and ceramic presentations. And as with other collecting categories, be prepared to expect the unexpected. Value guide: Gibson Girl pillow case, $45.

Q. Have you any information on the Bennett firm of Baltimore? I have a floral decorated majolica pitcher from this concern. —Mrs. S. P., Hagerstown, Md.

A. The Edwin Bennett firm of Baltimore, Md., established in 1846, scored a lengthy list of ceramic achievements throughout the Victorian era. The company's pitchers and jugs ornamented with raised relief motifs, as well as Rickingham glaze and Rebecca at the Well teapots qualify as outstanding accomplishments. In addition, the firm excelled in the production of majolica, employing colored glazes on utilitarian and ornamental objects. Marked pieces, generally incorporating the firm's name and address, fairly fly off flea market tabletops. Value guide: Majolica pitcher, florals, 8 inches tall, $95.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 390, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weatherstripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost you a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well.

When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat.

When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional energy-saving ideas, visit or call our office and ask for our free SAVE* booklets. They'll get you in the habit of saving energy morning, noon and night.

*Save America's Valuable Energy

We give it our best.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. Can you assist us in dating a Humpty Dumpty mechanical bank we recently acquired? —Barbara, St. Louis. Mo.

A. In the closing of decades of the 19th century the whimsical automations of mechanical banks were indeed enticing to watch. Simply by priming the mechanism with a penny the show began. There were close to 250 intriguing designs, none more popular with the penny crowd than Humpty Dumpty. The clown depicted by the bank was a popular character created by a famous pantomimist of the period. This mechanical marvel, marketed by the Sheperd Hardware Co. in 1882, rates as a spectacular flea market attraction, despite its $275 price tag.

Q. What information can you furnish on a maroon and coral face powder box bearing the name Constance Bennett, accompanied by a crown? —Sarah, Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. Constance Bennett, one of Hollywood's most glittering stars of the 1930s, marketed a line of personal beauty aids through Sears mail order catalogs of the period. According to advertisements, they were "priced within the reach of all." No one could dispute this claim for lipsticks, cream rouges, foundation creams and other beauty accessories were modestly priced at between 45 cents and $1.19. And to think they were created for Miss Bennett's personal use by a "noted chemist." The maroon and coral containers housing these bureau top necessities currently delight Art Deco devotees. Value guide: face powder box, $13.

Q. Woud you please assist me in evaluating a small collection of World War II posters?—Harry, Houston, Texas.

A. World War II posters designed for enlistment drives, food conservation or for bond selling promotions, rank as front line finds with flea market entrepreneurs. Value guide: Avenge December 7th, 20 inches by 30 inches, $90; "If You Must Talk, Tell It To The Marines," 20 inches by 30 inches, $30; "Join The Waves, Your Country Needs You Now," 29 inches by 40 inches, $60; "She's A Swell Plane, Give Us More," 28 inches by 40 inches, $40; "This Is Nazi Brutality," 30 inches by 40 inches, $225.

Q. Have you any information on by "Boss" washing machine? —Eleanor, Chattanooga, Tenn.

A. Although a far cry from modern electrically powered contrivances the Boss washing machine of the late 19th century was an improvement over the primitive washboard and tub. This hand operated, cradle shaped washing machine was patented by Huenefeld Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, on July 5, 1898. At one side of the machine was an iron wheel with a wooden handle, which caused the two grooved wooden cradles inside to rock back and forth. Similar models were distributed by rival concerns during this era. Each new version was heralded for its "newly improved mechanism." Value guide: The Boss, $450.

Public Betrayed By Legislators

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the legal notices which inform taxpayers of the manner in which the officials of the various taxing units intend to spend taxpayers' money in 1982. This annual appearance of budgets has been going on for years because it is the way in which the public is informed of the proposed use of its money.

This year it is more appropriate to say publication of the budgets is the way the public FORMERLY was informed of the proposed use of its money. Why? Because this year's legal notices give only total amounts, not the breakdown which was a part of budgets published in years gone by. In other words, this year you DON'T know how your money will be spent in 1982 — unless you go dig up the information yourself. The convenience of newspapers has been taken away from you.

SOMEWHERE AT THE STATE LEVEL A DECISION HAS BROUGHT MORE SECRECY IN TAX MONEY MATTERS. It doesn't matter whether it is the elected members of the State Legislature or the appointed members of the State Board of Tax Commissioners, a move has been made which is TOTALLY CONTRADICTORY TO THE "OPEN DOOR" OR "SUNSHINE" OR "PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO KNOW" APPEAL USED BY ELECTED OFFICIALS TO GAIN PUBLIC FAVOR.

There is another point to be made, and this is admittedly of a partially selfish nature as far as newspapers are concerned. The drastic reduction in the amount of information given to the public in this year's published budgets means a drastically reduced source of income for newspapers. True, it IS only once a year for the budgets. However, when you consider that the income from publication of the budgets is reduced by some 50%, the once-a-year factor becomes significant. It's another "cost of living increase" in the form of reduced revenue.

To illustrate—in 1979 The News received $323.92 for publishing the proposed budgets for five local townships. But this year, in 1981, with two 10% line rate increases, The News will receive a total of $156.90 from those same five townships. (How many months' light bills could you pay with that $156.90 one-time-a-year income The News will get for this year???)

($323.92? That's less than a week's take-home pay at Vulcraft—and that was in 1979. This year it will be $156.90 not for one week, not for one month, but for a WHOLE YEAR as income from tax budget advertising!)

If there were efforts being made to reduce ALL public expenditures for the benefit of the taxpayer, newspapers would have no reason to feel "pitied." But that isn't the case. Proposed budgets are coping with INCREASED demands, not reduced demands. Pay of elected officials, Public Employee Retirement Fund payments, increased medical and hospital benefits — these and other items have all been going up whether there are Republicans or Democrats in office. All have apparently accepted the idea that the "right to this" and the "right to that" is ACCEPTABLE AND REASONABLE and all are following the same path in providing self-benefits and benefits for others.

BUT NOT FOR NEWSPAPERS.

An editorial appeared in these pages a couple of issues ago about the loss of local representation when a community loses its locally-owned and independently-owned weekly newspaper (and even daily papers in large communities). It is significant that just a few days later a large daily newspaper published for over 100 years in Washington, D.C. - the nation's capital, mind you - announced that it would cease publication. So, it isn't just the "little guy" who is hurting; it involves also some of the "big guys."

There are those who feel that the cost of legal notices has been too high; they never read those notices anyhow so why publish them, is their feeling. It is important to remember, as was stated a couple of issues ago, that one of the primary needs felt by our forefathers as they established permanent communities in this country was the need for a local newspaper. In a free society such as ours, it is necessary to make provision for public information by the most convenient and most permanent means possible. That need can be filled conveniently and permanently ONLY by newspapers, weekly or daily, big or little.

Charges made for publishing official information, such as taxing unit budgets, have traditionally been a sustaining source of income for newspapers, income received for having provided the means to inform the public of private and public legal matters. Take away that income and you reduce the chances of newspapers to remain in business. Take newspapers out of circulation and you increase the chances of having greater power exercised by governmental officials. (The rates charged for legal advertising are NOT set by the individual newspapers; they are established by the STATE.)

In Indiana, newspapers have been double-crossed; so has the general public. In 1979 the per-line rate for legal advertising was raised by the State Legislature. It was the first raise in TEN YEARS. During that ten years the cost of everything else virtually doubled. How much of a raise did newspapers get? Believe it or not, the raise was but ten percent for 1980 with four more ten percent raises in the following four years—after NO raises for ten years. That ten percent is based not on each previous year but on the year 1979. In effect then, the fifth year raise will not be ten percent but rather seven percent.

Where does the double-cross come in? Well, newspaper income for legal advertising was raised PER LINE OR SQUARE. But what good does it do to get a unit raise when the public officials two years later reduce the amount of information in budget advertising by 50%. And the public is double-crossed because, at the same time that it hears its elected state officials taking credit for increasing "home rule" and protecting the "public's right to know," these same state officials are taking out of budget advertising (or allowing it to be taken out) the detailed proposed expenditures.

As you read the budgets in this issue, keep asking yourself, "Is this legal notice really telling me anything?"

My answer is a resounding "NO!"

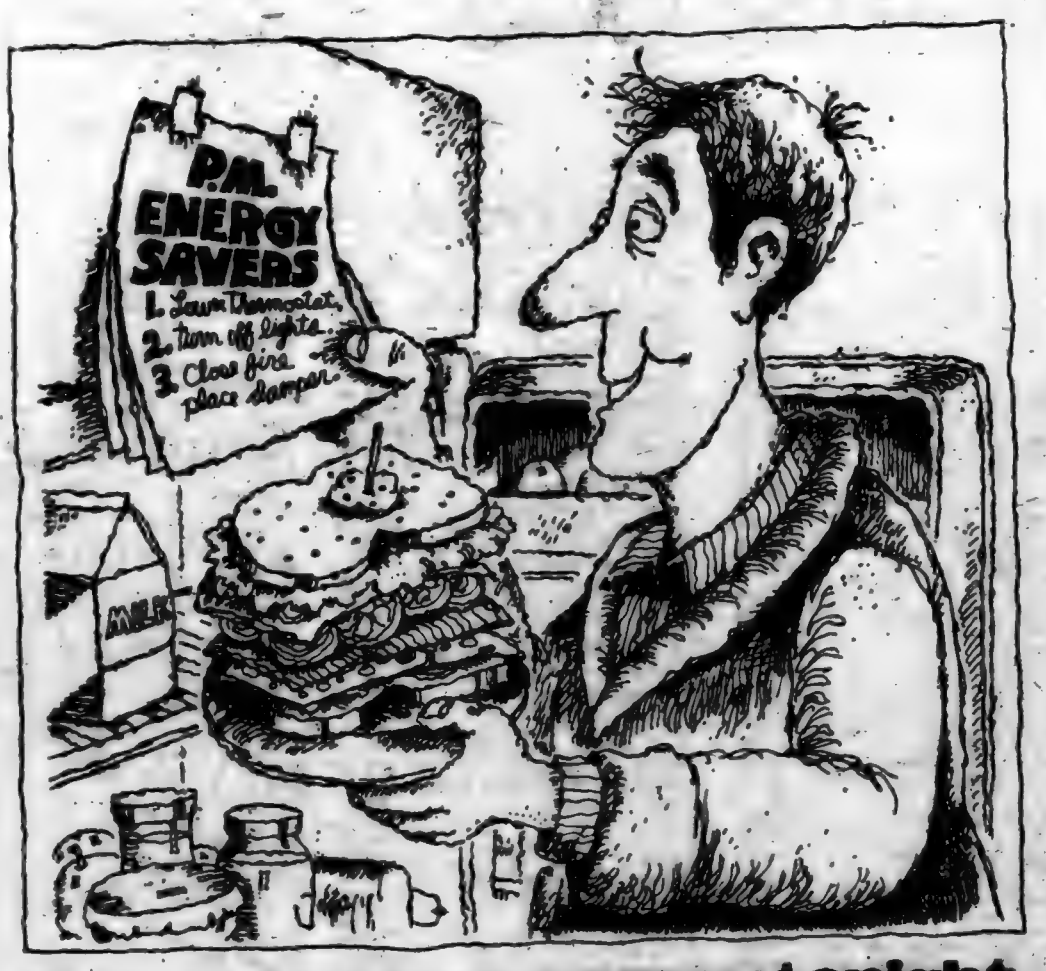
A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A free Hi-Ear actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 500, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)



Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weatherstripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost you a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well.

When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat.

When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional energy-saving ideas, visit or call our office and ask for our free SAVE® booklets. They'll get you in the habit of saving energy morning, noon and night.

The Riverdale Youth League put on another successful week of boys' and girls' softball and baseball tourneys in July. Accompanying photos tell the story of community and parental interest in youth activities.

The best part was that the Riverdale Senior Girls won the local 1981 softball championship.

Riverdale almost had a second champion as the major boys battled Woodburn into extra innings before losing 5-4 in the ninth inning.

Four tourneys were put on during the week: major and minor boys and junior and senior birls.

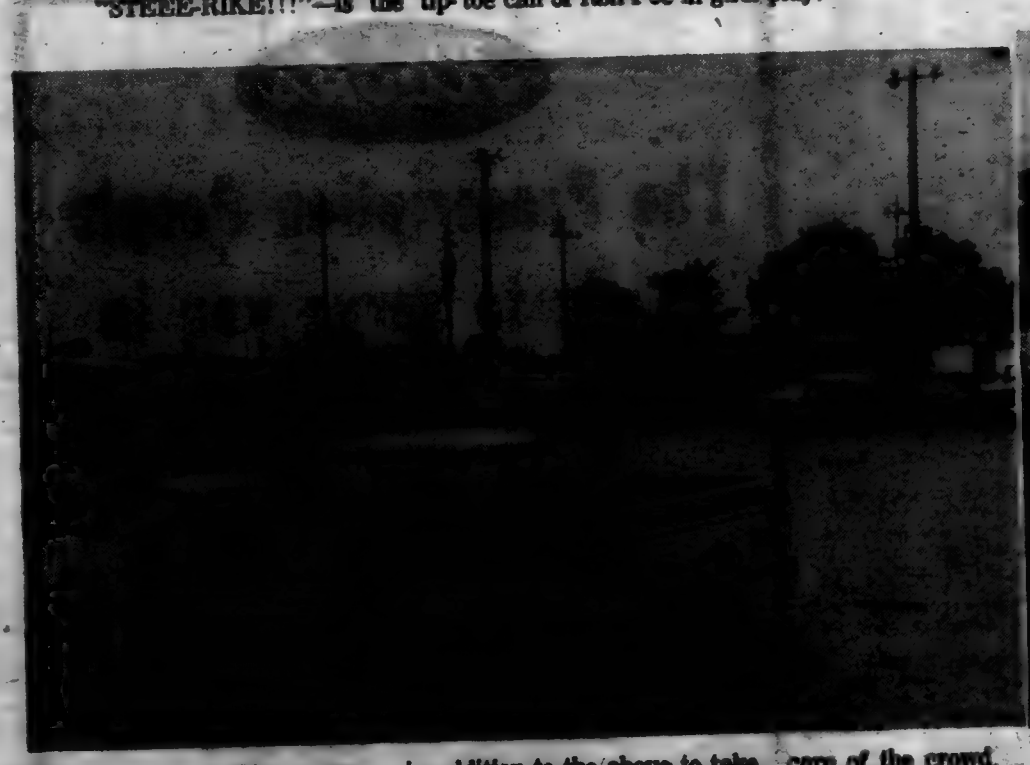
Classic batting form in the swing of a boys game batter.

"Standing room only"—fans even brought their own chairs.

"STEEE-RIKE!!!"—is the tip-toe call of Ron Fee in girls play.

A view along the third base line with the packed bleachers. — Who is the straw-hatted spectator at the right???



There was more parking space in addition to the above to take care of the crowd.

Action at third base in the senior girls competition.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

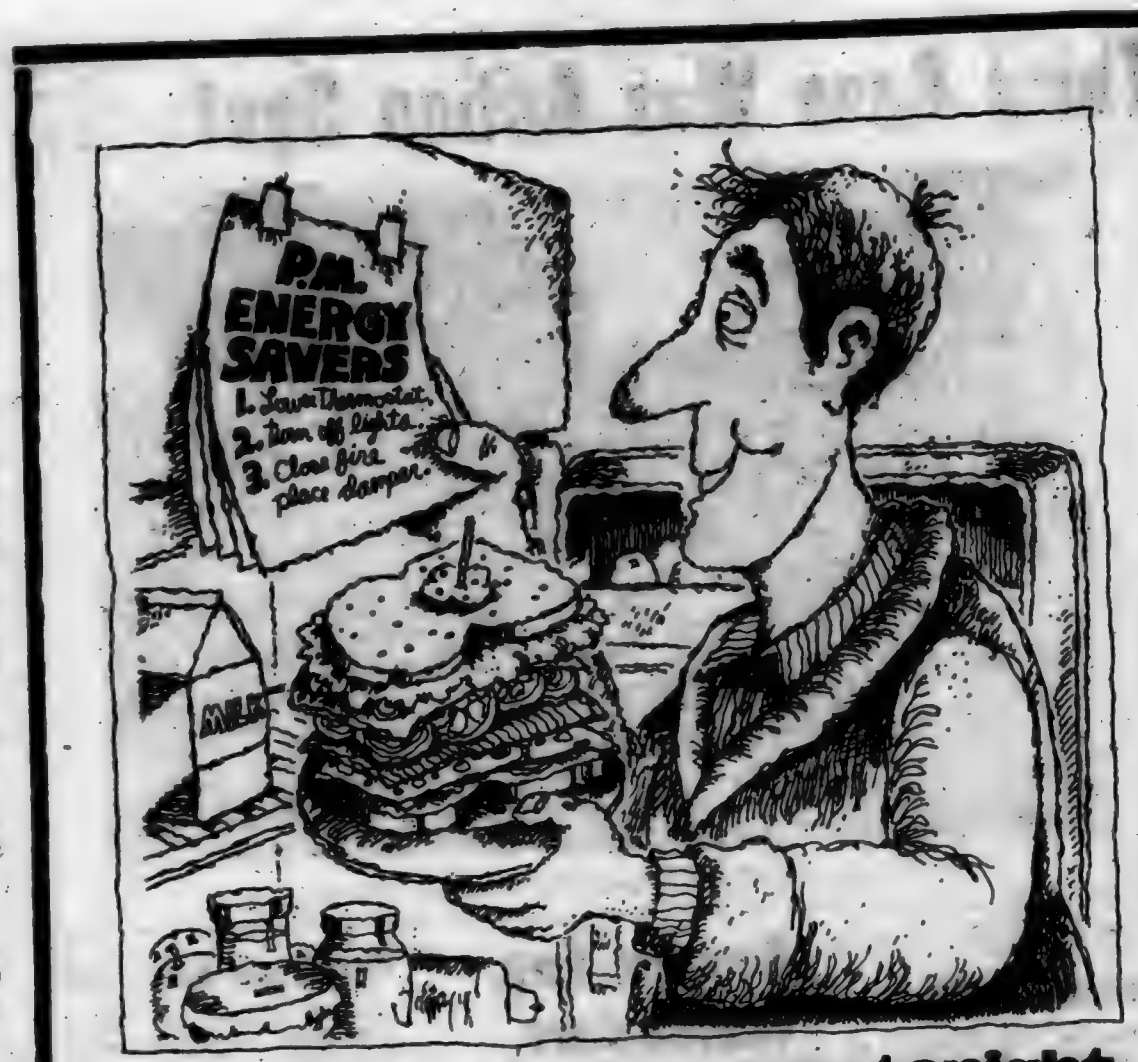
Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the wear cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Helar, Box 390, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)



Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weatherstripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost you a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well.

When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat.

When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional energy-saving ideas, visit or call our office and ask for our free SAVE® booklets. They'll get you in the habit of saving energy morning, noon and night.

Board Considers, Rejects 'Self Pay Raise'; Affirms 'Old' Fire Phone

At its August meeting, the Town Board of Saint Joe took significant action in several matters.

One "stunning" suggestion from board president Ted Haberkorn was that the pay of board members be doubled, from $500 per year to $1,000 per year, and the pay of the clerk be more than doubled, from $650 per year to $1,500 per year. He explained that the state legislature this year made it possible for city and town officials to raise their own pay each year, if they so desire. Mr. Haberkorn said that several attorneys had given unofficial opinions in general agreement that raising one's own pay during a term in office is unconstitutional; but the law is apparently on the books to allow such self-pay increases.

The suggestion was made "half seriously, half jokingly" the board president said. "It's against my principles to propose such a thing, but the self-pay-raise thing is out of hand and it doesn't matter which political party is in office. The public must somehow get jolted into realizing what is happening."

The board president did not push for passage of his suggestion. The other two board members were split in their opinion about raising their own pay.

Due to the confusion caused by an unauthorized and unapproved change in the fire call emergency number, the board moved to make the Saint Joe exchange number (337-5555) the officially recognized fire emergency number until further notice. The confusion in the matter was accented by a report at the meeting of a 15-minute wait recently before a Saint Joe resident could get through to the 925-3985 number which was designated by the local fire department earlier this year as the new emergency number. However, since that number is the one used by the county sheriff's office for general business calls as well as for fire emergencies locally for both Spencerville and Saint Joe, the board had not totally accepted the change. Public confusion resulted.

Inasmuch as the local town board has the responsibility for liabilities related to fire department functioning, the public statement was made declaring 337-5555 to be the fire number recognized by the town board.

In other matters, the board voted to advertise additional appropriations for completion of the town hall interior, installation of rest rooms in the building, and purchase of office equipment.

Monies for the projects will come from the Capital Cumulative Investment Fund (C.C.I.F.), a state distribution of cigarette tax receipts.

The board held a review of the proposed budget for 1982. Although tentative approval had been given to seek no more funds than obtained in 1981, a few categories were questionable.

In other budget matters, the president suggested eliminating the "compensation of firemen" item in the 1982 budget because the State Board of Accounts has indicated to clerk-treasurer Emma Frank in the past that a lump sum cannot be turned over to the fire department treasury, a practice followed for decades by past town boards. The president suggested that an item of $1,200 be included in allowances for fire department purposes. The suggestion was agreed to by board members Larry McKown and Paula Tinstman.

A few other adjustments in the General Fund were made in accounts within the fund.

The president read a portion of a letter-copy from the Chicago regional office of the Environmental Protection Agency in which the Indiana Stream Pollution Control Board is notified that consideration of a sewage grant be set aside until certain discrepancies are taken care of. The matter goes back two years to August of 1979 and involves the first phase of applying for grants, according to the EPA which said it had received no further information from the project engineering firm, Clyde E. Williams & Associates. The firm had indicated to the EPA that such information was forthcoming in August of 1979.

The board president said he sent a letter to the EPA in Chicago notifying that office that the present town board has received no contact from any source concerning the matter since it came into office 18 months ago and that the board has no knowledge of any discrepancies in the grant applications. He also informed the EPA that he had requested research by the town attorney into the matter of any power held by the local town board in establishing minimum standards regarding size of septic tanks and inspection of tanks.

No reply has been received.

Mrs. Frank said she had received a telephone call the Friday before the August board meeting from the engineering firm asking to meet with the board in September. Mr. Haberkorn noted that the only reason for the phone call was that letter from the EPA which "shook up" the firm.

Bills allowed were:

Reader Says Saint Joe Is' Great Little Town'

An Open Letter to the Editor of the St. Joe News

Dear Ted,

I would very much appreciate your indulgence by allowing me the use of your precious time and space in your newspaper to print the following letter of thanks to all my friends in St. Joe for their cards and gifts in expression of sympathy at the loss of my uncle, Zay Sailer.

I have rewritten this letter several times in an attempt to express myself more adequately and, still, the words do not convey the depth of gratitude and feeling I have for the people of St. Joe. The kindnesses shown to me and my uncle during my Aunt Edie's illness and death and in these past three years up to his death have been immeasurable. To say that I am totally humbled by the innate goodness of people like Maryellen and "Mike" Beaty, Mae and Walt Ervin, and Edna and Carl Perkins, along with many others, is a gross understatement. I have learned so much of neighborliness and sharing and giving and love from these people who took me to their hearts and made me one of their own.

Many of the people of your great little town know me and accept me in this way. I feel as if I belong to St. Joe, for it, and the people in it, have played a most important and beautiful role in my life. I have a great emptiness in me because I feel that beauty is lost to me now and I will miss that part of my life unbelievably.

I have walked your streets, shopped your stores, swam your creek and gravel pit, met Uncle Zay at the depot returning from work on the B&O, carried drinking water from the well across the road from their house, cheered on the team at the ball diamond, swung on the swings at the old school house, nosed around Christ Sailer's blacksmith shop, roller skated up and down Spencer Street, played with some great kids, had "tea" parties under my aunt's apple tree (drinking red pop, of course, and eating homemade sugar cookies), fished in the river, etc., etc., etc. But, best of all, I learned the true meaning of goodness and friendship.

In a world turned upside down with quarrelling among nations, strikes, hunger, disasters and much more, it is both rewarding and comforting to know that a little town in good old Indiana with people like you still exists. It somehow proves that America is still the RICHEST of all nations in the best wealth of all — its people.

THANK YOU and God bless you one and one and all.

Nancy Zehrung

Once again Nancy has reminded us, the residents of a small community, why it's more fun —and more memorable—to live in a small town. —Ed.

Volunteer Fund-Raising Open For Public Inspection

(Editor's note—one of the problems in Saint Joe's community-fire department relationship has been the unwillingness of certain fire department members to inform the public as to the department's use of funds. It took some five months for the Town Board to obtain a financial report from the department and that report was itself somewhat incomplete. Though the following article concerns another state, the principle involved applies to any community, regardless of state boundaries.)

In a unanimous decision dated July 3, 1980, New York State's highest court held the records of certain fund-raising activities of a village volunteer fire department open to public inspection under New York's State's Freedom of Information Law.

The controversy which led to the lawsuit, Westchester Rockland Newspapers, Inc., vs. Kimball, began when a staff writer for one of the Westchester Rockland Newspapers asked the chief and company officers of the volunteer fire department of the village of Ossining for access to the records of a public lottery sponsored by the volunteer fire department. The inquiry was forwarded to the village records access officer who denied it on the grounds that the fire department's fund-raising activities were not related to its firefighting functions and thus not within the meaning of New York's Freedom of Information Act. This act, found in Article 6 of New York State's Public Officers Law, provides that all agency records are open to the public unless they fall within one of eight categories of exemptions. Under the section, the term "agency" includes "any state or municipal department, board, bureau, division, commission, committee, public authority, public corporation, council, officer or other governmental entity performing a governmental or proprietary function for the state or any one or more municipalities thereof."

After denial by the records officer, the newspaper appealed to the village corporation counsel, who raised a further objection that, since part of the proceeds of the lottery were disbursed to the families of needy or deceased firefighters, disclosure would invade their privacy. The request was again denied.

The newspaper brought suit against the records access officer, the mayor and the trustees of the village. In opposing the suit, the village repeated their previous reasons for refusing to disclose the records, and added that these were no longer in their custody and control but in that of the Westchester County District Attorney pursuant to an investigation of the lottery's alleged violation of the New York State Penal Law.

The lower court ordered disclosure of the records, but permitted the village to delete details which would identify those who had received any of the funds based on economic need.

In deciding the case in favor of the newspaper, the (Court of Appeals) made several determinations of significance to volunteer fire departments. First, the court rejected the theory that when applying the Freedom of Information Act, there is a distinction between a volunteer organization upon which a local government relies for the performance of an essential public service, and an organic arm of the government. The court cited the state legislature's expressed policy declaring it "incumbent upon the state and its localities to extend public accountability wherever and whenever feasible."

The insistence by village officials that because the fire department engages in both governmental and private activities, the records of its nongovernmental functions are inaccessible to the public, was also emphatically rejected by the court, on the grounds that no such distinction is made by the statute. The court pointed out that the definition of "record" in the statute does not hinge on the purpose or the function to which it relates. It also noted that, at least in public perception, there is a considerable crossover between governmental and nongovernmental activities.

To illustrate that there is no distinction between functions in the public's eyes, the court makes this most telling comment: "How often does the taxpayer-lottery participant view his purchase as his 'tax' for the voluntary public service or safeguarding his or her home from fire? And what of the effect on confidence in government when this fund-raising effort, though seemingly an extracurricular event, ran afoul of our penal law?"

Many states have laws requiring accurate and detailed records of all department activities.

Volunteers can often get so wrapped up in their internal perception of themselves and their work that they can lose sight of how they are perceived by the very community which they serve. This discord in perception can have drastic consequences. When the community loses sight of the unique service that volunteers provide, the result can be loss of trust and respect for the department which will impair its ability to recruit members and raise funds—the first step toward the gradual extinction of the volunteer tradition.

Beyond preparing for scrutiny, volunteers must go forward to meet their community halfway, or more. They must not only avoid the appearance of impropriety, they must proclaim their volunteer tradition, seek the respect and support of their community, and encourage participation in all aspects of their activities.

—by Paula E. Kennedy, attorney and member of New York's Long Beach Volunteer Fire Department, in the April 1981 issue of "Firehouse," a national publication for volunteer firemen.

Adult Conduct Code Established

DeKalb Eastside Athletic Director Curtis White has announced school policy concerning adult unsportsmanlike conduct at school athletic events.

The code is as follows:

"Schools are occasionally embarrassed by the unsportsmanlike conduct of adult fans. In some cases, the actions of the adults become quite erious when the officials and school personnel are verbally abused, confronted by adults, etc.

"The following procedure will be adhered to when a report of unsportsmanlike adult conduct is made.

"1. A certified letter will be sent to the adult listing the conduct and asking him/her to appear before the Board of Education at a prescribed time.

"2. The adult will appear before the Board of Education and show reason why he/she should not be barred from attending future interscholastic school activities.

"3. A decision will be made by the Board of Education as to what type of disciplinary action, if any, should be taken as a result of the hearing.

"4. If the adult fails to appear, the school will then have reason to conclude that this lack of assurance would indicate that the unsportsmanlike manner might happen again.

"This hearing is provided to involve due process and protect the interscholastic participation of Eastside with the IHSAA and NECC and all independent schools.

"Proper disciplinary action will be imposed by the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District Board of School Trustees after full due process has been granted to those involved."

Along with the due process procedure, a "Team Bus Policy 1981-1982" has been set up as follows:

"Due to the fact that no rules or policies have ever been stated regarding the procedure for who rides the varsity or junior high team buses, the following guidelines have been established and will be followed for the school year 1981-1982.

"Whenever a team bus will travel to another school to participate in a game of any kind, the following procedures will be followed:

"VARSITY EVENTS

"1. Only team personnel will be allowed to travel on the team bus (coaches, team players, managers).

"2. The head coach of that sport may advise on any others riding the bus, but the final decision will be made by the athletic director of the school (cheerleaders, teachers, media, students, adults, etc.).

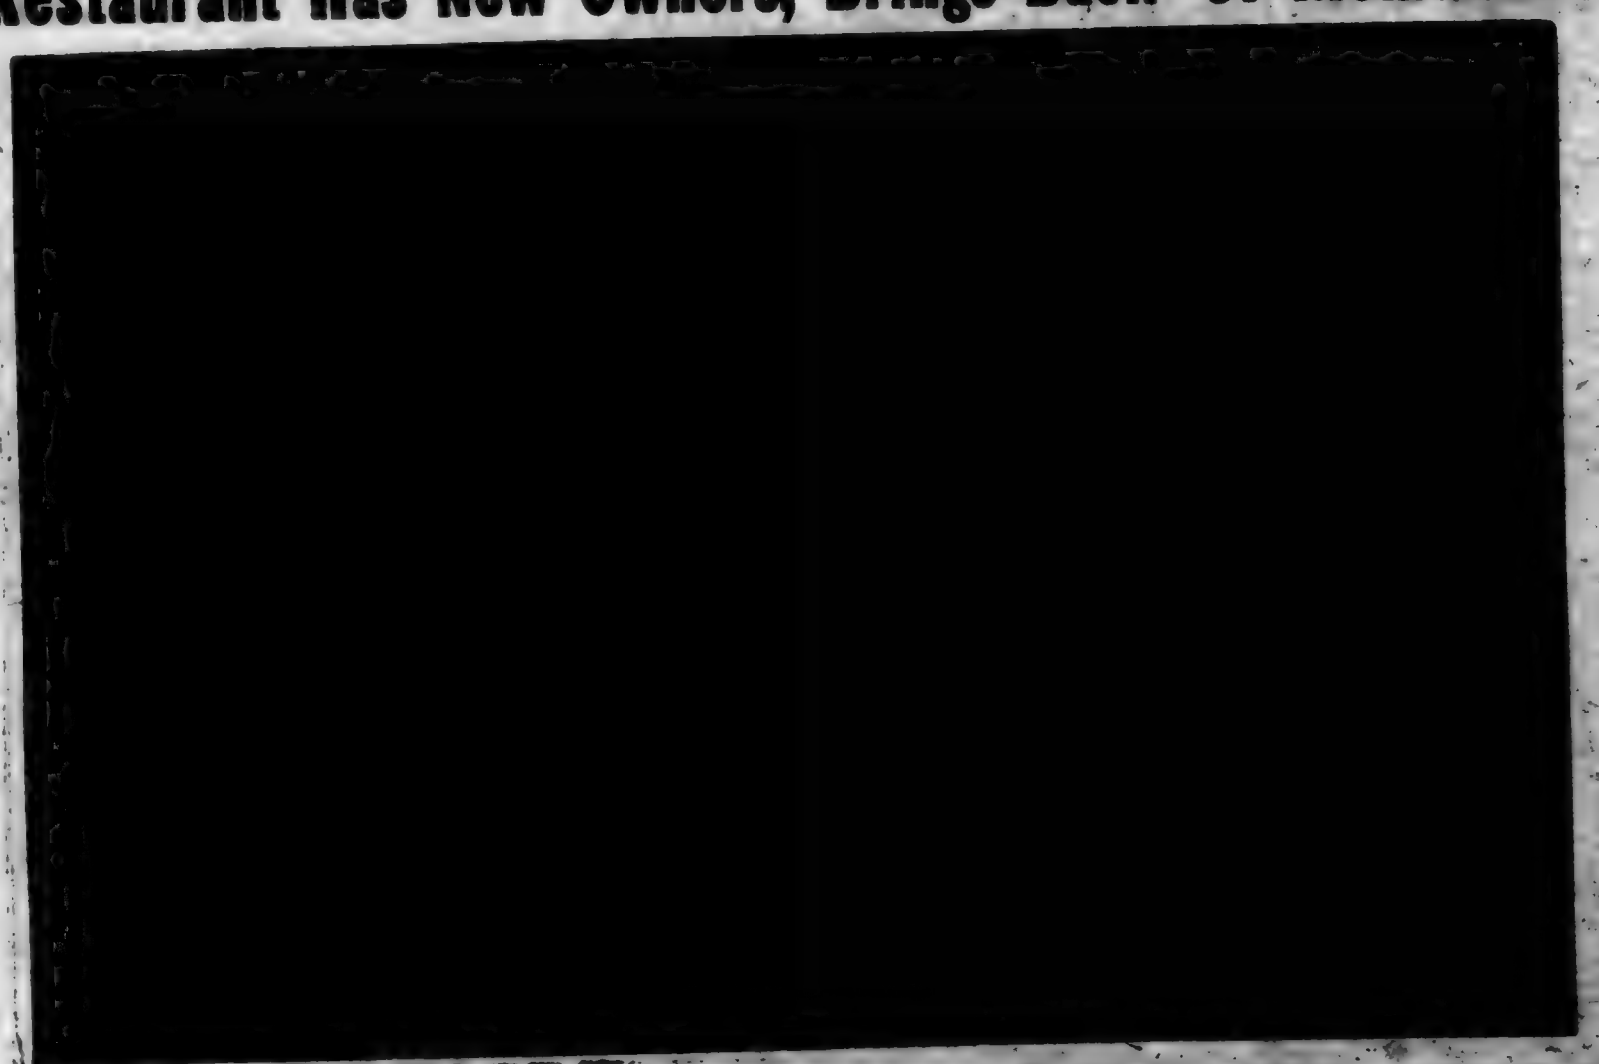
"NON-VARSITY EVENTS

"1. Only team personnel will be allowed to travel on the team bus (coaches, team players, managers).

"2. Cheerleaders may travel on the team bus.

"3. The individual coaches of that sport may advise on any others riding the bus, but the final decision will be made by the athletic director of the school (teachers, media, students, adults, etc.)."

Local Restaurant Has New Owners; Brings Back '61 Memories



The local restaurant, "Mom's Place" the past few years, has been purchased by MM John Schmucker of east of Spencerville. The new owners took over Saturday, August 1.

The Schmuckers bought the restaurant from "Butch" and Wanda Coburn of Saint Joe.

The transfer of ownership apparently went without a "hitch" in continuity of service to the public. And one of the restaurant's steady customers, Howard Hall of near Saint Joe, commented on the inclusion in the menu of current in-season garden crops by Mrs. Schmucker to enhance the homecooking appeal of the small restaurant.

Pictured here are Bill and Berneda Vinson and ??? in 1961 when the restaurant was built. The Vinsons' grand opening was held Saturday, June 17, 1961, with free chicken dinners served to all patrons from 11:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. that day. Later that year noon lunches were advertised on a regular basis — for 75 cents.

—Ah, the good "old" days!

Pair Apprehended In Local Branch Bank Robbery

Knisely National Bank at St. Joe, which opened in July of 1975, had its "baptism" into the ranks of robber victims Wednesday, Sept. 9. A lone thief entered the bank on that dreary, rainy day attired in "old man" clothes including a mask, black cowboy hat - and carrying a blue revolver. Though the amount taken has not been officially disclosed, cash was taken from two tellers at a time when Social Security checks were being received locally and just before payday at the Vulcraft plant.

Security-movie film showed the thief in action. But it was another felony charge against an accomplice which brought the arrest of two men Sept. 10. Dennis C. Frye, 18, of Auburn has been charged with aiding another in an armed robbery. He is accused of driving Donald W. Gallagher, Jr., 29, also of Auburn, to St. Joe, waiting for the robbery to be committed and then driving the thief from town.

Gallagher was arrested last Thursday in Allen county for violation of a federal firearms regulation involving a past felon owning a firearm. The year-old gun violation was being processed at the time of the St. Joe Bank theft. This led to further investigation including a search at the home of Gallagher's father where police found an old-man mask, black cowboy hat and a blue revolver.

Also, cash used in an automobile transaction at Fort Wayne Lincoln-Mercury led to the recovery of some of the stolen bank money.

DeKalb County police, Auburn police, Indiana State police and the FBI co-operated in the investigation.

For a few days following the robbery, bank manager Mary Beatty and tellers Arla Sechler and Karen Shaffer were obviously "shook" by the experience.

Board Tentatively Entitles $2500 To Humane Shelter

The Town Board of Saint Joe met Monday in the Town Office with president Ted Haberkorn and members Larry McKown and Paula Tinstman present. Clerk-treasurer Emma Frank could not attend. Others present were Helen Sanders, Dorothy Dunn and Pat Rohrer representing the DeKalb County Humane Society; MM Jerry Kirkpatrick; local humane officer Betty Baker; street superintendent John Bopp; and waterworks superintendent Maurice Kline.

The humane society representatives presented information concerning the delay in opening the county humane shelter. Some $5,000 is needed immediately in order to install cages and doors for the 27 runs at the shelter. Area business and industry will be contacted for donations. Saint Joe is the first among the cities and towns in the county to be contacted about the present urgent need. It was stated that tentative plans call for a charge of somewhere between $10 and $13 per animal brought to the shelter as a means to providing some of the operating expenses when the shelter opens.

The board was receptive to the presentation. Upon consideration of the benefits for the town under planned daily pick-up of animals, eliminating the need for the present local holding, feeding and caring for animals for three days plus cost of disposal, the board accepted the suggestion by the president that $2,500 be donated to the humane society by unanimous vote, subject to availability from revenue sharing funds on hand.

MM Kirkpatrick presented a proposal for providing snow plowing service for the coming winter on Saint Joe's streets and alleys and at the cemetery. The charge proposed was $25 per hour. The board unanimously agreed that last winter's services by the Kirkpatricks was very satisfactory and accepted the proposal.

Mr. Bopp reported that a drain tile problem at the west edge of town had been taken care of. He was authorized to work with Roy Eck Backhoe Service to repair the large blocked tile at the east end of town. That tile handles surface water on the main street and drainage from a number of residences.

Limestone for street and cemetery upkeep was authorized as well as a load of sand for use on icy streets this coming winter. The president suggested that frames to hold barrels of sand might be constructed and placed at trouble sites for use by motorists.

A misunderstanding concerning the painting of local water hydrants was resolved and Mr. Kline said a broken hydrant has now been repaired. He also reported that since he assumed his duties almost a year and a half ago, there have been but three unsatisfactory water tests according to state reports and two questionable samples. And the reasons for those particular tests were explained to the board. He further reported that he and Richard Musser had replaced a defective water pressure switch which had apparently prevented alternate use of the town's two wells for the past few years. A new bladder tank has also been installed. He requested that the registration fee for the state exam for waterworks employees be paid and the board authorized the payment.

Mr. McKown offered his help in doing a complete and thorough flushing of hydrants in the near future.

During the discussion about waterworks matters, the president noted that no one except the waterworks superintendent is authorized by ordinance to do any work on fire hydrants or to turn water service off or on to a residence or business. Also, property owners are responsible for having the shutoff valve accessible at all times. There have been instances in the past he said where these regulations have not been followed and only emergency circumstances permit other procedures.

Two requests for permission to remove trees outside property lines were allowed, one subject to further inspection before removal.

Bills allowed were:

Town—Saint Joe News, budget publication 28.53; DeKalb Fire & Safety Equipment, ranger boots 71.35; Auburn Veterinary Clinic, animal disposal 28.00; Squier Sawmill 66.00; Betty Baker, gas and dog food 33.25; Butler Bulletin, budget publication 22.64; Brown Furniture & Hardware, supplies 119.41; Walter Miller, mowing 400.00; John Bopp, labor 252.50; Jiggs' Motor Service, gas and oil 47.60; I&M, two months 670.00; Hess & Son, trash removal 365.70; Lutterbein Lumber Company, 4 picnic tables and 5 Anderson combination storm-screen units, 643.00.

Government Should Not Compete With Private Business

— by Wilson S. Johnson

In the excellent book, Better Government at Half the Price, authors James T. Bennett and Manuel H. Johnson point out that government competition with the private sector is wasteful and costly to the taxpayer and costly to the small-business person.

A recent study by the General Accounting Office for the U.S. Congress shows just how serious is the matter of government competition with private business. GAO says "an estimated 400,000 federal employees are currently operating over 11,000 commercial or industrial activities at an estimated cost (to the taxpayer) approaching $19 billion annually."

Small-business people don't need the GAO to tell them about goverment competition! One business in California reports losing a contract with the National Guard when that government organization opened its own retreading plant in Utah. In Kansas, Agriculture Department county agents undercut small-business people by selling seeds, chemicals and other products at cost. In Indiana, the Department of Energy is elbowing in on the private sector by selling insulation, and a small-businessman in Ohio who rents tools says the Department of Housing and Urban Development is encroaching on his business by loaning tools free.

As early as 1952, President Eisenhower emphasized the necessity for the private sector to provide goods and services to the government, rather than at taxpayers expense. But in recent years, that principle has been eroded, and the result has been unfair competition by government in the marketplace, a loss of tax revenues from businesses that would have provided the goods and services the government produced, and higher costs to taxpayers—because studies show government cannot produce as efficiently as those who do it for profit.

The problem is becoming significant at the state and local levels too. The reason is the large amounts of federal dollars reaching states and localities via revenue sharing. And because there is no real commitment to the private sector at the federal level, states and cities are not even required to conduct cost comparisons before using federal money to compete with business.

There are signs that the problem is finally being recognized and that improvements can be expected. In Arizona, the Government Competition with Private Enterprise Act is now law. It requires a review of all programs with an eye to contracting out wherever it is in the public interest to do so. And it calls for a sales tax on all goods and services sold by state or local governments—thereby removing some of the price advantage they enjoyed over their private competition.

At the federal level, Sen. Hayakawa has been holding hearings in his subcommittee of the Small Business Committee to develop legislation which will reaffirm the policy of reliance on the competitive private enterprise system used by the federal government.

What is needed is a return to the principle stated emphatically in President Eisenhower's 1952 directive: a distinction between the proper role of the government (to govern) and the proper role of private enterprise (to conduct business).

Area Plant Subject of TV Show

Chuck Rosenberry of Saint Joe passes on this article from the Kraft employees newsletter in Kendallville.

"On Tuesday, July 21, Kendallville turned Hollywood for a day. The event was the filming of a segment on how marshmallows are made for the upcoming syndicated television program "You Asked For It," to be hosted by Rich Little. And, although Mr. Little wasn't in Kendallville himself, the film crew provided enough excitement for the day.

The crew which operates out of Cleveland, Ohio, arrived early in the morning and set up their "base" in the Conference Room. Also on hand for the filming were Mary Angee Welsh, Kraft's Communications Programs Manager, and Paul Ward who is National Product Manager.

After a short briefing with the producer, the crew moved out into the production area for the actual shooting. The marshmallow production was filmed from its start in the kitchen, to its finish at the loading dock. Each step along the line was filmed and then filmed again. Everything had to be perfect, from the lighting to the camera position, and the final four to seven minutes to be seen this fall on TV was the result of much work and planning.

The presence of the film crew not only stirred the interest of our own employees, it also attracted the interest of the local news media. The Kendallville News-Sun gave the filming front page coverage in its evening newspaper, and WPTA-TV from Fort Wayne sent up its own news film crew which video taped the filming, and then reported it on its nightly newscast.

All in all, it was a very exciting, interesting, and informative day as we all learned just how the world of television runs."

According to Chuck, the segment filmed on July 21 will be aired on WPTA TV, channel 21 on September 22 at 7:00 p.m.

Phillips focused on the importance of making every student feel he is an expert in some areas and on celebrating students' achievements.

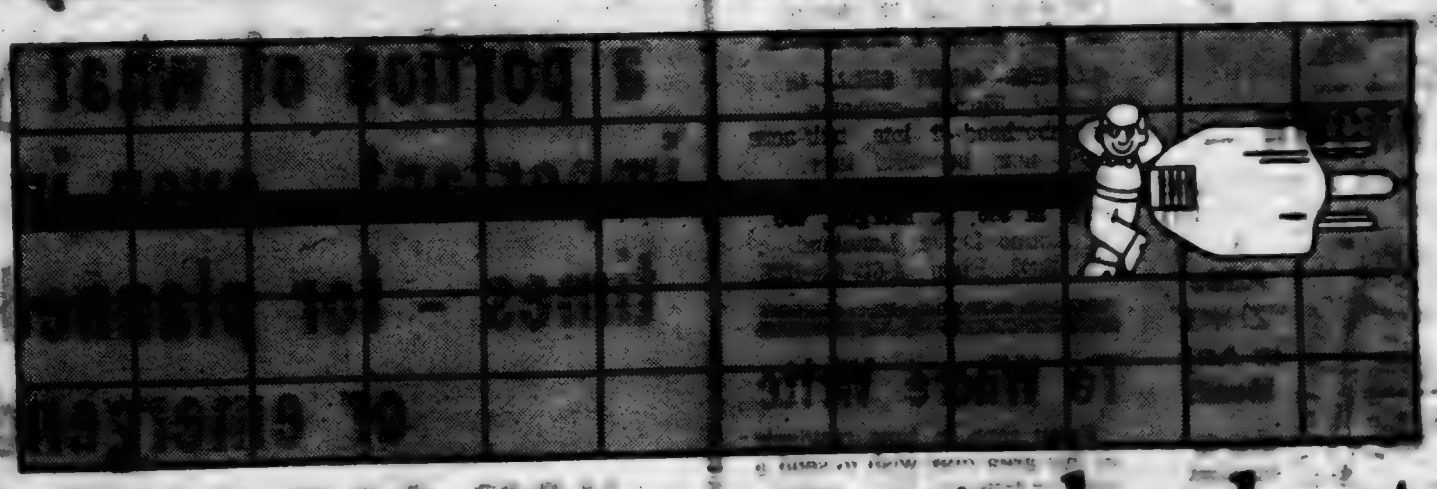
The Equal Payment Plan.



A convenient way to budget for your electric bill.

Some household expenses are fairly steady throughout the year. But your electric bill varies from month to month because your electric usage fluctuates with the changing seasons. The bill is usually higher in the winter. It dips a little in the spring months, then, for most people, rises during the air conditioning season, before dropping again in the fall.

We can't do anything about the weather, but we can help you smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill. And that's by offering you our Equal Payment Plan.

With the Equal Payment Plan, we bill you a fixed amount each month based on your average usage.

Every six months we'll review your account so you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, down or staying about the same. The bill at the end of the twelfth month is the "settle-up" bill.

Many of our customers are already taking advantage of the Equal Payment Plan. If it sounds like a good idea to you, simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

We give it our best.

WIFF Tells of Program Changes

WIFF and WDKB-FM in Auburn began joint programming on Monday, Sept. 14, 1981, according to station Pres. Wayne Paradise and assistant manager Jerry Clark. Now programming easy listening music, WDKB-FM has joined WIFF in programming modern country music. With the two stations joined together, area listeners are able to hear this area's only stereo album country format.

In addition to changing the format on WDKB-FM, station officials have announced that application has been made to change the WDKB-FM call letters to the original WIFF-FM so that the two Auburn stations will be known as WIFF and WIFF-FM.

The change in format means that residents of Northeastern Indiana are able to listen to the sounds of album country at night on WDKB-FM after WIFF signs off the air at sunset each night, according to government regulations.

WDKB-FM will continue to carry area high school sporting events as well as live broadcasts of the Chicago Cubs, Notre Dame football and basketball and the Annual NBA play-offs.

Early morning religious programming remains as in the past with the two stations joining together at 10 a.m. Monday through Friday and at 8 a.m. on Saturday.

Sunday religious programming will remain the same.

WIFF and WDKB-FM will continue to be associated with the Mutual Broadcasting System carrying many special programs from Mutual as well as the hourly national newscasts and the popular over-night Larry King show from Washington, D.C.

WIFF/WDKB-FM station officials said country music has become modern and more accepted, and they are proud to be able to offer this quality programming on WDKB-FM.

With the advent of the album country format, area listeners are now able to enjoy songs recorded by their favorite artists that normally are not played if they are not "hits" of the day.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Margaret Stomberg, reporter

The Newville Home Ec Club held their meeting Sept. 9th in Hicksville at the residence of Annabell Culler who opened her home and heart to the eighteen members attending. She was assisted by Garnet West, serving as co-hostess for the day.

Lois Guiff presided and opened the meeting by asking the group to recite the Homemakers Creed followed by singing the song of the month, "Red River Valley".

Devotions and a prayer were offered by Berniece Wilder.

Roll call was answered with a remark being given about each persons' "good luck piece".

Both Annabell and Charlotte Kimmel celebrated birthdays during the month of September so the Happy Birthday song was sung by the group to honor their special day.

A short business meeting was held and plans were made for a luncheon to be held at the Grabill Inn for the Oct. 14th meeting.

All interested persons are to meet at the Newville Methodist Church at 11 a.m. on that date for the purpose of forming a car pool.

Games were played and light refreshments were served.

The meeting adjourned with the singing of the clubs' prayer song.

Farm Bill Just Artificial Sweetener

— by U.S. Senator Dan Quayle

Any relationship between the 1981 Farm Bill and a free market is more than coincidental—it is imiginary.

As usual, the Congress, despite cries for a return to a market-oriented economy, has loaded the hay wagon called the Farm Bill with price supports, acreage allotments, and import quotas. It protects some processors from inclement weather, intractable foreign competition, and incessant price fluctuations.

The Farm Bills as reported by the House and Senate Agriculture Committees contain, among other things, a title which directs the Secretary of Agriculture to support the price of raw sugar at a level not less than 19.6 cents per pound for the 1982 crop with increases in the support price over the next three years.

That 19.6 cents is the official level. In practice interest, storage, marketing, and other administrative costs would likely drive the price of sugar as high as 25 cents per pound. That should be compared to the present price of sugar which is hovering in the 12 to 14 cent range reflecting expectations of a bumper crop this fall.

The sugar market is very volatile. A drop in price of two cents, from 14 to 12, is a 15 percent reduction. However, the amount of sugar consumed in this country is so large, that any change in the price has an enormous effect on total costs. As a rough guide to this phenomenon, every additional penny in the price of sugar equals as much as $900 million in additional costs to the consumer.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that this program could cost consumers $5 billion over the next four years.

A facet of the sugar program which differs markedly from other programs, like feed corn and soy beans, is the direct subsidy in this case goes to the sugar processors, not the farmers.

Sugar farmers sell their crops to the processors in a rate equivalent to 19.6 cents per pound. But it is the processors, not the farmers, which then get the cheap loan money from the government to carry their sugar inventories until prices rise.

Between 1977 and 1980, when support levels ranged from 13.5 to 15 cents per pound, the government loaned almost $1.7 billion to processors. In 1979-80, then interest rates fluctuated between 14 and 21 percent, sugar processors were paying as little as 10 percent on their sugar subsidy loans.

In addition to losing money on the loans, the government was also stuck with 650,000 tons of unsold sugar beets and sugar cane which had to be stored at continuing costs, or sold at a loss.

There are only 22 companies which process all the sugar beets and cane in this country. This subsidy program has become part of the industry's profit picture. The USDA indicates that this program might add some $63 million to the income of each sugar processor between 1982 and 1985.

The General Accounting Office, the Congress' auditor, is currently conducting a study of arbitrage and other activities which are carried on by the sugar processors with their low-interest loan money.

"If the Congress is serious about cutting the participation of the Federal Government in the marketplace, this is a fine place to start. When Budget Director David Stockman was a Congressman from Michigan, he spoke out against a similar sugar provision in a 1977 Farm Bill and said "the really central issue here is the fact that this bill is a really blatant, unadulterated, reckless venture into protectionism on behalf of a minor agricultural crop, which accounts for about one percent of our cropland and two percent of the gross value of our farm production."

The Congress has gone on record against "special interest" legislation, against unearned hand-outs, and against Federal subsidies.

There is no evidence to suggest that the sugar subsidy is needed, that there will be any economic harm done to the economy by deleting it, or that consumers will face a shortage of sugar without it.

To the contrary, it seems that the sugar subsidy is nothing more than an artificial sweetener designed to aid a handful of companies to the detriment of every consumer.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Friend,

Three years ago I informed you of legislation I was working on to enact into law allowing all Americans to buy affordable gold medallions.

Recently the Bureau of the Mint announced it was selling one ounce and half ounce gold medallions commemorating American authors Mark Twain and Willa Cather. The price of these medallions is based on the New York Commodity Exchange's daily price of gold and can be obtained by calling toll-free, 800-[illegible]-3510. Order forms are available at your local post office.

The medallions are part of a series of commemorative gold medallions the Treasury is selling under the American Arts Gold Medallion Act of 1978 and will cost the Treasury nothing. In fact, this action will help decrease the nation's balance of payments deficit.

Before passage of this Act, average Americans were unable to buy gold in affordable quantities. The Treasury sold gold only in 400 ounce bars which most Americans could not afford. In fact, 90 percent of the gold bars were sold to foreign buyers. At the same time, Americans wanted to buy gold, and have been importing $500 million worth of gold coins each year from South Africa, Mexico, Canada and Austria.

I hope this information is helpful to you, and I am pleased to have the opportunity to inform you of the good news.

Sincerely,

Richard G. Lugar

Dear Ted,

Thank you for contacting my office recently supporting President Reagan's program for economic recovery.

On May 7th, I was pleased to join 189 other Republicans and 63 Democrats in passing the President's bi-partisan budget proposal. While this vote will not reverse thirty years of fiscal and monetary irresponsibility on the part of the federal government, it does represent an important first step on the road to economic recovery.

As you may know, the President's program is made up of four parts consisting of budget cuts, tax reductions, regulatory relief, and a sound monetary policy. Soon the Congress will be considering badly needed across the board tax cuts. The aim of the 10-percent tax package is to encourage investment and savings so that money is shifted to productive and taxable areas of the economy. I believe that the entire Reagan economic package, if passed intact, has the best chance of controlling inflation, decreasing unemployment, and providing a higher standard of living for all Americans.

Again, thank you for writing. Please contact me if I may be of any assistance to you.

Sincerely,

Dan Coats

U.S. News

[illegible] Institute visited Eastside High School Sept. 16 to discuss college programs with seniors. Their presentation included information about admission procedures and financial aid, as well as various programs offered by the school.

Forms for free and reduced price lunches will be sent to all parents of Eastside, Riverdale, and Butler Elementary students within the next 10 days. These forms should be returned to individual building principals immediately so the appropriate paper work can be completed. Those students who were on the reduced price lunch program last year are still receiving their lunches at reduced rates. The new program will begin Oct. 1.

Senior citizens may still pick up Golden Activity passes in the Eastside Administration office. They are good at all school-sponsored home events, including athletic events and musical and drama productions.

Eastside is currently undergoing a self-study as part of its North Central Association evaluation. Parents and community members are invited to serve on various committees. Interested persons should contact Mrs. Peggy Cowen, principal, at the high school. Committees range from School and Community to Philosophy and Objectives. Persons are also needed for subject matter committees, like English and Art, as well as departmental committees, such as business and social studies. The North Central Association is an accrediting body for secondary schools.

Members of the community are invited to join Eastside students and faculty for lunch in the cafeteria. A salad bar, ala carte line and the standard lunch are available. School personnel want the community to feel welcome at the school, said Mrs. Peggy Cowen, principal. She added that ministers and community people have visited school during lunch periods, which has allowed them to get a feel for the atmosphere at the high school. In addition to a good lunch, visitors might also be challenged to a game of foosball or shuffle board with students in the new commons area.

Members of the Eastside Spanish Club have elected officers for the current school year. They are Loretta McPherson, president; Peggy Buell, vice-president; and Tona Shineberry, secretary-treasurer.

French Club officers for the 1981-82 school year have been elected. Hayley King will serve as president, and Mary Obendorf will be vice president. Dawn Stine will be secretary-treasurer.

Office Education Association has elected officers for this school year. They are Mark Knepper, president; Peggy Buell, vice president; Angie Hook, secretary-treasurer; and Lori Keltner, public relations.

OEA is the student club functioning through the Intensive Office lab-Cooperative Office Experiencing class. There are 13 members this year. Congratulations new officers.

—that Robert K. Haines, son of Mrs. Donna Holmes, R.R. 1, St. Joe, and Mr. Richard Haines, and a senior at Eastside High School, completed a unique week of "camping" in June at Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology near Terre Haute.

It was called Camp Retupmoc and, according to some reports, was a "week as tough as a buffalo hunt."

Actually, RETUMPOC is COMPUTER spelled backwards and is the way the innovative engineering college has chosen to inform top high school seniors about this intensive one week experience with computers, the people who build them and the people who make computers do useful things.

Each of the six sessions accomodates 40 high school age young men who have an interest in and an aptitude for computing. Typically, a session of Retumpoc draws boys from as many as 30 to 12 states.

Participants in the Retupmoc program write their own programs for solving problems. A number of experts who use computers in business, government and industry visit the campus to share their expertise and discuss career opportunities in computing.

Founded in 1874 by railroad builder Chauncey Rose as the first privately supported engineering college west of the Alleghany Mountains, Rose-Hulman was re-endowed in 1970 gift by the Anton Hulman, Jr., through a multi-million dollar family of Terre Haute. The college has an enrollment of 1,250 men and offers degrees in chemical engineering, chemistry, civil engineering, computer science, electrical engineering, mathematical economics, mathematics, mechanical engineering and physics.

Fire Depts. To Improve S'v'c's.

Fire protection for rural St. Joe and Spencerville residents is receiving a boost through action by the respective trustees and advisory boards of the two townships of Concord and Spencer.

St. Joe Volunteer firemen have installed a stainless steel tank on an International Harvester semi-tractor purchased by the township recently. The used chassis and tank now give the department quicker response time with the tanker and a greater amount of water for fire fighting.

In Spencer Township advertisements have appeared seeking bids for a tank chassis to augment the townships present fire-fighting equipment. Spencer Township purchased a new pumper a few years ago through the efforts of Trustee Harold Murphy. Additional tanker equipment will give the Spencerville Fire Department additional water supply in fire fighting efforts.

Other's say . . .

"Suddenly Washington is teeming with people who direct, organize, staff, administer, research and represent various government programs. Daily their rhetoric grows more shrill and their message more ominous.

Each evening the TV news programs broadcast their heart breaking scenes of distress. By now it seems clear; without their services, the poor will not survive.

It's enough to conjure up visions of an economic Armageddon, until we remember a few facts. First, the total size of the spending reductions being proposed amount to approximately 2% of the current fiscal year budget, and less than 7% of the next. . . hardly the kind of cuts that spell catastrophe. Second, for the most part the cuts represent mere reductions in planned spending increases, rather than actual reductions below the level of last year's budget. Third, several programs comprising about 35% of the budget, those that form the so-called safety net under which no poor person must be allowed to fall, have been left untouched. Fourth much of what is often casually described as social spending does not even assist the poor, but consists of entitlement benefits or subsidies parcelled out to various middle class groups.

Nevertheless, this information is being submerged as the screams of protest from special pleaders grow louder and louder."

Darrell Casey, ICE-ICT co-ordinator at Eastside High School, has been busy putting together a book of the 1980—1981 ICE-ICT students. The book consists of pictures of the students on their jobs and information about job duties.

The ICE-ICT program helps qualified students find jobs in the surrounding area and gives them practical on the job training for specific careers, Casey explained.

This year 26 students are participating in the course. They are Pamela Winslow, Marilee Harter, John Maloy, Lisa Shultz, Rene Souder, Randy Young, Kris Ginder, Jim Evans, Marty Daniels and Mark Smith.

Casey emphasized that "the program is not set up for the financial security of the students, but for valuable training."

Eastside's High School Art Club has elected officers for the 1981—82 school year. President is Darlene Mills; Vice pres., Dawn Lang and secretary-treasurer, Yvette Harrold.

The club is planning fund raising projects for the art show next spring.

The French Club sold donuts at the Homecoming game Sept. 18 in order to raise money for a trip to Ft. Wayne to see a French play later this year. The sale was a success, said club officers, as all donuts were sold by the end of halftime.

Eastside's Marching Blazer Band will be marching in the Auburn parade at the DeKalb County fair Thursday evening and Saturday during the grand finale parade. The band will spotlight seniors Rita McPherson and Peggy Buell, Eastsides contestants for the Miss DeKalb County queen pageant. The band will be performing numbers from its halftime shows.

Eastside choral director said he believes choir and Varsity Singers are off to a good start this year. Currently, the singing groups are working hard on improving singing techniques. In mid-November the choir groups will begin work on the annual Christmas program, he said.

Senior RoEnna Zerkle was crowned Homecoming Queen by reigning queen Susan Zeisloft during halftime at Eastside's Homecoming game Fri., Sept. 18. RoEnna was escorted by senior Greg Myers.

Eastside's Homecoming theme this year was "Eastside's Western Heritage", and activities throughout the week ranged from "Battle of the Classes" to hall decorating.

During Friday's pep session, Eastside home-ec teacher Candy Surber was named most spirited teacher. Homecoming festivities concluded Friday night with a dance in the cafetorium. A and B Sound of Fort Wayne provided the music.

Eastside's Future Farmers of America are now practicing for the annual soil judging contest to be held in October. Eastside has won the contest the last four years.

FFA will also be sponsoring a float in the grand finale parade Oct. 3 during the fair.

Seniors taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) must mail fees by Oct. 2. Questions regarding the test should be directed to the Eastside guidance office.

Students will be dismissed in the afternoon Oct. 2 for Fair Day. Lunch will not be served at any of the three schools. Classes will resume at the normal time Monday, Oct. 5.

Sunday Morning Fire Claims Three Year Old; Burns Home

A Sunday morning fire at the Steve Grogg residence at State Road 1 and Jefferson Street in Saint Joe caused the death of the Grogg's 3 year old son, Nathan, and along with it produced extensive damage to the home of the Grogg family.

The Saint Joe fire department was summoned to the home some time after 9:00 a.m. and arrived at the scene of the fire only four minutes after the call. In spite of their quick response, rescuers were unable to reach the trapped child due to the intense heat and smoke of the blaze. High winds feeding the fire delayed efforts to find the boy and caused several department rescuers to retreat from the house after being overcome by smoke. When the tot was finally reached he was found near the area where the blaze is believed to have started.

Fire-fighters brought the blaze under control after a battle of approximately three hours.

The St. Joe department was assisted by units from Spencerville and Butler, DeKalb County EMS units, DeKalb County and Idiana State Police, Arson squad 707, and DeKalb County Coroner William Hathaway.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday, Sept. 30, for Nathan Grogg, 3, son of Steve and Jan Grogg of St. Joe Ind. at the D. O. McComb & Son Auburn Chapel. Services will be at 2:00 p.m. with calling on Tuesday evening from 6:00 to 9:00 p. m. Burial will be in Cedar Chapel Cemetery with Rev. Larry Jeffries officiating.

Survivors include the parents, three brothers, Charles, Jason and Shawn Lesher of St. Joe; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Grogg of Auburn; maternal grandfather, Donald Strand of Minneapolis, Minnesota; paternal great-grandmother, Ruby Grogg of Auburn; and paternal great-great grand mother, Harriett Sommers of Auburn.

The family requests that preferred memorials go to Indian Village Church of God.

Gov. Appoints Youth Com'tee

Gov. Robert D. Orr recently announced appointments to the steering committee that first met Tuesday, Sept. 8, to begin making arrangements for the Governor's White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Congressionally funded and scheduled for sometime in December, the governor's conference will focus on issues and concerns affecting young Hoosiers.

The event wil be planned and executed by the steering committee to which Gov. Orr initially has appointed 23 citizens representing the private sector, volunteer organizations, business community, education, the legislature, young people and the media. Also, 13 state agencies with youth programs will have representation on the committee. The governor may later add additional citizens to the group, which will eventually break down into subcommittees.

The governor has appointed Cathy Bayse, Indianapolis, as conference manager. Mrs. Bayse, whose salary is provided by the congressional appropriation, will work out of the governor's office until February 1982 when she completes the conference and the necessary follow up reports.

The Conference on Children and Youth, which historically has been convened by the White House once every decade since the 1900's, is funded by Congress. This year, the funds are being distributed to the states for local conferences, as part of President Reagan's commitment to restore leadership to state and local governments.

Indiana's share of the total $2.3 million congresional conference appropriation is $49,493. Each state was given a base allocation of $25,000, plus an allocation determined by the percentage of each state's youth population.

In his proclamation on the Governor's White House Conference on Children and Youth, Gov. Orr noted that since Hoosier children and youth are this state's most valuable resource, the complex issues affecting their social, economic andeducational well-being should be examined.

DeKalb County Big Brothers & Big Sisters

DeKalb County is the most successful in the four-county area of Big Brothers-Big Sisters, but there is still much to be done.

There are 14 DeKalb County boys on a waiting list for a "Big Brother." To help close that gap, the Auburn Evening Star is publishing a profile of a "little brother" each week, with information on how to volunteer.

Big Brothers-Big Sisters has made 23 "matches" of adults and one-parent children in DeKalb County. There are 65 matches in the four-county area of DeKalb, Noble, LaGrange and Steuben.

"I'm very happy to say DeKalb is the largest of the four, and that's just happened in the past year. I'm proud of that," says BB-BS caseworker Sandy Moore.

Many more volunteers are needed, however. Including the 14 boys in DeKalb, there are 100 "little brothers" on a waiting list in the four counties.

The situation for girls is just the opposite. "We need girls because we have 'Big Sisters' waiting and no little girls to match them with," says Moore.

The goal of BB-BS is to provide children from single-parent homes with a caring, adult friend.

The children range in age from 6-17. They are from families where death, divorce, desertion, or illegitimacy prevents them from having both parents.

The "Big Brothers" and "Big Sisters" are carefully screened, volunteer adults who are matched to a child of similar interests and personality. The "matches" are supervised by the professional caseworkers of BB-BS.

Volunteer "Big Brothers" and "Big Sisters" agree to a minimum one year commitment to the program. They are to have contact with their "little brother" or "little sister once a week for 2-5 hours.

The adult volunteer is urged to be consistent in making regular contacts with the child, not a parent.

Spending money on the child is not a requirement, and BB-BS provides a list of "40 low cost and no cost things to do."

Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Northeastern Indiana, Inc. is headquartered in Kendallville. Its Auburn office is located in the Family Counseling Center at 205 W. Sixth St., (formerly, Souder Hospital). The Auburn phone number is 925—2017.

Following a brief discussion, Mr. Stanley Washler moved to approve the Eastside Junior-Senior Field Trip to Washington, D.C., Nov. 10, 1981, as presented. This motion was promptly seconded and the motion carried.

Preliminary enrollments from the three schools indicated a decrease of 57 students from last year. The figures for 1981—82 show Butler 470, Riverdale 346 and Eastside 672 for a total of 1,488.

Mr. Walter Grogg congratulated Mr. Chambers and the Butler Elementary Sixth Grade Teachers for their Open House.

Claims were approved and the School Board members signed the Claim Docket authorizing the validation of checks.

Having no further business to come before the Board, and after a motion, properly seconded and carried, the meeting was adjourned.

Mid-semester progress reports will be sent home with all Eastside students Oct. 6. The reports are designed to inform parents of students' classroom performance and attendance record.

Return Of the Prodigal

Once there was in the land a certain radio station lord whose two stations enjoyed the richness of the land, the friendship of the people living there and the generosity of the radio lord. Both stations were looked upon with equal favor by the lord and both in their early days performed their tasks well.

But with the passing of time, one of the stations saw that there was much going on in the outside world and the station yearned to get a piece of the action, as it were, in the exciting outside world. And the lord was reluctant but granted the station the privilege of seeking its own identity. The lord gave the station its share of his kingdom, and the station went forth. There were those who were displeased by that which took place but remained silent out of respect for the lord.

And lo, the piece of the action which the station had yearned for added not to its identity. And many which the station thought would welcome its presence indeed took little notice. And the station became a stranger.

And it came to pass that, after the station had exhausted all its efforts and resources in seeking fame and fortune outside its lord and master's realm, the station repented of its error and sought to be returned to its original place. The lord said, "Let this station be returned to its place in our household." And there was rejoicing throughout the land, for the station which had forsaken its own household to seek fame and fortune elsewhere had failed, was now returned to its rightful and proper place. And the other station which had remained faithful and had retained its original identity in serving the lord joined in sharing once again the identity which the other station had forsaken.

And there was joy in the hearts of all who knew the lord and his household. For one which had been lost now was found.

St. Mark's Homecoming Sunday

Members of St. Mark Lutheran Church at Saint Joe will have a homecoming observance this coming Sunday, October 4. The congregation is 105 years old, having observed its centennial in 1976.

Members and friends are invited to attend Sunday School at 9:30 am., the worship services at 10:30 a.m. and a fellowship carryin dinner at noon. The worship service will include "old time" hymns and gospel songs.

Rev. George Wirsing now serves as pastor of the congregation.

Food Stamp Laws Are Revamped

Major changes in food stamp eligibility rules and benefits will begin taking effect October 1, according to Mary C. Jarratt, assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services.

"The changes, required by the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981, are aimed at saving $1.7 billion in federal costs for the food stamp program in fiscal year 1982 which begins Oct. 1," she said.

"The new rules must be implemented swiftly to achieve the projected savings and operate the program within the amount Congress appropriates to avoid across the board benefit reductions."

Jarratt said the first package of rules which will be ready for public comment next month and take effect Oct. 1 will:

—remove higher income households from the program, or reduce their benefits;

—deny strikers from the program;

—prorate the initial month's benefits of new recipients from the date of application;

—delay cost of living adjustments in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's "thrifty food plan" used for calculating food stamp benefits; and —delay and reduce cost of living adjustments in the deductions allowed from gross income in determining benefits.

"Three additional rulemaking packages will follow," Jarratt said. "Those packages will cover new fraud and abuse penalties, provisions to provide Puerto Rico with a low income nutrition program to replace food stamp funding, and procedures for state welfare agencies to begin monthly reporting and retrospective accounting systems for administration of the food stamp program."

Proposed rules on fraud penalties ad claims collection procedures will be ready for public comment in October, with final rules expected early next year. Proposed rules for establishing retrospective and accounting and monthly reporting systems will be ready for comment by the end of the year, she said; the Food Stamp Act requires that these rules be "in place" by October 1983.

Regulations governing the new block grant for Puerto Rico will be issued later this year—to be in effect by July of 1982.

Jarratt said Congressional action on the food stamp program is not complete with the passage of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981.

"In September, Congress plans to complete action on food stamp reauthorization legislation in the House of Representatives and on food stamp appropriations in the U.S. Senate," Jarratt said. "Both are required for the program to operate after September 30."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Friend:

I was pleased to receive the results of the poll conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business in which you recently participated. This information will be helpful to me should Congress consider legislation affecting our nation's business climate.

I am taking this opportunity to report on recent Congressional action in support of the President's efforts to reduce federal spending and to lower taxes. I agree strongly with the Administrations' economic goals and have voted in support of the Administration's proposals. I believe the President's reform measures will reduce deficit spending, increase productivity, create new jobs, lower the inflation rate and, generally promote economic growth.

The Congress recently passed the Conference Report on the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 which will reduce the federal budget by more than $35 billion for Fiscal Year 1982, saving more than $130 billion over the next three years. I voted in favor of the Conference Report which passed the Senate on July 31st by a vote of 80 to 14.

The Congres also recently adopted the President's tax package. I strongly supported the tax cut package which will cut individual tax rates by 5% beginning on October 1, 1981, with additional reductions of 10% on also included accelerated cost July 1, 1983. This tax measure recovery provisions for business as well as other provisions to meet the need of capital formation and increase personal savings. I voted in favor of the Conference Report on the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 which passed the Senate on August 3rd by a vote of 67 to 8.

I have enclosed a summary of the Budget Reconciliation measure and the provisions of the Economic Recovery Tax Act for your information. I hope this material is helpful to you.

Sincerely,
Dan Quayle
United States Senator

Aid Available For Kidneys

People in DeKalb County with permanent kidney failure who need maintenance dialysis treatment or a kidney transplant may be eligible for Medicare health insurance protection, Virgil Sanders, Social Security branch manager in Auburn said recently.

To be eligible for Medicare under this provision of the law, a person must have worked long enough in a job under Social Security or the railroad retirement system to be insured or be the wife, husband or dependent child of such a worker.

In general, Medicare protection starts on the first day of the third month after the person's course of maintenance dialysis treatments begins. But it can begin earlier if the person is training to self-dialyze or enters a hospital for a kidney transplant.

Once Medicare begins, it will last until 12 months after the 3 month dialysis period ends, required or 36 months following the month of a kidney transplant. If a transplant fails during or after the 36 month period Medicare coverage can be reinstituted.

Medicare has two parts: hospital insurance and medical insurance. Hospital insurance covers medically necessary inpatient hospital care and certain medically necessary post-hospital inpatient care in a skilled nursing facility and home health care. Medical insurance is voluntary, but most of the services and supplies needed by people with permanent kidney failure are covered only by medical insurance. The monthly premium for medical insurance, $11 for the 12-month period ending June 1982.

Medical insurance covers physician's services, outpatient physical therapy, outpatient dialysis treatment, durable medical equipment for use in the home, and other medical services and supplies.

Information about Medicare for people with permanent kidney failure can be obtained at the Social Security office at 1021 S. Wayne St. The telephone number is 925—1411.

Fleamarket Finds

—by Dan D'Imperio

Q. Can you assist us in dating an old walnut shelf clock called "Litta" from the Welch firm?— Mr. and Mrs. F. P., Colorado Sprigs, Colorado

A. Following the Centennial Exposition of 1876 a national craze developed for triumphantly intricate time-pieces. One of the firms cashing in on the fad was the E. N. Welch Co., of Forrestville, Conn. The firm's exciting Litta model, designed to reflect the prevailing Eastlake style of the moment, bore incised lies and punched decoration. A slight Japanese influence could be detected in the painted dial which featured an exotic seascape. Because of the ingenuity exercised on this dramatic timepiece, it is understandable why surviving models are becoming more valuable by the second. Value guide: Litta, working condition, 22 inches tall, $375.

Q. At a market I acquired a puzzle "An Official Railway Map of England and Wales." Is this a worthwhile find?—Ben Tulsa, Oklahoma

A. When J. Passmore of London marketed this involved puzzle in the mid—1800's playroom lights flickered into the midnight hour. As with other puzzles of this period, this hand-colored engraved map was mounted on wood. To promote sales it was attractively packaged in a wooden box having a colorful paper label. Locating a complete puzzle, housed within its original box pleases any pursuer of old puzzles. Value guide: An Official Railway Map of England and Wales, $100.

Q. Can you enlighten us about an icebox from the Leonard firm that we purchased at an auction?— Jack, Waco, Texas.

A. No one can dispute it, the ice man is one of the best remembered street vendors of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. In the closing decades of the 1800's, the Leonard Refrigerator Company of Detroit, Mi. furnished a full line of attractive ice boxes to consumers. Many oak models boasted incised line carving. They were so beautifully conceived that the purpose of the piece was almost impossible to ascertain. On many models the ice was placed in the top of the box. With turn of the century Golden Oak furniture enjoying a comeback, those lowly iceboxes have attained antique status in collecting circles. Value guide: Leonard, chest type, 1880s, $500.

Q. Would you please assist me in evaluating a collection of Carnival Glass "Good Luck" pattern bowls?— Myra, Bristol, Pa.

A. If you were one of the people who gave away your Grandmother's Good Luck Carnival Glass bowl to the local white elephant sale back in the 40s or 50s, be prepared to read these prices and weep. Value guide: Bowl, aqua opalescent, 9 inches in diameter, $295; bowl, blue fluted rim, 9 inches diameter, $110; bowl, green, 9 inches diameter, $105; bowl, marigold, fluted rim, 9 inches diameter, $90; bowl, ruffled purple, 7½ inches diameter, $130; bowl, white 9 inches diameter,$290.

In a statement to the school board, the National Merit Scholarship Corporation stated that "To be designated a Commended Student is an outstanding attainment, deserving of public recognition." It said the 36,000 Commended Students have shown "exceptional promise."

The announcement was made at the regular meeting of the school board Monday night.

Town Board Meets; Agrees To Purchase New Fire Hose, Studies Cost of Other Eq'p't.

The Town Board of St. Joe met Monday night with members Paula Tintsman and Ted Haberkorn and clerk-treasurer Emma Frank present. There were over a dozen others present for the meeting.

Most of those attending the meeting were present concerning fire department matters. In the discussion of those matters, the board accepted Fire Chief Fred Rayle's request for 10 new sections of 4½ inch firehose and 4 sections of 1½ inch hose. The total cost was estimated at $1,130. The board also voted to purchase a dozen pair of gloves for the fire department for around $50.00.

The need for additional air packs was expressed. Used units may be available. Cost of new units is some $800.00 each. The cost of a high-volume exhaust fan for smoke fires is some $550.

The president asked about the cost of getting the emergency van in proper shape for use and asked Mr. Rayle to give the board a cost estimate, not including equipment, a part of which is being paid for by a $500 donation from the St. Joe Lions Club.

The large turnout of firemen and others was a result of the recent fire which took the life of a St. Joe youngster. The president noted he had heard that the fire department had placed the blame for burst hoses at the fire at the feet of the town board. He noted that after the board had purchased 150 feet of 1½ inch hose last year, he attended the November fire meeting and asked if larger hose was needed, and the reply from the fire chief was to the effect that the town truck had adequate hose. Fire department secretary Jake Fetters contradicted the president's comments by reading from his notes of the November meeting which there was no mention of additional hose. Fireman Kevin Fleischer included in his comments that firemen were not present "to get a lecture." The comment came after the president asked Mr. Rayle to make an effort to curb the practice of certain department members to make criticisms and comments not based on fact. The president noted that it does not make an elected official feel "cooperative" to have unfounded criticisms spread through the community.

The president noted that a letter to the editor of the Auburn Evening Star had contained misleading statements. He also noted later in the meeting that two newsletters put out by the fire department contained misleading information. He noted that still another change in the fire emergency number was publicized in the newsletter but the board had no knowledge of any such change. Board member Paula Tintsman said Sheriff Larry Myers and EMS director Rick Ring apparently agreed on the change and then notified involved fire departments. However, the Town Board was not notified of the change by either the sheriff's department or the fire department.

Maurice Kline reported that "it doesn't look good at the present time" concerning a problem at the primary pump house in the local waterworks system. A submersible pump has not been functioning and the exact nature of the problem when it is definitely known may mean a significant expenditure to make the necessary repairs. The 10 inch well was drilled when the waterworks system was put into operation in 1947.

Bob Kerstetter and Steve Urich, representing Clyde E. Williams & Associates of South Bend, reported that with the budget cutting at the federal level, funds for small communities like St. Joe are not available for sewage treatment installations. The town board accepted their suggestion that St. Joe's application for federal and state funds be "put on hold" for the time being.

The president noted that he had asked the town attorney to find out if the town board has the power to establish ordinances related to inspection of septic systems within the town and to establish minimum standards regarding septic tanks in particular. The purpose of this approach would be to reduce the polluting elements in St. Joe at the lowest cost to property owners in the future. It appears that town boards do have that power.

Other business conducted included discussion of a junk car and trash problem at a local residence and trimming of hedge and trees at another residence. Another problem is uncut grass and weeds at a vacant business location. Letters will be sent to the property owners asking cooperation in taking care of these problems.

The board voted to hold the November and December meetings the second Tuesday of those months.

Bills allowed were:
Town — — Allen Electric, 23.60; Jiggs' Motor Service, 40.36; Sons, 335.70; Ray Eck, 200.00; John Bopp, 210.00; Hess & A. E. Boyce Co., 46.51; Yeiser's Standard Service, 147.25; Walter Miller, 200.00.
Waterworks — — A. E. Boyce Co., 33.05; Treaty Co., 204.75; Maurice Kline, 32.05; Ray Eck, 30.00; Indiana State Board of Health, 30.00.

We wish to express our thanks to the staff and nurses at DeKalb Memorial Hospital, the doctors, the EMS unit, the St. Joe fire department rescue team and our friends and neighbors for their help and sympathy during the illness and loss of our loved one.

The family of Paul Fetters

From the editor's desk. . . .

Paul Fetters - - - He Was One of the "Good Guys."

The Saint Joe area seemingly has had more than its share of deaths of long time familiar personages in the community, as well as other unwanted happenings. The past twelve months may have been "just one of those years." It has made us middle aged folks do more than a little thinking about life and living.

Paul Fetters' death recently brought sadness to me, but at the same time his death brings fond memories. Paul was one of the millions of "little people" in the world who don't have a "name" much beyond their home community; but they still have brought some significant meaning to the lives of others.

Perhaps it is my human nature" to remember Paul because of the times he made me feel "good" in the past few years. He was active in the senior citizens program in the county, serving as its president. He knew of my lack of enthusiasm about the organizational setup of the program — not the people themselves but the fact that here was another government program adding to the spending spree of the federal government. But Paul didn't let my personal opinion keep us from having a good friendship. And ultimately — a year or two ago — he said something like, "You've editorialized in the past about the senior citizen's program and I didn't quite agree with it. But now they've got FOURTEEN PEOPLE in administration and we don't need that many." I don't recall what level he was talking about concerning "administration" and maybe fourteen isn't the exact number but you get the idea. He saw there was too much money in federal funds going for full-time salaries for administration, which means more taxes and less money going for the people who are supposed to benefit from the program. (That's the story in every federal assistance program — they sound good but a lot of people are being paid for doing nothing productive.) Paul, like many other people, also had an idea of my personal character or habits which was in error and he admitted it (he was more honest than most people in that respect.) Last year when there was some drain work being done at Lonnie Keeler's place next to the garage, Paul was working with his backhoe. He was also down in the trench doing some manual digging, too. That bothered me, and I jumped down in the trench to help out. I was concerned about him because he had had health troubles before. That afternoon and evening Paul occasionally stopped what he was doing and just stood for several seconds, not moving, not saying anything. Then he would go back at work.

On one of those occasions, I saw him reach in his pocket for something and then put his fingers to his mouth. That really scared me. I stepped over to him, put my hand on his shoulder, and asked, "Are you all right?" He said, "Yes, I'm all right. I just needed one of my little pills" — and he went back to work.

The next day when he stopped in to discuss the sharing of the bill between the town and Lonnie, Paul made me feel very good with this "confession:" "You know — I thought that you were above doing what you did yesterday. When you got down in the trench to help, I had to change my mind about you. I have a lot more respect for you now than I had in the past."

Just a few months ago, I saw Paul on a county road west of Saint Joe helping with a field drainage problem. I knew he was supposed to go back in the hospital for something and I was surprised that he was working; so I stopped for a few minutes to talk to him. He was to go in the hospital in a day or so as I recall. And as I prepared to leave, I put my hand on his shoulder again and said, "Take care." Paul turned and looked at me with a — well, I don't know if you would call it a surprised look or a perplexed look or what. But he was momentarily speechless, then he replied quietly, "Thank you." I suppose most of us are caught that way at some time or another, when we realize that someone really cares.

I think Paul's most outstanding quality was his open, honest, frank manner. If he disagreed on something, you knew it; no walking the fence for Paul Fetters. If he felt really strong about something, you REALLY knew it. If he differed with your opinion, he would tell why; there was no reaction of "You don't know what you're talking about" or "You've got a crazy idea and I won't even talk about it with you." At least that is my impression of him.

And Paul Fetters was not out to "make a million." Indeed, he probably didn't charge enough for his services, at today's prices. But he was of the old school of "charge a reasonable price to help out the customer." He even refused to increase his bill for hauling a truckload of blacktop for the town last summer. Here he was, providing the the truck, the gas and the time to drive about 20 miles round trip and his bill was something like $10.22. I tried to tell him it wasn't enough, but stubborn Paul insisted. "That's what I charge anybody else.

Honest, hard-working, "why should I charge you more?" "bull-headed" Paul. God bless him. I miss him. I hope that in some way I let him know he was a true friend in my book.

Eastside High School News and Sports

Eastside's junior high Art Club is making plans to sponsor a scholarship which would help send interested students to art school. Also in the planning stages is a field trip to the Toledo Art Museum. However, details for both projects must still be confirmed. The group will also be discussing projects and fund raisers at its next meeting.

Eastside's Class of '82 finished its magazine sales campaign with total sales of over $9,000, which represents a profit for the class of about $3,900.

With the class needing $1,000 to cover graduation expenses as seniors, the prom committee may have to cut back on prom expenses this year, but overall the campaign was a success, said class sponsors.

National School Lunch Week is Oct. 11 through 17, and National School Lunch Day is Wednesday, Oct. 14. The menu for that day will be deli turkey sandwich on a sesame bun, crispy nuggets, chilled mixed fruit, million dollar cookie and milk.

Students at Butler, Riverdale and Eastside will be dismissed the afternoon of Oct. 9 for teachers' in-service meetings. Eastside students will attend their fourth, fifth and sixth period classes instead of their regular morning classes.

The Kettering Foundation, which will be conducting teacher in-service meetings at Eastside Oct. 9 has suggested three things parents can do to help insure success at school. First, parents should talk with children daily about school events. Second, parents should talk to students about their own school experiences, how they have been valuable later in life, or what types of learning experiences proved to be especially valuable for them. Finally, parents should be a good role model. Children should see parents reading or conversing with other people for example.

Other ways to insure success in schools is to plan for a time and place to study, structure tv time, and talk about school and its importance. Kettering also suggests parents plan visits to cultural and informational sites maintain contacts with teachers, and visit the school. Parents can also share hobbies and plan one to one time with children.

Kim Cunningham has been hired as the new girls' varsity and junior high basketball coach at Eastside. Denise Earl, new to the Eastside staff this year, will be junior varsity coach.

Miss Cunningham is a graduate of West Noble High School, where she participated in girls' basketball. She attended Albion College in Albion, Michigan, where she played basketball four years. She brings three years coaching experience to Eastside. She will be meeting with girls interested in the girls basketball program in the next several weeks. Parents are invited to encourage their daughters to participate in the program. "We are very lucky to have someone with Kim's background and qualifications," said Mrs. Peggy Cowen, Eastside Principal.

The School and Community part of the North Central Association evaluation project at Eastside, is currently working to complete reports by early November.

The purpose of the committee is to study and evaluate the school and its community. The committee will consider such things as the ethnic composition of the community, types of industry in the community, occupational and educational intentions of Eastside graduates, the school's financial resources, and types of educational agencies available in the community.

The committee is being chaired by Rex Bolinger, assistant principal. Other committee members include Jerry Zonker, guidance director; Marcia Pullen, faculty member; Joan Camp, parent and school secretary; Omer Hasson, school attendance officer; Alice Cole, school nurse; Tom Armstrong, representing Butler parents; Dorothy Ross, representing St. Joe parents; and Sue Timmerman, representing Spencerville parents. Committee members will be contacting parents of graduates to check on what graduates are currently doing.

Parents interested in working on the committee or offering input may contact any committee member. While the committee hopes to have reports completed by November, they will have to be updated until the North Central Association evaluating team visits the School in January 1983.

The North Central Association is an accrediting agency for secondary schools. It evaluates schools every seven years.

The Philosophy and Objectives committee, also part of the North Central evaluations program, is currently studying overall objectives of Eastside. The committee is also looking at qualities and skills students should have acquired by graduation in order to become successful citizens.

The committee is headed by Donna Hollabaugh, Eastside faculty member. Others on the committee are Dick Koeneman, Bill Hill, Janis Hood, Beverly Martin and Peggy Cowen, all Eastside staff members, and John Meeks, school board member.

"Pot" Bad News Says Lung Assoc.

"Marijuana smoking constitutes the greatest single threat to the health of our lungs in the United States," says an article in the September issue of the American Lung Association Bulletin.

"In the next ten years, the potential exists for an enormous worsening of the respiratory health of Americans, unless we do something about it now," says Robert L. Dupont, M.D., author of the article. Dr. Dupont is the former director of the National Institute on drug abuse.

While most new drugs are considered dangerous until proven safe, for marijuana, the assumption has been the reverse, says Dr. DuPont. It has been assumed to be safe until proven harmful.

Dr. DuPont points out that marijuana smoke contains more tar and known cancer-causing agents than tobacco smoke. He presents the findings from a study showing that a single marijuana cigarette smoked for 15 minutes produces as high a level of carbon monoxide in the blood as do 10 to 20 tobacco cigarettes smoked in a day.

" American young people are literally the only population in the history of the world in which large nummbers of an entire generation have smoked marijuana," he says in the Easter Seal publication. " The use of marijuana in other countries does not involve an entire society; generally its use is limited to either religious groups or social classes that are relatively isolated and generally looked down on in society." He believes the lung health of this generation of Americans is in jeopardy.

" The most bizarre thing that strikes me about young people is that so many are concerned about pollution, worried about the environment, believers in eating natural foods, crusaders against the problems of nuclear energy——and yet they continue to smoke marijuana cigarettes," Dr. DuPont says. "There is a growing body of information about health risks and we need to get that across."

To find out more about threats to lungs, contact your local American Lung Association of Northeast Indiana, 802 W. Wayne St.- the Christmas Seal People.

DAR Commemorates Yorktown Battle

Mrs. Richard D. Shelby, president general of the National Society Daughters of the American Revoolution, has announced plans for commemorating the Yorktown Bicentennial. Oct. 19, 1981 is to be the culminating day of the affair.

The Society, which had a prominent role in the establishment of the park at Yorktown, will place a bronze marker there in October in memory of the men of the French fleet who died in the crucial battle off the Virginia Capes, the naval phase of the Yorktown campaign. The marker will be similar to the two placed by the DAR in 1931 during the Yorktown Sesquicentennial in memory of the Americans and French who died during the land battle.

General George Washington, who planned the combined army-navy operation, had long recognized the importance of seapower and called French naval superiority "the pivot upon which everything turned." This naval victory of the French, commanded by Admiral Francois de Grasse, gave the Americans and their Allies control of the Chesapeake Bay and thus was a major factor in bringing about the surrender of Cornwallis, who could no longer count on the Royal Navy to come to his rescue.

The DAR will also furnish American and French flags for use during the Yorktown Victory celebration, and will begin a project to refurnish the Surrender Room of the Moore House with period pieces.

Mrs. Robert Lacy Jackson, National Chairman of the DAR Yorktown Bicentennial Committee, noted that 3,000 DAR Chapters in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, France and other overseas units will hold special programs on Yorktown during the year. The 200,000 members of the Society will participate in many activities "to perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved American Independence."

The John Houlton Chapter of the DAR will be observing this occasion according to DeKalb County Yorktown Chairman, Mrs. Donna Clark.

Indiana Legislature Studying Volunteer Fire Departments

A vast number of issues are receiving attention by legislative study committees during the interim. Topics such as the use of Indiana coal and funding of volunteer firemen were among many recently reviewed by two committees.

Meeting in Indianapolis several weeks ago and in Plymouth, Indiana, July 23, the Volunteer Firemen Study Committee agreed to study three major areas. The committee decided that funing alternatives, arson laws and fire safety education were the most pressing areas of concern for volunteer ifremen.

The committee directed the legislative agency staff to look into the possibility of petitioning local property tax boards for a special levy for fire protection, if such a levy doesn't already exist. Also, under review by the committee is the study of any legislative or administrative steps needed to improve enforcement of arson laws.

On a different subject, the use of coal Study Committee held its first meeting, Thursday July ,30 where it was decided that the focus of the committee will be to establish an advocacy position in regard to coal use.

The objectives of the committee are to determine what legislation is appropriate for the Indiana coal industry and then make recommendations to Congress, as well as come up with legislation that will provide tax incentives for the Indiana coal industry.

Any recommendations will be coordinated between the legislative branches of the state and federal government. Another federal law that affects the Indiana coal industry is the Clean Air Act, which is coming up for a new review. It is the hope of the commttee that a position can be taken on the act, to learn whether or not the act is positively or negatively influencing the Indiana coal industry.

Several study committees meet each week at the state house, any one wishing to give testimony or attend these meetings is encouraged to do so.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. What information can you furnish on a carved jet brooch I acquired at a local sale? — Jean, Haddonfield, N.J.

A. During the 1860's and 1870s a piece of jet jewelry was deemed proper for a lady in mourning. However, a decade later it became so fashionable with the masses that the mines at Whitby, England were working around the clock to satisfy the public's demand for jet. True jet is a type of lignite, or fossilized coal, light in weight and intensely black. Jewelers carved pieces which appeared to be chunky and heavy, but actually weighed only a few ounces. The standard of carving was exceptionally high. Jet jewelry of the Victorian age, has come of age with collectors. Value guide: Jet brooch, gold filled setting, circa 1870, $100.

Q. Would you assist this garage sale addict in evaluating some Vol. 1, No. 1 science fiction magazines I've purchased over the years? — Hal, Mobile, Alabama.

A. Locating Vol. 1, No. 1 issues of early science fiction or fantasy magazines can send a collector into orbit. Why? These price quotations will furnish the answer: Air Wonder Stories, 1929, $20; Eerie Mysteries, 1938, $25; Ghost Stories 1926, $17; Planet Stories, 1939, $15; Science Detective Monthly, 1930, $20; Tales of Magic and Mystery, 1927, $50.

Q. When were lithophanes fashionable? — Alice, Oceanside, California.

A. Altough the lithophane reportedly originated in France, it was quickly copied by factories in other countries by the mid-19th century. Lithophanes are porcelain transparencies in which the impressed design can be brought to fullest visual detection when the piece is held against sunlight or artificial light. Plaques, lampshades, nightlights, steins, mugs, teacups and other porcelain presentations bore lithopane pictures. Existing examples support the claim that some of the finest specimens originated in Germany at the Meissen and Berlin factories. Marked pieces always prompt collector patronage. Value guide: Plaque, lovers in boat, 3½ inches by 5¼ inches, Germany, 1880s $75.

Q. What is the value of my small frosted glass statue of Christopher Columbus. It bears the date "1893." — Mrs. F. T., Smithfield, Neb.

A. When American designers hit the drawing boards preparing for the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893, Christopher Columbus representations abounded. Visitors to the fairground returned home with numerous souvenirs, including your frosted glass statuette. Many of these cherished mementos bear the date "1893", in honor of this event which heralded the "Age of Electricity". Seekers of historical and commemorative glass objects would be pleased to discover this Columbus statuette priced under $175.

Pickles Are Poison - - ???

Pickles will kill you! ! ! !

Every pickle you eat brings you nearer to death. Amazingly, the "thinking man" has failed to grasp the terrifying significance of the term "in a pickle". Although leading horticulturists have long known that Cucumis Saturis possesses an indehiscent pepo, the pickle industry continues to expand..

Pickles are associated with all major diseases of the body. Eating pickles breeds war and communism. They be related to most airline tragedies. Auto accidents are caused by pickles. There exists a positive relationship between crime waves and consumption of the fruit. For example:

....Nearly all sick people have eaten pickles. The effects are obviously cumulative.

....90.9% of all people who die from cancer have eaten pickles.

....100% of all soldiers have eaten pickles.

....96.8% of all Communist sympathizers have eaten pickles

....99.7% of the people involved in air or auto accidents ate pickles within 14 days preceding the accident.

....82.1% of juvenile delinquents come from homes where pickles are served frequently.

Additional evidence points to the long term effects of pickle eating.

....Of the people born in 1850, who later dined on pickles, there has been a mortality rate of 100%.

....All the pickle eaters born between 1875 and 1900 have wrinkled skin, have lost most of their teeth, have brittle bones and failing eyesight..if the ills of eating pickles have not already caused their death.

....Even more convincing is the report of a noted team of medical specialists.. Rats force fed with 20 lbs. of pickles per day for 30 days developed bulging abdomens. They completely lost their appetites for wholesome food.

In spite of all the evidence, pickle growers continue to spread their evil. More than 120,000 acres of fertile U. S.. soil are devoted to pickles.

One may wonder, in a quiet moment of reflection, how long it will be before someone discovers a trace of pickle juice in a water supply.

(The above article is a tongue in cheek illustration of how easy it is to go off the deep end of reality in food "fad" research.

Rural Numbering System To Be Mandatory

On March 1, 1983, all rural route numbers and box numbers will be discontinued in DeKalb County. In their place will be a house number and a county road designation.

The new system was accepted by the U.S. Postal System at the request of county officials with the primary benefit going to emergency services—police, firemen and ambulances. The postal system said it could not function efficiently with a dual numbering system.

County residents are reported to be receiving letters from the postal system giving the deadline date. In addition, there is a warning that mail not having the house number and county road identifiention after March 1 will be returned with the notation "no such address."

The new system numbers rural residences consecutively from north to south and east to west on county roads. County maps available at the court house show block numbers.

A previously proposed numbering system was discarded when it was found to be cumbersome and confusing.

'Social Security' Goes Too Far

Various solutions are being offered with increasing frequency these days on how to cope with the problem of financing the vast welfare program we call Social Security. It seems to me that all the solutions are trying to keep everything pretty much as it is and just make comparatively minor adjustments.

The real problem is being ignored. The real problem is that we're trying to make Social Security do more than it is capable of doing. The result is that welcomed federal income tax cuts are being offset by increases in Social Security taxes. With more Social Security taxes, families are left with less with which to provide for their own future.

The original intent of Social Security was to provide for the aged needy and indigent. Now Social Security reaches into virtually every age level in providing benefits. And the truth is, we can't afford the program because it attempts to do too much.

The only way the present program can continue in its present or slightly modified form is to raise taxes. This approach is a threat to the independence of our children, grandchildren and generations thereafter. It has been pointed out by others that in not too many years Social Security will require a tax of 25% of individual income. That's just Social Security tax. On top of that add income tax.

Is that what we want to impose on future generations?

It isn't very helpful, I know, to say, "I told you so." But that is exactly what I have been thinking because back in the 1950's. I editorialized on one occasion on Social Security. My observation was that Congress should stop the expanding Social Security program "before it becomes an economic monster destroying us all." I was in my 30's at the time. With the passing of over two decades, my fear in the 1950's is now fact. Social Security IS an economic monster threatening to destroy us all economically. But, as I said, there is little comfort in being able to say, "I told you so."

Why is it so difficult to make changes in the program? Well, Social Security is a "sacred cow" in our society. Sentimentality has influenced decisions made through the years about Social Security. Right now, President Reagan has senior citizens up in arms because he wants to reduce certain benefits paid to them. Certain politicians are taking the senior citizens' side for personal gain in votes. But you must read long before you hear of the fact that Social Security benefits have gone up faster in recent years than the cost of living. But the protests by the retirees and their supporters are so attention-getting that the facts are smothered.

Another "sacred cow" factor is the assumption that senior citizens generally are unable to take care of themselves financially. I don't believe it. And those who can't provide for themselves may be in that position because taxes have taken so much away from their accumulated assets. Had they been able to live under lesser taxation, they would have had more with which to provide for their later years. Had government not become more our keeper through the past 40-plus years, senior citizens of today would have more of their income at their disposal now. They forget that increasing taxation took away their opportunity to accumulate assets for the fture. "Too much government" is not just a political pitch during elections; it is an economic fact of life.

The degree to which the public has been misled is shown in a recent poll by (I think) a national TV network. The poll showed something like 63% of the public AGAINST making Social Security payments on the basis of need. If this is an accurate poll, it means there are people who want to eat their cake and have it. The majority of voters said they want less government involvement in their lives with the election of President Reagan. But at the same time they want government to take care of them.

When Social Security began, the maximum tax was $30 per year from the employee and $30 per year from the employer. Now the maximum is almost $2,000 per year from the employee and $2,000 per year from the employer. With so many two-income families in our society today, there are a lot of average families paying the maximum.

Think of it — $2,000 PER YEAR taken from the employee just for Social Security — not his or her Social Security but the Social Security of today's benefit recipients. Social Security taxes are not being invested by the federal government to accumulate for the individual worker. The money is being paid out immediately for today's obligations. It's no wonder that a lot of people say they don't expect to get any Social Security not too many years hence because the program is costing too much and will go blooey, or the benefits will be so small as to mean little in paying for the cost of living.

Until there is a bold approach to the problem, which includes facing up to the fact that the scope of the entire Social Security program must be reduced, we're in trouble. Those who do not need Social Security benefits after 65 should be removed from the rolls. We should recognize that Social Security taxes are not insurance payments for our respective retirements but rather are contributions to help provide for those who are truly in need of assistance. We should recognize that those who are in need of assistance find themselves dependent upon the government partly because so much of their income during their productive years was taken from them by high taxation.

The irony of the entire situation is that thousands of people are making a living as employees of the Social Security system, receiving their pay checks and extravagant fringe benefits from tax funds paid in by the very people who find themselves falling farther and farther behind in the struggle to cope with inflation. And those same federal employees are the ones who sit in judgment as to whether or not a Social Security applicant is entitled to benefits.

The private citizen is paying for two "pensions," his or her own PLUS the federal employee's. But the federal employee is paying only for his or her own pension. Their program is better than Social Security and they don't want any changes to be made.

"The Spotlight," a Washington, D.C., publication, made this startling statement recently: there are more people under age 20 receiving Social Security benefits than there are age 65 and over.

Gerald McNerney, local attorney and former deputy prosecuting attorney, spoke to Jim White's eighth grade social studies classes last week. He explained the responsibilities of the office of prosecuting attorney and answered students' questions about court proceedings. His presentation was in connection with a unit on trials students had been studying. Students also participated in a mock trial as part of the unit.

Eastside's Future Farmer's of America took first and second place at the county soil judging contest Oct. 5.

Members of the first team were Ken Casebere, Larry Yoder, Lamar Reinhart, and Mark Fisher. The second team consisted of Dave Krieg, Ken Kessler, Ken Gick and Tim Greuter.

Eastside has now won the competition the last five years and will advance to area competition at South Adams.

The contest consists of judging four holes, three suitable for crop production and one for suitability as a building site. In judging the holes, team members must consider slope and drainage as well as soil content, texture and fertility.

Miss Susan Scheufler, Eastside's faculty drama director, has announced that this year's play is titled "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown."

Starring roles will be played by Chris Holt as Charlie Brown, Donna Kray as Lucy, Mitch Snyder as Linus, Tracy McKown as Patty, Randy Drake as Schroder and Rob Haines as Snoopy.

Students interested in working on the production are urged to contact Miss Scheufler.

The Easterner, Eastside's yearbook, has arrived and may be picked up at the school. The 1981 book is entitled "Minor Revisions" and focuses on changes at Eastside such as the new construction, Eastside's membership in a smaller athletic conference and the addition of several new classes to the curriculum like journalism and computer math.

Janis Hood, yearbook adviser, said she is pleased with the appearance of this year's yearbook.

Members of Eastside's chapter of Future Homemakers of America will attend the District 3 meeting October 14 at Hamilton. Girls will learn the responsibilities and duties of their various offices and how to become better officers. Steuben, Whitley, LaGrange and Noble counties will also be participating in the event.

Mrs. Surber, faculty sponsor, is also District 3 adviser.

Students interested in participating in Junior High Arts Club should sign up in Mr. Koeneman's art room sometime this week. The group will soon be planning projects and events for this year.

Parents are reminded to ask their children to pick up forms from the school for the family doctor to fill out when their children must take medication during school hours. Under new Indiana law, students are not permitted to take medication at school without written instructions from the family doctor. These forms may be picked up so parents have them on hand at home when they need them.

First grade students at Butler Elementary will be traveling to the Souder Museum and Craft Shop in Archibald, Ohio, October 23. The field trip is in conjunction with a unit students have been studying about pioneer life. Butler's fifth grade students will also be traveling that day. They are planning to tour the St. Francis College planetarium and the Fort Wayne newspapers.

Representatives from Indiana University will be at Eastside October 20 to discuss admissions procedures, financial aid and college programs with seniors. Purdue representatives will be at Eastside October 22. For more information, contact the Eastside Guidance office.

Following is the Eastside athletic schedule for the upcoming week.

2,4-D Coalition

Users and producers of the herbicide 2, 4—D from many segments of industry have recently established a national, single-issue coalition to safeguard 2,4—D from "irresponsible or regulatory action" at the federal, state and local levels.

The National Coalition for a Reasonable 2,4—D Policy calls itself a collective and concerted effort to confront unreasonable and ill—founded assaults on agricultural chemical tools.

Incorporated as a non-profit organization, the Coalition provides a clearinghouse for farmers, foresters, applicators, chemical formulators, agriwomen, cooperatives and all others concerned with 2,4—D to challenge unwarranted restrictions on the herbicide, while relating the socially redeeming contributions of safe herbicide use.

"Various social activist groups and certain state/local government regulatory agencies are resigned to restricting this herbicide which has been widely studied had applied for over 37 years with an enviable safety record," said Coalition board chairman Robert Miller. "The National Coalition for Reasonable 2,4—D Policy recognizes that the availability and cost of food and fiber hinges on the safe and responsible use of herbicides. Our eforts will constructively assist in managing the destiny of 2,4—D and related agri-chemical tools."

The Coalition's by-laws outline the following objectives:

— Ensure that scientific facts and risk/benefit considerations are recognized in any 2,4—D regulatory action.

— Establish a network of propesticide coalitions at state and local levels.

— Obtain congressional recognition of the benefits of 2,4—D to industry and the public.

While the coalition will concentrate on the 2,4—D issue, involvement is anticipated in a number of generic pesticide issues such as aerial application and water quality standards.

2,4—D or 2,4—Dichlorophenoxyacetic acid is a vegetation management tool used to control broadleaf weeds principally in cereal grain crops, sugar cane, turf, pasture and non-crop land.

Basic Public Law Questions Answered

Readers may from time to time wonder what the law is on various subjects. The DeKalb County Bar Association issued a quiz for Law Day 1981 last May. Subject matter is relevant now as well as five months ago and the quiz is published herewith:

1. An unmarried woman is pregnant and decides to have an abortion. The father of the child does not believe in abortion and would take the child upon birth. Generally, does he, as the father, have the right to stop the abortion?

Answer: No. The Supreme Court of the United States has held that the father of the child cannot prevent the mother from having the abortion.

2. A policeman appears at your door and tells you he has reason to believe you have stolen property in your house and demands to come in and search. Do you have to let him in?

Answer: No. He must have a search warrant signed by a magistrate or judge particularly describing the place to be searched and the item he is searching for.

3. If a jury votes eleven to one in favor of a conviction, can a defendant be found guilty?

Answer: No. All twelve people on a jury must vote in favor of conviction or acquittal.

4. Are traffic offenses in the State of Indiana "criminal offenses"?

Answer: Yes. Although traffic offenses are minor criminal offenses, a person charged with a traffic offense has all of the rights of a person charged with a major criminal offense including the rights under the United States Constitution and the Indiana Constitution.

5. Can a citizen of the United States be imprisoned for failure to pay his or her bills?

Answer: No. In this country a man or woman cannot be imprisoned for debts. There are some exceptions to this. One is child support, another is a failure to pay taxes, and another is failure to pay fines levied as a result of criminal offenses. Generally, however, these items do not fall within the legal definition of "debt".

6. Must every criminal defendant be represented by a lawyer?

Answer: No. Every criminal has the RIGHT to be represented by a lawyer; however, the defendant still retains the right to choose whether or not to represent himself or herself.

7. Is it lawful for an employer to consider a job applicant's criminal convictions in deciding whether or not to hire the applicant?

Answer: Yes. All criminal convictions may be considered by the employer. In fact, failure to tell the employer of any criminal conviction has been held as sufficient grounds for discharge.

8. If a person is convicted of drunk driving, must the judge suspend the driver's license if it is a first offense?

Answer: Yes. Upon conviction of a drunk driving offense, the statutes make a suspension of the defendant's driving privileges mandatory. The Judge does have the power to give the defendant a "restricted license" which only permits the defendant to drive to and from work. The defendant's routes of travel will be listed right on his or her driver's license.

9. A sales person comes to your house to try to sell you goods or services and you sign a contract. Can you change your mind after he or she leaves?

Answer: Yes, but only if you exercise your right to cancel within three days after signing a contract, agreement or offer. This is done by mailing written notice to Seller by midnight of the third business day after the day Buyer signs a contract.

10. Your credit card is stolen and used to purchase several thousand dollars worth of goods. Must you pay the bill?

Answer: No. Not after you report said theft to the credit card company in writing or orally. However, you are liable for the first $50.00

11. When you apply for credit, must you disclose your sex?

Answer: No.

12. If you want to borrow $50,000 to start up a business of your own, and the bank wants to charge you 50% interest per year, is that interest rate legal?

Answer: Yes. There are laws in every state regarding illegal interest rates——usury——but Indiana does not have the usury law with regard to usury transactions. There are limitations on the interest that can be charged in consumer type transactions.

13. You get involved in a bit of rowdiness on a Friday night at McDonald's. The police come along and arrest you but do not advise you of your rights. Later, in Court, can a slick talking lawyer get you off because you were not read your rights?

Answer: No. The failure of the police officer to read you your rights will only allow you to exclude any confession you may have given as a result of police interrogation. Any other comment you made which is not the result of police interrogation and any other evidence that the policeman has may still be used against you and a conviction could well result.

14. To obtain a divorce in Indiana does one party have to be at fault?

Answer: No. There need only be an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage. Fault grounds for dissolution are still available, however seldom used.

15. An unmarried couple have been living together for five years and decide to separate. Is either party entitled to alimony or support?

Answer: Probably not in Indiana. There have been some cases on the West Coast which allow alimony or property right to the unmarried co-habitor, but no Indiana Court has so construed the law in that manner. Further, there is no common law marriage in Indiana anymore.

16. Does a child support order terminate at the time a child reaches the age of 18 years?

Answer: No. A child support order in the State of Indiana will continue until the child reaches the age of twenty-one years, unless the child becomes emancipated before age twenty one. Note, however, child support can continue beyond age twenty-one if the child is incapacitated.

17. Your 13 year old child deliberately throws a stone through a neighbor's window. Are you liable for the damage?

Answer: Yes. Indiana law makes parents liable to the extent of $750.00 plus court costs for the intentional, willful, or malicious acts of their minor children.

18. Your 16 year old child takes the family car with your permission and causes a serious accident. Are you liable for the damage?

Answer: Yes, provided you signed his application for a driver's permit. Indiana law requires the driver's license application of any minor to be signed by a parent or a guardian having custody, or if none, then by an employer or some other responsible person.

19. If you have a traffic accident in which the driver is almost totally at fault, however, you are also slightly at fault in causing the damage, can you sue the other driver and collect your damages?

Answer: No. Indiana recognizes the theory of contributory negligence which requires a party to be totally without fault in order to recover damages from the other party.

20. In that same accident, if you had been totally without fault, could you collect your attorney's fees back from the other driver?

Answer: No. Indiana does not allow attorney fees to be collected from the losing party in a lawsuit unless they agree to do so by contract (for example, a promissory note) or unless a specific statute authorizes collection of fees.

21. Is a person under the age of 18 subject to the same laws, penalties and court procedures as someone 18 or older?

Answer: No. As a child (under 18 years of age) the juvenile code of the State takes effect. This subjects you to different laws and penalties.

22. If a 17 year old girl is charged with speeding, will she be subject to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, rather than the adult court?

Answer: No. Traffic laws are specifically excluded from juvenile court jurisdiction.

23. As a child, can you be taken into custody for staying out after 11:00 P. M. on a Wednesday night?

Answer: Yes. Indiana has a curfew law which requires juveniles to be off the streets by 11:00 P. M. on Sunday through Thursday and by 1:00 A. M. on Saturday and Sunday mornings. The curfew ends at 5:00 A. M. the next morning.

24. If you are picked up for any type of juvenile offense, must you be released to the custody of your parents?

Answer: No. If the probation officer has reason to believe that you are unlikely to appear at a subsequent court hearing, then he may call the judge in the middle of the night and request that you be held for up to 48 hours (excluding week-ends and holidays).

25. Which of the following is/are not a delinquent act which would subject you to the juvenile court jurisdiction:

(a) Running away from home,

(b) Committing a act which would be a crime if committed by an adult,

(c) Truancy from school,

(d) Disobeying the reasonable commands of a parent or guardian,

(e) Committing a curfew violation,

(f) Under age drinking.

Answer: None of the above. All are delinquent acts within the meaning of the juvenile code.

26. Does a juvenile have a right to be represented by a lawyer at his hearing?

Answer: Yes. And if he can not afford one, the Court will appoint one for him.

27. Can a person, by will, disinherit a spouse?

Answer: No. Indiana law provides for the election to take against a will of a deceased spouse and would allow a surviving spouse to elect a one-third share of the net personal and real property of the testator.

28. Can a person, by will, disinherit children?

Answer: Yes, simply by leaving them out of the will.

29. If you die without a will, are death taxes higher?

Answer: No. If the property would pass to the same heirs and in the same proportions as they would under a will, the tax would be the same.

30. Is the expense of administering an estate larger if there is no will?

Answer: No. If the work is the same. However, administration can be simplified and costs reduced if careful planning is done with a will.

31. If you are 17 years old and own valuable property, can you make a will?

Answer: No. You must be 18 years of age to make a will unless you are a member of the armed forces or the merchant marine of the United States or its Allies.

32. If you are under 18 years of age and inherit from a deceased relative, can the inheritance be paid directly to you?

Answer: No. A guardian must be appointed if the value exceeds $3,500.00. Below that amount, the Court may allow it to be deposited in the name of a suitable person designated by the court.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Richard Beebe, who resides in Gaithersburg, Maryland, passed along a copy of the last edition of "The Washington Star." That newspaper went out of business August 7, 1981, after 128 years of publication. Time, Inc., owner of the newspaper said that 60 potential buyers would not pledge the 20 million dollars needed to guarantee one year of further publication. So the paper folded. (No pun intended.)

Increased cost of production and decreasing advertising lineage led to the newspaper's demise.

So, the big ones fall just like the little ones.

The final edition sent by Richard is on display at the News Office for those who may want to take a look.

When Margaret Drerup of Auburn sent her subscription renewal, plus confirmation of dates for two reunions at Wild Cherry Park next year, she noted that there was no electricity available at the pavilion this year and "the coffee pot stayed cold."

The problem was that vandals stole the removable housing which holds the fuses. Because there isn't much call for that sort of thing, you don't find such a housing even at electrical distributors, at least I couldn't find any. It became a matter of buying and installing a new box and that was put off due to costs involved. With personal matters taking much of my time, the fuse problem did not get taken care of.

John Bopp and I are still looking for a housing to try to avoid the expense of a new fuse box installation.

'Social Security' - Does Universal Coverage Mean Higher Taxes?

In the previous issue I commented on the pitfalls of the Social Security program. I touched on the fact that private citizens pay for two "pensions," their own plus those of governmental employees. But the governmental employees pay only for their own.

The logical conclusion would be "Well then, put federal employees under Social Security, too. Then everyone pays equally." And this approach is being proposed by some members of Congress as part of the "solution" to the Social Security problem of not enough funds. This approach is being fought by federal employees, and it is easy to understand why they don't want to help pay for a dead horse. Their pension program is better.

But — is taking federal employees into Social Security going to ease the problem of insufficient funds for future obligations? I don't think so.

Unless I am mistaken about the mechanics of including federal employees in the Social Security program, such a move would increase taxes for private citizens.

Why? Well, if the employee pays half and the employer pays half, that means federal employees would pay half and their employer would pay half. Who is their employer? The federal government, which is in effect the taxpayer. Where would the government's half come from? The taxpayer. How do you pay for more government spending? By raising taxes.

The only real solution to the problem of financing Social Security is to recognize that it has gone too far and the entire program must be cut back. To do that the public must realize that Social Security is not a pension program; it is a welfare program, and should be geared to the actual need of individual citizens.

The public has been the victim of continuous propaganda coming from Social Security offices all over the country who have been saying that Social Security is financially sound and there is nothing to worry about. Even those offices (which are only passing along what has been fed to them from Washington, D.C.) have been warning in recent months about the financial problem the program faces. Just three years ago, then-President Jimmy Carter publicly stated that the legislation he had just signed, passed by Congress, would guarantee the financial stability of Social Security beyond the year 2000. It took only three years to show that Congress and the President were totally wrong in their predictions. The reason: what was sought was just more money, not a sound structure for a welfare program.

Senator Lugar's "Good Example"

Senator Richard Lugar has refunded unspent tax dollars to the tune of $806,000 over the past five years. Members of Congress have an allowance with which to maintain a staff and offices. The Senator's economical operations represent a 22% cut in operational funds needed. Yet he has answered more than 700,000 constituent letters, resolved more than 10,000 individual citizen case problems and visited all 92 counties each year. He has combined his Indiana offices with Senator Dan Quayle for serving constituents. The joint offices are located in Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, Hammond and Jeffersonville.

Senator Lugar gives credit to his staff for their efforts to use tax dollars with the greatest degree of efficiency in operating area offices.

Perhaps the time will come when ALL members of Congress require less tax money than is allowed for staff and offices. But I wouldn't hold my breath until that time comes.

Senator Lugar has set an example which is heartening to the average taxpayer. But what about the other members of Congress? Can the taxpayer count on them to follow Senator Lugar's example?

While it is good to hear that close to a million dollars has been returned to the federal treasury over a five-year period, there is a disturbing factor involved. That is this: taxpayer money should not be left to the discretion of an elected public official to use as he or she sees fit. Senator Quayle in the past turned his Congressional pay raise over to some worthwhile cause. But is that the way tax dollars should be used. More appropriate would be a reduction in taxes to allow the taxpayer to use the money as he or she sees fit.

There has been such a "pot of gold" atmosphere in our society for so long that many people find it difficult to adjust to someone saying "there isn't any more money." Cities and towns have become beggars, running to Uncle Sam for block grants—which means using federal tax dollars for projects of a particular local nature which may not be really and truly critical. Federal and state aid has so corrupted our communities that funds are sought to have an outsider come in and tell local officials where stop signs are needed. The comment is heard frequently: "If we don't get it, someone else will."

Indiana's two Senators deserve a "thank you" for using tax dollars diligently; they have set a good example. What is necessary, however, is to cut the allowances granted to the members of Congress in maintain their offices. Experience has shown that is the only way fewer tax dollars will be spent.

History of Saint Joe Recalled

This article is reprinted from a previous issue of the "News" and further changes have taken place as to ownership of some of the properties mentioned. Also, some of the buildings described herein have been destroyed or moved to other locations.

Mrs. Belle Filley Woodcox of Detroit prepared this brief history to be presented to the Ladies Literary Club in 1937.

" I came to live in the town of St. Joe in the year of 1879. There were 20 dwellings and 12 business places: the farm home of Nelson Ulm, where Ray Reasoner now lives, the G. W. Woodcox home (The low wing of what is now the Jennie Sechler home), the house now owned by Lizzie Milliman, the upright part of the now G. W. Woodcox home, then occupied by E. C. Van Zile, the hotel owned and operated by Wm. Leighty, a frame house (across from the Martin garage) occupied by Jacob Leighty, the house now owned by Roy Reidenbaugh, then located on the Walter Zonker corner (Haberkorn), and owned by John Somerlot, a part of the present home of Jesse Loftus and owned by George Bleeks, the present home of Mrs. Buckingham then owned by the section boss, Abe McCar the present home of Mrs. Burl Rude then occupied by Alex Leighty, the White hotel which has been enlarged since and a residence back of this, now occupied by Cecil Shilling, a small house on the site of Don Kellers' occupied by Simon Wineland and the John Engle farm home as it stands today just north of the B&O, and a log house standing between it and the railroad occupied by the Van Horns, and the farm home owned by John Leighty and occupied by Bennett Leighty."

"The business places at that time were the elevator, the depot, which was about 400 feet eastward, a general store which stood on the vacant lot just west of the G. W. Woodcox home, a combination grocery and liquor store which stood where the funeral parlor is. Next was a wagon shop where the Lutheran church now stands, operated by Russ George, a blacksmith shop where John Hull's barber shop is now. A two story building where Schondelmeyers Store is now was a carpenter shop below the living rooms above, a sawmill where the coal yards now are, owned by Somerlot, Bleeks and Filley. At the west end of the street on the lot of the Harry Kees home stood a restaurant and liquor store run by Nelson Ulm. A saloon called Blue Ruin was located in the middle of the Main street extended from the pavement. An overhead bridge was over the B&O on the road running north from these places. It furnished much entertainment in winter for it was a veritable toboggan slide from it to the creek bridge farther north. During the fall of 1879 J. C. Leighty built a two story brick building where the Leighty block still stands. The upper floor for many years was used as a town hall, and it was there we heard Theron P. Heater lecture, as well as the Swiss Bell Ringers. About this time a church was erected as a community church, and was later called the Lutheran, on the site of the present building."

" From 1879 to1889 many buildings were erected both for business and dwellings. Among the business places we recall the general store, which was located where the Joe Martin Garage now is and was built by Mortimer Olds who also had living rooms above. This was the birthplace of the "Sanit Joe News". Another such building was erected just east of this which was used as a drugstore and dwelling by Dr. Mitchell. Mark Barney and Beeks Erick used the store vacated when J. D. Leighty moved into his new new brick building. It was later sold to Solomon Barney who erected a frame building where the Curie hardware now stands. Martin Tustison built and operated a garocery store where the news office now is. A brick schoolhouse built on the site of the present school premises replaced the wooden one which had stood where the William Hollabaugh home was erected, and is still used as a woodshed and storage. Soon after these came many of the buildings still used for business today. Some that came are gone now, among them the lumber yards south and east of the elevator, another sawmill which had replaced the first which had burned, and a handle factory which stood on the lot just east of the Jesse Loftus home, a creamery which stood opposite the Leslie Meek home and a two story building on the present site of the city hall which housed a buggy shop below and a photograph gallery above, also a blacksmith shop which is now part of the residence where Joe Goldsmith now lives. The building in which Reign Schondelmeyar has his store was built on the corner of the Jennie Sechler property, and was operated by Mel Bishop and Zach Kagey as a hardware store. In 1886 the Methodist Church was erected, and two years later the Church of Christ was built."

" During the first 15 years of the life of St. Joe, the south part of the town on Widney Ave. was an orchard in which many of the town's festivities were held. Such was the beggining of the growth of our little burg which never grew to great proportions but has housed some great souls."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Ted:

I am aware of your interest in Social Security and wanted to advise you recent developments in this area.

On September 24th, President Reagan made a major announcement concerning Social Security. In a televised speech to the nation, the President asked Congress to restore the minimum benefit for current beneficiaries with low incomes. The President also announced that he is asking the Congress to join him in forming a task force to further study Social Security.

The Administration and members of the Congress all recognize that the Social Security system faces short and long-term financial problems. Yet no one has been able to agree upon a constructive solution to these problems.

In announcing creation of the task force, President Reagan asked the Congress to postpone any actions on his original Social Security proposals until a general consensus on the problem can be reached. This 15-member task force will work to develop a clear analysis of near and long-term problems affecting Social Security, including options for their solutions and recommendations for action by the Congress.

I applaud this effort to remove Social Security from the arena of partisan politics and place it in a forum of objective analysis. Both Republicans and Democrats must work together to bring about a fair and just solution to the financial problemms which the system presently faces.

Your continued interest and suggestions are both welcome and helpful as I seek to deal with this important issue.

Sincerely,
Dan Coats
Member of Congress

Other's Say . . . .

October 1 marks a turn around day in American taxation. This was the day the President's tax cut proposals were approved by the United States Congress.

Farmers and Farm Bureau are proud of their role they played in this effort. As called for, taxes will be reduced 25 per cent across the board for 33 months.

Of particular interest to agriculture is the estate tax provisions. Estate taxes or sometimes referred to as "Death Taxes" have long been dreaded by farmers and their surviving heirs.

In most instances a farmer and his family devote a lifetime to building a farming operation to see it many times sold or divided simply to pay the taxes on the estate.

Farmers want repeal, but the current revisions, hopefully, move us closer to actual repeal.

The current bill provides an increase in the unified state tax credit which means that when the bill is fully phased in, about 1985, we will be able to take an estate tax exemption of $600,000. In other words, estates valued at less than this figure will escape the tax.

In addition, the gift tax exclusion would rise from $3,000 to $10,000 and the current tax on transfers between spouses would be eliminated.

Differences in the proposals are currently being worked out by a conference committee. —Thomas W. Asher, Editor, in "The Hoosier Farmer" of October 1981.

State Legislature, Town Board - - - and Pay Raises

I have noted before that what I say in these opinion columns is sometimes presented with the knowledge that it is difficult to separate thoughts as an editor from thoughts as a town board member. In either case, there are times when, if I do not say something, I am withholding information from the public and can be accused of "hiding" something. And if I do say something, I may be putting someone else on the spot. In either case, also, there is the realization that I must continue to "get along" with whomever else may be involved. The problem is to treat situations and people fairly.

With these thoughts very much in mind, the following is presented — reluctantly.

Remember that I commented not too many weeks ago about the lack of information contained in budget notices this year? Instead of having town and township budget proposals itemized, this year's budget publication contained only a few total amounts.

It's wrong — and right here in Saint Joe is a good example of how the public is being deprived of knowledge of how their local tax dollars can be spent due to rulings by the Indiana State Board of Tax Commissioners and members of the state legislature.

The schedule for budget publication is set up this way:

The taxing unit publishes its proposed budget. Then a public meeting is held to allow anyone who wants to ask questions about the budget or gripe about it or whatever. Then another meeting is held at which the elected officials approve the budget.

State officials have the whole thing buss-ackwards. When the budget is published, the public officials have reviewed their wants and needs. You don't usually find elected officials making changes after they have reviewed the budget prior to its publication. The public has an uphill battle if there is any serious question about proposed spending by the public officials. And if any changes are made, the public has no knowledge of them unless they attend the budget meetings. AND — the budget as published in the first place is not necessarily the budget that is approved. Figures on "anticipated income" obtained from the state have been changed at times in the past, and this means a change in the tax rate — which has already been published!

Back to Saint Joe. Did you residents of Saint Joe know that the budget was changed after you saw it published in this paper? And did you know that the most significant change was that the town board gave itself a pay raise? Did you know that while the board president was on vacation, the budget was changed without his knowledge to raise board pay from the present $600 per year to $1,000 per year per member and the clerk-treasurer's pay from $750 up to $1,500?

How could this be done? Well, the state came in and apparently said "Saint Joe will get more money than was indicated in the published budget." So, instead of having the public aware of the final budget, we have the public unaware of significant changes concerning town official's pay. And this came about because (1) public budget hearings are held after rather than before budgets are published in the newspapers and (2) the state legislature threw the constitution out the window with legislation which allows public officials to set their own pay during their term in office.

You probably read and heard a lot about "home rule" legislation passed by the 1981 state legislature. That sounds good — "home rule." But it covered up the fact that other action at the state level PREVENTS the public from knowing how their tax dollars are to be spent and allows those in certain elective offices to give themselves a pay raise every year if they wish.

This is how you fight inflation?

The president of the town board brought up the matter of self pay raises at a board meeting a few months ago — not for serious consideration, as he put it, but rather to awaken the public as to what is going on in legislative matters. At that time it was two to one against a self pay raise in Saint Joe. But only a few weeks later it became two to one FOR a self pay raise in Saint Joe. Apparently it does take the passing of an ordinance to make the pay raise effective. But how much protection is that? Three years ago a pay raise was allowed by the state even though there had been no ordinance passed to make it legal. As a matter of fact, the state tax board reversed itself — first it said the pay raises would not be allowed then a few days later said it would allow the raises.

To correct or prevent some of these "un-American activities" three things ought to be done.

1. Schedule public meetings BEFORE budgets are published;

2. Put itemized proposals back in the budget publication; and

3. Rescind the unconstitutional self pay raise legislation which puts the Indiana General Assembly to shame.

If someone asks, "How can it be a law if it's unconstitutional?", the answer is: any law or ordinance is binding unless it is challenged in court. Then a court decides the law's constitutionality or legality. That means someone must spend some money for legal fees/in some instances to right a wrong. The only other solution in this case is for the next session of the state legislature to rescind the self pay raise statute. Pay raises for elected public officials should be made only for the next elected officials, not for those already in office. And there should be no automatic cost of living pay increases at any level of public office: they do only one thing—guarantee an increase in the cost of living.

Meanwhile, how does that sound to Saint Joe residents? Pay of town board members went from $150 to $500 three years ago. Now the budget raises their pay from $500 up to $1,000. And the public and the town board president didn't even know what was going on.

— This wasn't an easy editorial to write . . . .

Junior and Senior band members are winding up their annual cheese and sausage sale. The band hopes to raise $1,000 for equipment. Also participating in the sale is the drill team, the Blazettes.

The band's next performance will be Saturday evening in the annual Butler Halloween parade. Band members will be "dressed for the occasion."

Band Boosters will meet Nov. 2 in the Eastside Cafetorium at 7:00 p.m. Any person interested in supporting the band should attend this meeting.

Eastside's fall play, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," will be presented Nov. 6 and 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafetorium. Tickets will be on sale at the door or may be purchased from any cast member.

The play is based on the original Peanuts characters and will be a musical-comedy.

Eastside's French class is planning a trip to Fort Wayne's Wayne High School to see a play entitled "Le Petit Prince," or The Little Prince. By seeing the play, Miss Melinda Lantz, French teacher, said she hopes to acquaint students with the work of famous French authors and allow them to put to use the skills they have learned in class.

In addition to seeing the play, students will also eat lunch at the Epicurean Restaurant, where they will get to try out their taste buds on a bit of French food.

Eastside High School's yearbook staff began its annual advertising campaign last week. The campaign consists of personal patron ads, which sell for $2.00 each and scholarship patron donations. In both cases, individuals and businesses may donate money to the yearbook staff. Those who donate will get their names published in the yearbook.

Money raised from the advertising campaign will be used to pay expenses of this year's book and to send staff members to a summer journalism camp.

New members of Eastside's Future Farmers of America traveled to Trafalgar to Greenhand Camp. Members sold rat bait as part of their initiation to the club.

Larry Kummer of the Federal Land Bank spoke to Eastside's Farm Management class last week about financial statements and other financial aspects of operating a farm. The class is taught by Sam Reinoehl.

Letters to the Editor

October 20, 1981

Dear Ted:

Thank you for your recent communication concerning the Department of Education.

As you may know, President Reagan recently announced his intentions to dismantle the Department of Education. I commend the President for this decision for I do not believe there are any educational problems so grave that they cannot be solved by parents, taxpayers, teachers and administrators working together. Education is a full-time job which begins in the home and local communities. Unfortunately, we have become a nation trying to solve our educational problems by turning to Washington, instead of relying on local initiatives.

One of the greatest strengths of American education is its diversity. This diversity has allowed parents and teachers - - the consumers of education- - - a wide spectrum of choices in determining what type of schools are best for them, as well as an opportunity to implement those choices at a local level. The current Department of Education hampers this creative diversity by trying to centralize education to make it conform to endless rules and regulations.

We must return to a system of decentralized control such as we had before President Carter created the Department of Education in 1977. The responsibility for education should be focused on state and local authorities who can best determine the educational needs of their respective communities.

I would welcome your additional comments about this and other matters of interest to you.

Sincerely,

Dan Coats

Member of Congress

Other's Say . . . .

— by Lewis K. Uhler

Round Two of federal budget slashing is well underway. Where to put the lid on next is the constant challenge.

Big ticket items are attraective targets — and those include the vast body of federal employees, their pay, benefits, pensions nad especially, how these items are adjusted from year to year.

But as we address these thorny problems, we have to remember that a lot more than tax money is involved. We've got to think about what is good public policy — what is good and bad for the people — what helps the country in the broad sense — and what is fair — to all concerned.

For example, is it fair to the low-income wage earner to take his hard-earned money and pay incredible sums to retired federal employees? Check these statistics: a person who retired from federal service in 1970 with a pension of $10,000 is now getting $25,423 per year; if he began with a $30,000 pension, he's now receiving $76,255 per year! The pension base has been increased more than 254% since 1970.

And these retirees have not paid their own way — only 7% of their salaries went into the retirement fund. Civil Service Retirement Fund actuaries estimate that over five times that much would be required to make the system sound — 18% from the employee and 18% from the federal government.

So, it's only natural that many federal employees are induced to elect early retirement to take advantage of this distorted pension program. And then the retiree can jump into a private sector job, pay minimum amounts into the Social Security system and wind up qualifying at 65 for inordinately high Social Security benefits (on top of his federal pension compared to the amount paid in. And who foots the bill? All of us private sector taxpayers. And it adds to the burden already imposed on the already beleagured Social Security fund.

That's the money side of the equation. Are there other costs? You bet — in terms of human satisfaction and productivity. Why,

The inordinately high federal pay scales (witness the number of applicants to fill the job slots of the fired air traffic controllers), plus the lure of hefty retirement pay, keeps many good people locked into wasteful, low-productivity jobs which they really detest. They have become hostages of a distorted pay-retirement system.

Others who are working at their true competence level are seduced to retire early by virtu of these distorted pension schedules; thereby constituting a real "brain drain" in critical jobs — especially on the military side of our federal employment, where we desperately need to retain those with the technical skills demanded by our modern defense technology.

On the other side of the scale, those forced to rely entirely on Social Security payments often want to — or must — work to keep bed and board together. They are discouraged from doing so because for every $2 they earn, they lost $1 of Social Security, while the wealthier folks who have dividend and interest income don't get similarly penalized when they "clip their coupons." Again, we discourage productivity and encourage circumvention of the law — because we all know Social Security retirees who work for cash only and don't report a cent of outside earnings.

Bottom line is this: as we cut federal spending in the area of pensions, "double dipping," etc, we must pay close attention to human incentives and the matter of fairness and equity. It is time to halt the distortions that take productive people out of circulation prematurely — cutting down national productivity — and at the same time hang an intolerable albatross on the struggling taxpayer who is trying to make it on his own.

(Lewis K. Uhler is President of the National Tax Limitation Committee, the sponsor of a Constitutional amendment to limit permanently federal spending and taxes.)

White House Youth Program

Gov. Robert D. Orr urges young Hoosier leaders to consider President Reagan's White House Fellowship Program which provides high-level educational internships in the federal government.

The governor pointed out that the deadline for applying for one of the highly competitive fellowship assignments is Dec. 1, 1981, but applications must be requested by Nov. 15.

Established in 1964, the program has sixteen classes of fellows including attorneys, physicians, teachers, business men and women, engineers, career military personnel, journalists, farmers, a policeman, an orchestra conductor and former state legislators——each of them in the early formative years of their careers.

During their fellowship year, the fellows hold educational assignments with the Vice-President, members of the Cabinet, or the President's principal White House staff and participate in an extensive seminar program that typically includes some 200 off—the—record sessions with governmental and private sector leaders.

As a government employee, each fellow is paid by his or her agency at an appropriate scale.

" This is an intensive training program that provides tomorrow's national leaders with first hand insight on how this country is governed," Gov. Orr said. " I am confident this state has several young leaders who would be eligible to apply for a fellowship. I'm equally confident that if any Hoosiers are chosen, the state would benefit when these young people return to Indiana to put their special knowledge to work in state government or the private sector."

The governor noted the qualities sought by the Fellowship Commission are high levels of achievement early in one's career and demonstrated leadership capability. While the program has no age limits, it is designed to encourage future leaders rather than reward established leaders.

Interested applicants for tthe 1982-83 fellowships may contact, before Nov. 15, 1981, the President's Commision on White House Fellowships, 712 Jackson Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20503; telephone 202/395-4522.

Vaccine for High Risk Flu Patients

Do you need a flu shot?

You do if you are a member of one of the "high risk" groups pointed out by the American Lung Association:

- Persons over 65 years of age
- Individuals who suffer from chronic pulmonary, heart or kidney disease
- People with diabetes and severe anemia

Some communities also vaccinate persons who provide essential community services, and medical care personnel who are at increased risk of exposure.

Pneumococcal pneumonia is another disease for which there is a vaccine. Some of the same persons who are apt to get the flu also are at risk for pneumococcal pneumonia.

The one person who can answer all questions about pneumonia and flu is your doctor. Ask him or her.

Influenza, or flu, can be asymptomatic - - with or without symptoms. Or it can range from mild upper respiratory infection to severe pneumonia and death. In the U. S., approximately one of every 100 persons with influenza is hospitalized. Thus, during an outbreak, if 20% of the population contract flu, more than a half-million persons would be hospitalized.

If you think you might be in a high-risk group, ask questions! And follow your doctor's advice.

"It's outrageous that convicts are eligible for Social Security payments. It costs the government nearly $15,000 a year to keep a criminal in prison, and on top of that, some of them receive monthly Social Security checks. We pay their room and board and even give them spending money," Coats said.

Coats pointed out that current law allows certain inmates to receive early retirement benefits even while they are serving sentences for crimes as serious as murder.

DAR Wins 1st; Hears Report On Yorktown Related To Local Teacher

Mrs. Marlin Yoder hosted the John Houlton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution on October 10 at her home in Auburn. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. Hubert Kinsey, Mr. Ernest Harter and Mrs. Orris Wise.

Chapter Regent, Mrs. Wise, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Kinsey gave the devotions. Mrs. Wise led the pledge to the flag, the opening ritual and the American Creed.

Mrs. Douglas Vose and Mrs. Harter gave an interesting and very informative report on the 81st State Conference held at the Atkinson Hotel in Indianapolis October 5-7. They stated one of the highlights of the conference was the Yorktown luncheon which included a slide presentation on Yorktown. They also stated that the John Houlton Chapter press book, prepared by Miss Linda Yoder and Mrs. Marlin Yoder, won first place in the press book contest at the state conference.

Mrs. Bud Clark reported that the necessary preparations have been made by her and her committee for the DAR Good Citizens contest and the Junior American Citizens contest.

Mrs. Wise read an invitation to attend the Dedication Day at the Kate Duncan Smith DAR School in Grant, Alabama, on October 23.

Mrs. Wise gave the National Defense Report entitled "Foreign Policy and the American Spirit" by the Honorable Alexander M. Haig, Jr., Secretary of State. He delivered this presentation May 16, 1981, at the Hillsdale College Commencement in Hillsdale, Michigan. Mr. Haig stated the resurgence of the American spirit has led to a remarkable consensus in our national life. The issue is not whether we should strengthen America, but how quickly we can do so. There should be no mystery about American purposes abroad. We want a world hospitable to our society and to our ideals. We seek a world where there can be peaceful change, where nations can settle disputes short of war. We shall work to restore the prospect of a world free from threats of force or the use of force. The main lines of action in our foreign policy are: first, we shall insist on greater restraint and reciprocity in East-West relations; second, to reinvigorate our alliances and friendships. Third, we are seeking a more just and responsible relationship with the Third World. Fourth, and finally, the President has advocated a revolutionary program to cure America's economic ills. We have seen very clearly that an ailing American economy ultimately does great harm to our foreign policy. Our allies — and our adversaries — must know that we are reliable. We shall not be passive when our interests are threatened. Mr. Haig closed with "the youth of the nation are the trustees of posterity."

Mrs. Lynn Holsinger asked that each member bring to the November meeting "a piece of our heritage" which could consist of a very unique item, something creative, music, art, literature, etc., to be used for "show and tell."

Mrs. Bud Clark presented the program entitled "Hope Fulfilled by Yorktown Victory." She said the morning of and clear. There was just a touch of chill in the air. The American and French soldiers occupying the lines near Yorktown, Virginia, were beginning to pack up their arms and equipment.

The people came from surrounding areas to watch in fascination. Even nature seemed to be celebrating the victory. The trees with their orange, yellow and rich brown leaves were dancing, it seemed, on the green grass which they encircled.

The contrast between the American and French soldiers was remarkable. The Continentals had tattered clothes while the French were dressed in their white uniforms, plumed and decorated officers at their head.

It was the Continental soldier who had the soldierly bearing about him. He was the one who had endured the six years of battle. His tattered clothes told clearly the story of years of hardship and deprivation. Among those Continental soldiers were woodsmen, tradesmen, clerks, laborers and common men whose names for the most part are lost to history, but who, taken together, embodied the spirit of the people who had settled this country.

The defeated British marched out of Yorktown at 2:00 p.m. on October 19, 1781. They were clad in new uniforms, with their colors cased and their bands playing (tradition says) "The World Turned Upside Down." Lord Cornwallis was not present, due to illness, he had said.

Mrs. Clark further stated that among the soliders and civilians who silently watched the surrender ceremony, none could know that nearly two more years would pass before the official documents terminating the war would be signed. For all intents and purposes, the surrender at Yorktown was a signal to the world that the war had been won. It was an ending of sorts, and perhaps even a beginning.

Mrs. Clark stated that the Battle of Yorktown had special meaning to her as her great great great grandfather, Seth Jewel, was at the taking of Lord Cornwallis on October 19, 1781, at Yorktown, Virginia. Mrs. Clark's ancestors entered the Revolution on December 25, 1776, in New Jersey. At the end of the war, May 1783, he was mustered out on the North River near a place called New Winsor, New York.

Economic Development Bonding Program Is 'Out Of Bounds'

How can communities with few job opportunities be helped?

One of the aid programs which ought to be cracked down on is that tied to "economic development bonds." The amount of money being made available at lower non-taxable interest rates is far beyond what can be honestly described as economic development for jobless areas.

Federal and state aid is being used to the advantage of some and to the disadvantage of others. In the past week the Auburn Economic Development Commission's recommendation that low-interest bonds be allowed for a new supermarket at Auburn was approved by the Auburn City Council. There was opposition to the recommendation, coming primarily from supermarkets already doing business at Auburn; they say the low-interest bonding represents an unfair advantage to the new grocery. They have a point.

Many months ago, when the matter first came up, I pointed out in a "letter to the editor" of the county daily that the original intent of the program was being forgotten. The original intent was to help bring jobs to those areas which offered comparatively few job opportunities. The Vulcraft plant at Saint Joe was financed through economic development bonding. It brought some 200 or so jobs to our area—200 MORE jobs than had been in existence before.

But somewhere along the line, the original intent was lost. What was supposed to be a program to attract industry became a program used to finance ANY type of development, with approval from the local economic development commission. My statements in that "letter to the editor" were challenged by Star editors as being incorrect and they used the statements of an Auburn attorney to supposedly refute my observations. The strange thing was, my statements about the original intent of the law were based on information from the same attorney! With a polluted interpretation of the intent of economic development bonding, the editors obviously saw nothing wrong with building a new country club, apparently considered to be useful to the average Auburn resident.

Be that as it may, the fact remains that financing a new country club with economic development bonds is not the type of program which generates permanent jobs. What that type of project does is provide a method of financing which benefits country club members. Then when you get into the area of commercial development, a new supermarket coming into an area which already has three or four supermarkets seems to indicate further abuse of economic development bonding.

Interest rates are a problem for everyone. In the business world, if it is helpful to a community to issue tax-free bonds for a comparatively large business, why not extend the program to ALL business, not just for new construction and new jobs but for any type of improvement or expansion?

Obviously the public might be less than enthusiastic if a lower interest rate on loans were available to business but not to private individuals.

So we're right back where we started, with the question: how can communities with few job opportunities be helped?

If the answer is: by offering tax-free low-interest bonding, then we must stick to the original intent and limit the program to industrial development. To expand beyond that basic limitation is to grant to a certain few a benefit not enjoyed by those who have already made a major investment.

Why should the rich, who benefit from the use of a country club or have the money to buy the tax-free bonds, have an advantage over the average individual who can't afford either the country club or the tax-free bonds???

(Note: these bonds are purchased for the most part by corporations outside the local community.)

The approval of a bond issue for another supermarket at Auburn is totally contrary to the intent and purpose for which the program was originally set up.

ISTA Spokesmen 'Use' Media

According to the Indiana State Teachers Association, 95 of its local affiliates have not reached contract agreement with their respective local school boards for the 1981-82 school year. Teachers had planned a demonstration in Indianapolis, with 10,000 teachers coming to Indianapolis for last week's teachers' convention. But due to the fact that some 50 contract agreements had been reached recently, they decided to leave any demonstrations at the local level.

The ISTA statement said in part: "Many teachers around the state are beginning to picket local school board meetings and other school board activities. They are also beginning to realize an increased presentation to the public through the news media regarding unfair contract offers."

Such "public information" is typical of organized union leadership. You will note that there is no individual associated with the above quoted statements. Union leaders don't want to be left hanging out on a limb by identifying themselves with such remarks as above. But when a school board is "on the spot" due to local publicity, you can bet that individual school board members are known to the teachers and it is a rough road personally for the individual members of a school board when so-called "unfair contract offers" are made.

That statement about teachers "beginning to realize an increased presentation to the public through the news media regarding unfair contract offers" puzzles me. Teachers have always had (as have other unions) an "inside track" with the major news media. Our county daily in past years has published statements coming from local elaborate teacher associations and the teachers' self-serving Uni-Serv office seemingly without question during periodic disputes. But should there be any statement from the school board or administration, it seemingly has been the practice to ask the teachers or UniServe what they thought about the school's statement before publishing the school's statement. There has seldom been a story about what the school thinks of the teachers' statements.

This year was quiet in the eastern district because the teachers wisely read the handwriting on the wall about cutbacks in funding for schools. (I still think anyone who goes on strike today is crazy—look at what is happening to International Harvester—the workers struck themselves right out of a job.)

The real "kicker" in the story reported by UPI is this quoted statement from the ISTA:

"Any school board that is crying poverty is speaking of self-imposed poverty."

The story also reports that the ISTA says most school boards have not used all sources of revenues available to them.

Somebody ought to be put on the spot in the ISTA for these statements. Assuming that UPI got all the information available, note that an accusation is made but no facts are given. If there are sources of revenue available to school boards but not being used, what are they? What must you give up to get that revenue?

As for the "self-imposed poverty," I don't believe MOST school boards are that backward any more than I believe MOST teachers agree with what their "spokesmen" say.

One thing CAN be said for the ISTA: they really know how to "use" the media.

Sen. Lugar's Bill Aimed At Finances

Senator Dick Lugar has said that state and local governments could raise millions of dollars in additional revenues without raising taxes or receiving more federal assistance.

In a statement delivered at a hearing of the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, Senator Lugar said if state and local governments had used the so-called "NOW" or special interest bearing checking accounts they could have raised at least $600 million in additional revenues last year. "That's 10 percent of the total number of federal revenue sharing dollars sent to state and local governments," he explained. The Senator is chairman of the Banking Committee's Subcommittee on Housing and Urban Affairs.

Senator Lugar spoke in favor of legislation he authored, entitled S. 1688, which would lift the current restrictions on state and local governments from using NOW accounts. Representatives from the National League of Cities, National Governors Conference, National Association of Counties and the National Conference of Mayors also spoke in favor of the bill.

"For many years state and local governments have been trying to manage their revenues to their best advantage," said Senator Lugar who is the former mayor of Indianapolis. "This measure offers cash management tools designed to afford local governments a greater number of options on their cash. NOW accounts will benefit state and local governments in that they will no longer be required to maintain transaction accounts, or regular checking accounts, which bear no earnings while tax revenues are awaiting disbursement. Smaller localities will especially benefit because they have limited sophisticated cash management and the large sums of money needed for other forms of short-term investment."

Senator Lugar said data obtained from the Federal Reserve indicate that states and localities kept $11.2 billion in non-interest bearing demand accounts last year. Had this money been earning at even a 5.5 percent interest rate, he said, it would have produced almost $600 million. Invested at higher rates, the return would have been even greater.

"The federal government is necessarily cutting back on the growth of its assistance to state and local governments in order to control inflation," Senator Lugar said. "If the spirit of a rebirth in federalism, state and local governments are also taking and receiving more power to take care of their own needs. My bill is another step toward letting local governments better manage their own affairs for the benefit of the taxpayers," the senator concluded.

"School Scoop"

—by the DeKalb Eastside journalism class: Tona Shinabery, Tina Burnett, Rita McPherson, Dona Martin, Kelly Kessler and Jeff Ward.

Eastside's Open House will be Tuesday, November 17, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. It will provide an opportunity for parents to meet students' teachers and see facilities at the school.

Student Council members will serve as guides during the Open House.

To encourage participation in Open House, Student Council is sponsoring three activities. The first is a theme contest. Any Home BASE class may propose a theme for this year's Open House. The student body will then vote on the suggestions to choose the winner.

The second contest is for the best room display. Home BASE rooms are encouraged to decorate their classrooms according to the chosen theme. Student Council guides will judge each Home BASE room during Open House.

The third contest is an attendance contest. The Home BASE class which registers the most visitors during Open House will win. Prizes will be awarded for all three contests.

The Eastside Library sponsored its second annual pumpkin decorating contest October 28 during Home BASE class. Sue Wank was awarded first prize for her pumpkin decorated as a woman with pink hair. Second place went to Matt Seslar, whose pumpkin was decorated as an Indian with a headband and feathers. Both winners are in the seventh grade.

Pumpkins were judged by faculty members Mike Slentz and Rex McFarren.

Contestants decorated pumpkins this year instead of carving them due to limited time. Pumpkins and decorations were furnished by the contestants. All decorating had to be done in the library during Home BASE period.

Pictures of this year's winners, as well as last year's winners, are on display in the library.

Eastside's High School Art Club collected nearly $90 from a bake sale it sponsored last week. The money will be used to purchase awards for winners in the upcoming art show. Proceeds will also help pay for a possible field trip to an art museum.

Officers of Eastside's chapter of Future Farmers of America attended a leadership kickoff at East Noble November 3. The program provided officers training for District 3 members. Eastside FFA officers include Ken Casebere, president; Dave Krieg, vice president; Lamar Reinhart, secretary; Anthony Moore, treasurer; Ken Kessler, reporter; and Rod Hawver, sentinel.

Students in Eastside's Child Development class became the proud mothers of egg babies last week. During the week-long project, students will be responsible for the care of their "baby," actually a hard-boiled egg.

The project began with students drawing from a hat to determine whether their new baby would be a boy or girl. They then named the new babies and had a baby shower for them. Throughout the week students must arrange for constant care of the child. If they must go out, they have to arrange for some type of child care. They must also keep records of feedings and other daily tasks.

"I hope this will give the girls a good idea of what a responsibility it is to have a baby," said Mrs. Candi Surber, instructor.

The unit will also explore such topics as child care options, such as baby sitters and child care centers, and life insurance for children.

The fall sports banquet for athletes participating in football, cross country and girls' volleyball will be November 12 at 6:30 p.m. in the Eastside cafetorium. Presentation of awards to outstanding athetes in each sport will follow.

Eastside's annual Soap and Towel game will kick off the basketball season November 13 at 6:30 p.m. Both boys' and girls' basketball teams will be involved in this year's game. Indiana High School Athletic Association officials will officiate the game and will explain rule changes. The game will also provide coaches an opportunity to introduce their teams.

Admission to the game is either a towel or a bar of soap.

Blazer Awards, recognizing students for achievement or improvement in classroom or extra-curricular activities, will be presented again this year to Eastside students. However, this year the awards will be presented by teachers on a monthly basis. After the awards have been presented each month, 10 names will be drawn from the junior high and 10 from the high school. These students will receive a McDonalds' certificate for two free sandwiches.

Students will be dismissed from school Wednesday, November 11, in observance of Veterans Day. Classes will resume at the normal time Thursday. Report cards will be distributed Friday.

Representatives of Huntington College will visit Eastside November 9, and Vincennes University representatives will visit November 13. They will discuss college programs, financial aid and admission procedures with juniors and seniors.

Butler Elementary School's Parent Teacher Association will meet November 12 at 7 p.m. to elect officers and adopt by-laws for the organization. New memberships will also be accepted at that time. If interested in becoming an officer, contact Sheila Holman at 868-2859, Michelle Sheffield at 868-2788 or Ed Chambers, Butler Elementary principal, at the school, 868-2122.

Young men are required by law to register with the selective service within 30 days of their 18th birthday, according to the Selective Service System, headquartered in Washington, D.C. Registration procedures can be completed at any U. S. post office.

The purpose of Selective Service, according to the Selective Service System, is to insure October 19, 1781, was bright enough men could be contacted quickly in the event of a national emergency. It does not, however, signal a return to the draft, according to the Selective Service System.

The Selective Service System points out that failure to register is a felony, punishable by a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and/or five years imprisonment.

Riverdale Report

Thank you again for an excellent turnout at the annual Open House!! You have always been very supportive of the Riverdale staff and students and it is appreciated. However, we would like to see you here more than just once a year. Why not plan to come for a visit visit soon? Arrangements may be made through your child's teacher or the school office.

Be watching for information about the Book Fair coming soon, hopefully in time for Christmas gifts.

Most of you are aware by now of our new telephone number. If not, here it is: 337-5464.

Munchkin News

It is time for the ghosts to be tucked away for a year and Mr. Tom Turkey to come out of hiding.

October went speeding by with many productive activities. Your child has now met six of our lovely letter people. There are more new people coming in November. Please help keep the interest up.

Dr. Balser returned to our room October 21 and gave Meow his first shot. He has grown from one pound to two and one-half pounds. It must be the children's loving care!!

On October 22 we were very fortunate to have a local artist and mother, Mrs. Sheila Hoch, come to our room. She provided the children with clay and instructed them in the making of a pumpkin. Mrs. Hoch then took the pumpkins home, fired and glazed them for the children. A big thanks to her for providing the children with this unique experience!

Meow was pleased to meet so many parents at Open House. Thank you for taking the time to visit your child's room. Come back! Several parents told me their children wanted them to come, not to meet me — but Meow. I guess I know where I stand!

We are planning to celebrate Thanksgiving by making soup, bread and butter. This is in the planning for the week before Thanksgiving. You will be receiving more information on this later. We will be visiting a dairy farm and eating our Thanksgiving dinner there. This will be an all day session for both morning and afternoon groups.

The children are doing many visual motor papers. These are very hard so do not be concerned if your child is missing several.

The following is a list of the books your child has experienced in October:

Once A Mouse, Drummer Hoff, Georgie's Halloween, Georgie and the Noisy Ghost, The Halloween Pumpkin, The Princess and the Pumpkin, The Trip, The Night Cat, Mrs. Moon's Story Hour, Where the Witch Things Are, The Big Snow, The Picnic On Moon Mountain, Chanticlier and the Fox, Proud Pumpkin, Achoo, Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, and Mrs. Moon and Her Friends.

Have a happy "Gobble-Gobble" month!!

—Mrs. Smith

—that a major installation of a fiber optic communications system has been initiated by General Telephone Company of Indiana involving a 37-mile link between Fort Wayne and North Manchester. The $1.2 million project represents one of the longest such installations in the nation. Fiber optic technology transmits telephone conversations on streams of light inside hair-thin strands of ultra-pure glass.

Mental Health Christmas Drive

Even though Christmas seems weeks away, the DeKalb County Mental Health Association has begun its annual campaign to gather gifts for residents of the Fort Wayne State Hospital and Training Center and the nursing homes of DeKalb County.

"Christmas . . . Caring and Sharing" is the theme of the 1981 gift drive.

Many of the civic organizations in DeKalb County have received a letter explaining the gift drive. This project needs the support of many groups and individuals if it is to be successful.

Cooper's Jewelry and Gift is the gift collection depot for the Butler-St. Joe area. There is a list of gifts that have been specifically requested by the residents at the collection depot. Gifts on this list may be purchased and left unwrapped at Cooper's. Each resident is to receive two $3 gifts.

Brown Furniture and Hardware at Saint Joe is serving as pickup point for the Riverdale area.

For those who wish to contribute, but prefer not to shop, checks should be made payable to the DeKalb County Association for Mental Health and may be taken to the collection depot.

The campaign for gifts goes from October 26th until Thanksgiving (Nov. 26th).

For more information contact Mrs. Ronald Herrick at 337—5406 or Mrs. Wesley Zimmerman at 868—2706.

Please consider this worthwhile project and put Caring and Sharing back into the meaning of Christmas.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I don't recall having heard of it before, but that idea of having friends of MM Gray Woodcox fill out a "memory card" as an open house gift sounds good. It solves the problem of "what to buy" and is undoubtedly much more meaningful than the usual type of anniversary gift.

One of the shindigs that my pic-ana fingers played for with the Bob Snowball combo was a wedding reception for our bassist's son, Pat. When we finished for the evening, a young man came up and identified himself as Randy Schimmoller, son-in-law of Norman and Inge Rinard of Spencerville. We had a conversation about fire departments—he is a captain in the Adams Township VFD No. 2 Station and a Certified Emergency Medical Technician.

Randy asked a favor. He said he had told friend Phil Cole, a former Adams Township fireman, that Randy would get Phil's name "in the paper." So, despite the fact that it may be a little out of our territory, The News has Phil's name "in the paper"—compliments of Randy.

Breakin, Vandalism

There was a break-in at the Hair Snippers beauty salon in Saint Joe Friday night or Saturday morning. A pane of glass in the front door was broken to gain entry. A small amount of cash was taken, according to Mrs. Roger Cook, owner of the salon.

The same night vandals broke a window at Yeiser's Standard Service in Saint Joe. A cap on a tank fill pipe was removed from the pipe and thrown through a window of the service station.

"School Scoop"

—by the DeKalb Eastside journalism class: Tena Shinabery, Tina Barnett, Rita McPherson, Dana Martin, Kelly Kessler and Jeff Ward.

Second grade students at Butler Elementary School will be participating in a variety of activities November 18 as they work in Thanksgiving Centers located in each second grade classroom. Students, with the help of teachers and mothers, will make cornbread, homemade butter, candles, pilgrim hats and collars, quilts, and Indian beads, headbands, and vests.

The purpose of the special project is to help students understand how the Pilgrims lived and how they made their own materials, including clothing and food.

Work in the Thanksgiving centers will be followed by a Thanksgiving meal. Students will wear the costumes they have made and eat the various types of food they have prepared. The project will help the students understand the pilgrims and the meaning of Thanksgiving.

If you've been wondering who the new face at Eastside is, it's Mrs. Cheryl Gilbert, a substitute art teacher.

Mrs Gilbert is taking over for art teacher Richard Koeneman while he is in the hospital. She is currently teaching three seventh and eighth grade general art classes, a high school painting class, ceramics and an independent study class for seniors who have previously taken art classes.

Mrs. Gilbert attended Goshen College and Ball State and Tri State Universities. She graduated last spring with a major in physical education. She currently resides in Auburn.

Her hobbies include art, crafts and sports. She also teaches aerobics classes at the YMCA and coaches volleyball and gymnastics at DeKalb Central High School.

Mrs. Gilbert says she likes Eastside. "The teachers are friendly," and make up a "good teaching staff," she said. She added that she enjoys teaching and hopes to find a full-time teaching and coaching position in this area.

Another face new to the Eastside staff is that of Mrs. Lyn Osborn. She joined the staff in October and is teaching seventh and eighth grade English.

Mrs. Osborn graduated from Tri State University with a major in English and a minor in speech and drama. She also attended Bowling Green State University and Lake Erie College for Women. She currently lives in Angola with her husband and 18-month-old daughter.

She said she likes Eastside. "I like the facilities. It's a sharp looking school."

Among her outside interests are racquetball and traveling. She also holds a student pilot's license, which enables her to fly planes solo.

Welcome, Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Osborn!

Office Education Association of Eastside is currently selling Blazer derby hats. A contest will be held November 24 for the best decorated hats. Cash prizes will be awarded. Hats are $2 and are on sale in the cafetorium during lunch periods.

Butler Elementary School will conduct an organizational meeting for its Parent-Teacher Organization November 12 at 7 p.m. at the school. By-laws will be presented and officers will be elected. For additional information about the organization, contact Ed Chambers, Butler Elementary principal, at the school.

Representatives of the Fort Wayne Office of the U.S. Postal Service visited Butler Elementary School Monday. They presented films about the history of the United States Postal Service and discussed its development with fourth and fifth grade students.

Grandparents Day will be celebrated November 19 at Butler Elementary School. Grandparents of students are encouraged to visit classrooms at the school and join their grandchildren for lunch at school. The purpose of the special day is to give grandparents an opportunity to spend time with their grandchildren at school.

Students in Mrs. Janet Everhart's first grade class will present a Thanksgiving Day play the afternoon of November 19 for parents and grandparents. In observance of the Thanksgiving season, the play's theme will deal with the Pilgrims and Indians who celebrated the first Thanksgiving.

Board Reads Water Rate Hike; Accepts Scout Offer To Finish Interior

The Boy Scout Troop at Saint Joe offered to provide labor for finishing the interior of the town hall at Saint Joe and the Town Board accepted the offer at Tuesday's board meeting. Adult leader Mike Kimmel made the offer in behalf of the Scouts with adult leader John Sechler. Mr. Kimmel is a carpenter by trade and assured the board that the work would be done properly and with adequate adult supervision.

The board held the first reading of a proposed rate increase for the various categories of waterworks customers. Under the proposal residential rates will double, going from the present flat rate of $2.50 per month to the proposed $5.00 per month. Businesses will pay the same rate, not being "penalized" with a higher "commercial" rate. Large consumers are metered when necessary.

The need for increased revenue (the rates have not changed for over 20 years) was emphasized by the cost of installing a new pump at No. 1 pump house plus a new relay system. Those bills amounted to around $2,000. The two pumps in the water system are supposed to alternate in operation to maintain water pressure. The old relay apparently failed to function properly due to long useage.

With no objections expressed at the meeting, the board approved the recently-advertised additional appropriations for new fire hose, finishing the interior of the town hall and contributing to the county humane society for shelter equipment.

Bills allowed included:

Town—Walter Miller, cemetery and park mowing 400.00; Betty Baker, gas 6.00; Auburn Veterinary Clinic, disposal of dogs 10.00; Indiana & Michigan Electric Company 336.97; Brown Furniture & Hardware, supplies 9.65; Mavis Mobile Radio, parts and service 54.00; Yeiser's Standard Service, materials and services 116.75; Heas & Sons, trash removal 385.70; Jiggs' Motor Service, gas 9.50; Emma Frank, office supplies 12.91; John Bopp, labor 62.50; Hixson Sand & Gravel, materials and services 323.60.

Waterworks—Brown Furniture & Hardware, materials 32.81; Maurice Kline, superintendent salary and postage two months 188.44; I&M 108.05; Saint Joe Postmaster, postage 38.00; Emma Frank, postage 33.00; Allen Electric, parts and service 424.20; Glen Cray, parts and service 1,564.00.

An Apology

Certain statements in a recent editorial about the local Town Board have brought some trying moments for board members Larry McKown and Paula Tinstman and clerk-treasurer Emma Frank. Although some of the comments which came their way from others after my budget comments were perhaps more a "ribbing" or a "needling" than in seriousness, public reaction nonetheless was upsetting to say the least.

My statement that the town budget was changed after it appeared in this paper was in error. The clerk says that the figures in the approved budget and those in the paper are the same. The problem is that potential revenue did increase after the town board's final discussion of the budget before its publication and part of that increase did get placed in the item of pay of town officials. The board president was not aware of this fact.

It should be noted that the clerk agrees with my contention that budgets published in the newspaper should be itemized as they were before this year. This year only totals were given and that doesn't tell the public what it ought to know. The state tells you what to publish; it's not a local decision.

It was a poor choice of words to use "un-American" in my comments, even though the use of quotation marks in the way that I did usually means whatever is contained within the quotation marks is not meant literally. Also, the unfortunate words came immediately after a reference to the state tax board.

I regret having caused mental anguish for Larry, Paula and Emma and apologize for having done so.

I also regret that my fumbling and bumbling drew public attention from the disturbing fact that the pattern of automatic pay raises in government and private enterprise, or pay increases because "everything else is going up" guarantee that inflation will not stop.

Fleamarket Finds

Q. What information can you furnish on a kerosene lamp having a Japanese style bronze base? —Mrs. F.Y., York, Pa.

A. The discovery of the Pennsylvania oil fields in 1859 prompted a parade of kerosene regulated lighting devices. Consumers realized that kerosene, distilled from petroleum, was cleaner and better smelling than whale oil. Innumerable variations of kerosene lamps were produced by late Victorian manufacturers. Designers, strongly influenced by the Japanese Exhibits at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876, created a number of these lighting accessories featuring Oriental themes. Those in pristine condition, complete with their original shades, fetch illuminating returns. Value guide: Kerosene lamp, flower decorated globe, Japanese style bronze base, 26 inches tall, $275.

Q. Would you assist me in evaluating a small group of reward posters? —Jim, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

A. Within paper collecting circles reward posters are springing up on many buyer's "wanted lists." Value guide: John Dillinger, picture, March 12, 1934, 18 inches by 23 inches, $40; Charles Lindbergh, Jr., kidnapping, Government Printing Office, 1932, offering $25,000 reward, 17 inches by 26 inches, $120; Charles Ross, kidnapping, September 1, 1874, six inches by 10 inches, $65; Stolen Horses, Hagerstown, Maryland, 1870s, 6 inches by 9 inches $15.

Q. When was the Illinois watch Company active? I have a railroad watch from this firm. —Mr. C.E., Youngstown, Ohio.

A. With a capital of $100,000, John C. Adams founded the Illinois Springfield Watch Company in 1869. Within just one year 125 employees were producing 55 watches per day. However, financial difficulties plagued the company through the 1870s. Between 1885 and 1927, when the firm operated under the title Illinois Watch Company, over five and a half million watches were produced. Subsequently, it was purchased by the Hamilton Watch Company. Watches bearing one of the firm's titles simply become more valuable with every passing moment. Value guide: Railroad watch, 21 jewels, 14K gold, $250.

Q. Can you date my No. 5 Enterprise meat chopper? —Sally, Tampa, Florida.

A. In 1889 the Enterprise Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia declared this kitchen helper was "the meat chopper for the people." Advertisements proclaimed it was ideal for chopping such items as "clams, sausage, chicken salad, peppers and codfish." And to think it sold for just $2.00. As with other Enterprise kitchen companions this device was available at leading hardware and home furnishing establishments. This handy item, capable of performing many a kitchen caper, now qualifies as a $85 flea market find.

Red Cross News

—Virginia Freed, reporter

The executive board of the DeKalb County Chapter of the American Red Cross met at the home of Mrs. Joy Jeffries October 27.

Virginia Freed, chairman of the chapter, called the meeting to order. Treasurer Elaine Aeschliman gave the following report: Junior Red Cross balance $344.25; chapter balance $8,443.26 savings, $2,698 checking.

Executive board members for the coming year are Virginia Freed, Paula Slentz, Betty Bevington, Elaine Aeschliman, Madelaine Zumbaugh and Jean Chancellor who has been appointed to replace Lowell Nees, resigned from the board. Dan Schmidt also has resigned due to his recent election as president of the Hospice Association.

The chapter has submitted a budget request of $13,500 to the United Fund. The annual campaign is now in progress.

Joy Jeffries gave a report on "Focus of Health" to be held at the Indian Village Church sometime in April of 1982. Sandy Medina has consented to chair this project which is a health-screening clinic sponsored by American Red Cross chapters.

The van donated in 1979 by Joe Parshall has been painted white. Paul Freeburn will apply red decals and lettering. The money to pay for the repainting was donated by Cooper Tire & Rubber. Joy and Larry Jeffries drove the van in the grand finale parade of the county fair this year.

Virginia Freed reported on the Division-Council meeting held in Indianapolis September 19. Virginia and Joy attended. Two topics stressed were public relations on the local level and the importance of fire disaster services.

It was announced the chapter will act as a clearing house for organizations providing gifts and food for needy families and also have a Christmas bureau of its own. Mrs. Florence Barnes will act as chairman of the project. Those having donations of money, sent to new items, or their time should call this office.

A film has been purchased for CPR instructor Bob Norris to use in class presentations.

After some discussion, it was voted to transfer certain funds in order to take advantage of high interest rates on savings accounts.

The treasurer is to prepare a report comparing budget expenditures over previous years to make certain that the chapter is not exceeding its capabilities for hardship-case assistance.

A meeting for all board members is set for February 9, 1982, at 7:00 p.m. at the home of Joy Jeffries with February 16 as an alternate date in case of a weather postponement.

The office has a new CETA worker, Debbie Turner.

Old Photo Shows Spencerville's 'Bigger Days' Of The Past

Florence Steward Baker, now a resident of Fort Wayne, has provided The News with some photos from the "good old days." The top photo shows Delores Baker, the oldest daughter of Mrs. Baker, standing in front of the Spencerville Garage, which obviously was a Ford dealership. It was located in the brick building which in years passed housed the Farmers & Merchants State Bank and Universal Tool & Stamping. It is now occupied by Stauffer Machine Tool Company, on the west side of State Road 1.

Back in 1935 Ralph Furnish had a Chevrolet dealership in Spencerville and it was located right across the street from Frank Silberg's Ford garage. The brick building used by the Chevie dealer is still standing.

Frank Silberg was an uncle of Bill and Ethelyn Miller. A conversation with Ethelyn revealed that the Ford building had a bathtub & rural Fairly in the "good old days," and people would pay a small fee for the privilege of taking a bath in that "modern" fixture. Otherwise it was wash tubs at home for the most part.

In searching the files for information about the Silberg Ford agency at Spencerville, it was interesting to note that Chevrolet ads were running steadily in 1935 for the Furnish Chevrolet dealership in Spencerville. At that time you could buy a Chevie roadster for $465. Later that year Ford splashed a big "$475 FOB Detroit" in their ads for a sedan.

Locally, whole hams were selling for 25 cents a pound. And Klepsey Hardware and Furniture Store advertised a special on an eight-piece dining room suite for [illegible].

Kerosene was 9 cents a gallon.

It is significant that, during the 1930's or the "depression years", a small community such as Spencerville had two new-car dealerships in business at the same time.

The second photo shows the mother of Mrs. Baker, Hazel Berry who worked at Saint Joe and Spencerville from 1925 to 1930, following the death of her husband, William Peter Steward, in 1925. He was only 36 years old at the time of his death. The couple had married in 1909.

Mose Yeiser says he thinks the store building in the photo stood where his service station now stands. The reflection in the window appears to be an old hotel which stood across the street. It is now a vacant lot in Saint Joe.

The third photo appears to be a school class, but Mrs. Baker could not identify any of those pictured.

Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weatherstripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost you a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well.

When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat.

When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional energy-saving ideas, visit or call our office and ask for our free SAVE* booklets. They'll get you in the habit of saving energy morning, noon and night.

We give it our best.

Mental Health Christmas Drive

Even though Christmas seems weeks away, the DeKalb County Mental Health Association has begun its annual campaign to gather gifts for residents of the Fort Wayne State Hospital and Training Center and the nursing homes of DeKalb County.

"Christmas . . . Caring and Sharing" is the theme of the 1981 gift drive.

Many of the civic organizations in DeKalb County have received a letter explaining the gift drive. This project needs the support of many groups and individuals if it is to be successful.

Cooper's Jewelry and Gift is the gift collection depot for the Butler-St. Joe area. There is a list of gifts that have been specifically requested by the residents at the collection depot. Gifts on this list may be purchased and left unwrapped at Cooper's. Each resident is to receive two $3 gifts.

Brown Furniture and Hardware at Saint Joe is serving as pickup point for the Riverdale area.

For those who wish to contribute, but prefer not to shop, checks should be made payable to the DeKalb County Association for Mental Health and may be taken to the collection depot.

The campaign for gifts goes from October 26th until Thanksgiving (Nov. 26th).

For more information contact Mrs. Ronald Herrick at 337—5406 or Mrs. Wesley Zimmerman at 868—2786.

Please consider this worthwhile project and put Caring and Sharing back into the meaning of Christmas.

Around the Town

A dog was lost, strayed or stolen recently in Newville. It is part cocker spaniel and part dachshund with long red hair, wearing a blue collar. Anyone who may have information about the dog should call 337-[illegible].

One of the things discussed at a recent town board meeting was the danger present at a few spots on local streets when we have ice and snow and the going gets slippery. There will be "self serve" barrels at those spots so that motorists can make use of the sand—or ashes—to be kept in the barrels should their cars get stuck.

It's no new idea, other cities and towns have done the same for years. It was noted that bikes are the best thing for such use. And if there are enough people who enjoy bicycling, it means saving money in the street fund money that would have gone for the purchase of sand.

So, with winter upon us, any Saint Joe residents who have ashes—not clinkers—that can be used in this program can contact John Bopp, our illustrious and industrious town maintenance supervisor.

And for several years I have envisioned a sled ramp on one of our sloping streets for kids' winter fun. A small platform could give momentum to sledders on the sloping street. It would be necessary to shut off vehicular traffic for safety, perhaps with certain hours during the day and night designated as sledding time.

'Ladies' Lose

Girls basketball got underway last week but got off a very happy note. The varsity and reserves lost to Fairfield, 46-30 and 28-16, respectively.

Scoring outbursts of 10-4 and 14-6 in the second and fourth quarters gave Fairfield a comfortable margin of victory.

Rep. Coats Explains Bill

Fourth District Representative Dan Coats has co-sponsored a bill to exempt members of the Amish faith from Social Security taxes. A 1965 law already exempts self-employed Amish. The current proposal would extend the exemption to jobs held by Amish with outside employers.

"This legislation is intended to make appropriate changes in a law that has not adapted to our nation's changing social and economic structure," Representative Coats said. "We need to preserve diversity in our religious and social viewpoints because such diversity has been a bulwark of America's strength."

The Amish pay into the Social Security system when they hold jobs away from their regular farming activities, but generally are prohibited from drawing any benefits from the system under their church doctrine.

Dwindling farm acreage and rising farmland prices have "necessitated the taking of jobs off the farm and the relinquishing of self-employed status," Mr. Coats said.

The new proposal would broaden the exemption to include all members of legally self-reliant religious faiths, such as the Amish, regardless of whether they are self-employed. Also, the bill would drop the requirements that Amish farmers who employ other Amish withhold Social Security taxes from wages paid.

Several thousand Amish reside in the Fourth Congressional District.

Blazers Win

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers opened the 1981-82 basketball season Saturday night with a 63-49 win over Fremont at the Eastside gym.

Mike Casebere, at 6'-4" the tallest member of the Blazers and just named most valuable receiver on the school's football team, led in field goals with 6 for 12 points. Scoring in total points was led by Tom DePriest with 14. Jeff Vinson had 12 and Aaron Willard 10.

A 20-10 scoring margin in the third period by the Blazers provided enough margin to make Fremont's last-quarter scoring advantage futile.

Local Boy Scouts To Host 'Klondike Derby'

The Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop will hold the winter Klondike Derby to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, January 8, 9 and 10.

Scoutmaster John Sechler has announced that a three-mile course will be set up with 10 stops along the way. At each stop participating troops perform various tasks which they have learned in Scouting. Each troop builds its own sled and the Scouts pull the sled along the trail with necessary gear and supplies.

The Scout camp will be at Sechlers, with the end of the three-mile course at the Conservation Club grounds.

All arrangements have not yet been completed. However, thus far Mr. Sechler reports commitments from the Saint Joe Lions Club to serve chili, and EMS personnel and the Plainsman Muzzle Loaders Club to operate stations along the trail. Other stops will be operated by individuals to be named later.

The first time a Klondike Derby was held here was January 7, 1956. Frank Sechler was in charge as Neighborhood Commissioner for the district.

L.E.T.T.E.R.S—

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for communicating your views in support of a Constitutional amendment that would require a balanced federal budget. I strongly share your views, as does a large majority of Americans who believe that the federal government is principally to blame for inflation, and that Congress can be restrained only through the amendment process.

During the 96th Congress, I introduced a Resolution that would require a balanced federal budget unless 2/3rds of each House of Congress voted otherwise. This amendment would address effectively the principal crisis confronting our government in the modern era, and would do so with the dignity, clarity and flexibility befitting any change in the basic charter of our democracy. In times of severe economic recession when economists might agree that additional spending or a tax cut is appropriate, nothing would prevent this result as long as the economic case is strong enough to persuade two-thirds of both Houses of Congress.

My Resolution, S.J. Res. 4, was used by members of the Senate Judiciary Committee as the basis for fashioning S.J. Res. 126. Regrettably, last March, the Senate Judiciary Committee voted 9 to 8 against reporting S.J. Res. 126 to the full Senate for consideration. This was our best chance to discipline Congress and stop inflation, and it was disappointing to see this proposal progress so far, gain so much bipartisan support, come within one vote, and then lose.

The battle is not over. I have reintroduced my Resolution, now S. J. Res. 7, and it has passed the Judiciary Committee this year, an historic event. Recognition is growing that without a basic structural adjustment in the way we budget the public's money, the special interests will continue to enjoy excessive influence, and the Congress will continue to spend money the country does not have.

I am optimistic that with a new lineup in the Senate, and an administration committed to balancing the federal budget, a Constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget will pass the Senate during this Congress. I pledge my best efforts to see that this necessary reform is enacted.

Sincerely,
Dick Lugar
U.S. Senator

We Need A New County Jail

I had occasion to visit the county jail the past couple of weeks. Those visits changed my outlook completely about the need for improved facilities.

In the past, my outlook has been one of skepticism when any public reports appeared and indicated that the county jail is inadequate.

If others are like me, they envision a jail where for instance, when you visit someone confined there, you can have a fairly private conversation. I found out that what you see on TV and what you have locally are worlds apart. I am not one to favor facilities which in a sense "coddle" those who are confined; after all, jail IS a punishment, generally speaking. But I do think that relatives, friends, attorneys and the confined individuals have a right to controlled privacy. I think there are some things of a personal nature particularly which should be kept private. And conversations between attorneys and clients confined in jails are private and that privacy ought to be protected.

I don't know that I would have been impressed by the need for more adequate facilities even if I had been taken on a tour of the county jail. Some things are not apparent just by looking: you must be a participant to really know how useful certain things are.

As this is being written, a total of 16 people are confined at the county jail. The number fluctuates. Visiting hours include one hour on Sunday and one hour on Thursday. But that doesn't mean you can visit for an hour, or a half hour. Only two prisoners can have visitors at a time, in a hallway narrow enough that only two prisoners' visitors can be accommodated at a time. It is necessary to speak in a loud voice to be heard on either side of the glass-bar-door-wall section dividing the area. So you have two different conversations going at the same spot, with loud voices, involving at least four people.

The entrance area, the radio dispatch area and the office area are cramped. The hall for visitors (attorneys have little better opportunity to talk to clients in private, I was told) is the only facility available for visiting and consulting purposes.

I don't know what the other parts of the building provide. But I do know that, from first-hand experience, I have been completely converted from my skeptical outlook about the need for improved county jail facilities. I now know the need is real and the primary need from my point of view is that related to providing for comparatively private conversations and consultations. The other needs are real, too.

We need a new county jail.

Repeating Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

"Our philosophy has been that it is better to be on the safe side than to have an accident," said Mrs. Peggy Cowen, Eastside principal, regarding the delays in school last week due to fog. She explained that the decision to delay school must be made by 6 a.m., and the decision to cancel school must be made by 9 a.m. Decisions must be made early, she said, to allow cafeteria personnel enough time to prepare lunches. Delays of more than two hours also cause problems for elementary students because of the limited time they have left in the classroom.

From The Editor's Pen....

As we observe this Thanksgiving season, we face a challenge that is nationally recognized every year at this particular season. That challenge is to do justice to our God and His teachings not for one but for every day. We say and hear said that we have much to be thankful for, that all the blessings that Americans enjoy have come from their God and that we should go to church more, do more things for the church, live more Christian lives. And as each Thanksgiving season passes, and for that matter the closely following Christmas season, we, human beings that we are, lose that pious attitude and fall back into the everyday existence that, due to popular belief, says—"It's all right to talk about living a good Christian life and treating your fellow man as you want to be treated, but in this hard cold world it just won't work."

If anyone really believes that righteous living will not work in business, in the home, in society, it is because that person has never really attempted to live that way and does not know the satisfaction and "peace of mind" that comes from living or trying to live, a good life. It is easy to be drawn back into the ways of the world because of mistreatment. One may try to be a good fellow and find that he is "taken for a ride" now and then by his fellow man, and, as a result, give up on the Christian training we generally profess to believe in and resort to the tactics of the ruthless for self-protection.

It must be recognized that this self-protection is not a protection at all but a confession of weakness. We have instances in history, long since past and not so long since past, of the attempts of individuals to replace God in the mind of man with their own countenance and their own ideals. And those same instances have yet to show a successful attempt — try as they might, they could not replace God. They failed because they had, as you and we have, the weaknesses that were born into the race and which we cannot discard. As long as man has the smallest imperfection, he cannot assume to replace the teachings which have been given to him by the Perfect. Man cannot attain perfection, but it is his challenge to try for that perfection.

Americans have a similar challenge to face in their continuing belief in their form of government and propagating that form of government. It is a similar challenge because the foundation of our nation's system of government is the recognition of God and the God-given freedom of mankind. Ours is the only nation which goes hand in hand with the principles of a Christian life. Therefore, our constant realization should be, whether it is the Thanksgiving season or Sunday morning or the afternoon of Tuesday in the second week of July, that we have much to be thankful for, but that we have much to do to preserve our blessings. It should be our constant realization that we show our thanks by our everyday living according to God's principles PLUS our attendance in His house on His day.

There is a reported increase in church membership in this nation today. The number should be even greater. We cannot expect our nation to stay on the straight and narrow, adhering to its previous beliefs, if we do not continue to receive training from the Book of Instructions of the One who gave us our free nation. Christian living is based on principles. Our nation is intended to exist on those same principles. We can learn to stick to them, hard and fast, come what may, only if we gain knowledge of the strengths of those who have gone before in the name of Christian freedom. Because of them we in the United States today live in freedom. We have not achieved world peace. But if we in turn practice the same principles of Christian living, and recognize the Author of those principles by our attendance in and support of our churches, we will be contributing to a peaceful world to be enjoyed by the generations of the future.

What better way to give thanks could be found.

Today is Thanksgiving Day, yes. But only one of three hundred and sixty-five days of Thanksgiving every year in these United States of America.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Have you noticed news articles about bills being proposed right now in the state legislature? Some of them make me wonder.

For instance, one bill would raise the age limit for buying tobacco from 18 to 18.

I thought it was 18. When did they make it 13???

Another bill would create a commission to study ways to create more space for state offices.

I have a simple solution: eliminate some of the state offices. It would be a lot cheaper.

Another bill would create a commission to encourage the filming of motion pictures at sites in Indiana.

That's all we need—another commission!!!

Another bill would change the date for primary elections from the first Monday in May to the first Tuesday after the second Monday in June.

Why not hold it the first Friday after the first Thursday after the voters get fed up with the campaign rhetoric. That way we would have a weekend to recover.

I'm hoping for someone to propose a bill to put the legislature back on a schedule in which it meets every two years, the way it formerly met, rather than the every-year sessions. People need the year for a "breather"—and for time to see how new legislation works out. Annual sessions tend to bring senseless proposals, offered only to satisfy some of a legislator's constituents who have but one axe to grind.

'Ladies' Win

The Lady Blazers of DeKalb Eastside High School defeated Edon Monday night at Edon, 40-22.

The locals were in command throughout the game, being outscored in only the final quarter, and that by but one point.

Stan Kurtz EHS Finalist As 'Good Citizen'

Garrett High School Senior Marsha Haffner has been selected the DAR Good Citizen in competition with representatives also from DeKalb Eastside and DeKalb Central high schools.

The county winner is the daughter of the late MM Fred Haffner and now resides with her sister, MM Paul Johnson. Her winning paper will be forwarded to Indianapolis for state competition.

Marsha has received varsity letters in volleyball and track for the past three years. She received two "Outstanding Student" awards during her junior year, one for English and one in science. She received a letter of commendation for outstanding performance on the PSAT test. She was also honored as one of two girls to represent Garrett High School at Hoosier Girls' State in 1981.

Eastside's Good Citizen is Stanley Kurtz, son of MM William Kurtz of Butler. His school awards have been in French I, French II, French III; algebra I, algebra II; typing and accounting. He has participated in the French Club, baseball, football and basketball.

Jana Carper is the senior honored by DeKalb Central as its Good Citizen. She is the daughter of Sharon Carper of Auburn.

All three winners and their mothers and sisters will be honored at a regular meeting of the John Houlton Chapter. In March all contestants and parents will be invited to a recognition luncheon in Indianapolis.

Daughters of the American Revolution sponsor the Good Citizen contest each year for senior girls and boys in public and private accredited high schools all over the nation. The National Association of Secondary School Principals has placed the contest on the Approved List of National Contests and Activities, and it has also been approved by the Indiana Department of Public Instruction. The DeKalb County John Houlton Chapter NSDAR sponsors the contest locally each year.

Each school's representative is selected from a group of three seniors voted on by the senior students of that school. The seniors vote for these students based on the qualities of dependability—truthfulness, loyalty, punctuality; service—cooperation, courtesy, consideration of others; leadership—personality, self-control, ability to assume responsibility; patriotism—unselfish interest in family, school, community and nation.

From the three students selected, the high school faculty then chooses the one to be the school's Good Citizen. Each principal then submits the name of the school's representative to the DAR Good Citizens Contest chairman. The chairman then forwards the official written examination to the respective principals who administer the tests to the selected Good Citizens and return the completed tests to the chairman. The tests take approximately two to three hours and cover questions concerning historic, patriotic items, community activities, personal activities, each student's interpretation of the four basic qualifications, and this year an essay on "Our American Heritage and Our Responsibility for Preserving It."

Agency Set Up For Leg'tive 'Gripes'

Often, in dealing with the various state agencies, people will run into simple, but seemingly immovable, rules which they believe affect them unfairly. State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn says that people now have a forum for their complaints in the recently-established Administrative Rules Oversight Commission.

The commission, which meets quarterly, had its November 12 meeting in Room 401 of the State House. All complaints for the next meeting in February must be received at least seven days before the meeting in order to be eligible for consideration.

Mr. Gerig has been a long-time proponent of such a mechanism for resolving complaints. The need has long been obvious, he said. "While less than 240 laws were passed during the 1981 session of the General Assembly, over 1,200 rules were adopted or changed last year. They have the same force as laws, but since voters can't go to the ballot box for recourse, they're frustrated."

A person who feels adversely affected by a rule can send a complaint in writing to: Judith Palmer, Administrative Rules Oversight Commission, Room 212 State House, Indianapolis, Indiana 46204.

The complaint need not be in any special form but should contain the person's name and address. Also included should be an identification of the rule, and a description of how it adversely affects the person making the complaint.

If the commission decides further consideration is needed after a preliminary review, a public hearing is called where both the complainant and a representative of the agency involved can speak. The commission will then issue a written opinion.

GS Troop 29

At our last meeting we made wreaths to share with our families.

On November 20, 14 troop members stayed overnight at the Auburn "Y." The girls enjoyed swimming, playing basketball and snacks, among other things.

On November 16 we hiked from Riverdale to the Spencerville covered bridge where we cooked our supper on buddy burners and vagabond stoves. A few of us picked up field corn at the Ed Wechler farm as a money-making project. Also, we participated in a magazine sale.

On October 19, we went to Wild Cherry Park where we took a short hike, cooked supper over a campfire and had a Scouts Own ceremony.

Honore' Lehman is now leader of Patrol 2.

We are glad to have Carrie Loucks join our troop. We will Miss Carolynn Lady who recently moved to Michigan.

We want to thank Pat Melchi for helping us at our meetings.

We will be making gifts for our friends in the physically handicapped class in East Auburn Elementary School, plus gifts for our parents the next couple meetings.

We will have our last meeting of 1981 on December 14. We will have a party and gift exchange.

On December 12 we will be joining other Girl Scout troops in the county to present a program of Christmas carols at the Court House Square in Auburn from 11:00 a.m. until noon. The public is invited to attend.

Blazers Lose

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers served as perfect hosts to the Leo Lions Wednesday of last week, if "perfect hosts" means the visitors won. The score was 75-55.

Although the Blazers were not totally out of the entire game, having a brief lead in the first quarter and trailing by only two points at one point in the second half, Leo came up with scoring sprees at the right times and led at every quarter.

A total of 47 fouls was called on both teams, 25 in the second half. Leo added to their 26-21 field goal advantage in the game by hitting on 25 of 35 free throw attempts. The Blazers hit on but 13 of 26.

Local Boy Scouts To Host 'Klondike Derby'

The Saint Joe Boy Scout Troop will hold the winter Klondike Derby to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, January 8, 9 and 10.

Scoutmaster John Sechler has announced that a three-mile course will be set up with 10 stops along the way. At each stop participating troops perform various tasks which they have learned in Scouting. Each troop builds its own sled and the Scouts pull the sled along the trail with necessary gear and supplies.

The Scout camp will be at Sechlers, with the end of the three-mile course at the Conservation Club grounds.

All arrangements have not yet been completed. However, thus far Mr. Sechler reports commitments from the Saint Joe Lions Club to serve chili, and EMS personnel and the Plainsman Muzzle Loaders Club to operate stations along the trail. Other stops will be operated by individuals to be named later.

The first time a Klondike Derby was held here was January 7, 1956. Frank Sechler was in charge as Neighborhood Commissioner for the district.

From time to time the national news services carry a feature about some individual or group opinion that the quality of political candidates leaves much to be desired. In the last presidential election, there were (and still are) references made to an "actor in the White House." Radio and television political "experts" do not hesitate to cast a shadow of doubt over those in political office, especially when referring to President Reagan and others who continue to warn of the dangers our economic health faces due to overparticipation of government in the affairs of individual citizens. One practice of disrespect fostered by these "experts" is the use of just "Reagan" when referring to the President—it isn't "President Reagan" or "The President" or "Mr. Reagan"—it's just "Reagan." They did the same thing to Richard Nixon. Gerald Ford may have received kinder treatment because of the difficult situation which he stepped into as a result of the Watergate scandal. But that kinder treatment didn't last long; the news hounds delighted in relating Mr. Ford's tripping or stumbling. (I don't recall hearing just "Johnson" used when Lyndon Johnson was President—or just "Kennedy" when John Kennedy was President—or just "Carter" when Jimmy Carter was President. It seems to me it was "the President" or "President — — —" when Mr. Johnson, Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Carter were in office.)

This last-name type of reporting is used also with reference to women. General reporting had for years and years included the last-name-only usage by news media in reporting about males. I find it confusing nowadays to read an article and see a last name used and think it refers to a male before I realize that the story concerns a female.

I know it's "sexist" to prefer "Miss" or "Mrs." in news reporting (don't throw "Ms." at me or I'll shove it down your throat-)—but I think it is degrading to women to have them referred to in the same way that men are referred to. And I prefer that those in high office be referred to by more than just a last name. The corruption of the English language by "mod" journalists and those who do the same in order to be "with it" have taken our society down a notch.

What brought this dissertation on is the fact that the same news hounds are now making a persistent effort to embarrass the Reagan Administration by harping on and on about a $1,000 payment made to National Security Adviser Richard Allen who is supposed to have received the money from a Japanese publication for helping to arrange an interview with Nancy Reagan, the President's wife.

Think of it. Here are these high-salaried news men and women trying their best to put a bad light on President Reagan—and all over a piddling $1,000! Washington, D.C.—where BILLIONS of dollars go flying every day to feed our bureaucracy—and these news "experts" are creating continuous headlines about ONE — LOUSY — THOUSAND — DOLLARS.

If those in the national news media wonder why there is a scarcity of (in their opinion) qualified candidates for elected or appointed public office, they need look only as far as their own judgment in selecting stories for national scrutiny. Who in their right mind would want to expose themselves, their families and their friends to the threat of character assassination as represented by the efforts of many of today's news men and women? It's a wonder to me that anyone, regardless of political affiliation, can serve in high office and not lose their sanity.

The really sad part is that, while our attention is diverted to an envelope and $1,000, the big names in news reporting ignore a really scandalous financial story—the pending bankruptcy of the Social Security system. The big names in the news world continue to allow the public to think of Social Security as a pension program when it is actually the biggest, most expensive—and least financially sound—welfare program ever devised in this nation.

One thousand dollars. In the nation's capital, that's less than a week's pay for members of Congress, high appointive officeholders—and probably the top news men and women. It is difficult to accept the idea that anyone with the smarts it takes to be appointed to office by the President of the United States, is going to risk his or her reputation for a lousy one thousand dollars in a "shady" deal.

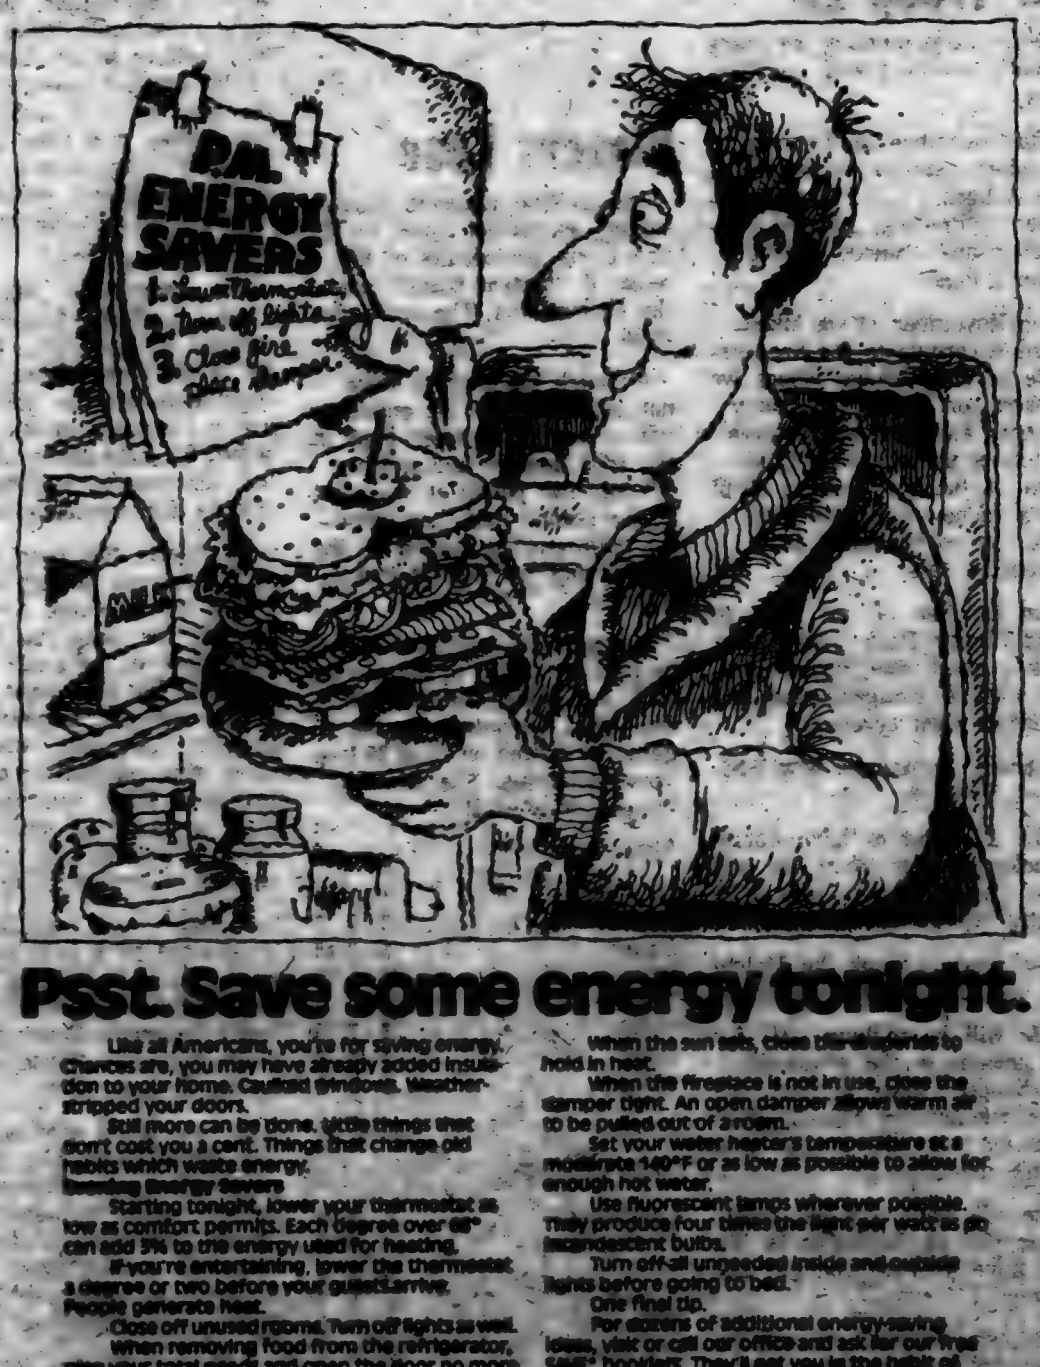
'Let us be the one'



Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weatherstripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost you a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Lowering Energy Savers

Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well.

When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the drapes to hold in heat.

When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip.

For dozens of additional energy-saving ideas, visit or call our office and ask for our free SAVE® booklet. They'll get you in the habit of saving energy morning, noon and night.

We give it our best.

Story Of Carry Nation Heard By County DAR

The John Houlton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met in Auburn at the home of Mrs. J. Wayne Beard. November 14. Chapter Regent Mrs. Orris Wise conducted the meeting.

Devotions were given by Mrs. Everett Allen. Mrs. Wise led the pledge to the flag, the opening ritual and the American Creed. Mrs. Ernest Harter read the President General's (Mrs. Richard Denny Shelby) message. Mrs. Shelby stated that Mrs. Hale, editor of Godey's Lady's Book, directed the intensive campaign of articles and letters which resulted in the passage of a measure by Congress after President Lincoln's Proclamation in 1863, which established the last Thursday of November as a day of Thanksgiving. In 1941, by a joint resolution, the Congress of the United States designated the fourth Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day. The earliest recorded Thanksgiving in this country was celebrated by the settlers at Berkley Plantation, Virginia, November 1619. George Washington recognized thanksgivings twice before he became President. The first was on December 18, 1777, during the terrible winter at Valley Forge, and the second on May 7, 1778, to thank the French for the aid they gave to the cause of American independence. As Daughters of the American Revolution commemorate the 200th anniversary of the British surrender at Yorktown and honor the French for their loyal support, it is altogether fitting that we commemorate Thanksgiving with gratitude and praise. Mrs. Shelby further stated, as you gather with your families at this harvest time, may you remember the hymn: "O God, Our Help In Ages Past, Our Hope For Years To Come." There is so much for which we should be thankful, as a nation and as individuals. Let us never forget that it is through God's help that renewed faith for the future will always be found.

Mrs. David Bowes gave the National Defense Report entitled, "Should English Be Our Official Language?" Senator Hayakawa on the floor of the Senate on April 21 introduced a joint Resolution 78 as a constitutional amendment to that end. He stated that language is a powerful tool. A common language can unify; separate languages can fracture and fragment a society. The American "melting pot" has succeeded in creating a vibrant new culture among peoples of many different cultural backgrounds largely because of the widespread use of a common language, English. He further stated he was proposing this amendment because he believes that we are being dishonest with linguistic minority groups if we tell them they can take full part in American life without learning the English language. We may wish it were otherwise, but it simply is not so. As a son of an immigrant to an English-speaking country, the Senator says he knows this from personal experience. "If I spoke no English, my world would be limited to the Japanese-speaking community and no matter how talented I might be, I could never do business, seek employment or take part in public affairs outside that community."

Senator Hayakawa explained that the amendment, upon its passage and ratification, would: establish English as the official language of state, federal and local government business; abolish requirements for bilingual election materials; allow transitional instruction in English for non-English speaking students; but do away with requirements for foreign-language instruction in other academic subjects; end the false promise being made to new immigrants that English is unnecessary for them.

On the other hand, there are things the amendment will not do. It will not prevent the use of any other language within communities, churches or cultural schools (that is, Yiddish schools, Hispanic schools, Japanese and Chinese schools are perfectly all right insofar as their support by local communities, but not by the taxpayer). It will not prevent the use of second languages for the purpose of public convenience and safety, for example on signs in public places, but it will not allow governments to require multilingual postings or publications. It will not prevent public schools from offering instruction in other languages, nor will it prevent schools and colleges from requiring some study of a foreign language.

The purpose of the proposal is to insure that American democracy always strives to include in its mainstream everyone who aspires to citizenship, to insure that no one gets locked out by permanent language barriers.

Registrar Mrs. James Littlejohn reported that Mrs. E. Victor Rolf has received her national number and is now a new member of the John Houlton Chapter. Mrs. Everett Allen introduced her guest, Mrs. Kenneth Sliger of Corunna.

Mrs. Ernest Harter read the new resolutions from the 81st State Conference.

Mrs. Lynn Holsinger presented the program entitled, "Hope Inspired By Our Heritage." She stated that ours is a rich heritage. We look with pride and appreciation on the courage and faith of our founding fathers, the acts of bravery and finesse displayed in the many battles in which our ancestors were engaged, the brilliance and foresight of the framers of the Declaration of Independence and our Constitution, as well as the ingenuity and persistence of those who have produced ways and means of making our lives easier and more enjoyable. But not all the battles were won! Dreams haven't always come true! However, as a rule Americans have exhibited spirit, courage, convictions, persistence and determination. They have dreamed and planned and hoped.

Mrs. Holsinger stated her program would deal with a battle lasting several years — fought by a very small army against great odds — led by a fearless person of spirit, unusual energy and convictions and who was born in Kentucky in 1846. This person was a female — the odd spelling of whose name was due to the imperfect learning of the father. She was married twice, once in 1867 to an alcoholic physician, 10 years later to an inconsistent lawyer, editor, minister who could never quite make a living. After brooding over her many troubles, she concluded that she had been chosen to be a martyr to a number of causes including the abolition of corsets and short skirts. This person was an amazon — nearly six feet tall, and she kept her weight to about 175 pounds by the prodigious use of a powerful arm. She could throw! She set the stage for the passage of a constitutional amendment. She was Carry A. Nation.

Carry's first husband showed up at the altar smelling of cloves and alcohol. In less than two years after their marriage he was lowered into a drunkard's grave. Ten years later she married David Nation who never quite made a living with his combined talents as a lawyer, an editor and a minister of the Gospel. Mrs. Nation brooded on her troubles and she concluded that she had been chosen to become a martyr to a number of causes which included not only temperance but also the abolition of tobacco and all fraternal orders. (Carry's first husband had done a good deal of drinking in the quarters of his lodge, from which women were excluded.) This was the mental baggage Carry was carrying when the Nations moved to Medicine Lodge, Kansas, where her husband preached a while before reverting to law. And Mrs. Nation was elected president of the Barber County chapter of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

It was an office that she accepted with the utmost seriousness. Kansas was technically dry by constitutional amendment, but actually pretty wet because of the profound appetites of the farmers for the end product of their handsome fields of corn, wheat and rye. Mrs. Nation quickly discovered that Medicine Lodge supported seven drinking "joints". She set about to close them by writing appeals to the governor and the attorney general of the state, to the sheriff of Barber County and to various newspapers. None so much as replied. In this extremity, Carry Nation had recourse to prayer and divination; and on the afternoon of June 5, 1900, with her eyes tightly shut, she jabbed a pin at random into her opened Bible, then looked to see that she had impaled the sixtieth chapter of Isaiah: "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." Carry was ready to rise and shine, and within a few minutes "a musical voice murmured in her ear" a command to go to Kiowa, a town reputed to be the wettest in Barber County. Presently the voice added: "Take something in your hands and throw at those places and smash them!" Only then did she know exactly what she was to do.

Thus began Carry Nation's campaign, with hatchet in hand and Biblical imprecations on her lips, to save men from the drunkard's fate. She resolved to lay waste to every joint in the state. After the destruction of the Hotel Carey bar in Wichita, Carry was arrested. There was a terrible to-do about her in the Kansas courts before she was released on bail, and at last the charges were dismissed because the prosecuting attorney feared for the crusader's mental condition.

She received hundreds of congratulatory telegrams, letters and callers. There were many requests for help from women in towns and cities all over Kansas and from other states. Carry Nation was delighted. She felt she was on the way to the martyrdom and fame she strongly wanted. Even New York City and Boston papers had given front page notice of her raids. She had been arrested about 30 times. She paid her fines from lecture fees and the sale of souvenir hatchets. She toured much of the United States billed variously as The Home Defender, The Smasher, The Wrecker of Saloons and The Woman With the Hatchet. She began publication of a weekly paper, The Hatchet.

Though a few individual members of the WCTU considered Carry Nation a true hero-martyr in the John Brown tradition, she was treated coolly, then with increasing hostility by virtually all of the Union.

On January 13, 1911, Carry was stricken while speaking against joints and jointists at Eureka Springs and died on June 9 at Leavenworth, Kansas. Though the Anti-Saloon League ignored Carry Nation, her furious onslaught focused publicity on the liquor outlets, and she also forced Kansas and other pseudo-dry states, as one commentator put it, to "live up to their pretensions."

Carry Nation was a unique character in many ways, including the fact that she is best remembered by the symbol she made her own. She wrote her own autobiography, "The Use and Need of the Life of Carry Nation," of which 50,000 copies were sold in five years.

Mrs. Holsinger closed with, "I'll let you decide to what extent Carry Nation won her battle." Her tombstone is inscribed, "She hath done what she could."

Following the program many of the members told about and displayed their "articles of heritage." The hostess and committee members, Mrs. Claude Husted and Mrs. Clay Lafler, served refreshments

Does The Fire Department 'Run' The Town?

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK:

I'll begin this writing with the same comment I made a few weeks ago:

I have noted before that what I say in these opinion columns is sometimes presented with the knowledge that it is difficult to separate thoughts as an editor from thoughts as a town board member. In either case, there are times when, if I do not say something, I am withholding information from the public and can be accused of "hiding" something. And if I do say something, I may be putting someone else on the spot. In either case, also, there is the realization that I must continue to "get along" with whomever else may be involved. The problem is to treat situations and people fairly.

Now, with that again for starters, the participation of a "third party" at recent town board meetings to help settle the "spat" between the local fire department and the town board appears on the surface to be a constructive idea. The results of the December 8 town board meeting, however, point to anything but an encouraging picture. With action taken by the board, or rather by two members of the board as a majority, residents of Saint Joe who have been saying "the fire department runs the town" appear to have justification for their opinion.

The "third party" stated at the meeting that he had talked to the fire department the night before and "they're a nice bunch of guys." He also stated he had talked to the board president "and HE's a nice guy to talk to." But the points which he brought up for discussion, on behalf of the fire department, directed attention almost totally toward the town board and its implied failures or faults. There may have been a comment thrown in to the effect that the fire department has been at fault, also; but nothing so strong as to put the department "on the spot" as the town board was put in the limelight. Whether intentional or not, the attempt to make the discussion seem a cooperative effort was actually successful in but one way — to focus attention upon the elected officials.

The third party informed the board president prior to the board meeting that the president's name came up "all the time" when firemen held their December 7 special meeting to prepare claims to be filed with the town board for clothing and gas allowances and with the township trustee for the same allowances. (State law says that "each" municipality served by a volunteer fire department MUST pay such allowances. This is a case where the state intrudes on local government on what "must" be done without regard for how the local government is going to pay for the added obligation.)

Why did fire president's name come up "all the time"? The main reason, at the present moment, is that firemen have been led to believe the board president "took $500 away from the firemen." Fire Chief Fred Rayle confirmed the accusation at the December 8 board meeting. The board president explained that nothing has been taken away from the fire department, that the fund in question was used to pay part of the allowances asked for by firemen.

But it wasn't until clerk-treasurer Emma Frank gave the same explanation that Mr. Rayle said he understood the circumstances.

The trouble is, Mr. Rayle said the same thing in August of 1980 following a fire department meeting attended also by all members of the town board, the township trustee and at least one township advisory board member. And that advisory board member left the meeting, describing it as "a waste of time," after the board president tried THREE TIMES to explain the use of certain funds for the fire department. The chief described the explanation as "way out in left field" after the third try.

Then, AFTER the meeting, the chief told the board president, in the presence of board member Larry McKown, that "now I understand what you were talking about."

Now, a year later, the same fire chief brings up the same fund and says the fire department believes the president "took $500 away from the fire department"!

Township trustee Roger Cook has stated that at a revenue sharing meeting by the township, the board president's name came up repeatedly as one "trying to run the fire department." Mr. Cook pointed out that the advisory board "straightened him (a fireman) out" and said the accusation was false.

When a tragic fire occurred three months ago, the town board, and especially the president, was blamed for the bursting of old fire hoses. This information came from individuals at the scene of the fire. One fireman was reported to have said the old hose ought to be taken and dumped "on his (the board president's) front porch."

What was conveniently forgotten was that NEW hose also had leaked or burst, and the new hose was purchased by the town board last year ON THE RECOMMENDATION OF THE FIRE DEPARTMENT. And the fire chief stated at the next town board meeting that the old hose had not been tested for over a year.

There were some very upset Saint Joe residents after that fire; and there was a comparatively large turnout of people at the next town board meeting—all because the impression was given, or allowed to exist, that the town board was at fault.

Can you justifiably blame the town board for hose failure when, just ten months before, the board president was told at a regular fire department meeting which he attended voluntarily that no additional new and larger size fire hose was needed? And that answer was given by the chief of the fire department.

Consider: the board unanimously disapproved a request from the fire department for some used communications equipment, saying that it was not "the way to go."

The fire department went ahead and bought the equipment anyhow, using "their" money in the department's treasury.

The board asked that Sundays not be used by the fire department for fund-raising projects, to respect the "day of rest."

The department went ahead and scheduled fund-raisers on Sundays.

The board asked that during winter months the thermostat be set at 55 degrees and a fireman posted a notice in the fire hall.

Several times thereafter the thermostat was found set at 60 to 75 degrees well after ice had been thawed from equipment following a fire call.

In 1980 the township truck needed repair. When it was delivered to a firm in Michigan, the fireman driving the truck gave the instructions "whatever needs fixing, fix it." The bill was over $4,000 and the trustee turned it over to his attorney to negotiate a reduction in the bill. The trustee had not specifically authorized a total repair of the pumper. According to the trustee, the bill was reduced. However, the unusually large repair bill left the township with no fire funds for the final five months of 1980. A few bills which normally would be split 50-50 between the town and township were paid in total by the town board. There was nothing else it could do; it was backed into a corner.

Then, after the township had "gone broke" in fire funds due to the high pumper repair bill, the fire department wrote a letter to the trustee and his advisory board members criticizing those elected public officials for not providing adequate funds or equipment!

Consider: the fire department changed the fire number twice in the past year without town and township approval. The fire department said the sheriff "told" them to make the second change. Sheriff Larry Myers says he didn't "tell" anything except what was available IF a change was desired. He didn't ORDER the change. —But that's what the fire department told the board and what one board member repeated later.

The fire department said the first change was "thoroughly researched" before it was made. That "thorough research"" didn't consider the fact that the new number was the sheriff's business number, and even though a second "switch-over" line was involved there was a strong possibility of getting a busy signal if you had a fire call to make. Board member Larry McKown found that out.

So now the new number, 925-4343, which is actually the EMS emergency number but the call automatically goes to the sheriff's office, is in effect because the town board was backed into a corner.

The fire department entered into a lease agreement for a "park" area and now wants the town board to maintain the area. With the emotional pitch of "it's a good thing and we ought to support everything that is an asset to the town," the board is backed into another corner—on something it has not contracted for or agreed to. The question is not "is the area an asset." The question is "should someone other than the town board obligate the town without the board's consent."

With untested old hose bursting and new hose bursting at a recent fire, the board was backed into another corner when the fire department successfully aroused public anger over the board's alleged negligence in providing equipment.

With a recently-instituted "newsletter", the fire department has backed some local businesses into a corner. An appropriate word is "blackmail" because one "newsletter" advertiser confessed: "We took an ad to be sure they'd come if we have a fire."

That newsletter may not have any opinions expressed editorially, but by the manner in which some matters—SOME not all—are reported or not reported, the readers of that publication are getting some very erroneous impressions. And at the same time that firemen are led to distrust the local weekly newspaper (and everyone knows who is expressing opinions in its pages and the paper is PUBLICLY accountable for what is said in its pages), those same firemen allow their own "newsletter" to be written and distributed ANONYMOUSLY. And thus the entire community is backed into a corner—because the public is reading information in the "newsletter" but doesn't know who wrote it or how accurate it is. It is therefore impossible to hold the "newsletter" accountable for its contents. (There is a word for that kind of reporting.)

The local fire department is not — repeat, is NOT — a separate entity; it has never been incorporated. But it was represented as a separate entity to the school corporation when a lease agreement was signed. According to the school superintendent and the school attorney, the local fire department was described to them as a separate entity, as a township fire department selling fire protection to the Town of Saint Joe.

THAT WAS A COMPLETE AND TOTAL MISREPRESENTATION. And the first signature on the lease is that of Fire Chief Fred Rayle.

The truth is, the Town of Saint Joe, through its town board, provides fire protection for residents of the town. The participation of the township goes years back when town and township residents served on the department (the same setup is still followed), but no joint organization was ever set up signing papers or whatever —it was the old-fashioned "you help me and I'll help you."

Members of the present department who think they are a separate organization have been misled. They are serving in an organization which functions under the town board, and the township and town elected officials share jointly the cost of those things which are of joint benefit.

If the town board has authority over the fire department, how is it that these things get by? The answer is simple—the town board doesn't exercise its authority. And to exercise its authority, with three town board members, that means two of them must agree on exercising board authority. The way matters stand right now, the fire department is getting its way by taking administrative action without consulting with AND ACCEPTING THE DECISIONS OF the town board. As matters now stand the fire department controls two board members. The tail is wagging the dog.

There are those who consider the situation a "conflict of personalities." That is not true. The situation has to do with official duties, not just differences of opinion. Our young department (the only "old man" still on it is Harold Yeiser) is doing an excellent job in providing protection for the community. But their lack of understanding of how other things should be handled leads them to false conclusions. It is the responsibility of its leadership to see that firemen understand their obligation to the town through the town board. The alleged "lack of communication" between the department and the board is not due to the board's unwillingness to discuss matters or unwillingness to allow discussion. The "lack of communication" is rather a lack of proper information given to firemen and resulting resentment at being subject to the decisions of the town board. A situation which actually involves the functioning of an elected body (the town board) including the responsibility for providing fire protection has been allowed to get out of hand. And instead of looking to the elected town board for information —and accepting that information, there are those who are accepting accusations from non-elected individuals inclined to give false and misleading information.

Chuck Laux Is 'Fireman Of Year'

Chuck Laux of Saint Joe was named "Fire Fighter of the Year" by the DeKalb County Volunteer Firemen's Association. The award came at the December 9 meeting of the group at Ashley.

A little bird informed The News that presentation of the award was uncertain, not because of any lack of qualifications but because Chuck arrived home from work that day "sick as a dog." But somehow he was pushed to go to the meeting—and received a big "Christmas present."

Each year the county firemen select an individual for recognition of dedicated efforts in providing fire protection to the public.

'Labor' Helps Fight Inflation

There are some positive signs in the labor picture despite the many layoffs now in effect. The positive signs are in that many workers are willing to back off in their wage and benefit demands in order to keep more people working. (Actually, "their" demands often were the workings of their leadership, not the worker.)

Employees at Dana in Fort Wayne have agreed to "contract concessions," which I assume means the employees are agreeing to cutbacks in current contracts, not in new contract renewals.

It is reported that the new agreement covers wages, cost of living calculations, Christmas 1982 compensation, holiday pay calculations and reduced committee union time by one-half. Another change is that no vacation pay will be given to laid-off employees who do not work for the company in a vacation year.

The bargaining for the union described the concessions as a "sacrifice we're willing to make to keep our jobs."

It's good to see that union leaders at the local level are recognizing the need to keep as many people working as possible. However, the word "sacrifice" is hardly appropriate for those things which are unreasonable in the first place.

For instance, I thought the "Christmas compensation" or gift from the employer was a matter of choice by the employer. It sounds as if it has become a demand from the worker. Backing off in the Christmas gift area is hardly a "sacrifice."

Also, how in the world can you justify paying an employee for vacation when the employee has not worked for a year? Backing off in that demand (or contract agreement) is hardly a sacrifice.

There are a lot of howls being heard about President Reagan's efforts to reduce inflation. Some people consider the president a failure because of high unemployment, continuing inflation and other factors. Some, like House Speaker "Tip" O'Neill and Senator Ted Kennedy, conveniently overlook the fact that Mr. Reagan has been in office less than a year. You can't change in one year what has been developing for 40 years, namely, governmental extravagance. And it is the O'Neills and the Kennedys who have been responsible for that extravagance.

The concessions now being accepted by labor serve as a beginning in re-establishing some sanity in the relationship between the amount of work done and the amount of pay for that work.

The U.S. Labor Department, as I recall, issued statistics recently indicating that in the average 8-hour day in industry on the production line, only 5 hours of productive work is done. In some cases even the 5 hours is high, in other cases it is low (that's what "average" means).

You can't pay more money for the same or less work, you can't give Christmas or other bonuses, you can't pay unemployed workers for vacations, you can't raise wages, you can't give paid holidays, you can't give health benefits, and so on, and still have no inflation. That's why every time a cost of living raise is given, every time a pay increase is given, every time fringe benefits increase but there is no increase in work done, you guarantee that your increased income will buy less.

More On New Jail Need

Remember, I had a column recently about "we need a new county jail"? My main concern was over the lack of privacy for prisoners' visitors.

Well, another bit has been added to the matter, this time through a letter to the editor of the Auburn Evening Star.

In the letter six prisoners in the "upstairs" section of the jail complain about certain conditions which they say prevail. One is that they must rinse their lunch trays in the one shower available, with the result that they have food squishing underfoot when they shower. They say that the intercom is sometimes turned off and they then have no way of communicating with the administrative office area.

Sheriff Larry Myers replied to the statements by the prisoners and pointed out that a high prisoner population and a limited work force and limited facilities are part of the problem. He also pointed out that some of the complaint is the result of the need for maintaining certain disciplinary rules and regulations.

I don't want to get involved in specifics in the matter because I don't know about the living conditions at the jail.

However, I do feel that there is a tendency to judge the sheriff's department "guilty" and forget that it is not law-abiding citizens who are complaining; it is law-breakers. While there are times when complaints are justified, it is necessary to give the benefit of the doubt to our elected public officials. If we do not grant that benefit, then it becomes virtually impossible for anyone to serve in elected public office effectively.

With a much larger population in the county as compared to the population when the jail was built, with increasing crime involving juveniles and our humane desire to separate juvenile's from adults in housing offenders, the present jail is inadequate for the times.

Something else is often forgotten. That is a significant percentage of those confined in jail or in prison can't be trusted. Just a couple of weeks ago, the Fort Wayne papers told of friends of a prisoner sending marijuana up to him. In Allen County's new, modern, up-to-date jail facility with all the latest equipment and facilities, still a prisoner was able to drill a hole in a window to drop a string outside so that his friends could provide him with a drug. In the past successful and unsuccessful escape attempts have occurred at the old jail and at the new jail.

So, while there may be instances when jail conditions seem unreasonable or unfair in control of prisoners, it is necessary to remember that it is only human that, when one is confined, the main desire is to get out. Because of this, certain regulations must be instituted in keeping prisoners in confinement.

The big problem, as always, is money. And since it is the public which foots the bill in law enforcement, it is the public which must decide what it will pay for. If we want protection from lawbreakers, we must be willing to pay the bill. And law enforcement personnel must be careful to determine what is truly needed and what may be more "ideal" than practical when they ask for improvements.

The signs still point to the need for a new county jail in my opinion.

The Pendulum Swings

If you read all the news reports from everywhere, it can become somewhat confusing.

For instance, in one story in the past week the superintendent of public schools at the state level said more local schools should be closed due to decreasing enrollment. But in another story it was reported that Purdue University has closed its admissions to freshman engineering students from Indiana for the summer and fall semester of 1982. The reason: increasing enrollment.

It sounds like a contradiction—but that is when we think in terms of numbers only. I have a hunch that the problem at Purdue is that prospective students have "gone overboard" as far as engineering is concerned. The problem is not that the state legislature has provided insufficient funds for higher education. Rather, it is that a higher percentage of students are going for the high bucks in the field of engineering.

The same thing occurred when we put a man in orbit for the first time. Engineering schools were mobbed—with the space program, engineering was the "way to go." The result: a few years later we had engineers running out our ears. Then when social welfare became the "in" thing, as it still is (but engineering is beginning to take over again), technical studies gave way to social studies. And now we have social welfare workers running out our ears.

It's like people on a tilting boat—everyone runs to the other side—and the boat tips the other way—so they run back again.

Did you know—

—that there apparently was a hit-and-run incident Saturday in Saint Joe. A car made a wide turn at Washington and Spencer streets and hit a car driven by Stella Jennings of Edgerton, Ohio. The other car didn't stop.

—that MM Charles Vanover of Butler are parents of a son born December 14 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that David Krieg of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that Paul Walker of Saint Joe saw three deer cross County Road 36 Saturday morning and he couldn't avoid hitting one of them with his car. The car was damaged.

—that Henry Walter of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that Cheri Bushee of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital recently.

—that $17,500 in aluminum scrap and a $20,000 semi rig were stolen from Chapman's Auto Parts on US 6 over the weekend.

—that Rose Means of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital recently.

—that in March 1978 a lawsuit was filed against the Indiana Department of Public Welfare and the Tippecanoe County Welfare Department challenging the legality of procedures used in denying Medicaid applications because the applicant had transferred property within five years of the application. On January 8, 1981 the court ordered that those persons whose applications for Medical Assistance To the Aged were denied after September 15, 1975, due to transfer of property regulation may now have their application reconsidered. People who believe their applications were denied under these circumstances should contact their local county welfare department or call toll-free 800-382-7581.

—that Ann M. Gardik, 55, of 31 Butler died Wednesday at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne. She had been hospitalized a week.

Scouts Continue Town Hall Work

A progress report on the finishing of the interior at the town hall was made at the December 9 meeting of the town board by Ted Haberkorn.

At that time some of the materials had been delivered and plumbing fixtures were yet to be ordered.

Since then, under the direction of Mike Kimmel, framing of the walls and installation of sidewall insulation has been done, and a start made on two rest rooms.

The 36x37 room will be completely insulated with paneling of a grey "driftwood" pattern to be installed. An earlier lighting system of 14 4-bulb fixtures has been reduced to 11 such fixtures for the main area.

Joe Robinson Heads Arson Unit

Joe Robinson of Saint Joe, a member of the DeKalb County arson investigation squad, has been named president of the group. Officers were named at the quarterly meeting of the group in November.

Clarence Boger is secretary-treasurer. Coordinators are deputy prosecutor Lester Carpenter and Deputy Sheriff Lynn Robinson.

When the cause of a fire is in question, the arson squad is called in to examine the scene of the fire, gather pertinent evidence related to the fire and determine whether arson is involved.

Each restroom will have a two-bulb fixture and a baseboard electric heat unit thermostatically controlled. Previous plans to have vanities in the rest rooms have been changed to provide for installation of wall-mounted fixtures. This will bring a saving of around $200.

Six-inch insulation will be installed above the tiled ceiling which will include the recessed light fixtures. Tentative plans call for more than one light switch so that use of the room will not necessarily mean that all fixtures must be on.

Heating was installed last year and includes three corner-mounted electric units with fans for heat circulation. A fourth such fixture heats the town office area.

A section of built-in storage space is included in the interior finishing of the building for use by the local Boy Scout troop in storing their equipment.

With supervised help from the Scouts, Mike and Scoutmaster John Sechler are providing the labor in return for an as yet undetermined donation to the Scout troop by the town board.

A Christmas concert will be offered to the public free of charge December 22 at 7:30 p. m. in the Eastside cafetorium. The concert will feature Eastside's Varsity Singers and the high school and junior high school choirs. The junior high chorus is made up of students who expressed a special interest in performing. Chorus members have been rehearsing during Home BASE periods. The high school choir will spotlight various soloists. The presentation will include contemporary numbers as well as traditional Christmas carols.

Over 100 members throughout Indiana participated in the second annual Winter Leadership Camp at the Indiana Future Farmers of America Leadership Center near Trafalgar, Indiana December 4-6.

Juniors who sold $25 or more in magazine subscriptions during the annual junior class magazine sales campaign went to the Heritage House Smorgasbord in Fort Wayne and to a Komet hockey game December 12.

The Fort Wayne trip was part of their prize as top sellers in the magazine sales drive this fall. Those who went were Tricia Erwin, Charlene Thimlar, Mark Mullett, Lamar Rinehart, Tracey Dove and Hayley King.

Mrs. Nancy Hudson, Eastside business education teacher, has been named co-director of three summer cheerleading camps. The camps will be sponsored by the Indiana High School Principals' Association Division of Student Activities.

The workshops are tentatively scheduled at DePauw University in Greencastle. There will be two high school cheerleading camps and one junior high camp.

The Division of Student Activities was set up by the Indiana High School Principals' Association to monitor extra-curricular activities like cheerleading, instrumental and vocal music and speech and drama—any type of activity except athletics, explained Mrs. Hudson. Congratulations, Mrs. Hudson!

Students at Riverdale Elementary School are currently collecting donations from classrooms for WOWO radio's annual Penny Pitch. Students may make donations through December 18, and students will deliver the money to Fort Wayne December 22.

Riverdale students in grades one through three presented their Christmas program Tuesday. The Riverdale chorus performed December 12.

Butler Elementary School students will join in classroom Christmas parties the afternoon of December 22. The film "Summer Dog" will be shown in the morning as part of the school's Christmas festivities.

The Eastside-DeKalb Central junior varsity and varsity boys' basketball game will be played Tuesday, December 29, at DeKalb Central High School. The junior varsity game will begin at 6:30 p.m. Please note this change. The game had previously been scheduled for Wednesday, December 23.

Eastside's 1982 Junior-Senior Prom will be held at the Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg Museum Saturday, May 8. Middle of the Road will be performing. Middle of the Road performed at the 1981 prom. The band plays easy-listening and top-40 music by such artists as Anne Murray, Fleetwood Mac and others.

In addition, the junior class has chosen "Precious and Few" as the theme for this year's prom, along with pink and burgundy as the colors for the prom. A variety of hot and cold hors d'oeurvres will be served. The prom will begin at 8 p.m. and last until midnight.

DeKalb Eastside High School has initiated a new chess club. Mrs. Loretta Mitchell, librarian at Eastside, is sponsor for the Chess Club. Mr. Bill Hill, junior high teacher, will act as technical adviser and coach for the members. He will teach basic rules and plays.

Chess playing has grown at Eastside in the past two years, said Mrs. Mitchell. When a notice came in the mail inviting Eastside to join in Indiana chess tournaments, Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. Hill decided to form the club.

Students in grades seven through nine are encouraged to participate. More freshmen are needed to complete the team, which now consists of 14 students, Mrs. Mitchell said.

The goal of the club is to encourage young students to learn and participate in the game of chess and to participate in club and tournament action.

At a recent meeting, Mrs. Mitchell discussed competition rules and a weekly practice schedule. The regional tournament will be in March or April.

"Students will have playoffs to find strengths and weaknesses in the players," said Mrs. Mitchell. "Also, they will be learning how to play together and they will be provided with a place to work. Most important is that everyone will get a chance to play and learn," she said.

Students will be giving Christmas cards which they have made to residents of Meadowhaven Nursing Home and the Butler Hotel.

Eastside's ICT class has elected officers for the current school year. They are Steve Newcomer will serve as president. Vice president is Jim Evans. Lisa Shultz is secretary and Lori Shuman is treasurer. Pam Winslow will be reporter and Randy Young is parliamentarian. Officers will help plan the employer-employee banquet scheduled for this spring.

Mrs. Loretta Mitchell, high school librarian, Mrs. Beverly Biship, library aide, Miss Melinda Lantz, journalism teacher, and Mrs. Judy Waanders, elementary librarian, all attended a TRI-Alsa dinner board meeting at Bill's restaurant in Fort Wayne.

The executive editor of the Fort Wayne News Sentinel, Stewart Spencer, spoke on the newspaper's responsibility to serve its community and the importance of feedback from the community.

Before the meeting various games were played. Mrs. Bishir won a $25 hardback book for the high school library. The book is entitled "In China" and is a photographic essay of China.

TRI-Alsa is a network of public and school libraries which the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District belongs to.

Mrs. Loretta Mitchell, high school librarian, and Mrs. Judy Waanders, elementary librarian, attended an instructional television basic survival skills workshop November 20.

The workshop was at WBGU television station located on the Bowling Green State University campus. The workshop covered the operation, use and maintenance of instructional TV equipment. The high school owns one color and one black and white video tape recorder. Both are used often for classroom instruction, Mrs. Mitchell said.

Eastside High School's yearbook staff participated in an in-school workshop recently pertaining to the processing of this year's annual.

Mr. Jon Winteregg, a representative of Herff-Jones Yearbooks, provided leadership for the workshop.

Members attending the workshop learned such things as how to make a two-page layout, how to crop pictures so they are in correct proportion, and how to type copy in the proper manner.

Eastside Pep Club elected officers at a recent meeting. Kris Helbert will serve as president, Penny Graves will be vice president, and Lori Bailey will be secretary-treasurer. Pep Club has 65 members this season, including the Blazettes and cheerleaders.

Seniors Donna Kray and Dawn Lang performed with the Tri-State Honors Band December 12 in Neff Hall on the Indiana-Purdue University campus in Fort Wayne. Congratulations, Donna and Dawn!

An adult computer class will be offered at Eastside beginning January 5. The eight-week class will stress software for farming and agriculture. Cost of the course is $35. Enrollment is limited to 14 students. The first class meeting will be January 5 at 7 p.m. in room 128 at Eastside. For additional information, contact Merle Wagner or Sam Reinoehl at the school.

Over 200 grandparents, from as far away as Lebanon, Kendallville, Nappanee and Bryan, attended Grandparents Day at Butler Elementary School. The special day gave grandparents an opportunity to visit the school and see their grandchildren working at school. "It was quite a success," said Mr. Ed Chambers, Butler Elementary principal, and both students and grandparents enjoyed the day.

Students at Riverdale Elementary School attended a puppet show entitled "King of the Golden River" December 8. The show was presented by Hummel Puppets of Elkhart.

Eastside's Science Club swimming party at Tri-State University has been postponed until after the first of the year because the pool has been emptied for servicing.

Parents and students are reminded to tune in to WOWO radio for information regarding delays in school because of snow or fog. Delays will always be two hours. After two hours, a decision will be made as to whether school will be cancelled for the entire day.

Eastside's in-school suspension program is going well this year, said Curtis White, assistant principal, with fewer students being sent to in-school suspension than last year. Only eight seventh graders have been sent to in-school suspension, which speaks well for the class, White said.

Overall last year, about 260 students spent time in in-school suspension. White said he hopes no more than 200 students will be in in-school suspension this year, which would perhaps indicate the discipline program is becoming more effective.

Current figures show an average of less than one student per day is being sent to in-school suspension. He said he feels this indicates the discipline of individual teachers is effective.

Eastside sweaters will be on sale at all home boys' basketball games this season. The green V-neck sweater with a white Eastside insignia comes in sizes ranging from extra-extra small to extra-large.

The sweaters sell for $12 each and will be on sale in the north gym lobby. The freshman cheerleaders are handling the sale. Freshman cheerleader sponsor is Mrs. Connie Hess.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe reversed itself December 8 concerning the officially recognized fire emergency number. In August, due to confusion in the minds of the public, the board said the local 337-5555 number was the proper number for a fire emergency. A suggestion December 8 by Bob Ditton, who served as spokesman for the fire department in other matters also, that 925-4343 be the fire number was passed on a motion by Paula Tinstman and seconded by Larry McKown.

It was noted by board president Ted Haberkorn that the confusion came as a result of action by the fire department without the approval of the town board or Concord Township officials. He noted that the number was changed twice without such approval and did not support the motion.

Clerk-treasurer Emma Frank reported that the additional appropriations for the town hall interior had been approved by the state. But due to a technicality, the additional appropriation using revenue sharing funds must be re-advertised.

In response to a question from the board president, Fire Chief Fred Rayle said the defective hose which burst at the Grogg fire almost three months ago had not yet been returned to the manufacturer for credit; the same report had been given at the November meeting. The board had been told there was a ten-year warranty on the hose purchased in 1980 on the recommendation of the fire department.

A second reading of the proposed increase in rates for customers of the local waterworks was held. The third reading will be held December 22.

Kenny White inquired about the removal of certain junk cars. He noted that he had brought the matter up the past few months and nothing had been done. The board president accepted blame for the delay due to personal matters and asked the other two members to take care of the matter.

Mr. Ditton presented five items in behalf of the fire department. The first was the elimination of the conference phone system for fire emergencies and the use of 925-4343 for fire calls. The second was that a charge be made to residents within the town corporate limits for fire runs. In the past only rural residents have been billed for fire runs for insurance purposes; and if they had no such coverage, the charge was "forgotten." The town attorney advised the board last year against that type of procedure for the town.

The third item was a suggestion that there be a budget for the fire department so that the fire department has some idea as to how much money it has available. It was apparent Mr. Ditton had not been informed by the department that the town board president had suggested some time ago the department prepare a budget so that the board could consider it when the annual town budget is prepared. No such budget information has ever come from the department to the board.

A fourth item was the suggestion that the town take over upkeep of the fire department's "park" because "it's a good thing and we ought to help out on anything that is a benefit to the community." The president pointed out it was another case of the town board being forced into an obligation and liability for something which it had not approved and accepted. Firemen set up a waterball court on the site which is owned by the local school corporation. Mr. Haberkorn expressed concern over the liability or alleged liability for injury which the town might face if a waterball participant or spectator were injured. He noted that under today's "sue anybody and everybody" attitude so prevalent in society, it is a significant factor, especially since the town board has not approved the park. Mr. Rayle said the fire department has been paying an annual token fee for a lease with the school. The board president said, however, that he had contacted the school corporation about the status of the lease and had not received a reply. The original lease was for one year and was renewable each year with payment of the token fee.

The last matter from Mr. Ditton was a statement that firemen believe the board president "took $500 away from the fire department" in the town budget. An explanation was given, establishing that the belief is in error; no funds have been taken away from the fire department. Mr. Rayle accepted the explanation only after the clerk-treasurer repeated exactly the explanation given by the board president.

Firemen presented claims for clothing and gas allowances. Mrs. Tinstman and Mr. McKown approved the allowances with the board president refusing to sign the claims, a refusal he exercised last year also. He said the fire department has not fulfilled the requirements of the state statute which mandates such allowances for "volunteer" firemen.

Maxwell News

What a Thanksgiving dinner Kindergarten had at Holman's farm! Our menu consisted of vegetable soup cooked over an open fire, bread that was made during school the Friday before and spread with butter that was churned the Thursday before. We also had crackers, apples and drink.

I cannot brag or tell enough people how great the parents are that I have the privilege to work with this year. So many parents were willing to donate food and give of their time for the Thanksgiving project. I wish every parent could have gone on the trip with us! I thank you all so much. A special thanks to the following people: MM Jerry Storer for donating the cream; Mr. Emrick, Mrs. Frye, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Conrad for making bread with the children; Mrs. Crow, Mr. Emerick, Mr. Storer, Mrs. Frye, Mrs. Conrad, Mrs. Erne, Mrs. Ditton and Mrs. Carr for chaperoning the trip; and to the cafeteria ladies for letting me use the kitchen to bake the bread and loaning me the little things I forgot. An extra special thanks to Pat and Allen Holman for letting the children experience a dairy farm.

During the month of learning about what our forefathers had to endure and why we have Thanksgiving, we did have time to meet Mr. B, Mr. Z, Mr. P and Mr. S. Mr. S was pleased with the nice Super Socks the children wore to school! The children also enjoyed learning about sets, more than and less than in math.

Books your child experienced in November are:

The Funny Little Woman, Madeline's Rescue, May I Bring a Friend, Duck-Duck, Jack and the Beanstalk, Mr. "B" Book, Granny and the Indians, A Day In Autumn, Thanksgiving Dinner, King of the Cats, The Fox, The Duchess Bakes a Cake, Mrs. Moon's Picnic, Mrs. Moon Goes Shopping, Mrs. Moon's Harbor Trip, Across the Big Country, Mrs. Moon and the Dark Stairs.

FARM BUREAU

William Mertz gave devotions on the "Spirit of Gratitude," followed by the pledge to the flag.

Floyd Pfierman attended the Farm Bureau Record Meeting held in Nappanee. Roger Stehing will serve as DeKalb County Farm Record co-ordinator.

Mr. Pfierman presented the 1982 Administrative Fund Budget which was accepted by the board.

Francis Nelson will serve as the 1982 membership chairman.

35 Farm Bureau members met December 6 at the Auburn Exhibit Hall for a delicious ham potluck dinner. Tri-Township was in charge of the food. The tables were decorated with different Christmas figures furnished by 4 Corners.

David Dilley from Smith-Kirkland gave the invocation before the meal. Afterwards he gave devotions on the nine gifts to mankind mentioned in the first chapter of Ephesians.

The group sang four Christmas carols under the leadership of Judy Dilley. Beverley Black played the piano.

Mr. Pfierman thanked all the committees of the year and the board members for a very successful year.

Woman Leader Irene Nelson presented a Christmas gift to each board member.

Everyone played bingo with prizes furnished by Fairfield Township.

Julia Edwards

Funeral services were held December 9 for Julia F. (Zeigler) Edwards, 81, of Garrett, mother of Mrs. Hollis Akins of Saint Joe. Mrs. Edwards died at DeKalb Memorial Hospital after a one-day stay. She was a housewife and resided in Auburn most of her life. She was born August 7, 1900, in Williams County, Ohio, the daughter of Henry and Mary Lumpp Zeigler.

Other survivors include five other daughters; two sisters, a brother; 22 grandchildren; and 20 great grandchildren.

Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery at Auburn.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

If we are to prevent loss of jobs and employment opportunities in Indiana, not only for today but for years to come, labor and management will have to work together to help achieve a more competitive marketing position.

It should be recognized that if a company has a competitor in another part of the country that has 30% better productivity, and cheaper labor costs, this employer will soon be out of business, if some action is not taken to correct the imbalance.

Tokheim, International Harvester, Dana, and many other companies, are facing regional and foreign competition. It is time to admit that these types of problems exist and that we must work together so everyone in Indiana can benefit from increased economic development.

What a splendid example northeast Indiana can be to the rest of the state, and to the country. And what better way is there to promote economic stability than to prove that management and labor can cooperate together. After all we all have essentially the same goal, that of a healthy economy.

Sincerely,
Richard Worman
State Senator

Senator Worman's letter was written October 30. It was somewhat prophetic in that labor and management in recent weeks HAVE been working together in Fort Wayne and surrounding area to reduce production costs and thus preserve as many jobs as possible. —Ed.

Christmas Prayer

by Theodore E. Haberkorn, Sr. 1893 – 1965

(first published in The News 12-23-54)

The generations yet unborn
we pray may greet their Christmas morn
With more of love and less of hate than seems to be our bitter fate
With true respect for the right of man to live a life unloosed of sham
To work and worship, play and pray, unsecretive, in the light of day,
With less of fear of gods of war whose litter's but destruction's roar,
With more of help for lame and blind and millions of distracted mind,
With less kow-towing to golden calf,
more thought of Christ's opened cenotaph,
With songs of rev'rence, love and fun to lift their lives when day is done,
And then to blessed, restful sleep
unsought by vainly counting sheep,
With forward look to joyous morn
befitting one in God's image born.
This prayer for them we, too, might ken
if only in the minds of men
The spirit of our Christmas day throughout the year might have full sway.

False Accusation of Censorship

At this week's rather "hot" session of the town board, one of the complaints was that the front page of the last issue was full of bad things about the fire department and the only good thing was a small article about Chuck Laux and his award as "Fire Fighter of the Year."

When that complaint was expressed, I pointed out that the article appeared only because someone outside the Saint Joe community had told me about the matter. If I hadn't been told, I wouldn't have known.

The response to my comments came from among the firemen present at the meeting, something like: "The county fire association didn't send you the information because you wouldn't print it or you'd mess it up."

I made an inquiry about the matter Tuesday and was told that a news release was sent to three newspapers in the county—Auburn, Butler and Garrett. And yes, there HAD been a statement made at the county fire meeting that "it's no use sending it to Saint Joe—he probably won't print it."

This isn't the first time such an accusation has been made. I've had it thrown at me before. Years ago the school board had the same opinion. In the past few years, it has been the fire department harboring the same idea.

The truth is, there has been only one occasion in my 34 years of publishing this paper when I deliberately refused to publish material submitted to me—and that was at least 25 years ago. I refused to print the material because it contained name-calling against a resident of the community and was more emotional than reasonable in content.

Anyone who says, or passes along, the idea that I will deliberately withhold material from these pages, or change it to suit my preference, doesn't know what they're talking about.

In this particular instance, the individual in the county fire association who influenced that group to notify every newspaper in the county except The Saint Joe News has spread a falsehood and is guilty himself of the very thing he falsely accuses me of—censorship.

Letters to the Editor

Three and a half years ago I moved to St. Joe from Ft. Wayne. I had just gotten divorced and was looking for a new life and new friends in a new town. I moved to St. Joe because a co-worker at Sheller-Globe told me about a trailer here, that I could rent real reasonable.

In the first two and a half years I really didn't make much effort to become a part of my new community. But then a year ago I finally decided to become an active member of my new community. I joined the St. Joe Concord Township Volunteer Fire Dept. so that I could in some way serve my new community and hopefully help my neighbors and friends. Well I haven't done much for the community, but it's sure done a lot for me. Thru the fire dept. I've met some of the hardest working most dedicated men I've ever known, and just being a member of the same organization, and associating with these men has made me a much better person. Not only have I come to know and understand what a Volunteer Fire Dept. is and what makes it function, I have come to appreciate what a wonderful experience it really is living in a small town. In Ft. Wayne you don't even know your neighbors, let alone care about them. No one would get up in the middle of the night to go to the aid of a friend or neighbor, unless they were being paid. Sirens are nothing but an annoyance in Ft. Wayne, they certainly don't create a feeling of concern for the well being of others, as they do in St. Joe. I guess what I'm trying to say is that becoming an active member of my new community and its Volunteer Fire Dept. has taught me what "brotherly love" really means. Thank you St. Joe.

Sincerely
Martin R. Anspach

'Impeachment' Is Action Sought

County Republican Central Committee chairman Elena Rubalcaba has received several calls concerning "impeachment" of Saint Joe Town Board president Ted Haberkorn. He was told that "some" of the callers were not firemen or close relatives of firemen. But the calls were related to the problems involving the board president and the local fire department. It appears that an organized effort is being made through the fire department to carry out the declaration of Bob Ditton at a town board meeting this week that he would take steps to have the president removed from office if the president did not resign at the January meeting of the board.

"Impeachment" means to bring a charge against a public official before a legally constituted tribunal of crime or misdemeanor while in office.

At this week's board meeting, while there were repeated angry accusations made toward the board president over an editorial in The Saint Joe News, no specific arguments were presented to refute the comments in the article.

Mrs. Rubalcaba said it was not within her authority to step in and take charge of the situation. But she stated repeatedly that she hoped an agreement could be reached in the matter.

Demand Made For Town Board Pres Resignation

The resignation of town board president Ted Haberkorn was demanded Tuesday night, December 23, at a special meeting of the board on spending revenue sharing funds and other matters needing attention before the end of year.

Incensed by an editorial in this newspaper last week, Bob Ditton described the president as "bad for the community" and generally unfit to serve in public office. The Saint Joe resident gave the president until the January meeting to think it over and if a resignation is not forthcoming, Mr. Ditton said he would take steps to "get" the board president.

When the resignation demand was made, a smattering of applause came from within a group of ten firemen attending the meeting.

At the start of the meeting, the revenue sharing matter brought suggestions from the firemen for various equipment totaling over $3,000. The revenue sharing hearing was on the amount of $2,000. That amount had already been unanimously voted toward equipment for the county humane shelter. Tuesday's hearing was a technicality which had to be fulfilled.

Among the suggestions from the fire department was the purchase of 750 feet of new fire hose. The board had already purchased 700 feet of hose two months ago. When the firemen said the first purchase was to replace just "defective" hose, Mr. Haberkorn said he did not recall that the first purchase was represented as replacement of only burst hose. When he asked board members Larry McKown and Paula Tinsman if they understood the first purchase was to replace burst hose, there was no definite reply.

The firemen also want 12 more new helmets, at approximately $45.00 each, a smoke exhaust fan at approximately $350.00, and a walkie-talkie communications unit at approximately $800.00. Cost of the 750 feet of hose is approximately $1100.00.

Another request came later to have the fire hall rewired with Howard Anspach offering to donate his labor and estimating material costs at $400 to $500.

It was also noted that the fire hall has a leaky roof and it was said that new lights are needed in the fire hall.

The board approved bills pertaining to the interior finishing the the town hall. They included $3180.95 for materials from Gengnagel Lumber Company; $1585.71 to Brown Furniture and Hardware for light fixtures, baseboard heating units for the rest rooms, and other materials; and $386.75 to The Butler Company for rest room equipment.

A discussion about the donation to the Boy Scout troop for providing the labor for the interior finishing brought a motion by the president that $600 be donated to the Scouts and $200 be paid to Mike Kimmel who supervised and planned most of the work. He had not asked for any personal remuneration when the Scouts' help was offered. But Mr. Haberkorn pointed out that Mr. Kimmel had done so much that a payment of some sort was in order. The president's motion was not seconded and thought to be "too much." The other board members then agreed to reducing the payment to $500 for the Scouts and $200 to Mr. Kimmel. The Scouts and Mr. Kimmel have done some things beyond the finishing of the interior—installing new locks in doors, installing insulation above the town office area, installing an overhead storage area and carrying boxes of old town records up to the storage area.

When bills were approved, the board president noted that there was enough left in the advertised additional appropriation to have the re-wiring of the fire hall done. The suggestion was approved and materials for that project will cost around $400, with the labor donated by Mr. Anspach.

The third reading of the proposed water rate increase was held and the proposal will now go to the Public Service Commission for approval.

Another bill approved for payment was $490 for snow plowing thus far this winter by MM Jerry Kirkpatrick. The president asked Mr. McKown to contact John Bopp to see if the town tractor can be used to open crosswalks after snow plows have cleared the streets. The problem is unavoidable because snow plows push and roll snow over as they make their runs and cannot clear the crosswalks due to the size of the equipment.

The next board meeting will be the second Tuesday in January.

Blazers 'Just Miss' Big Win

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers came close to defeating the DeKalb Central Barons Tuesday night. But a lack of scoring in the first quarter spelled defeat. The final score was 47-44.

The Barons outscored the Blazers 13-6 in the opening period. The Blazers then outscored the Barons in the other three periods but not enough to overcome the early margin.

The game was decided at the free throw line. The Barons hit 5 of 12 while the Blazers had but 2 of 6.
